PLAN TO RETAIN MEN IN SERVICE AFTER THE WAR

New Deal Aims to 'Re-Educate' Them.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—The National Resources Planning board today released a postwar plan under which the New Deal agency advocates retaining a considerable proportion of men in the armed services after the war for schooling and vocational training in order to guard against glutting the labor market.

The plan was advanced in a pamphlet, "Postwar Planning," which the board declared that full employment, security and building of America to be "the central objectives" of postwar planning. The pamphlet set forth the main fields of activity in which "advances will be needed" to obtain those objectives.

The pamphlet made it clear that right after the war the administration plans to go back to regimenting the life of the nation, if it is still in power. The board study was one of five, already released on what can be expected after the war.

Plan Careful Demobilization.

Demobilization of the armed forces must be as carefully planned as the mobilization, the board said in advancing its proposal to retain segments of the armed forces under military discipline after peace is won.

The board also urged planned demobilization of the war industries to guard against increasing unemployment and fluctuations in the nation's economy.

"Much more thought will be given to the problem of the way of demobilization than has been hitherto thought necessary," the board said. "The defense and war programs have involved tremendous efforts to develop new skills and trained personnel for a great variety of industrial activities.

Seek to Equalize Market.

"The same procedure, including programs of vocational education and reëducation, both in vocational schools and in industry, might be adapted and retained, for the purpose of preparing men to assume jobs in industry after they are released from the army or navy. To withhold a certain number of service men from the labor market for a period of training might help prevent the glutting of that market, in addition to providing them with skills and training needed for industrial occupations.

"Neither from the point of view of the nation's responsibility for the men who have been fighting its battles, nor from the point of view of the dangers to the whole economy from curtailed consumer purchasing power, will we be content this time to give each man $60 cash and a ticket home. Every reasonable provision will have to be made to insure that these young men shall be enabled to take up their places in civilian life with only the inevitable loss of time which their service will entail."

Of the demobilization of industry the board said:

"Our total war effort will loom much larger in the national economy than it did in 1918. The men and machines who are making tanks and jeeps and bombs are going to be almost as 'out of a job' as the soldiers and sailors when victory comes. They will present many of the same problems, and their sudden dismissal, in its effect on the labor market and on the volume of consumer-purchasing power, would aggravate the dangers to our national economy.

"Indeed, it is arguable that it would be less wasteful to continue some war production beyond absolute military necessity rather than to halt it all precipitately at the same time. Not alone would the immediate worker in war industries thrown out of work be affected by hasty industrial demobilization but transportation workers and the suppliers of raw materials for war production would also be affected.

"It is possible that some whole industries created to meet the nation's need will appropriately be the nation's charge as they retool and convert for peacetime pursuits. There will be war boom towns for which

GREEN PLEDGES ILLINOIS' AID IN ODT'S PROGRAM

Prepare to Register Auto Owners.

BY HAL FOUST.

Steps toward a nation-wide 35 mile an hour speed limit were taken yesterday as Price Administrator Leon Henderson announced in Washington, D. C., that nation-wide gasoline rationing probably will become effective on Nov. 22. This is three weeks after the general elections.

Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, said in the capital that he was asking all governors to invoke the 35 mile per hour maximum "by proclamation or otherwise," effective Oct. 1.

In Springfield, Gov. Dwight Green urged all citizens to conform to the requested limit voluntarily pending an amendment to the motor vehicle code which he will recommend for enactment by the assembly convening in January. State police were instructed to stop fast drivers and to appeal to them in the name of patriotism to slow down to conserve their tires.

Recommended After Survey.

The low speed limit and the nation-wide gasoline rationing were recommended by a Presidential advisory committee headed by Bernard M. Baruch as tire conservation measures essential to cope with a shortage in rubber for military requirements and for the nation's transportation thru the war.

Michael F. Mulcahy, OPA administrator for the metropolitan area, said his office was preparing for the registration of motor car owners for their gas coupon books, similar functionally to the sugar ration books. There are approximately three-fourth of a million automobiles in Cook county. In the eastern states, which have been on short gas allotments since May 16, 68 per cent of the private cars receive a basic allowance of 16 gallons a month.

State Coöperation Pledged.

"In view of this new request," said Gov. Green when he heard the news from Washington, "I again appeal to every motor driver to comply willingly at once with the 35 mile an hour limit. I promise that the state government, insofar as legally possible, will give every coöperation. I'll recommend enactment of a 35 mile an hour limit by the next general assembly. In the meantime, I'm instructing all state agencies to help enforce the spirit of the measure."

Lack of adequate state laws hamper state police outside municipalities in enforcing a 35 mile limit. The present speed limit on open highways is 45 miles an hour. All state police are doing and can continue to do is to stop and warn speeders.

In Chicago the speed limit both on city streets and on boulevards controled by Chicago park police is 35 miles an hour or less. Both city police and park police have been enforcing it.

City Speed Limits Lower.

Speed limits on city streets are 25 to 35 miles an hour, with slow zones of 15 miles an hour near schools. The speed limits under park administration are 25 miles on all boulevards and in parks, but 35 miles on the Outer drive.

The President could invoke a speed limit under his war powers but, it is believed in Washington, a federal speed limit would require enforcement and punishment by federal authorities and federal courts.

As a further measure for a prompt curb on tire consuming speed, Henderson announced that a 35 mile an hour limit will be a basic requirement for obtaining both tire and gas rations. How this is to be enforced was not explained.

Another new requirement, effective Oct. 1, calls for on-wheel inspection of tires on all cars every 60 days. This is to assure proper care and to guard against casings being worn beyond a recapping stage.

A 35 mile an hour speed limit for all trucks and buses in common carrier service on regular routes will be invoked on Oct. 15, rather than Oct.

Auditorium of Patti, Caruso Is Yanks' Now

BY MARTHA MURPHY.

The slumbering splendor of the old Auditorium awoke yesterday to find itself rococo in red, white, and blue—the fourth Chicago Service Men's center. Closed last year because of the property's inability to meet taxes, the historic old hotel and theater building was taken over by the city this summer to enter a new life of glory and hospitality.

From 9 a. m. until midnight yesterday America's fighting men sauntered thru a foyer still dotted with oases of potted palms, and formed a chow line that led into the once ivory and gold dining room, now flagrantly patriotic. They passed along the 150 foot canteen bar, blocking off the secret door once used by Clemenceau, Florenz Ziegfeld, and Sarah Bernhardt as they hurried from the theater to supper, dodging autograph seekers.

Hot Dogs Replace Caviar.

The service men nibbled cookies and hot dogs at red and white tables placed where Caruso and Chaliapin once fêted their guests with champaign and caviar. They formed a queue at the chromium and tile soda fountain, and admired a 135 pound cake as ornate as the Auditorium's plaster arches, given to the center by the Tuley Park-Chesterfield community council.

Their hunger satisfied, they lounged in the lobby, watching the arrival of Service Men's Center Girls' club members. Or they climbed the sweeping marble stairs to the second floor, dodging "Wet Paint" signs to lounge in nooks overlooking the lake and the Congress street plaza. They clustered around a huge oak table, fingering magazines or dipping into volumes of the Chicago public library branch being installed there.

Test Ballroom's Shiny Floor.

They tested the floor in the ballroom and smiled when they heard Mrs. Edward J. Kelly, wife of Chicago's mayor, say that she hoped the ballroom will be used for roller skating as well as dancing. A few ventured toward the third floor, but were turned back by an MP, since the game rooms and photography laboratory on that floor will not be ready for another two weeks.

In the theater, the happy hokum of juke box jive tumbled echoes of Adelina Patti, Eleanora Duse, and Ellen Terry from the proscenium. George M. Cohan, whose "I'd Rather Be Right" drew a record sum to the theater's tills, would have smiled if he could have seen the uniforms parading across the stage. Not since Franz Josef's scarlet coated gallants spread their panoply in "The Great Waltz" have so many men in uniform trod the boards.

Bowl on Tiara Terrace.

Already the theater's orchestra seats have been removed for the installation of bowling alleys. The balls will thunder across the rows where once the diamond decked pillars of Astor street applauded with kid-gloved hands in appreciation of "Lohengrin" and "Pelleas and Melisande" and the concerts of Paderewski and Fritz Kreisler.

Waiting bowlers will look on from the box where President Benjamin Harrison sat on Dec. 9, 1889 to hear Patti sing "The Last Rose of Summer" at the theater's dedication.

Pvt. Ralph J. Kinzler of Pittsburgh, Pa., stationed at the Stevens hotel, was the center's first guest. He was served the first cup of coffee by Mrs. Kelly, and met Mayor Kelly. Kinzler said he "just dropped around to see what's what" but he stayed all day—thru the program by Ennio Bolognini, cellist, and a string ensemble, the reception for donors to the center, the canteen show by service men, and the program in the theater by Lieut. Comm. Eddie Peabody and the Great Lakes band.

Tribune Offers Stamp Series on War Events

An opportunity to compile a pictorial history of America's part in the present war is presented today to readers of The Chicago Sunday Tribune, especially the children.

On page 3 of the picture section is a set of 10 color poster stamps depicting noteworthy persons and events. These stamps should be clipped and pasted in an eight page "Poster Stamp Album of Events," which will be found in the middle of today's Comic Book. The album contains spaces for 70 pictures and may be filled with the pictures appearing today and on six subsequent Sundays.

Under each stamp space in the album appears a brief explanation of the significance of the picture to be pasted there. An example is the space labeled "Gen. Douglas MacArthur," which says: World famous general, hero of Bataan and commander in chief in the Pacific. He and his valiant men promise 'Back to Bataan and on to Tokio.'"

Schools Hit as OPA Calls In Typewriters

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 26 [Special].—Typewriter distributors today said they have received orders from state headquarters of the Office of Price administration requiring them to reclaim and ship to Washington immediately all typewriters of 1935 and subsequent models now leased by them to public schools.

This order will strip typewriters from the typing classes and administrative offices of at least 50 high schools in central Illinois, the distributors said.

J. W. Paxton of the Paxton Typewriter company said that he and other distributors in this area had believed that typewriters leased to public schools were exempt from the OPA edict requiring all leased machines to be returned to the lessors by Sept. 15.

Upheld by Ration Board.

Paxton explained that this edict had been modified by an OPA bulletin on Sept. 10 extending for three months the period in which machines leased by "nonmilitary agencies of government" might be retained by the lessees. He said the distributors had assumed that public schools were nonmilitary agencies of government and that the local rationing board had sanctioned this interpretation.

The new order was received in a letter from Jule M. Hannaford, acting state counsel of the OPA.

Rounding Up 600 Machines.

Paxton said that he and other distributors are moving to roundup all typewriters leased to schools in this area and expect to complete the job by Oct. 1. He estimated that about 600 typewriters will be called in.

William B. Bringham, McLean county superintendent of schools, listed nine high schools in this county which will lose their machines. They are at Towanda, Danvers, Arrowsmith, Bellflower, Stanford, Ben Funk, Carlock, Cooksville and Ellsworth. Many schools in Livingston, Woodford, Ford, Iroquois, Logan, De-Witt and Macon counties also will be affected, he said.

Bringham said it has been customary for schools in this vicinity to rent typewriters for typing classes because of fluctuating need. He said an effort to continue typing courses will be made thru an appeal to citizens for the loan or gift of machines and by an attempt to rent machines made prior to 1935.

REVEALS NIGHT BAYONET BATTLE ON GUADALCANAL

BY HANSON W. BALDWIN.

GUADALCANAL, Solomon Islands, Sept. 19 [Delayed].—Supplies and reenforcements brought in by a strong United States task force today strengthened the marines' grip on the southern Solomons for the battle with the Japs which is just commencing.

It really commenced a week ago when fanatic Japanese soldiers, shouting "American marine, you die!" assaulted our lines in the strongest attack made since the marines landed in the Solomons on Aug. 7, in the first American offensive of the war.

I visited Guadalcanal briefly today and received some first hand details of the battle of Sept. 13 and 14, in which it was revealed that Maj. Gen. Alexander A. Vandergrift, commanding the marines in the Solomons, had a narrow escape from death or capture.

Three Japanese, one a lieutenant waving his sword and shouting "Banzai," burst out of the jungle into the command post. The "C. P." had been carefully camouflaged and was believed well hidden, and the suicidal attack was so sudden that the three Japs almost reached the general's headquarters.

Marine Tackles Jap.

They killed a marine sergeant in their fanatical charge, but another marine tackled the lieutenant around the knees; the lieutenant and one of his men were shot and killed, and the third lost his nerve and took to the jungle. The incident illustrates the kind of warfare that is being waged here.

The Jap objective in this attack was plainly the airfield; they hoped either to seize it temporarily or permanently or to keep it under fire and make its use by us impossible. They failed.

Had they succeeded, other operations of even greater magnitude might have developed; the Japanese fleet which was then at sea and steaming southward might have attempted a further conquest. Instead after minor and indecisive contacts with our fleet it turned its back.

Japs Thousands Strong.

The Japanese fleet moved southward from the Rabaul area and heavy formations of bombers roared toward Guadalcanal at the battle of Sept. 13 and 14 opened. The reorganized and heavily reënforced Japanese forces on Guadalcanal—at least several thousand strong—commenced their greatest bid for victory.

The enemy made coördinated night attacks against three separate sectors of the marines' perimeter defenses of Henderson field. One attack came from the south down a ridge, another from the west, another from the east.

The flank attacks were beaten back—one of them with relative ease probably because about half of 1,000 Japanese troops destined for it had been slaughtered by our planes, while the enemy was attempting to land near Cape Esperance a short time previously.

But the main attack in the center, delivered with strong forces thoroly trained in jungle and night combat and well equipped with rifles, automatic arms, machine guns, grenades, and mortars, initially gained considerable ground.

At the point of attack the Japanese

BRITISH PILOT FLIES OBSERVER TO SAFE JUMP, THEN CRASHES

LONDON, Sept. 27 [Sunday—(AP).—A wounded Beaufighter pilot known as "Lofty" saved his observer's life by flying their crippled plane back home where the latter could bail out over land, but the pilot, too badly hurt to jump, crashed to his death, the air ministry news service said today.

The Beaufighter had shot down a German Heinkel after the German gunner had wounded the British pilot and set one of his engines afire.

"I suggested bailing out into the sea," said the observer, "but Lofty replied thru clenched teeth, 'hang on a bit.' "For 27 minutes we flew over the sea and not until he knew that I could come down on land did Lofty order me to bail out. Our second engine caught fire. Just before I jumped I heard Lofty say, 'Best of luck, goodbye.' "A few minutes later he crashed."

REDS ADVANCE IN PUSH NORTH OF STALINGRAD

Repulse Repeated Nazi Attacks.

34

German positions northwest of the smoking city of Stalingrad yesterday, the Russians announced today, as the army's official organ, Red Star, declared "there now is a chance to hold and repulse the Fascists" whose battering at the Volga river city has entered the 34th day.

The midnight soviet communique acknowledged that the Germans had launched repeated counterattacks northwest of the city, where the Russians are threatening to cut off their communications, but said all these thrusts were repelled with 2,000 casualties for the enemy.

"Soviet troops succeeded in advancing somewhat," it said.

Regain Many Buildings.

Inside the wrecked and burning city the Russians dislodged the Germans from a number of buildings in one section, the communique said, killing about 400 officers and men.

In another action on the outskirts of the city soviet gunners and mortar units were said to have annihilated about a battalion of German infantry. South of Stalingrad, in another fierce engagement, 800 Germans were killed and 11 tanks destroyed.

Heavy fighting also continued near Mozdok in the Caucasus, where the Germans were said to have launched five attacks without making any gains toward the Grozny oil field.

Halt Other Nazi Attacks.

The communique said the Germans were continuing their attacks in the Black sea region, southeast of Novorossisk, but that there too all attacks were repulsed and "large numbers of enemy troops wiped out."

On the northwestern front in the area of Sinyavino other German attacks were reported stopped.

(The German communique said several Communist party headquarters buildings near the Volga had been occupied by the Nazis at Stalingrad, and it claimed that further soviet relief attacks "against the northern barrier erected by German and allied troops" had been repelled. In both the western Caucasus and in Terek river valley, the communique claimed break-thrus.)

Nazis Halted on All Fronts.

Dispatches from every active sector—from the chilling Volkhov area east of Leningrad to the valley of the Terek river in the deep Caucasus—told the story of Germans halted.

In Stalingrad last night the fighting was such a melée that the German air force had switched to heavy attacks on the Volga crossings, fearing to rain more bombs on the complicated battle area in some of the streets lest the bombs wipe out the Germans' own units.

Red Star said the Germans were struggling hard to recapture "lost hills." A dispatch to the Communist party newspaper Izvestia added that several big buildings had been cleared of Germans, but pointed out that it was difficult to eject the invaders when they had set up light cannon, trench mortars, and machine guns in garrets and on roofs.

Northwest of Stalingrad the Germans again were heavily counterattacking against the Russian relief offensive. In one sector there were 17 attacks Friday and 15 the previous day. All were reported beaten off.

Big Guns Smash Nazi Tanks.

Red artillery was playing an ever greater rôle in the defense of Stalingrad. One artillery unit claimed it had destroyed 100 Nazi tanks and 108 trucks filled with infantrymen in the course of 20 days.

The ships of the Volga river flotilla, maneuvering like river tanks, again were raiding German positions close to the west bank.

On the upper Don river the Russians still were counterattacking at Voronezh. They still held the initiative on the central front, particularly at Rzhev, altho their offensive has been halted, and on the northern Volkhov river sector, where soviet troops refused to yield recaptured fortified positions despite furious German counterblows.

LAKES VESSELS ARE REMODELED FOR OCEAN DUTY

Moved to Southern Yards for Conversion.

Ships formerly operated on the Great Lakes now are being converted for wartime ocean shipping at yards in New Orleans, La., Mobile, Ala., and Galveston, Tex., the war shipping administration disclosed yesterday.

The vessels, all built in the early 1900's, average about 4,000 gross tons and are between 350 and 400 feet long. They were moved down the Illinois waterway and the Mississippi river after their superstructure had been stripped down to permit passage under numerous bridges.

Some Are Moved East.

The ships are among dozens which have been moved from Great Lakes routes for wartime ocean transport duty. Government authorities declined to reveal the number. In addition to the inland route to the gulf, a number of vessels have been taken down the St. Lawrence waterway and the New York state barge canal.

Virtually any vessel now operating on the lakes, one government official said, could be moved over inland route to the gulf, provided there is proper ballasting and in some cases the superstructure and machinery are removed. By such procedure the boats may be held within the maximum draft of 8 feet.

Bridge Lifting Will Help.

A 2 million dollar navy project, in which machinery for moving or lifting 17 bridges on the Chicago Sanitary and Ship canal is being provided, will reduce difficulties connected with moving the larger vessels. When this project is completed about Jan. 1 ships measuring 59 feet from keel to the top of the superstructure can pass over the route. The vessels are maneuvered down the inland water route with tugs, and in many cases machinery and other parts removed for the trip are taken along in barges.

Already, this official said, use of the inland route is enabling movement of vessels considerably larger than ever taken to the ocean before.

Length Limited by Locks.

In contrast to this route, the St. Lawrence river route accommodates vessels of 14 foot draft, but only those with keels less than 252 feet long can move thru locks. To pass over the New York barge canal boats must be not more than 300 feet long, clear bridges 15 feet above the water, and have a draft of not more than 12 feet.

The war shipping administration offices at New Orleans said contracts for conversion of some of the vessels have been awarded four companies there, and that the others are being conditioned for ocean travel under similar contracts at Mobile and Galveston. The cost of the work, the office said, will amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars and hundreds of workmen, particularly welders, are engaged.

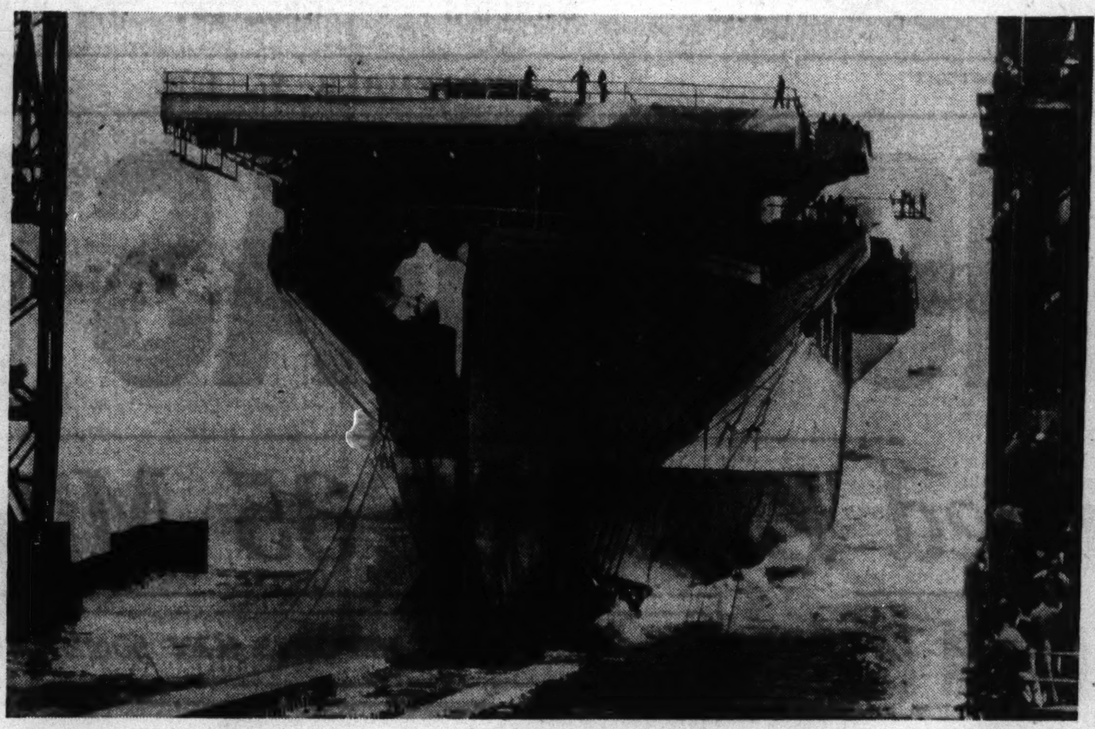
Junior ROTC enrollment in 28 Chicago high schools this fall totals 12,048, a considerable increase over a year ago, Col. W. F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics for the Chicago schools, announced yesterday.

In the 27 public high schools in which ROTC training is offered there are 11,039 enrolled, included 8,035 uniformed cadets and 3,004 other students, mostly freshmen, who do not receive uniforms. Enrollment at St. Mel High school totals 1,009.

A New Lexington Slides Down Ways



The new United States aircraft carrier Lexington, named for carrier lost in Coral sea battle, slides into Fore river at the Bethelehem Steel company's Quincy, Mass., shipbuilding yard a year ahead of schedule.

NEW LEXINGTON HITS WATER YEAR BEFORE HER TIME

Carrier Will Take Up Where Old Left Off.

Quincy, Mass., Sept. 26 (AP).—The mighty new aircraft carrier Lexington plunged into salt water today a full year ahead of schedule, destined soon to "help carry out our pledge that freedom shall not perish from this earth."

So spoke Rear Adm. Frederick C. Sherman, commander of the old Lexington and traditionally last to leave her before she sank in the Coral Sea last May.

Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson, widow of the former assistant secretary of the navy, sponsored the huge craft, as she did the old "Lady Lex" in the same Forc River yard of the Bethlehem Steel company 17 years ago.

Workers Return to Jobs.

As the vessel slid down the ways there was a rising crescendo of whistles. Then shipyard employés resumed their work as the speaking began, the clatter of riveting punctuating the sentences of the speakers.

Six enlisted men and two flyers who manned the old "Lex" heard Adm. Sherman recite the proud record of their ship—"23 enemy ships sunk or damaged, 800 Japanese officers and 9,000 Japanese men killed or drowned."

They received the tribute of Rear Adm. Wilson Brown, commandant of the first naval district, who said he had sailed in the old Lexington and added:

"I want to broadcast to the world my admiration for the noble crew of that noble ship. I bear witness that the behavior of her officers and crew brought new laurels to America."

"Must Conrtol the Air."

"Control of the seas, formerly dependent on battleships and ships of the line, now is dependent upon control of the air. We still use the surface of the sea for surface craft, but the primary weapons we use to conduct fighting at sea are the aircraft which fly from the decks of our carriers."

It was no coincidence that the new aircraft carrier took the name of the old. Originally the vessel was named the U. S. S. Cabot, but in answer to the pleas of Adm. Sherman, the officials and workers in the Bethlehem plant and the townspeople of historic old Lexington, Mass., the name was changed.

Holder of Many Records.

The old vessel held many records and the new had a good start toward carrying on where the old left off. Of his old ship, Adm. Sherman said: "At the time she was built she was the heaviest ship ever launched. She broke the 24-hour steaming record three times; set a new world record for three consecutive days running, and set a record time for the distance between the United States and the Hawaiian Islands. She was the first carrier to enter Pearl Harbor; the first carrier to tow another carrier, and the first to complete fueling from a tanker at sea. Fifty-six thousand aircraft landings were made on her deck."

Seeks 30 Year Term for Mexican Slayer of Girls

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 26 (AP).—The public prosecutor said today he would seek a 30 year penitentiary sentence for Gregorio Cardenas Hernandez, confessed strangler of four women, since there is no death penalty in the federal district. Cardenas Hernandez, a 27 year old chemistry student, lured the girls to his cottage, slew them, and buried them in his yard.

PLANES LOCKED IN AIR; ONE PILOT LANDS THEM BOTH

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 26 (AP).—How a flying instructor took over a plane's controls from his student after a midair collision and landed both his ship and another locked atop it was described today in the first litigation ever instituted here involving aerial right of way.

The suit was filed by Robert P. Cabeen III., the instructor, against the student-pilot of the other plane, Voy K. Apt, member of the police vice squad. The Timm Aircraft corporation and the Metropolitan Airport company also were named defendants.

Cabeen, now instructing RAF cadest in aerobatics at Falcon field, Mesa, Ariz., said he incurred a broken jaw, leg, and back and a fractured skull in the accident last Oct. 31. Cabeen charges Apt with negligence and with failing to yield him the aerial right of way in accordance with federal flying regulations.

Ottawa, O., Sept. 26 (AP).—A flaming army bomber carried seven flyers to death 15 miles southwest of here today.

The plane was from Baer field, Fort Wayne, Ind., the 5th service command said. The dead were identified as: today.

Second Lieut. Fred Bice, Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Technical Sergt. A. J. Lamison, Three Springs, Pa.

Pvt. O. R. Colestock, Hecla, S. D.

Pvt. A. A. Wildt, Broadmead, Ore.

Pvt. R. D. Risepter, Radcliffe, Ia.

Witnesses said the ship circled the area several minutes, then suddenly burst into flames and plunged to the ground. It struck on the farm of James Thomas and hurtled 400 yards, strewing flaming débris all the way.

Army Flyer Hurt in Crash.

Mitchel Field, L. I., Sept. 26 (AP).—Second Lieut. Bernard Alvin Zimmerman, 26 years old, of St. Paul, Minn., was badly injured when his fighter plane crashed between two houses in attempting a forced landing here today.

Patriots Help Break Up Quisling Meeting.

LONDON, Sept. 26 (AP).—Norway's German-occupied capital of Oslo was reported tonight on the verge of a state of siege after Norwegian patriots and RAF bombers had combined to spread fire and havoc in the elaborate settings of a convention of the Quisling Nazi puppet party.

Free Norwegian reports from Sweden said the patriots had smashed into the Bislep sports stadium in advance of a Quisling parade, burned stacks of the Quisling paper, Fritt Folk and damaged some buildings by fire. Numerous street fights also were reported as the result of distribution of leaflets urging Norwegians to boycott Quisling youth parades.

Vidkun Quisling, fuming with rage following disruption of his convention Friday afternoon by four RAF planes which dropped bombs from 100 feet on Gestapo [secret police] buildings, declared during a reconvened meeting today that "now they are sending murder planes to Oslo!"

Four Killed, 40 Hurt.

He claimed the victims were "ordinary people" and that the raid was directed against the Norwegian Nasjonal Samling [Nazi] party, not against German troops. Four persons were killed and 40 wounded, he said.

Admitting the revolt against his régime was growing even among his so-called followers, the principal Norwegian traitor said "the opposition must be crushed by every means," and appealed to party members to help him "put an end to internal dissension which to a certain extent is also pervading the party itself."

Authorized Free Norwegian sources in London said there was so much dissention in the Quisling group as the result of Quisling's demands for 5,000 Russian front recruits and because of his failure to gain the support of loyal Norwegians that Gen. Nikolaus von Falkenhorst, commanding the army of occupation, was asking Hitler to supplant Quisling with a German civil administrator.

Quisling Leads Dash to Shelter.

Reports thru underground Norwegian sources said Quisling personally led the dash to the cellars, elbowing his way thru the throng with his bodyguards.

The air ministry news service said the raid on Oslo was carried out in bright sunshine by a flight of four Mosquito planes, the new British manufactured twin-engined light bomber which is still on the secret list. One was shot down, another was hit but kept on flying.

YANKS DIP RIGHT INTO FRAY, RAF WING CHIEF SAYS

American fighter plane pilots do not hesitate when it is time to plunge into aerial combat, Wing Comm. David Scott Malden of the British royal air force told Chicagoans yesterday. The wing he commanded included a squadron of a dozen American volunteer pilots.

Commander Malden, accompanied by Lieut. Richard Miles of the British navy and Lieut. Johannes Woltjer of the Netherlands navy, were in Chicago on a tour sponsored by the International Student service, with headquarters at Geneva, Switzerland.

The British pilot, 22 years old, was a student at Cambridge university when he joined the RAF at the start of the war in 1939. Since then, he said, he has made about 200 flights over the continent, is credited with downing five German planes, and has been on air combat duty almost continuously for three years. He commanded his wing on three "cover patrol" flights while the recent Dieppe raid was in progress. His awards incude the distinguished service flying cross and the distinguished service order.

MAN WITH ACID BURNS ON FACE IS FOUND DROWNED

An unidentified man between 35 and 40 years old was found drowned in Lake Michigan yesterday near a home on the beach at 365 Sheridan road, Winnetka. The man, about five feet, ten inches tall, weighed 185 pounds. He was wearing a gray herringbone tweed suit. His eyes and hair were brown. His pockets contained 25 cents, and nothing by which he could be identified. Dr. Thomas A. Carter, coroner's physician, said there was an indication that the man's face had been burned by acid, but there were no marks of violence. Carter said the man apparently had been in the water about 24 hours.

NAVY SWEARS IN 2,000TH RECRUIT FOR AIR FORCES

5,000 Brave Rain to See Loop Ceremony.

A crowd estimated at 5,000 persons stood in a drizzling rain on South State street near Quincy street yesterday for a celebration of the launching of the second aircraft carrier Lexington in Quincy, Mass., and cheered lustily as 200 navy flying cadets were sworn in.

The half hour program also observed the succesful completion Friday, five days ahead of schedule, of Chicago's "Fly for Navy" recruiting drive to obtain 2,000 cadets in August and September.

The 2,000th cadet was George Wallace, 19 years old, 5221 Kimbark avenue. He stood on the platform and led the other youths in the oath of allegiance given by Capt. Joseph B. Lynch, in charge of aviation cadet personnel for the bureau of aeronautics.

Cross Addresses Cadets.

The 200 cadets are members of special Lexington squadrons, of 25 men each, which will be kept intact as far as possible thruout their training. The cadets, most of them bareheaded, listened attentively as Lieut. Gov. Hugh W. Cross declared "no greater undertaking can be accepted by any young men than that on which you men have embarked." He describe the Lexington squadrons as "symbolic of the American spirit in the midwest."

Mayor Kelly said that in the first two weeks of September 678 men were taken into the navy as fliers in Chicago, compared with 222 in the "nation's largest city."

Sets National Record.

"We're proud of the type of Americans before us today, proud of them for upholding the real spirit of Chicago. We have in this city people of 62 dialects and all races, creeds, religions, and politics. All that blood is flowing toward the great victory which is ahead."

Lieut. Comm. Carl G. Olson, senior member of the Chicago naval aviation cadet selection board, said obtaining 2,000 naval cadets in two months is a national record for naval aviation enlistments. He said more cadets were enlisted in less than two months than were accepted in the Chicago area in all of 1941.

SERVICE WOMEN ARE PRAISED BY FEMININE SNIPER

Lieut. Ljudmila Pavlichenko, the 26 year old girl who slew 309 Nazi soldiers as a sniper in the Russian army, reversed her stand on American women yesterday when she met a number of them in uniform.

In the east she had been quoted as saying that she was surprised, in these days of war, that American women still were worrying about cosmetics and clothes. Yesterday, in Chicago, at a breakfast with WAACs and WAVES and representatives of the Russian War Relief, Inc., when asked what she thinks about America's women's forces, Lieut. Pavlichenko said:

"I admire American women tremendously and I believe them capable of bravery equal to American men. From what I've seen, I believe they can fight in the front lines if necessary. If and when the time comes, they will show what they can do."

Lieut. Pavlichenko, who wears the order of Lenin, Russia's highest military award, spoke last night at the United Nations Youth Victory Jubilee in the Chicago Arena.

PRESS LICENSING FIGHT RETOLD BY COL. M'CORMICK

Minnesota Law Killed by Supreme Court.

Minnesota's effort to revive licensing of the press and the United States Supreme court's scotching of that effort were reviewed by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, in an address last night. The address was the second of a series on freedom of the press.

Col. McCormick's speech was broadcast by W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

TEXT OF THE ADDRESS

The text of the address follows:

"Two weeks ago I told you that freedom of the press meant freedom from interference by governmental agencies, and I described the three principal methods of oppression that have been employed.

"Tonight and in subsequent weeks I will take up these methods separately and describe how, after the press had been free for hundreds of years, efforts to destroy that freedom had been made in the last 20 years.

"The first method of controling the press, by licensing, expired in England in 1694.

"There was some licensing of the press in the American colonies, but that was abandoned even before the Revolutionary war. So this vast evil was destroyed, as every one thought, for all time, especially after the nation and all of the states adopted constitutional provisions providing for free press.

Minnesota Era of Corruption.

"Rioting was unchecked by the authorities. Assault and murder were part of the political system.

"The larger newspapers of Minnesota lacked either the courage or the integrity to combat evil, but little newspapers sprang up to expose corruption. To silence these the law of licensing was revived after more than 200 years, and the power to license was once again given to a court.

"The gag law provided that an information might be brought before the court, thus by-passing the grand jury. The court then, without a jury, was empowered to find that a newspaper was malicious and scandalous and issue an injunction against that paper, forbidding it to print malicious and scandalous news under a penalty of contempt of court.

Editor Wounded by Gangsters.

"Two men, Guilford and Near, published a newspaper called the Saturday Press, which exposed the corruption of the Minneapolis government, its mayor, and its chief of police. Of scandal about private lives, the common meaning of the word, there was not a sentence. Guilford was shot and wounded by gangsters of the political machine, but Near continued to print his newspaper. Then the prosecuting attorney brought an information before a certain Judge Baldwin charging the newspaper with being a malicious and scandalous publication. The judge issued the injunction. Near was a poor man and could not appeal the case.

"THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE had recently obtained a decision in the Supreme court of Illinois against the city of Chicago, which had attempted to reintroduce the principle of libel upon government, of which I will tell you next week. Its attorneys, at vast labor, had amassed the law on this seemingly obsolete subject.

Appeal to U. S. Supreme Court.

"It intervened in the Minnesota case with the approval of the American Newspaper Publishers' association. Its appeal was denied by the Supreme court of Minnesota. The appeal then was taken to the Supreme court of the United States.

"This was the first time that the first amendment to the Constitution was brought before that court, and the history of freedom of the press called to its attention.

"'In every state, probably, in the Union, the press has exerted a freedom in canvassing the merits and measures of public men of every description which has not been confined to the strict limits of the common law. On this footing the freedom of the press has stood; on this footing it yet stands. . . . Some degree of abuse is inseparable from the proper use of everything, and in no instance is this more true than in that of the press. It has accordingly been decided by the practice of the states, that it is better to leave a few of its noxious branches to their luxuriant growth, than, by pruning them away, to injure the vigor of those yielding the proper fruits.

World's Debt to Press.

"'And can the wisdom of this policy be doubted by any who reflect that to the press alone, chequered as it is with abuses, the world is indebted for all the triumphs which have been gained by reason and humanity over error and oppression; who reflect that to the same beneficent source the United States owe much of the lights which conducted them to the ranks of a free and independent nation, and which have improved their political system into a shape so auspicious to their happiness?

"'Had "sedition acts," forbidding every publication that might bring the constituted agents into contempt or disrepute, or that might excite the hatred of the people against the authors of unjust or pernicious measures, been uniformly enforced against the press, might not the United States have been languishing at this day under the infirmities of a sickly confederation? Might they not, possibly, be miserable colonies, groaning under a foreign yoke?'"

"And again:

"'The distinction was early pointed out between the extent of the freedom with respect to censorship under our constitutional system and that enjoyed in England. Here, as Madison said, "the great and essential rights of the people are secured against legislative as well as against executive ambition. They are secured not by laws paramount to prerogative, but by constitutions paramount to laws. This security of the freedom of the press requires that it should be exempt not only from previous restraint by the executive, as in Great Britain, but from legislative restraint also."'"

Publisher Under Censorship.

"The opinion continues:

"'The statute not only operates to suppress the offending newspaper or periodical, but to put the publisher under an effective censorship.'

"The true working of the statute was found to be, I quote, 'if we cut thru mere details of procedure, the operation and effect of the statute in substance is that public authorities may bring the owner or publisher of a newspaper or periodical before a judge upon a charge of conducting a business of publishing scandalous and defamatory matter—in particular that the matter consists of charges against public officers of official dereliction—and unless the owner or publisher is able and disposed to bring competent evidence to satisfy the judge that the charges are true and are published with good motives and for justifiable ends, his newspaper or periodical is suppressed and further publication is made punishable as a contempt. This is of the essence of censorship.'

"The opinion of Chief Justice Hughes stigmatized the statute as being an unlawful restraint on newspapers prior to publication; and, most important of all, held that such violation of the freedom of the press was a deprivation by Minnesota of liberty without due process of law in violation of the 14th amendment to the federal Constitution.

"These clear-cut findings scotched forever attempts to censor, restrict, or influence the publication of newspapers in Minnesota thru court channels.

Crusader Slain; Killer Freed.

"The issue appeared closed, our liberties secure; certainly no inkling was in any mind that the dreadful sequel would be political assassination, but such a crime was to take place.

"On Dec. 9, 1935, Walter Liggett, who was carrying on the crusade of the Saturday Press, was assassinated in the presence of his wife, who recognized the murderer. This fiend did not suffer for the crime because corrupt members of the Minneapolis police force gave him a false alibi. So while the law of Minnesota had been cleared up, the government of Minnesota had not."

NEW YORK TENOR HEARD

Mario Berini, New York tenor, was the guest soloist of the musical program, and Marion Claire, soprano, was the star. It was Berini's first appearance in a radio network program. Miss Claire sang four solos and Berini three. There were other musical numbers by the W-G-N chorus, directed by Robert Trendler, and the W-G-N orchestra, conducted by Henry Weber.

Send Out Appeals

Coöperating with the Chicago air force sponsors' campaign to aid the army in recruiting 20,000 aviation cadets by Jan. 1, members of the Junior Association of Commerce and their secretaries last night donated several hours to preparing and mailing printed appeals to young men of the Chicago area to enlist in this branch of the armed service. A large room in the old postoffice building was turned over to the volunteer workers.

WARNS INDUSTRY WAR TO DEMAND MORE 20-45 MEN

Nearly half of the men between the ages of 20 to 45 ultimately will be called into military service and will have to be replaced in industry by women and men too old or unfit for military service, Lieut. Comm. Patrick H. Winston, assistant executive at selective service headquarters in Washington, declared yesterday.

Commander Winston appealed to industrial executives at the closing session of the National Association of Food Chains conference in the Drake hotel to seek deferment only for essential employés and said that even these in time may have to be replaced.

STILL HUNT BRIDEWELL ESCAPEE.

Police searched yesterday for Joseph Pintoran, 25 years old, a prisoner who escaped Friday from the Bridewell. Pintoran was serving a one year sentence on a narcotics charge.

FRENCH WORKERS GO TO GERMANY IN TRAINLOADS

Push Voluntary Plan; Fear Labor Draft.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LYONS, France, Sept. 26.—In this corner of the Lyons-Saint Etienne-Clermont Ferrand industrial triangle, there were indications today that steady transfer of French workers to Germany in exchange for French prisoners of war, is under way.

Every day several train loads of volunteer workers depart for Germany and exchanged prisoners arrive.

Eventually, it was said, whole factory groups will be transferred. These groups are expected to be replaced by other factory groups when their contracts expire.

So far France has sent 17,000 skilled workmen across the Rhine, but Germany has asked for 150,000 a figure which Pierre Laval, chief of government, hopes to reach thru voluntary recruitment.

The departures for Germany are now voluntary. But that does not assure that if the figure set by the German authorities, of needs, is not reached by an unspecified time some readjustment of the program may not be envisaged.

Appeal to Workers.

Appeals have been made to skilled workers by ministry of labor inspectors and half pay is given by France to the families of those who go to Germany. This inducement is in addition to what the men earn in Germany.

So far there have been two objections to the flow of workers to Germany. First, there is the natural disinclination of Frenchmen to leave their country, and second, the objection of French industrialists against disappearance of the labor supply.

These two phases of the situation were dealt with in the recent obligatory labor decree and subsidiary measures. The new laws completed measures taken months ago to organize labor and to concentrate production and followed a threat by Germany to requisition labor in the occupied zone.

Reorganization committees closed down hundreds of factories, leaving in operation only those which were the most profitable. Workers thrown out of employment by this concentration of production have become candidates for work in Germany.

Sought U. S. Reaction.

The new labor decrees, which give the government control of the nation's manpower, were made known to the public only a few days ago altho they were signed and announced to the outside world long before that. This maneuver, apparently, was to get the reaction of the United States before informing France of the decree. Some sources saw in the visits of Pinckney Tuck, United States chargé d'affaires, to Laval an indication of tension over the matter. Now, however, the workers know they must volunteer or be requistioned.

Here in Lyons the labor laws are seen as of paramount importance for the recruitment of labor for Germany, altho the Nazis have rescinded their compulsory labor laws so far as France is concerned. It is believed that the problem of supplying the workers will be worked out in the next few weeks thru Laval's measures.

There has been no indication as to when all the French prisoners of war in Germany will be exchanged if the present labor projects are successful, but it is expected that if German demands are fulfilled the exchange ratio will be increased. Laval has stressed the fact that the workers going to Germany are saving Frenchmen from the rigors of prison camp life.

RUMORS HE WILL FALL GIVE LAVAL A GOOD (?) LAUGH

London Hears of Plot to Oust Vichy Chief.

VICHY, France, Sept. 26 (AP).—Chief of Government Pierre Laval told newspapermen today that his government is based on "solid foundations," and with a bitter smile he said that any rumors of his fall or the fall of his government were "laughable." He refused to comment on rumors which have been current several days.

[The fact that Laval took cognizance of rumors of his fall may be highly significant. Vichy censorship permitted no indication of just what other rumors there were that Laval refused to comment upon. Reports even of his rumored resignation have not been permitted thru the tight Vichy censorship until today's brief dispatch. Reports reaching Berne, Switzerland, earlier in the week said Laval was bolstering his hand by appointing trusted aids to key police positions in apparent anticipation of trouble when France's new compulsory labor law becomes effective.]

Laval Aid Ousted.

It was announced officially that Jacques Benoist-Mechin, secretary of state in the foreign ministry, is no longer a member of the government. A statement to this effect will be published in the official journal, it was said. No reason was given for his dismissal.

[In London "Fighting French" sources reported Laval had sacked Benoist-Mechin because he was a ringleader in a plot to supplant Laval with the more pro-Nazi Paris editor, Jacques Doriot. Benoist-Mechin was appointed to the foreign ministry post last May 18 after Laval was restored to power under Marshal Petain. In July Laval delegated to him control over French labor in Germany.]

Laval received French and foreign newsmen after calling off a morning cabinet session. At this conference he explained what he called the necessity of continuing propaganda for sending workers to Germany in exchange for war prisoners.

He placed considerable emphasis upon the German agreement to return one prisoner out of the 1,200,000 remaining in Germany for every three French volunteer specialists. He said the cabinet session was called off because he had too much to do beforehand.

New Drive on Jews.

LONDON, Sept. 26 (AP).—New repressive measure against Jews remaining in unoccupied France and acceleration of the deportation of Jews from Czecho-Slovakia were foreshadowed in reports reaching reliable quarters in London today.

The Lyons newspaper Union Francaise was said to have launched a campaign to transfer all Jews in the unoccupied zone to a "special zone" which would be established outside Vichy.

Jan Masaryk, foreign minister of the provisional Czech government in London, said that thruout Czecho-Slovakia in recent weeks there had been "a great exile of Jews to Poland."

'FIGHTING FRENCH' AIR SQUADRON IS ON WAY TO BATTLE IN RUSSIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Departure for the Russian front of a "Fighting French" fighter plane unit, christened the Normandie squadron, as a sequel to a series of military and diplomatic parleys between representatives of Russia and the French national committee in London, was revealed today. The newly formed unit, it was said, will fight under the direction of the Russian air force.

Commanding the French squadron is a former well known writer for Paris evening newspapers, who was an ace in the last war. He was demobilized in 1940 after commanding an air base at Palmyra, Syria. Soon after returning to France, he escaped and joined Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Another member of the squadron is a young captain credited with bringing down 11 enemy planes over France and the western desert. He won the international aerobatics tournament at Udine, Italy, before the war and was decorated by Premier Mussolini.

And Many Others

Months ago in the sweltering summer heat, Evans agents, looking for rare bargains in silver fox pelts made the rounds of the big fur auctions, cash in hand, taking only those they considered very fine, but in many instances delightedly buying complete lots. The result is as fine an aggregation of magnificent silver fox pelts as we have ever seen. Skins that are simply gorgeous, literally drenched with silver, every one a plump, healthy winter-caught specimen. We've had them made into coats, scarfs and jackets and they are here NOW, ready for you to wear. Prices are so clearly below what silver fox furs of this quality normally command that the sale furnishes new proof, if proof were needed that Evans attained its position as America's largest exclusive furrier through sheer value leadership.

(This is the eighth instalment of an army nurse's diary describing the first 167 days of the war in the Philippines.)

BY LIEUT. RUTH STRAUB.
As Told to MARCIA WINN.

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

We had two hospitals in Bataan. One, Field Hospital No. 1, was on the hill and under cover, with the markings of the Red Cross painted clearly on every roof. The other was ours, down in the jungle. We had it marked with white crosses made of sheeting and stretched on the ground at either end.

The first time the Japs bombed Hospital No. 1 they apologized. Then, immediately, they bombed it again, with three direct hits. It is terrible when a hospital is bombed. Every one wants to run when a bomb comes screaming, and that is the worst possible thing to do.

Naturally, the patients want to run too. This must be prevented at any cost. The second time the Japs bombed Hospital No. 1, Father Cummings, a Catholic priest, quieted the patients. He stood there as the bombs rained down and led them in the Lord's prayer.

Wounded During Prayer.

After it was all over he said quietly to one of the medical corps men, "Put a tourniquet on my arm, please." He had been wounded, but his voice had never quavered.

In the jungle hospital we kept on working when we heard the Japs coming, but in my ward I had an air raid spotter, a corporal in the air force who was desperately ill. When the alarm came he would get up from his bed and stagger to a clearing not far away. I would keep working until he told me to go to a fox hole, and I would stay in it until he told me to get out.

April 7—Three direct hits made on our Hospital No. 1, under cover on a hill. . . . Our line has been broken. . . . The 31st has been forced to retreat. How serious the situation is we do not know. Morale is very low tonight.

April 8—As the day progressed the general situation seemed to be worse. We were forced to hit the dirt several times. Watched dive bombers unload their eggs right up on the hill. Heard a wonderful rumor a few minutes ago: Our convoy with three airplane carriers is 24 hours from here. Almost unbelievable, but O, how wonderful, if true! . . . This aerial bombardment is wearing and nerve racking. . . . It is getting dark again and now we will sit under the trees and talk about what tomorrow will bring.

Nurses Beg to Stay.

April 11—How much has happened since I last scribbled in this little book! Wednesday night at 8 o'clock we were ordered to be ready to leave our camp in 10 minutes. Ten minutes later, barracks bags hoisted over our shoulders, we were on our way.

We didn't want to go. [There were more than 60 nurses, and we all were ordered to leave.] It seemed so cruel to desert the 6,000 patients there in the jungle hospital who needed us so badly, but the doctors and medical corps men were staying and the Japs were at Cabcaben. . . . Headquarters insisted we go while we could.

We were packed like sardines into trucks and cars. A bumpy road and no air. We were miserable. Traffic was one long snarl, and weary soldiers were dragging themselves down the road with no apparent destination. It took us seven hours to reach Little Baguio, a distance of about six miles. Turned down the Mariveles harbor road, but our trip came to a sudden halt. The ammunition magazines directly ahead were being blown up, and the navy tunnels were blasted. Corregidor was shelling the Jap lines. Shells were whizzing overhead. We were tired, depressed, hungry, hot, and very low. . . .

Rescue Boat Missing.

After several hours we were allowed to move and arrived at Mariveles at 6:30 a. m. Thursday. We were horrified to find the place deserted. The boat which was to have reached us was gone. What to do? The only alternative seemed surrender.

Several enlisted men came to our aid. They found cans of peaches, beans, and hash left behind by the navy, and all of us gathered in the most secluded spot we could find and ate like wolves. We hooked the peaches with the wrong ends of our tooth brushes. The Japs were bombing all the time, and several of the girls were sick. How they managed to drag themselves around is hard to say.

Planes flew overhead. Felt the Japs had spotted us. Tried to take off in a sailboat but there were too many and the little boat foundered. Tried to get on another little boat but the Japs were overhead again so it had to go out and circle around the bay to keep from being hit. Each time the planes came we fell on the pier.

Unable to Land.

Well, we finally made it, but because of the enemy craft we had to stay on the boat and circle around until the alert at Corregidor was over. [We were on one of those little inter-island boats, a motorboat.] During our zigzag coursing we picked up people who had used rafts, tiny native boats, and anything that would float to make their escape. We really were frightened. Ten minutes after we got off the dock the Japs hit it.

We arrived at Corregidor at noon the day Bataan surrendered. We're here. That's all we can say. They gave us food and they gave us a little cot for each two girls. We piled on feet to face and fell asleep from sheer exhaustion.

Gen. King [Maj. Gen. Edward P. King Jr.] went up to the Jap lines early Thursday morning to surrender Bataan. Thus far no word has been heard. It is believed the Japs insist we surrender Corregidor, Fort Drum, Fort Hughes, and the navy. There is much speculation as to the outcome. The tunnel here, 400 feet under the rock of Corregidor, is filled with people who are just waiting.

PLAN TO RETAIN MEN IN SERVICE AFTER WAR ENDS

New Deal 'Re-Education' Program Told.

an orderly procedure of progress to peacetime status should be mapped.

Must Check Downward Spiral.

"In all the planning for demobilization, military and industrial, we must not for a moment lose sight of the fundamental importance of preventing the downward spiral of unemployment, decreased consumer buying power, drops in production levels and in opportunities for investment."

The pamphlet also discussed postwar public works, urban conservation and development, rural works and land use, water resources and industrial development, transportation, labor policies, services, and other related subjects.

The board emphasized that war planning is by no means a task for the government alone, but is also the opportunity and responsibility of private enterprise. Labor, industry, agriculture and the government will have to coöperate to shift the war expenditure of some 70 billion dollars a year to a peace economy without upsetting the national recovery, it was said.

"In addition to study of the problem of physical conversion to peacetime production, far sighted business leaders are looking also at problems of policy," the pamphlet said. "With the understanding we now have of the relationship between consumer purchasing power and business prosperity, it is important to reëxamine price and wage policies. Government policy also needs reëxamination to insure that it operates to encourage a healthy development of private enterprise."

Nazis Order Compulsory Labor for Dutch Youths

LONDON, Sept. 26 (AP).—The Dutch Aneta news agency said today that German occupation authorities had announced compulsory labor service for all Netherlands youth, starting with boys 18 years old. The announcement was made, the agency said, over the Nazis' Brussels radio, but the German controled Netherlands radio has omitted any mention of it.

GEN. MAC ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Sept. 27 [Sunday]—(AP).—Allied air forces pounded Japanese ground forces in New Guinea and heavily bombed three ships in that area, sinking one, a communique said today.

A Japanese transport was sunk off Kitava in the Trobriand Islands, east of New Guinea, while an unidentified ship in the harbor at Rabaul, New Britain, was hit by a 1,000 pound bomb in a low level night attack by heavy bombers. Three possible hits were scored on another vessel at Rabaul.

Situation in Mountains Static.

The situation was reported unchanged in the Owen Stanley mountains, north of Port Moresby, main allied base in New Guinea, where some Japanese outposts were reported yesterday to have withdrawn under allied pressure.

Strafe Jap Supply Lines.

Allied heavy bombers also attacked dispersal areas of the Japanese airdrome at Buna, invasion base in the southeast coast of New Guinea, but results could not be observed.

Three enemy bombers made a night attack on Darwin, Australia, without causing damage or casualties.

SUBMARINE SINKS EGYPTIAN VESSEL IN CARIBBEAN SEA

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—The navy today announced an Egyptian vessel had been torpedoed and sunk by a submarine last month in the Caribbean sea. The announcement said one crew member was killed and 29 were rescued.

The vessel was the 476th sunk in the western Atlantic area since Pearl Harbor, according to an unofficial tabulation by the Associated Press. The sinkings have cost the lives of 3,154 seamen; 1,799 are missing, and 14,469 have been rescued.

Survivors said their ship sank in three minutes. The 29 were picked up eight hours after the attack and were landed at an east coast port.

JAPAN READY FOR 'NEXT STAGE' OF WAR, SAYS TOJO

TOKIO, Sept. 26 [from Japanese broadcasts]—(AP).—Gen. Hideki Tojo, Japanese premier, tonight told the central coöperative council of the National Service association that all necessary steps had been taken in preparation for "the next stage of the war." [He did not elaborate on the "next stage."]

At the same time he warned that the entire nation must exert the greatest possible effort and coöperate with the leaders to the fullest extent because this "is a total war and will be prolonged."

TOBRUK RAIDED; 5 VESSELS SUNK BY BRITISH SUBS

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 26 (AP).—Allied bombers raided Tobruk, Libya, in force last night in another of a series of attacks on axis bases and supply lines in the eastern Mediterranean, the British announced today.

At the same time, the admiralty announced in London that British submarines have sunk at least five and probably seven axis supply ships recently in the Mediterranean.

Bombers also attacked targets near Galal, in the Alamein battle area; the road between Sollum and Sidi Barrani, and enemy landing grounds at Matruh and Fuka.

Guns Duel, Says Italy.

ROME, Sept. 26 [from Italian broadcasts]—(AP).—The Italian communique today reported lively artillery activity in the northern sector of the Egyptian front. Two British fighter planes were shot down by German planes over Malta, the communique said.

CHEF SLAIN; WIFE ARRESTED.

William Wright, a Negro chef, was found stabbed to death yesterday in his home at 6124 South Park avenue. Police arrested his wife, Mrs. Yeola Wright.

'43 MAY BE TOO LATE FOR SECOND FRONT—WILLKIE

MOSCOW, Sept. 26 (AP).—Bluntly warning that "next summer might be too late," Wendell L. Willkie declared today that "I now am convinced that we can best help Russia by establishing a real second front in Europe with Great Britain at the earliest possible moment our military leaders will approve."

"And perhaps some of them will need some public prodding," Willkie said of the leaders upon whom rests the task of deciding when and where the allies must strike at Hitler.

Premier Josef Stalin gave a dinner in the Kremlin tonight in honor of Willkie, who came to Russia as President Roosevelt's representative.

Willkie said "we must redouble our efforts to get tanks, airplanes, and trucks here."

Russia, Willkie said, wants 1,000-plane raids on Germany from England every night.

Willkie asserted that if the United States does not send food to Russia this winter, millions may go hungry.

NAZI ARGENTINE EMBASSY CALLED 5TH COLUMN HUB

'Diplomats' Use It as an Activity Center.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina [By Air Mail].—The nerve center of the tremendous and constantly growing Nazi fifth column in this South American nation is the German embassy in Buenos Aires, where a carefully chosen staff of more than 150 men and women tend the interests of the third reich.

Argentina, still on the most friendly terms with the Germans despite the urgings of the United States and her own neighboring republics, is one of two diplomatic listening posts left to Hitler in South America. The other is Chile, which is not so friendly and which soon may bring itself to severing relations with the axis.

Cater to Castillo.

There is much to occupy the Nazi leaders in the embassy here these days. First, they must see that they stay on close terms with President Ramon S. Castillo's Argentine dictatorship in order to protect their own position. Next, they must guide the activities of Argentina's 50,000 German nationals and nearly 300,000 first generation German-Argentines—almost all friendly to the Nazi cause.

Eludes Investigation.

Twice the embassy has suffered temporary setbacks, both of which might have had serious developments in any country but Argentina. A year ago Gottfried Sansede, nominally the embassy's civil attach, but in reality the head of the Gestapo in the Argentine, was asked to appear for questioning before the committee for the investigation of anti-Argentine activities, a creation of the chamber of deputies which President Castillo seemingly is unable to control. Sanstede went back to Germany before the date set for his appearance.

Then Ambassador Baron Edmund von Thermann got into difficulties when Argentine customs officials opened a Nazi diplomatic pouch and found radio parts obviously being sent to an undercover agent in Lima. The same committee demanded his expulsion, but Castillo refused. Von Thermann was "recalled" to Berlin last February. That was the end of the matter.

Called Gauleiter.

First, there is Dr. Goofried Brandt. Rarely seen at the embassy and not a diplomat, Brandt is the wealthy owner of a medicine company who has resided in the Argentine for years. Investigations reportedly have shown that he is the local gauleiter, appointed personally by Hitler, and ready to take over in the almost impossible event that Argentina should break relations and free the embassy staff to withdraw.

Another good Nazi is Erich Otto Meynen, No. 1 man in the embassy now that von Thermann has gone. Meynen, a tall, hefty, blond Aryan, is said to consider himself quite a ladies' man. But he makes sure that the ladies do not take his mind from his duties as propaganda chief. It is he who is the supreme commander of the "war of nerves."

Direct Ship Sinkings.

Then there is Capt. Dietrich Niebuhr, who is listed as naval attaché but who, like all good Nazi diplomats, has another and far more important rôle. Niebuhr is the present high chieftain of the Nazi espionage net in South America.

It is Niebuhr's men—lounging on the wharves of the ports of South America, hidden away at secret radio transmitters in a dozen countries, listening in bars and restaurants thruout the continent—who are reported to supply the information which is sending united nations' ships to the bottom. Every time one of those ships go down it is reputedly another little black mark against Niebuhr—and a blacker mark for the Argentine government which allows him to operate.

Niebuhr and other Nazi leaders at the embassy have no trouble in forwarding information to Germany. Transradio, a commercial communication service, maintains connections with Berlin, Rome, and Tokio, and the Argentine government obligingly allows the embassy to send its messages in code. Italcable, an Italian cable system, was used formerly, but the British slashed its cables shortly after Italy went to war.

Since Brazil entered the war against the axis, the experts of the embassy have had another pressing duty on their hands—smuggling important German chieftains and subchieftains over the border from Brazil into the Argentine. It is reported that hundreds are coming out of Brazil in this manner, most of them at the point where Brazil touches the Argentine territory of Misiones, for years a hotbed of Naziism.

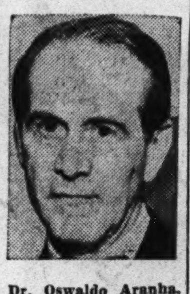
WARNS THAT AXIS AIR RAIDERS MAY STRIKE AT BRAZIL

Sees Attempt to Set Up a New Front.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Sept. 26.—Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, Brazil's foreign minister, declared today that he is convinced that at some time Brazil will be the target of axis air raiders, possibly suicide bomber squads seeking to smash coastal cities and defense installations.



Dr. Oswaldo Aranha.

In an exclusive interview with this writer, Aranha said he has been sure such an attack would come since Aug. 22, when Brazil entered the war after axis submarines had sunk five Brazilian ships with a loss of more than 700 lives.

Aranha said that the value of Brazilian air raids to the axis lies in creating a new front and further dissipating the united nations' forces. Such raids also would be aimed to throw fear into the other South American nations, he added.

Hints at Raids from France.

"The Brazilian bulge is 1,800 miles from Dakar [French West Africa]," Aranha said, "but the axis does not need Dakar to raid Brazil. I believe the raid could be launched from southern France. It might be a suicide mission of bombers. I am sure the axis would be willing to sacrifice planes to strike at South America."

Ever since the axis attacked Brazilian shipping, Aranha said, he has been trying to understand why Germany would want to draw Brazil into the war. In summing up his conclusions, the foreign minister delivered a verbal slap at Argentina and Chile, the only South American nations which have not broken relations with the axis. He said:

"I believe there are four reasons for the attack on our shipping. First, the attack and the resultant slaughter warned Chile and Argentina what they could expect if they broke relations. The axis hopes to hold them by the attack. Chile was reported nearing a break, but since the sinkings has drawn back.

Scattered Allied Forces.

"Second, the attacks aided in scattering the allied forces against the axis. Similarly repeated attacks, possibly some by air, would create a new front. Third, the Germans probably figured that the shipping attack would hurt Pan-Americanism. They probably are boasting now in Berlin that the attack showed that the United States is unable to defend the hemisphere. Fourth, the attack was played up to bolster axis morale, badly weakened by the Russians. Berlin probably made the attack on our ships look to the German people like the establishment of a beachhead in South America."

Aranha said it was too early to consider a Brazilian expeditionary force. Brazil's present job, he said, is to build an adequate defense. He admitted, however, that the Brazilians are eager to send a force abroad.

ROBBERS POSE AS POLICEMEN.

Two robbers, posing as policemen, entered the tavern of Albert Hulquist, 3420 Grace street, yesterday, forced him into a back room, and took $150 from the register.

NATIONALIZATION OF CREDIT URGED BY CANTERBURY

LONDON, Sept. 26 (AP).—The archbishop of Canterbury urged today that the government take over from the banks the right to issue credit and suggested that the privilege of the individual to own land should be examined "with a new thoroness."

Presiding at a meeting arranged by the Industrial Christian fellowship, the archbishop said that since the amalgamation which left Britain with five main banks, "money, or credit which does duty for money, has become in effect a monopoly."

"The banks should be limited in their lending power to the amount deposited by their creditors, while the issue of new credit should be the function of public authority."

FIRST REPORT ON THE NAVY'S CARGO CARRIERS

At this time—when the eyes of America are turned to the pressing need for flying cargo carriers—there is good news coming from Nash-Kelvinator.

In many plants, Nash-Kelvinator engineers are getting ready to swing into quantity production on giant cargo carriers . . . new Vought-Sikorsky flying boats for the U. S. Navy.

Several of these ships have already been built by Vought-Sikorsky, and were put into commercial service. Their record of performance in transoceanic flight, their speed, their ruggedness, their load-carrying capacity, and their dependability have demonstrated beyond question their great usefulness for both troop and freight transport.

While many facts about it are necessarily restricted, it can be said to have the longest range of any flying boat now built.

. . . and best of all, great fleets of these cargo carriers will soon be sailing from Nash-Kelvinator assembly lines—ready to serve the U. S. Navy.

We took on this mammoth assignment just a few months ago. Plants had to be redesigned—new machinery installed. A complete new assembly plant had to be built, but the men of Nash and Kelvinator haven't waited for the walls to go up. In the plants where yesterday's cars and refrigerators were built, Nash-Kelvinator engineers have made the patterns and templates—gotten the parts rolling.

This is just one of the assignments we have undertaken to beat Hitler. Thousands of Nash-Kelvinator-built propellers, one of the most intricate mechanisms of the war, are already seeing service with the Jap-blasting men of our Air Forces. And soon we begin quantity production on 2,000 H. P. supercharged engines for the highest-flying fighter in the skies—the U. S. Navy's Corsair.

We are proud to give you this report—that much of the "make-ready" period is behind us.

America will get its flying cargo carriers many months earlier than some of the dates you have seen discussed in the newspapers.

RATIONING OF GAS COUNTRY OVER IS PLANNED NOV. 22

Rubber Administrator William M. Jeffers' office, it was revealed, has begun a survey to determine the number of tires in excess of four plus one spare in the possession of car owners. Methods by which extra tires of "nonessential" drivers can be acquired for "essential use" are being studied.

The impending effect on transportation facilities was foreshadowed by the results of a city survey on a typical business day last May which showed 215,113 persons arriving in the Chicago downtown district in private automobiles between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. The figure was higher than for any other single carrier. The totals for the others were: Street cars, 200,168; elevated, 116,946; railway, 116,946; buses, 78,671.

With private automobile operation to be cut an estimated average of 60 per cent by gas rationing, the number of cars making the daily round trip to and from the loop will be slashed accordingly. Many who now drive will hang on straps. Others will share rides with neighbors.

Many Will Share Cars.

The May survey reported an average of 1.7 occupants per private car entering the downtown area. Some of the vacant seats in those automobiles will be occupied when gas rationing becomes effective. Neighbors will take turns in hauling a group of three or four to and from work.

To get a supplemental gas allowance for driving to and from work, an automobile owner must convince his local ration board that mass carries cannot serve him and that he will make every effort to share his car with others in these trips.

Chicago suburbanites, dependent upon automobiles for transportation to schools and for shopping as well as for trips to and from railroad stations, will be especially hard hit by the gas curtailment. If the necessary mileage can be covered by the basic ration they will not ordinarily be allotted extra gasoline for shopping or other errands. However, local ration boards have been given a degree of discretion in allotting them extra allowances for the more essential travel needs. But the total allowance for those with more than the basic 16 gallons per month is not supposed to include any pleasure mileage.

Roadside Stands Affected.

Aother change in personal travel habits will be a cut of from 70 to 85 per cent in pleasure driving and social trips. An allowance of 16 gallons per month for the family car won't provide for avoidable mileage. The owner and his family will walk or take the street car to the movies and to bridge parties.

The closing of half the gasoline station in the city will be accompanied by a closing of hundreds of vegetable stands, beer parlors and hamburger stands on nearby rural roads. In the east, the routes are haunted by the darkened and boarded ghosts of the peacetime automotive era.

Large outlying retail stores and a few outlying shopping neighborhoods devolped a prosperity by providing ample parking space for customers. This advantage is diminished by gas rationing. Stores and neighborhoods with the better mass transportation will benefit by the gas curtailment.

Tax Receipts to Fall.

The anticipated reduction in gasoline tax revenue is estimated by George B. McKibbin, state director of finance, to approximate half of the 1941 rate. The tire shortage already has caused a 26 per cent drop from the peace time income.

The gas tax collection from the 3 cent Illinois excise for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1942, was $47,547,106. A cut of 50 per cent means a loss of $23,773,553 in revenue for streets and highways. The loss will be shared by the state, counties and cities, each of which receives 1 cent of the 3 cent levy. New street and highway projects cannot be undertaken until after the war unless needed to aid the war effort.

CHANGE FROM OIL TO COAL HEAT, 2 OFFICIALS URGE

Householders who have oil burning heating systems were urged yesterday by two government experts to convert their furnaces for coal use if the change is practicable. They said that this is "the only complete insurance against the prospect of serious discomfort" this winter.

The officials, Robert T. Collier of the Office of Petroleum Coördinator for War and Thomas J. Thomas of the Office of Solid Fuels Coördination, have been holding conferences with fuel oil distributors and retailers.

They suggested that many of the midwestern home owners are using furnaces converted from coal use and that these readily can be reconverted.

U. S. Envoy in Turkey on Way to See President

ANKARA, Turkey, Sept. 26 (AP).—Laurence A. Steinhardt, United States ambassador to Turkey, left Ankara tonight by train en route to the United States for conferences with President Roosevelt and the state department.

How Gas Books Work

Under the eastern seaboard gasoline rationing system, which is to be the basis for nation-wide gasoline rationing, the A coupon book is issued to all owners of private cars as the basic ration book and 68 per cent have only that book. The A book has six pages of eight coupons each. Each coupon in the first page is numbered one, and is valid during the first two months of rationing. Coupons in the second page are numbered two and are good during the second two month rationing period. Thus, with pages 3, 4, 5, and 6 operating on a similar system, the book is good for one year.

Each coupon is valid for purchase of one unit of gasoline. The rationing may be relaxed or tightened at any time by the Office of Price administration simply by changing the unit quantity. That would change the gasoline value of each coupon.

Filling station attendants must remove the coupons and they are not permitted to honor coupons already detached.

GASOLINE FLAMES SWEEP TWO BOATS AT RAILWAY DOCK

Toledo, O., Sept. 26 (AP).—Fire fed by crude oil and gasoline swept two boats and a barge in the Hocking Valley railroad docks here today, injuring 12 men and causing damage estimated at $110,000.

Two coast guard boats crept close to the blazing tanker Transoil and rescued 7 of 18 crewmen aboard the vessel, which was loaded with barrels of gasoline. The boat was ablaze from prow to stern. The 11 other crewman ran thru flames and leaped to the dock.

Four of the crew of a barge loaded with 17,000 barrels of crude oil climbed thru portholes to the dock as flames enveloped the deck.

Eight members of the crew of the tug William A. Whitney also escaped to the dock as flames spread over the tug.

Parents Are Notified Son in Coast Guard Missing

A communication received from the coast guard command yesterday informed the parents of Roy Ernest Peterson, formerly of 1014 May street, Waukegan, that he was missing "in performance of his duty" and believed to have been lost at sea. Peterson had been assigned to patrol duty in the Atlantic. He was a machinist's mate and had been in service nearly two years. He was 20 years old and had played football at Waukegan Township High school.

NAVY TO BUILD NEW PLANES AT DE KALB PLANT

Plan Mass Production by Mid-October.

Mass production of a new type of navy airplane is expected to start at De Kalb in mid-October, according to announcement yesterday by the Interstate Aircraft and Engineering company, made here and approved by the navy in Washington.

The decision to locate the plant at De Kalb is the result of long study by the navy's bureau of aeronautics, engineers of the Interstate company, and companies concerned as subcontractors, officials said yesterday. Much of De Kalb's manufacturing facilities are said to be involved in the program.

Convert Big Furniture Plant.

Units to be utilized include the Arlington Furniture company's giant plant, boasting the longest furniture assembly line in the country, which has been purchased by the Defense Plant corporation and leased to Interstate. Engineers are now converting it to the new task.

Another major subcontractor is the Rudolph Wurlitzer company. It was said this company's location in De Kalb was another major factor in the selection of the site. The wood working shops of the Singer Sewing Machine company at South Bend also will be utilized. Engines and other vital parts will flow from manufacturers in various nearby points.

The planes will leave the plant ready for tests and air delivery directly to naval assignments, officials said. Plans for an adequate field and for hangars already have been completed.

Local Labor to be Utilized.

It was expected that personnel will be recruited largely from skilled workmen already in and near De Kalb. Night classes will be held in the De Kalb High school to train more. About half the workers will be women, it was said.

Don Smith, president; W. E. Hirtensteiner, vice president, and L. B. Cameron, secretary-treasurer of Interstate, were associated in the pioneering days of Vultee. The company's headquarters is at Los Angeles, Cal. and in various plants in the area they have been producing civilian training planes, army observation planes and hydraulic precision and armament units for Douglas, Boeing, Lockheed, and other builders of planes.

It was announced that months ago the navy requested the company to develop the new type of plane now ready for production.

CANCEL DU PAGE COUNTY RALLY TO HONOR WARRIORS

Because of uncertain weather conditions, the Du Page county Republican central committee yesterday canceled a program it was to hold in Glen Ellyn today, in honor of 4,000 Du Page county men in armed service. The program was intended to raise funds for the USO.

[The committee asked readers to disregard a notice announcing the program, which appears in the west metropolitan section of today's TRIBUNE.]

Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, state representative, Downers Grove, who was in charge of publicity, said the possibility of holding the program later this fall would be discussed by the arrangements committee.

The sale yesterday of 20 family service pins thru the mail and an additional 100 over the counters of THE TRIBUNE's two public service offices—1 South Dearborn street and in the Tribune Tower, brought the total sale of the pins to 89,320. Profits from the sale of the pins will be given to the United Service Organizations.

Lieut. (j. g.) G. N. Portner (left) of Wheaton supervises gun drill by part of armed guards gun crew he will command for the navy aboard a merchant ship.

NAVY GUN CREW TEAMS LEARN TO PLAY IN EARNEST

Officers Were Leaders in Civilian Life.

That is what Ensign Joseph M. Wosik, former football coach for St. Patrick's academy and assistant line coach at DePaul university, has to say about his new work in the navy's armed guards, the branch that mans the guns on merchant ships.

He attended an intensive training school in the east. Now he is at the Naval armory at the foot of Randolph street, where Comm. M. R. Wortley is in charge of drilling the crews who will go with the officers to the merchant ships.

Leaders in Civilian Life.

All the officers in training formerly held responsible civilian positions—coaches, lawyers, sales managers, company executives, architects. When they go to sea as ensigns or lieutenants [j. g.], each will be in sole command of a gun crew on a merchant ship.

One of Wosik's fellow officers, Lieut. [j. g.] R. D. Jones, used to be a lawyer in Belleville, St. Clair county, where he has a wife and two small children. Jones was a school board member there and was once secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. He did not look that part yesterday. He was an officer snapping orders to his gun crew on the armory dock and it was serious business because getting a shipload across may some day depend on the clocklike operation of his crew.

Lieut. [j. g.] G. N. Portner of Wheaton was president of the Nu-Enamel distributors of northern Illinois before he entered the armed guard officers' training school. At one time he also played piano with Orrin Tucker's band.

Ready to Fight Subs.

"This is great," he said yesterday as his crew tossed another dummy shell into a practice loading machine. "With the new weapons they are putting on the merchant ships and the excellently trained crews we'll be ready to fight back at the subs."

Another coach who is shouting signals to a gun crew instead of baseball or football teams is Lieut. [j. g.] R. J. Wilson of Calumet City. He was formerly baseball and assistant football coach at Hammond High school.

"I entered this service because I knew I would see action," he said.

Lieut. [j. g.] C. W. Krieder, training officer for the school, said, "These men are working hard so they can go out and take their ships safely thru the danger zones. It is inspiring to work with such young men."

COMMUNITY FUND DRIVE TO OPEN IN CHICAGO OCT. 2

Disposition of each dollar contributed to the Chicago Community fund was outlined yesterday by Bryan S. Reid, chairman of the sponsors division for the 12th annual drive which will open Oct. 2.

Out of each dollar contributed to the fund, 30 cents goes for family service and assistance, 22 cents for educational and recreational work, 20 cents for care of dependent children, 13 cents for hospital and clinical care, 6 cents for special services, 3 cents for health and nursing, and 2 cents for care of the aged, Reid said. Four cents from each dollar covers administration, operation, and collection costs of the fund.

This year's goal is $3,750,000, but officials of the drive hope to surpass it. Reid pointed out that war conditions have brought increased demands in the field of service, that food and commodity costs have risen and that salaries for fund agency workers must be raised slightly.

Taylor Sees Pope Forty Minutes on Third Visit

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 26 (AP).—Myron C. Taylor, personal envoy of President Roosevelt, had the third audience in his series of talks with Pope Pius XII. today. The pontiff saw him for 40 minutes, the Swiss telegraph agency reported from Vatican City. It was believed Taylor bade farewell to the pope and that his departure "seems imminent." He flew to Italy from Barcelona last week.

REP. DIES TO LIST 93 GROUPS WHICH FORM NAZI FRONT

Many Members 'In High Places,' Says Texan.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26 (AP).—Rep. Martin Dies [D., Tex.] announced tonight that the house committee investigating unAmerican activities will issue a report within two or three weeks listing 93 organizations within the United States as "Nazi Front" groups.

Dies said the report will detail the activities of the organizations and make public the names of several hundred officers, as well as the names of individuals who supplied financial backing. Many of these, he added, "are persons of high standing."

After the committee has presented the report, which Dies said will contain 500 pages and "sum up the work of the last few years," it may recommend legal steps against the organizations.

May Ask New Laws.

"In some instances they can be prosecuted under existing laws," Dies said, "while in other cases it may require supplemental legislation, which the committee probably will recommend."

Announcing that the report will name "all officers, district leaders and similar executives" of the listed groups, Dies explained that "many members of these organizations are neither Nazis nor Nazi sympathizers, but have been duped into joining because some of the ostensible principles of the organization appealed to them."

Dies said many of the groups had been formed for "ostensibly laudable purposes and to accomplish so-called patriotic objectives," but that they are controled and used by the Nazis to spread propaganda in a fashion which he termed "similar to that employed by communist front organizations."

Foment Racial Hatreds.

"There is one outstanding difference between these groups and the communist front organizations," he said. "Where the red fronts appealed to class prejudices, the Nazi groups have centered on fomenting religious and racial hatreds."

Dies added that the report will contain sufficient evidence "to justify prosecution of many of the individuals named—particularly those who acted with full knowledge of the import of their work and with every intention of aiding in the spread of Nazi propaganda and ideals."

"From our records it appears that about 98 per cent of these leaders never have been arrested or prosecuted for any offense, and many of them occupy places of high standing," he said.

had considerable numerical superiority, and our marine raider battalion, depleted and tired from weeks of intensive action, was at first the only unit that opposed them. The Japs advanced shouting "banzai" and illuminating our positions with calcium flares. Many were killed, but more came on.

There was a mad scramble of fighting in the dark with grenades, rifles, and bayonets. Many Japs filtered thru to the borders of the airfield and took part of it under machine gun fire; a group of mechanics standing near the landing strip were killed or wounded.

Our field artillery opened up; planes strafed and bombed just above the tops of the palm trees, and eventually reserves counterattacked and drove the enemy back. But the Japs filtered in again and the struggle went on.

Japs Retreat to Jungle.

Finally—and not until a very large part of the Jap force had been annihilated—the remainder withdrew deep into the jungle, their withdrawal covered by a cloud of snipers in trees and foxholes.

Since that battle, contacts have been made with parts of the Japanese fleet; Army B-17 bombers observed and attacked two battleships; Japanese submarines still prowl in great numbers around the Solomons; large Japanese forces are still concentrated in the Rabaul-Bougainville area, and there are still many Japanese troops on Guadalcanal.

Daily men are dying, planes are being shot down, ships sunk or damaged.

The Japs still threaten strongly; the danger to Port Moresby is considerable—and that to Guadalcanal and our other holdings in the southern Solomons is real.

The marines have fought continuously now for six weeks, often with little sleep and little food; many have been killed or wounded, but the Stars and Stripes still fly over Henderson field and the marine beachhead at Guadalcanal. And the bloody repulse of the major enemy assault of six days ago, coupled with the recent arrival of supplies and reinforcements, have nailed the colors to the mast—at least temporarily.

The Marines Land.

The action in the Solomons commenced with the marine landings on Aug. 7. The Japanese air and naval attempts to interfere with the landing were partially successful, but the marines got ashore.

There followed a period of violent reaction on the part of the Japs. Light naval forces were sent by night thru the narrow straits between Savo island and Guadalcanal to raid our seaborne supply lines and to strike at any American ship engaged in unloading supplies. Bombers and fighters raided the newly won American footholds. Bombed by day and shelled by night were the daily fare of the American marines.

At the same time the Japs commenced to rebuild their scattered and decimated forces on Guadalcanal. Pushed back from the environs of the air fields beyond the Lunga and Tenaru rivers into the jungles and swamps and 8,000 foot mountains of Guadalcanal, the enemy reorganized and commenced to receive reinforcements by sea.

More Japs Get Ashore.

In several instances hundreds of Japs were drowned or killed when their boats were sunk by our planes. Once four pieces of light field artillery which the enemy had succeeded in getting ashore were captured on the beach by a marine raider unit. But utilizing dark nights, the Japanese managed to land many troops and gradually succeeded in building up a considerable force on Guadalcanal.

Japanese troops were transported southward from Rabaul and Bougainville in destroyers, cruisers and small boats, and many of these got ashore at Cape Esperante, Tibu Point, and elsewhere. Some of them were discovered before landing and dive bombed or strafed by navy Douglas dive bombers and army planes.

These enemy troops at first made intermittent and sporadic attacks on our lines—some of them of considerable strength. One of these—the battle of the Tenaru river—resulted in wiping out a detachment of 700 Japanese troops, but others sent down from the north replaced them.

Start Attrition Campaign.

Towards late August and early September these sporadic attacks were succeeded by a careful campaign of harassment, attrition and assault. At the same time the daily bombardments increased in intensity and the nightly raids by light Japanese surface forces were continued.

Reconnaissance planes reported large concentrations of Japanese naval forces in the northern Solomons-Rabaul area, and on Aug. 24 occurred one of several major clashes between the American and Japanese fleets. Damage was inflicted, but contact was broken before decisive results were obtained.

Heavy Japanese submarine concentrations were next reported around the Solomons, and the enemy intensified his efforts to cut our supply lines to the marines on Guadalcanal and probably landed several hundred troops a night on the island.

Hold Three Islands.

The Solomons comprise an archipelago of many islands and islets of rare and savage beauty. We hold three small islands in their entirety and a few square miles of a large island—Guadalcanal. When the marines landed they encountered fierce opposition from the Japanese garrisons on Gavutu, Tanambogo, and Tulagi—but achieved complete surprise and encountered relatively easy going on Guadalcanal.

Guadalcanal is about 80 miles long and 25 miles wide, rugged—except for the coastal strip in which the air field is located—and wild. The marines held—and still hold—only a six or seven-mile stretch of coastal beach four or five miles deep. The marine lines roughly cover 12,000 yards of beach fronting on Lunga bay and extend some 9,000 yards inland.

A No Man's Jungle.

The rest of the island may be roamed by roving patrols of either side, which are subject to sudden ambush. Much of this is in a sense a vast No Man's land of tangled jungle, but parts of it—especially those areas around the marine lines and near Cape Esperante—are dominated by Japs.

The air field, renamed by the marines Henderson field, was carved by the Japanese out of coconut groves and jungles and was seized by the marines when it was almost completed.

The Japs have bombed it or tried to bomb it, sometimes many times daily; they have shelled it from submarines and surface vessels; at times they have sprayed it with machine gun fire, and they have tried repeatedly to infiltrate or break thru the marine lines, but today Grumman fighters and Douglas dive bombers were still roaring into the skies as a dawn patrol; the cocky tents and slit trenches of the marines still dotted the coconut groves and jungle.

MRS. KAY CURTIS WILL GO ABROAD FOR RED CROSS

Mrs. Katherine Curtis.

Mrs. Katherine Whitney Curtis, 5214 Woodlawn avenue, known as "Kay" to the many thousands of Chicagoans who have been members of her Red Cross swimming and water safety classes in the last 20 years, has been accepted for overseas service with the armed forces by the Red Cross service, it was announced yesterday. Mrs. Curtis will be appointed assistant director of an American Red Cross Service club at a foreign point where American troops are stationed. She originated the water ballet, later popularized by Billy Rose, at the Century of Progress in 1934.

CHIEF THUNDERCLOUD TO GREET PUBLIC TODAY

at Olson Waterfalls

This Ottawa chieftain with pretty little Princesses "Walk-in-the-Day" and "Medicine Man's Child," will entertain at the Olson Rug Co. Rock Cardens, 2800 No. Crawford (Pulaski) at Diversey, today from 3 to 10 P. M. The three, who are direct descendants of famous Chief Pontiac, will give a 15 minute entertainment every hour, on the hour, beginning at 3 P. M. and ending at 10 P. M. They will also pose for photographs for visitors and autograph Olson Rock Garden post cards. There is no charge to the public.

Thousands of visitors have been thrilled by the sheer beauty of the 35-foot Olson Rug Co. Waterfalls. Of interest, too, are beautiful flowers, wild fowl refuge (500 trained mallard ducks), peacocks, golden pheasants and prize Corriedale sheep. This mecca for beauty and nature lovers is open every day and night until 11 P. M. Admission is free. At night changing colored lights create spectacular effects over the water.

Offers advanced training and experience in modern communications

• Split-second communication makes this man's Army "click." . . . Vital messages flashed with lightning speed. . . . Orders shot through space by radio and other near-magic means. . . . Enemy movements detected and relayed to headquarters before they're minutes old. Here, there, everywhere in the field of operations, the Signal Corps provides the machinery to synchronize the actions of our forces.

• This "nerve center of the Army" is packed with opportunity for men of all ages. A chance to study — and master — the ultra-modern in communications methods and equipment. . . . "Electronic sentries," devices and inventions whose secrets are known only to Signal Corps men. The field is wide open today for those with advanced radio or communications experience . . . for those with merely slight training in these lines . . . and for those with ability who have nothing more than the ambition to get into this work.

• If you want an opportunity to serve your country, and at the same time get the finest possible training in one of the most promising after-the-war industries, consider the 2 ways you can line up right now with the hard-fighting Signal Corps of the U. S. Army. Both are explained below.

1. ENLISTMENT

If you are 18 to 45 and physically fit, you may apply for enlistment in the Signal Corps or in the Signal Corps Enlisted Reserve.

DIRECT ENLISTMENT: Experience as a licensed radio operator, a trained radio repairman, a telephone or telegraph worker, will qualify you for active duty at once. From Private's pay you can advance rapidly as you earn higher technical ratings—up to $138 a month, with board, shelter and uniforms.

ENLISTED RESERVE: If you are skilled with tools but lack qualifying experience, you may enter the Enlisted Reserve. You will be given training, with pay, provided you enroll full time in one of the many Signal Corps schools, and ordered to active duty when you have completed your training.

COMMISSIONS: Graduate Electrical Engineers may apply for immediate commissions in the Signal Corps. And special opportunities for training and commissions are open to Juniors and Seniors in electrical engineering colleges.

U.S. Army
RECRUITING AND INDUCTION SERVICE

2. CIVILIAN TRAINING

If you are over 16 years of age, and even though registered for Selective Service, have not received your order to report for induction, the Signal Corps offers you an outstanding opportunity.

If you have ability with tools—if you want to secure training in the vitally important field of communications—you may attend a Signal Corps School. You will be paid not less than $1020 per year for full-time training. And when you have finished your training—in 9 months or less—you can advance to higher pay as your technical skill increases.

Even if you have a minor physical handicap, Signal Corps Civilian Training may give you the chance you've wanted to serve the Army of the United States.

FOR CIVILIAN TRAINING INFORMATION—Call at any office of the U. S. Civil Service or U. S. Employment Bureau.

LABOR SHORTAGE SAPS WISCONSIN FARM PRODUCTION

Many Selling Out; Dairy Herds Reduced.

(This is the first of a series of articles by Mr. Compton, who is making a survey of farm labor conditions in the middle west.)

BY GAIL COMPTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dodgeville, Wis., Sept. 26.—"The undersigned, having obtained a job in a factory and decided to quit farming, will sell without reserve all personal property and live stock. . . ."

"Look at that," he said. "That's the fourth one I have put up in two weeks. Nine auction notices on one telephone post! I'll have to pick a new spot for the next ones."

Wisconsin, America's dairyland, is in danger of losing its title as hundreds of farmers are selling their farms and herds and cutting down production because they are unable to obtain labor.

Drained of Skilled Labor.

The influx of men into the armed services and the high wages offered by industry are draining the state of skilled labor. Farmers and agricultural authorities predict the state will not be able to produce as much in 1943 as this year.

Farm auctions are a daily occurrence in almost every county, and the local stockyards are filled with dairy cattle sold for slaughter. Ralph Ammon, state director of agriculture, said more cows are being sold now than ever before.

Typical of conditions is the farm of Alex Weyer near Menomonee Falls. While Weyer was in the field cutting silage corn, his wife, Rose, and their 14 year old son were cleaning the milk house.

4 a. m. Until Late at Night.

"We are farming 80 acres and milking 30 head of cows," Mrs. Weyer said. "We are forced to do all of the work ourselves, as it is impossible to find any help that we can afford. The job has got too big for us and we are going to have to sell part of the dairy herd. We already have planned to let 20 acres lie idle next year, because we can't handle any more.

"In past years we have been used to working from sun up to sun down, but now we are doing chores until late at night after starting at 4 o'clock in the morning. It is physically impossible to keep up this pace."

Mrs. Weyer told of three neighbors in a similar plight who are selling their dairy catle.

"I am sure that if this county is typical of the country at large, the farmers never will be able to produce all of the food next year that the government is calling for," she said.

Corn Left in Fields.

Farmers near Granville and Fond du Lac are growing sweet corn under contract for large canning companies. Under their contracts the companies are supposed to provide the labor for harvesting the corn.

The companies have notified farmers lack of labor makes it impossible for them to fulfil the contract, and the farmers are forced to do the work themselves or to try to find some one who will do it for $3 a ton. Some farmers are letting the corn stand in the fields and plan to feed it to their cattle this winter.

Ivan Salter paused while filling the silo on his 230 acre farm in Waukesha county to explain that the draft had taken his first hired hand and that the second had gone to work in a factory.

Production Held Doubtful.

"I finally have been able to get another helper, but it took me three weeks to find him," Salter said. "I am paying him $65 a month with room, board, washing, and mending.

"If I can't keep help I will be forced to sell some of my 20 cows and work less land next year. I am sure of one thing—the farmers at least will eat next year, but it looks doubtful whether we will be able to supply city people with the food they will want.

"Here is a good example of what is happening to us: I have 20 cows with an average investment of $200 each. I get a milk check of $310 a month. Up the road a little way there is an 18 year old boy who has taken a defense job. The kid, with no experience and no investment, is getting a check of $320 a month. So you see, you can't expect our workers to stay with us."

Walter Ebling, senior state agricultural statistician in Madison, reported the state is having more farm sales that it ever has had. Coupled with this, Ebling said, many older farmers are picking this time to retire and are selling out.

"The average age of the farm operator has been increasing steadily since the last war," Ebling said. "Most of these farmers always have had the thought that when 'things are right' they would sell out and retire.

Prices Termed Favorable.

"Prices are favorable now, and the farmers are choosing this time to quit. They feel that the threat of price ceilings, labor shortages, and the war are making things too tough for them.

"Wisconsin probably will produce around 14½ billion pounds of milk this year. Perfect weather conditions resulting in tremendous amounts of feed and the largest number of cows on farms in the state's history contribute to this record production.

"However, the large numbers of sales already held, the lack of skilled help, and the chance we will not get another perfect growing season next year make it easy to predict we will not be able to continue our high level of production."

Chicagoans Win WAAC Commissions

Foreseen in 1918

Fort Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 26 (AP).—A Red Cross nurse who served in France during World War I, told 117 graduating WAACs today that the need for such a women's army was foreseen during that war.

"Here we witness a reality that we had foreseen as a need thru these intervening 22 years—a highly trained, effective unit ready to give full service to their country," Mrs. Herman J. Bakker, president of the Women's Overseas Service league, told the third group of the Women's Army Auxiliary corps to be commissioned third officers.

"We were an untrained group of volunteers. You in turn serve your country, but fully equipped to give the best in service, to help win this war and maintain the peace that follows," she declared. Mrs. Bakker served in a base hospital in Vichy, France, during the World war.

No go, Joe! . . . Your car needs FOUR good tires

Remember that one tire, two tires, three tires won't keep any car on the road. Every man's personal tire shortage is a four-way problem. The active life of your car is limited by the useful life of the weakest one of your four last tires.

GO SLOW . . . TAKE CARE . . . SAVE WEAR. Don't waste even a small part of the nation's precious rubber stock. It is a patriotic duty now to keep your car rolling by driving with utmost care at all times.

The Baruch Committee emphasized that America's supply of "road rubber" is limited and must be used to carry our armed forces and keep essential civilian wheels turning. When you reduce driving speeds to 35 miles an hour, or under—you save rubber for yourself and for your country.

What more can you do to help? . . . Look at your tires and face the facts. Especially, watch that weakest tire on which continuation of your driving depends. Don't wait until there's too little good rubber left in it to allow repair—until it's too late to save the tire from total loss. Many people are doing just that. And they are not taking the simple steps that will keep their cars rolling.

See your Goodyear Dealer. He is a tire specialist. He will examine your tires, inside and outside. He will check wheel alignment, wheel balance and brakes—he will "cross-switch" your tires if advisable—give you his frank and helpful opinion on what is needed.

When your Goodyear Dealer performs a service for you, you can depend on him for a reliable job at reasonable cost. See him without delay.

Ask him for a copy of Goodyear's free booklet, "How to Make Your Tires Last Longer."

★ SEE YOUR GOODYEAR DEALER WITHOUT DELAY ★

"CROSS-SWITCHING" WILL EQUALIZE TREAD WEAR —AND HELP YOUR WEAKEST TIRE

Don't fail to have your tires "cross-switched," at proper intervals. This adds surprisingly to tire life—may increase total mileage by as much as 25%.

Remember that rear tires wear faster than front tires, actually about twice as fast—and that right-side tires wear faster than left-side tires. (See first chart at right.) Also tires on front wheels may wear irregularly.

Get your Goodyear Dealer to "cross-switch" your tires to best advantage. He will show you how to keep that weakest tire running.

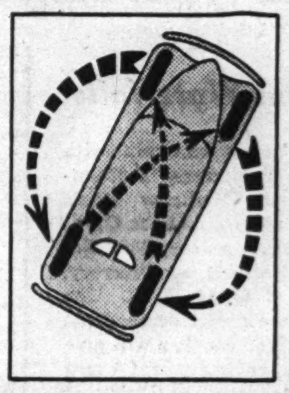
If you have 5 tires, in about equal condition, switch them this way every 2500 miles.



If you have only 4 tires, in about equal condition, switch them this way every 2500 miles.

THE GREATEST NAME IN RUBBER

Employed in War Plant . . . YES!
Eligible for New Tires . . . MAYBE!

Some war workers are eligible for new tires, new tubes or recapping—and some are not. If you work in an essential war industry and don't fully understand tire rationing rules, get the facts from your Goodyear Dealer. He will give you helpful advice on preparing your application.

When you get a Certificate, buy long-wearing Goodyear Tires and LifeGuards. This is no time to take tire chances—only first quality is good enough! When you get a Recapping Certificate, have the work done by Goodyear experts, using Goodyear materials. . . . NOTE: If your tires are worn too thin or badly damaged, they cannot be recapped. Don't wait too long.

SENATORS MOVE FOR SHOWDOWN ON FARM PRICES

Bloc Drafts Own Version of Compromise.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—Senate farm bloc leaders today moved toward a showdown with the administration over the inclusion of farm labor costs in computing price ceilings for agriculture commodities.

Sen. Elmer Thomas [D., Okla.], who has led an unremitting fight for higher prices for the farmer, disclosed that farm senators have drafted their own version of a compromise amendment which will be introduced if the amendment now before the senate is rejected.

He made the announcement after an unusual Saturday afternoon session of the agriculture committee.

Cost Factor Included.

The new amendment would require the Office of Price Administration to take farm labor costs into consideration in fixing ceilings on farm products. This would leave the present parity formula unchanged, it was explained, but would insure a ceiling higher than parity for products where there has been an increase in production costs.

The original amendment, introduced by Thomas, would require redefinition of the parity formula to include farm labor costs.

There would be little ultimate difference in the effect of the two measures on consumer prices, experts admitted, but, they added, the new one, at least, would meet part of the objections of President Roosevelt, who declared several days ago that he is unalterably opposed to a change in the parity computation.

Modifications Provided.

The administration compromise proposal provides that modifications "shall" be made in maximum farm prices "where by reasons of increased labor or other costs" such prices would not reflect the increased costs of production. Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.] has emphasized that this proviso is mandatory and will insure farm ceilings reflecting any increased labor costs.

Sen. Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.] described the new proposal as more definite and mandatory than that of the administration, but less far reaching than the Thomas amendment. The new proposal would enable farmers to meet the crisis resulting from the war, but would leave the parity formula in its present form, he explained, while the Thomas amendment would force a permanent change in the parity calculation.

Parity is the price designed to give the farmer the same relative purchasing power from the sale of his products that he enjoyed in the 1909-1914 base period. As presently computed, it includes taxes, freight charges, and interest on his debts, but does not cover labor costs or wages to his workers.

Thomas Warns of Shortage.

Earlier Thomas issued a statement warning that continuation of the present low farm prices will mean "a food shortage in 1943 and actual hunger, if not starvation, in 1944." He said farmers who are denied a "fair and just return" on their products will desert the farm for better paying jobs in war plants, with the unavoidable result of a drastic cut in food production.

"Whatever happens, our soldiers will have first priority on food," Thomas said. 'The workers in defense plants will come second and the balance of us will fight for what is left. Such a condition will mean real inflation in food prices.

"A far better policy will be for the government to bring farm prices into a fair relationship with industrial prices and wages and then rigidly to stabilize such prices during the war. All agree that prices must be placed under control and kept from rising."

Opposes New Proposal.

Thomas said he is going down the line for his amendment but indicated that if he is beaten the farm bloc could be expected to support the proposal to include labor costs in higher ceilings rather than yield to the importuning of the White House.

The administration stood off a vote on the parity price issue yesterday in the hope a flood of telegrams and other messages before Monday would throw the balance in its favor over the weekend.

Sen. Prentiss M. Brown [D., Mich.], manager of the legislation, said he has received approximately 300 letters and telegrams, with only three supporting the farm bloc position. Sen. Thomas said he has received many messages opposing his amendment.

A few days ago unofficial polls showed that farm members had the votes and some to spare to obtain passage of the farm labor amendment, calling for a rewriting of the parity formula, which was adopted by the house by a vote of 205 to 172.

DID YOU PLACE YOUR FALSE TEETH IN A GLASS LAST NIGHT?

Thousands do and wonder why their dentures remain dull and stained — why they suffer with offending denture breath. They fail to realize that water alone is not a cleansing agent —but now, there's a great formula perfected by a dentist, called Stera-Kleen that thoroughly cleans false teeth without harmful brushing! Simply put a little Stera-Kleen Powder in a glass of water — soak your teeth — now they sparkle, are really clean and look like the day your dentist said, "Don't they look natural?" Try Stera-Kleen — lasts long — costs only 30¢. At druggists.

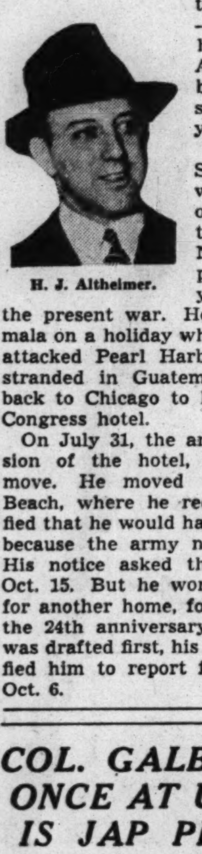
THE ARMY FORCES SALESMAN OUT AND THEN INVITES HIM IN



H. J. Altheimer.

Herbert J. Altheimer joyously announced yesterday that he is about to get into a war —24 years after he expected to. Altheimer, a bachelor, is a salesman, 45 years old.

He was drafted Sept. 24, 1918. He was ready to go overseas when the armistice of Nov. 11 ended his plans for that year. Then came the present war. He was in Guatemala on a holiday when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. Lest he be stranded in Guatemala, he hurried back to Chicago to his home in the Congress hotel.

On July 31, the army took possession of the hotel, forcing him to move. He moved to the Chicago Beach, where he recently was notified that he would have to move again because the army needs that hotel. His notice asked that he leave by Oct. 15. But he won't need to look for another home, for last Thursday, the 24th anniversary of the day he was drafted first, his draft board notified him to report for induction on Oct. 6.

COL. GALBRAITH, ONCE AT U. OF C., IS JAP PRISONER

A former professor in military science at the University of Chicago was identified yesterday as one of the 6,000 American and Filipino prisoners held by the Japs at the Tarlac prison camp in the Philippines.

He is Col. Nicol F. Galbraith, who became a member of Gen. MacArthur's staff shortly before the war. He was identified by friends and relatives from a list of nearly 200 prisoners released Friday by the war department. His name had been listed as "Galberth."

Col. Galbraith, who was born in Williamsport, Pa., served with the field artillery in World War I. He remained in the army after the armistics and was assigned to ROTC staff.

As a member of MacArthur's staff he was in charge of transportation, hospitalization, and supplies and directed the evacuation of Manila. He was the last American soldier to leave the city for Bataan.

Col. Galbraith's wife, Leila, and their three children are now living in Colorado Springs, Colo.

F. D. R. NOMINEES FILL TWO-THIRDS OF COURT POSTS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26 [Special].—Nearly two-thirds of the approximately 300 judges of the federal courts, including the Supreme court, have been appointed by President Roosevelt, figures obtained at the department of justice today disclosed. Many of the judges being comparatively young, the impact of their views will be felt for decades.

Statistics covering 294 federal jurists show that 184 have been named since the advent of the Roosevelt administration, in contrast to 110 judges named by previous presidents. Such a record of judicial appointments has been achieved principally because of Mr. Roosevelt's unprecedented tenure of 9½ years. As the President's third term will not close until 1945, still other judges will be named by him.

Courts.	Total Judges.	Roosevelt appointments.	Other appointments.
District	185	102	83
Supreme	9	8	1
Appellate	55	38	17
Territorial	26	25	1
Special	19	11	8
Total	294	184	110

Justice Roberts, a holdover from the Hoover administration, is the only justice without a Roosevelt commission. Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone was appointed an associate justice by President Coolidge, but was elevated to his present eminent position by President Roosevelt.

Next in power and influence to the Supreme court are the 10 Circuit Courts of Appeal and that of the District of Columbia. The effect of their decisions on appeals from the lower courts is profound and extensive. To these Appellate courts Mr. Roosevelt has appointed 38 of the 55 sitting judges.

Three tribunals, usually set in a special class because of their technical work, are the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, the Court of Claims, and the Customs court. Of the 19 sitting judges in these, Mr. Roosevelt has picked 11.

Within continental United States there are 85 federal District courts, besides those in the territories. For these courts, scene of original trials, the President has appointed 102 of the 185 judges presiding. He has named jurists to all except 26 districts and has chosen all of the present judges in 26 districts.

Roosevelt named four of the five judges in Chicago.

1. QUALITY MATERIALS

The kind of shingles Hines recommends weigh 240 lbs. to the 100 sq. ft. We know that in lighter weight roofings you get too much slate —and not enough asphalt and felt to give the roof lasting qualities.

2. QUALITY WORKMANSHIP!

Hines makes no profit on labor. You deal directly with the men who work on the job, and thus get the most for your money. Hines is interested in the sale of quality material only, and in providing work for our many contractor customers whom we know as reliable, conscientious men.

OPA WARNS: FILL OIL TANK BEFORE RATIONING BEGINS

Allotment Based on Having 250 Gallon Supply.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26 [Special].—Domestic fuel oil consumers who do not have full tanks on Oct. 1, when fuel oil rationing goes into effect in 30 eastern and middle western states, will have to prove the tank is not full to prevent removal from their ration books of coupons for the amount they are presumed to have, the Office of Price Administration announced today.

Altho the usual domestic fuel oil tank holds 275 gallons, the announcement added, ration coupons will be removed covering only 250 gallons to allow for shrinkage, until the consumer can show his tank is smaller than the normal capacity.

Other claims which the consumer may put forward to prevent removal of coupons are that he has been unable to get a fuel tank, either because dealers could not supply it, or he was financially unable to buy it.

Must Fill Tanks.

Paul M. O'Leary, OPA deputy administrator in charge of rationing, said that consumers probably will not be required to apply for ration books until about Oct. 15, but added that to prepare for the rationing they should do the following four things:

1. Have fuel tank filled up to 275 gallons, or to capacity if tank is smaller, before Oct. 1.
2. Check inventory on Oct. 1, and make a note of it.
3. Obtain from dealer the amount of fuel purchased from him for home last year.
4. Determine the square foot area of home by measuring each room to be heated.

How to Measure Floor Area.

Urging each fuel oil user to get figures on his last year's purchase and on the floor area of his house, OPA pointed out that this information will be essential to determining the amount of the basic ration, which has been fixed at 66⅔ per cent of normal consumption instead of 75 per cent as originally announced.

In measuring floor area, OPA advised householders to include only the length and width of rooms used as living space. Laundries, basements, garages and sun porches are not to be included unless used as sleeping quarters.

Democrats Pick Publisher to Oppose Mrs. Clare Luce

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 26 [Special].—Democrats of the 4th congressional district today renominated Rep. Leroy D. Downs, South Norwalk publisher, to oppose Mrs. Clare Booth Luce of Greenwich, Republican nominee, in the Nov. 3 election. "I will do no name calling—that is not my type of campaign," said Downs in an apparent reference to Mrs. Luce's recent statement that he is "a faceless man, a rubber stamp."

BANDIT FLOORED WITH POP BOTTLE AND SHOT IN LEG

A bungling bandit wound up in police custody yesterday, cracked across the head with a pop bottle and shot in the leg. Posing as a customer, the robber ordered a cup of coffee early yesterday in a hamburger shop at 2410 Milwaukee avenue. Then he drew a revolver, tossed a bag upon the counter, and ordered the waitress, Arleta Moriarity, 18 years old, to put the money in the bag.

A private wachman, James Brown of 2625 North Central Park avenue, was sitting next to him. The robber reached for Brown's gun, which was fired in the struggle that followed. The bullet hit the robber in the leg.

William Halley, 20, a customer, living at 2433 North Spaulding avenue, knocked the robber out with a pop bottle and police were called. The robber refused to tell his name. His gun was found to be unloaded.

DENIES PAROLE UPSET WILL FREE FLOOD OF FELONS

First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley said yesterday the action of the state Supreme court in declaring the parole reform law unconstitutional offers no hope of immediate release to convicts. He said persons sentenced under the new law which became effective July 1, 1941, cannot take any advantage of the high court's ruling.

The effect of the decision, Crowley said, is to nullify any recommendation made by the trial judge as to the minimum or maximum term to be served by the person convicted. The law had been proving effective and useful in Cook county, Crowley asserted, and in recent months Criminal court judges and the prosecutors had been in accord on the recommendations.

The law gave trial judges a voice in deciding when a prisoner should be eligible for parole. Under the Supreme court's decision all power reverts to the parole board. Attorney General George F. Barrett said he would study the court's decision to determine what, if any, steps the state would take.

BURNS FATAL TO CHILD.

Mary Marcus, a Negro, 6 years old, died in the Michael Reese hospital yesterday of burns which police said she suffered while playing with matches Friday in her home at 41 West 29th street.

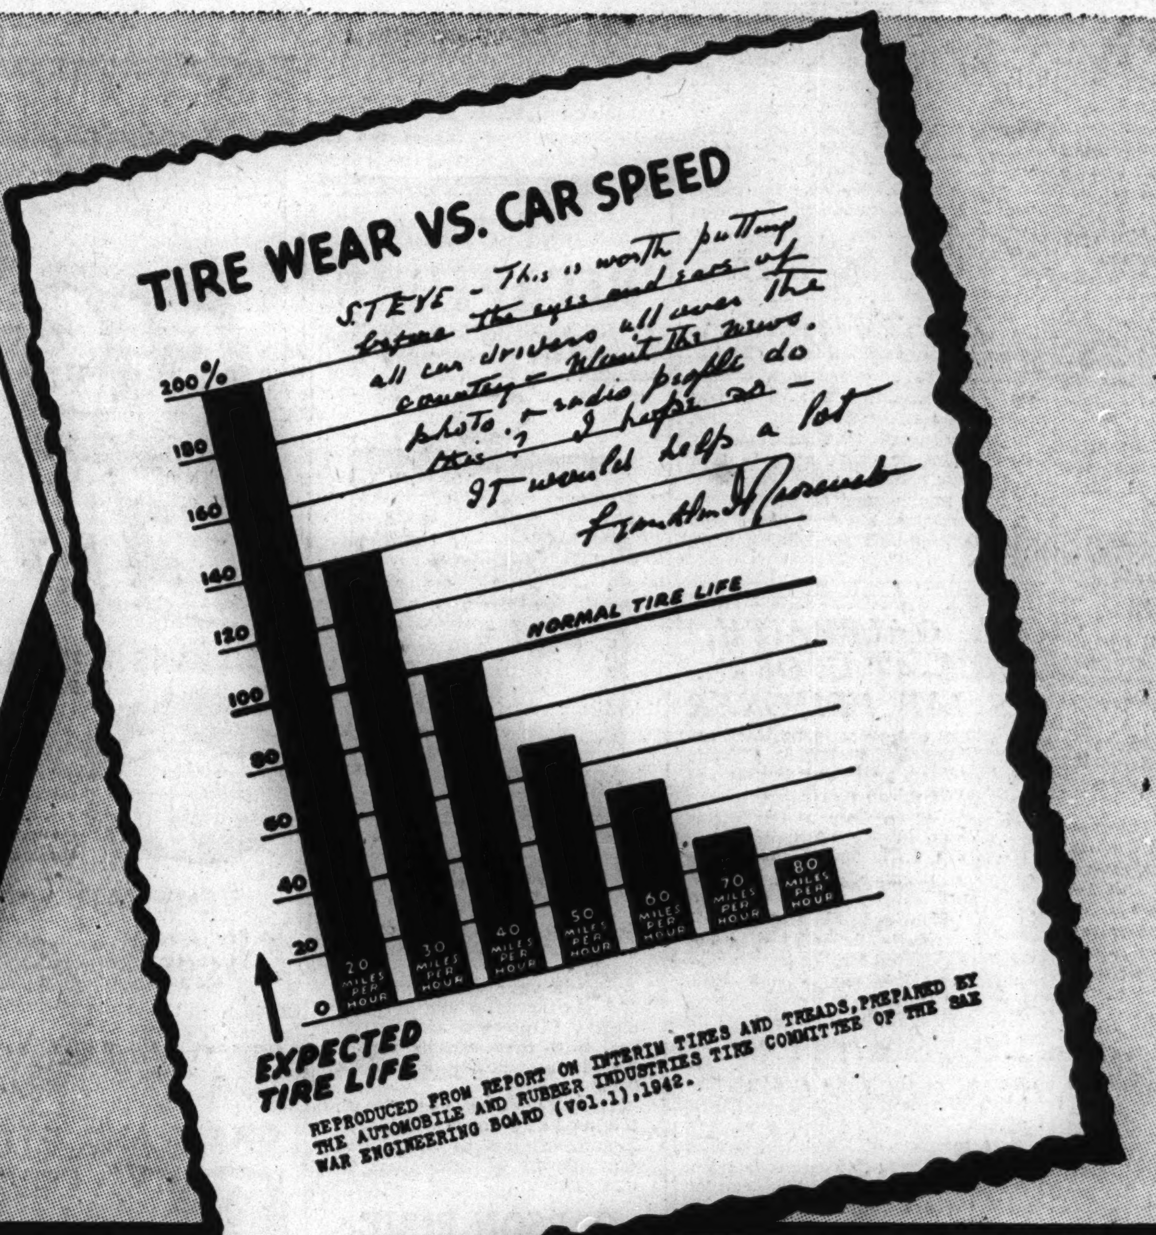
F.D.R. requests..



REPRODUCED FROM REPORT ON INTERIM TIRES AND TREADS, PREPARED BY THE AUTOMOBILE AND RUBBER INDUSTRIES TIRE COMMITTEE OF THE SAE WAR ENGINEERING BOARD (Vol.1),1942.

Since January LEE urged..

"Learn to Drive at 25"

UNCLE SAM needs rubber!

He needs every mile of transportation you can get out of your tires.

It becomes more important daily that all our automobiles work every business day transporting people to and from work.

Furthermore, it is absolutely necessary that this work is done on the tires now on the cars for we are told there won't be any more passenger car tires made while the war lasts.

So let's make the tires that are on the cars "take us through" for the duration. We can do it! First, let's find out exactly the condition of all the tires now on the cars.

To do this they MUST be examined on the INSIDE. If any cords are loose or ruptured, BEWARE, for that tire is no longer safe or sound. That's the way all blowouts start.

Repairing may extend the use of the tire under careful handling, so let's have it repaired by a responsible vulcanizer and "treat it kindly."

When INSIDE examination shows no loose cords or ruptures, put the tires back on the rims. Be sure the tubes, valves and valve caps are air-tight and rotate the wheels to even up the tread wear. Repeat this operation every three or four thousand miles. Know your tires.

YOUR TIRES must have air. Not just SOME air but ENOUGH to hold up the weight carried by the wheel. For instance, a 6.00-16 tire inflated to 28 pounds pressure will carry a load of 915 pounds. This car ready for the road with full complement of passengers should not weigh more than 3,660 pounds.

When the air pressure in this size of tire drops to 20 pounds the car maximum load without damaging the tires is only 3,000 pounds. If the tires on this car carrying 3,660 pounds are inflated only to 17 pounds, your tire wear will increase 65%. So watch your AIR PRESSURE!

More tires are ruined with too little air pressure than any other way. Low air pressure induces punctures, rim smashes, stone bruises and curb pinches as well as fast tire wear. On the other hand, don't over-inflate your tires either for that produces fast tread wear.

Balanced wheel and tire assembly, correct wheel alignment, properly adjusted brakes, complete motor and chassis lubrication, clean spark plugs . . . in other words keeping your car "tuned up" to top efficiency and driving carefully . . . no nose-dive stops or jack-rabbit starts . . . all add miles to your tires.

LEARN to drive at 25 miles per hour maximum speed. If you are a 65 mile per hour driver and you have 10,000 miles left in your tires, you can stretch that mileage to 40,000 by slowing down to 25 miles per hour. Even reducing your speed to 45 miles per hour will stretch your tire mileage to 20,000. SLOW DOWN AND SAVE RUBBER—yes, and gasoline too. A medium size car will use up 1,200 gallons more in 40,000 miles at 65 miles per hour and 400 gallons more at 45 miles per hour, than it will use if driven at 25 miles per hour maximum.

You have your last set of tires until after the war is over or perhaps 1944, so follow these suggestions. You'll go a long way towards using your automobile right through the emergency if you do, and that is what you should do for Uncle Sam and everybody, including yourself.

LEE RUBBER & CORPOR
GENERAL OFFICE, CONSHOHOCKEN

After the Baruch Rubber Committee filed its report, the President urged the widest possible publicity for this chart which shows convincingly the relation of tire wear and car speed.

LEE is glad to bring it to your attention again. At the same time we reproduce a LEE advertisement run several months ago, "Learn to Drive at 25." Study it carefully. Act on our recommendations. Save your tires.

LEE dealers, including the stations and dealers of The Atlantic Refining Co., Hickok Oil Corporation, Phillips Petroleum Co. and Signal Oil Co. can help you make your tires last longer. Call on them.

Do not drive over twenty-five M.P.H. Slow down and save. Speed costs rubber.

WAR SCRAP DRIVE SWINGS INTO HIGH GEAR TOMORROW

1,400 Newspapers Speak as One—for Steel!

BY LLOYD NORMAN.

There is a war assignment for every American. The job must be started immediately and carried on until the war is won.

Tomorrow more than 1,400 newspapers, including THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will start a three week intensive drive to make this war job clear and vital to every man, woman and child.

The job is not dramatic or heroic. Yet, without its effective performance by every American, the war may not be won quickly.

The job is to scour every room, drawer, closet, corner, basement, attic, garage, barn, and shop for the big and little pieces of what used to be called junk.

Scrap Is Its Scrappy Name.

It's now called scrap and the word refers to a motley collection of old or broken articles made of iron, steel, copper, brass, aluminum, zinc, lead, tin, rubber, hemp, wool, and cotton.

The emphasis of the nation-wide scrap drive at present is on scrap iron and steel which are desperately needed by the steel mills. The recipe by which steel is made for the implements of war requires old iron and steel in the ratio of 50 parts to the 50 parts of pig iron obtained from iron ore.

The old steel is important because it already has been refined. Using the old steel saves labor and materials which otherwise would be necessary to smelt the iron ore. Old steel can be remelted to make the finest new steel and the process is quicker and less costly than starting with the raw iron ore dug from the Lake Superior region.

The conservation division of the War Production board says 17 million tons of steel and iron scrap must be gathered in the last six months this year. This supply is necessary to keep the steel mills producing at full blast and provide a stock pile for the bad weather months of the winter.

State's Quota 40% Gathered.

Illinois has been assigned a quota for this half year period of 1,790,000 tons of scrap iron and steel, of which approximately 40 per cent already has been gathered. The remaining and tougher 60 per cent must be produced before Christmas.

The supply from Illinois has not met expectations. In July, the first of the six months, 279,240 tons were produced against a monthly average requirement of 298,333 tons to make the quota. However, the July output should have been much higher because normally scrap output is heavier in the summer and fall months than during the colder months of the year.

Reports for August and September are not available but estimates from William Pohn, president of the Chicago chapter of the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel, indicate scrap iron and steel collections have improved 15 or 20 per cent.

Illinois must produce 1 million tons of scrap iron and steel in the next 60 days. This is how the job can be done:

Scour your home, basement, attic, garage, barn or shop and scrap every metal article for which you have no essential value. If you have other scrap set that aside too.

Here is a check list of more than 100 household and farm items containing vital materials for war production compiled by the American industries salvage committee:

Metal.

Rubber.

Snow Record Looms

Rain turning to snow and a subsequent fall in temperature to about 30 degrees were predicted for Chicago last night by the weather bureau. Today, according to Forecaster G. L. Canaday, will be continued cold with the mercury rising to only a few degress above freezing.

While the snow was expected to melt in the air or underfoot as it falls, any amount of snow would make this month the snowiest September since 1871. On the basis of 42 year averages, the snow which arrived Friday, was not due until Oct. 27. The same averages fix the date of the first freeze, which also occurred Friday, as Nov. 1.

A year ago yesterday the lowest temperature was 44, the highest, 62, and skies were clear.

CHICAGOANS FIND 'LINGO' ODD, BUT LOVE NAVY STUDY

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 26.—About one out of ten of the young midshipmen who walk up the "gangway" of the U. S. S. Johnson Hall at Columbia university these days comes from Chicago or downstate Illinois.

More than 2,100 boys attend this campus training school. At the end of three months of tough, concentrated study they emerge as ensigns in Uncle Sam's expanding navy.

That "gangway" leading up to the U. S. S. Johnson Hall really is a campus walk. The visitor must be "logged in," and once inside he finds the floors are "decks," walls are "bulkheads," the basement is the "hold," and stairs are "ladders."

Johnson Hall, incidentally, formerly was a women's dormitory and the co-eds were evacuated in August to make way for navy men.

500 Live Aboard Ship.

Nearly 500 students in this same training school are living and learning on the Hudson river aboard the U. S. S. Prairie State, the old battleship Illinois, which was completely decapitalized in 1924 under terms of the Washington conference on armament limitation.

Midshipmen are flocking here from every state and Hawaii. The navy is enlisting 10,000 college juniors, seniors, and graduates for reserve training and active duty. An applicant must be a citizen of 10 years' standing, 19 to 28 years of age, and at least 65½ inches tall.

The school is training two types of officers, deck and engineering. The deck officers study navigation, ordnance, and seamanship. Engineering officers delve into the mechanical mysteries of a ship and study damage control.

Tough, but They Like It.

Boys from Illinois say it's tough, but they asked for it and wouldn't trade it for anything else. Here's a line about a few of them:

George L. Carlson, 3750 Lake Shore drive, Chicago [Northwestern university, class of '40], said this was the branch of the service he wanted, and he and his mates were itching to get into action.

E. L. Hicks III., Winnetka, June graduate of Yale, said he enlisted because of the chance of becoming an officer. He is his battalion adjutant.

"The first week is hectic, but after that you get to like it," said Hicks.

Benjamin MacKinnon, March graduate of the University of Chicago, who lived with his brother at 6022 Woodlawn avenue, Chicago, is midshipman commander of the engineering company on the Prairie State.

Two former Chicago Tribune classified advertising employés are in the school: Daniel Richard Dickow, 4021 North Keeler avenue, Chicago, who went to Loyola, and Marshall Padorr, 1037 North Shore avenue, Chicago, a Northwestern graduate.

"I like it fine despite the strenuous routine," said Dickow. "It's like going into a new world with a new language."

Jerome Katz, Wilmette, Northwestern law school graduate in 1938, and president of a chain of retail stores before going into the service, asserted the navy was the "greatest organization in the world."

Stanley Rousso, who lived at 60 East Cedar street and worked in the linen supply business in Chicago, enlisted as a yeoman second class on Dec. 14, 1941, and later applied for the midshipmen's course. He is a platoon leader on the Prairie State.

"What do I want to do in the navy?" asked Rousso. "Well, I want to get on a torpedo boat."

There were no complaints from the others interviewed. The list included Platoon Commander Robert D. Malcomson, Riverside, 1942 graduate of the University of Illinois, who left his job as track coach and teacher at Carbondale High school; F. R. Carson, Glencoe, Princeton, 1942; P. B. Hillman, Waukegan, Northwestern, 1940, and J. S. Nussbaum, Fairbury, University of Illinois, 1942.

SEN. BROOKS TO TALK AT PEORIA TODAY AND ON RADIO TOMORROW

Sen. Wayland Brooks' speech at the official dinner of the Federation of Illinois Women's Republican clubs tomorrow night in Springfield will be heard by radio from Washington. It will be broadcast over W-G-N and a number of downstate stations.

The senator arrived in Chicago yesterday for one of his week-ends of rapid fire campaigning but told his associates that his stay will be even shorter than usual because he must be in his senate seat tomorrow morning.

He will address the annual convention of the Young Republican organization in Peoria this afternoon, but will cancel his evening engagement at Quincy to return to Chicago and board a 7:20 p. m. plane for the capital. The Peoria speech will be broadcast at 2 p. m. today by WBBM and downstate Illinois stations.

LABOR AND FOOD.

Vegetables and fruits are going to waste in the west because labor cannot be found to do the picking. When an appeal was made for help the other day several movie actresses turned out at the suggestion of their press agents, and effective pictures were taken in a tomato patch. These dainty and inexperienced hands will not contribute much of the hard work that is necessary to make an important part of the food supply safe.

Authorities say that dairy farming in the vicinity of Chicago is threatened by a desperate labor shortage. Ralph Ammon, state director of agriculture of Wisconsin, says that more dairy herds are being sold thru auctions than ever before. Dean Chris L. Christensen of the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture says that the "siphoning of labor from the farms imperils Wisconsin's priceless dairy herds. Several large dairy herds, one numbering 61 cows, were disposed of in Kane and McLean counties in Illinois last week. The number of cows is being reduced so much that Chicago faces a shortage of fluid milk, which will become critical within a month, according to Arthur H. Lauterbach, manager of the Pure Milk association.

The United States department of agriculture reports that on the first of this month there were 11,390,000 persons employed on the farms of the country. This was within a fraction of 1 per cent of the total for the same day a year ago. But numbers alone do not tell the story, for high school and college boys and girls who have gone to the farm are unable to do the work that calls for experienced hands. Agriculture is rapidly losing a large part of its skilled labor. And as schools reopen it also is losing a considerable part of even the temporary unskilled help.

The country is faced with a labor supply problem of which the shortage of farm labor is but one aspect. The farms have tough competition for man power from the armed services, war industries, and the civilian branches of the government as well as from the peacetime industries and services.

The army and the navy undoubtedly have first call. It is commonly stated that there are now about 4 million in uniform. Altho no one will object to the armed forces being made as strong as possible, it is evident there has been some overmobilization. Man power is wasted when young men are put in uniforms and employed —especially in Washington—to do work that can be as well done by girls and old men.

The production of war equipment and ordnance comes next. These industries are able to obtain the pick of workers because they are able to offer wages, due to their cost-plus contracts, that producers of civilian goods cannot meet. There is man power wastage, too, in the form of absenteeism. Here, also, women can do much of the work which men are doing. In some of our munitions plants nearly all of the workers are men. In the corresponding plants in England 75 per cent to 80 per cent of the working force is represented by women.

The federal government itself is a big factor in wasting the available man power of the country. Peacetime activities, even those which grew out of the depression, are carried on in full force and have even been expanded while new boards and bureaus are being set up all the time. The number of civilians on the federal government pay roll has been increased by a million and a half since the war began. The increase alone is enough to man all of the airplane plants and all of the automobile plants of the country. The man power commission and the civil service commission have the power to transfer government employés to private industry engaged in the war work. However, no government worker may be transferred to a war industry without his consent. From the end of February to Sept. 7 of this year only 32,000 employés were transferred to war jobs.

The drafts upon the labor supply by the army and navy, by war industries, and by the federal government for its growing civilian staffs is now threatening to paralyze agriculture, which now no longer enjoys the administration's favor. Secretary Wickard has proposed that men be drafted for the farms. The experienced farm hands having been dispersed over the war plants and the cantonments, he would send clerks and carpenters to milk the cows. We have a man power administrator who is of great eloquence. His acts, however, are no match for his words. Man power is being wasted in the armed forces, in war industries, and in Washington bureaus, while production of food is being restricted by an inadequate supply of labor. Dean Christensen expressed it well when he recently said: "It is time to cease prodding the great Mississippi valley of the midwest. We are producing war materials, tools, weapons, food essentials, and are furnishing sons. And I believe that the per capita purchase of war bonds is higher in this area than anywhere else."

SOUTHWARD MIGRATION.

Dan Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, and Joe Padway, general counsel, have apparently heard that, what with fuel restrictions, it is going to be a cold winter up north. Consequently, we are informed that the international has purchased a large colonial mansion on a bay front estate at Miami Beach. The selection was made personally by Dan and Joe.

The title deed discloses that the mansion is the property of the union, not of Dan and Joe. Any brother driving a delivery wagon or garbage truck, if he took this literally, might arrange a winter vacation, head south, and install himself in the master's suite, with two dressing rooms in which to hang up his overalls. It is unlikely that this will seriously be considered by any of the brothers. They know their place.

Hereafter, when Dan and Joe make tracks for Miami, where all forward looking labor leaders find the atmosphere conducive to serious deliberations, each January they will be able to put up in homelike surroundings, instead of in an $80 or $90 a day hotel suite. The rank and file can take comfort, at least, in the thought that their leaders are not as Max Caldwell, the Caponeite who battened on the retail clerks' union in Chicago. He, too, bought a $45,000 Miami Beach mansion, but didn't bother to register title in the name of the working stiffs.

The thought of Dan and Joe on the beach should give solace to the brothers up north as they head into the alley at the helm of the honey wagon.

THE COMMUNISTS AND THE DEMOCRATS.

Rep. Martin Dies, chairman of the committee on un-American activities, charged in the house again last Thursday that Attorney General Biddle had deliberately dodged a congressional mandate instructing him to investigate and report upon Communists in government office. Mr. Dies at random named 19 well paid administrative officials who are members of organizations which Mr. Biddle himself has described as Communist dominated and controled. Nothing has been done to disturb them in their jobs or their outside activities.

It is more than an oddity that a small number of Communists is trying to dominate and use a large number of Democrats for the advancement of Communist objectives. Communists have managed to lodge themselves in many high posts of government, and they could neither have got there nor stayed if the administration did not prefer them to Democrats. Only one member of congress has ever come under suspicion of being a Communist, and he doesn't choose to admit it. The plain fact is that no avowed Communist stands a chance of getting elected to office. The people won't have them. If they get a Washington job, they get it by appointment from the New Deal.

The Dies committee and others have frequently named the Communist and fellow travelers and insisted that they be dismissed. The New Deal, and particularly Mr. Biddle, have stoutly resisted all efforts to turn out the Reds and pinks, altho Mr. Biddle, with strange inconsistency, found in his ruling on Harry Bridges that the Communist party was bent on overthrow of the government by force, and that in their policy of penetration the Communists habitually operate thru "front" organizations, represented to the public as seeking legitimate reform objectives, but actually used by the party to carry on its activities. Yet, when Mr. Dies turned over to Mr. Biddle the names of 1,121 persons in the administration whose dossiers were replete with "front" affiliations, Mr. Biddle reversed himself by saying that the "front" test was not conclusive.

Thus it is the administration and its agents that protect the Communists within the New Deal. The overwhelming majority of congress would wish to see them turned out of office as quickly as does the overwhelming majority of the public. Few members of congress have ever chosen to dispute the accuracy of Mr. Dies' findings. One who has is Rep. Vito Marcantonio of New York, who has followed the party line so faithfully that he cannot be considered a wholly detached critic. Another who did was Rep. Thomas H. Eliot of Massachusetts. His recent defeat for renomination demonstrates that the people of his district were not in agreement with him.

The last time Rep. Marcantonio was heard from on the subject, Rep. E. E. Cox of Georgia answered that "the activities of the 'new orderites' are no contribution to the war effort. If they should cease their activities to make over the country, then we might suspend the investigations being carried on by this committee; but they are still boring away, and as long as they are active in behalf of making over America there is work for the Dies committee to do."

The fact that the New Deal has seen fit to give the Communists posts of importance can only be explained as evidencing a New Deal view that the Communists are going in the same direction. The Communists have definite talents of a kind. They are effective in organizational work, as many of them proved in the early stages of the CIO. They can make progress thru the technique of subterfuge and misrepresentation, and therefore are useful in advancing objectives which, if sought openly by men in the forefront of the New Deal, would occasion widespread public outcry. Their evident value lies in bringing on the social revolution by circuitous means.

It is to be doubted that any large proportion of the Democratic party is in sympathy either with these latent aims or with the Communists who function under the aegis of the New Deal hierarchy. The majority of Democrats are going to awaken one of these days to what is going on, and a grand blowup will follow. It is unbelievable that they will permit themselves to be used thus indefinitely.

EMPLOYE-OWNERSHIP.

Employés of the Milwaukee Journal now own 40 per cent of that newspaper and have a voice in its management and that of subsidiary enterprises. Some 600 employés have a stock investment of $2,800,000 in the Journal, and, as time goes on and more of them acquire the means and meet service and salary qualifications, the number of stockholders and the size of their holdings will grow until majority ownership is finally vested in the workers themselves.

The plan to transfer management of the enterprise to the employés who are dedicating their lives and abilities to it originated with Harry J. Grant, chairman of the Journal company, and Miss Faye McBeath, the two principal stockholders, in conformity with a provision in the will of L. W. Nieman, founder of the Journal. Mr. Nieman had directed that the paper should be sold to the bidder best equipped to carry on the Journal tradition, even if that bidder's offer was not the highest. Mr. Grant and Miss McBeath reached the sound conclusion that those best fitted to carry on were the men and women who make the paper.

The wisdom of the provision for eventual employé ownership is amply demonstrated by what happened to the paper following the death of its founder. Mr. Nieman left his stock holdings to his widow, who, upon her death a year later, willed them to Harvard university. It must have seemed implausible even to the professors and the members of the Harvard corporation that the university should go into the publishing business, for they promptly sold back the stock to the Journal company. The situation, however, indicates what may become of a property if its control is transferred unwisely.

The Milwaukee Journal plan is a good one, not only for newspapers but for any kind of corporation. When those in control of a property step down they should pass on their equity to those who maintain the enterprise. The men who run the business should own it. In making decisions they must feel that they are risking their own money. That will make for responsibility in the conduct of the business. That the loyalty and enthusiasm that a worker can bring to an enterprise in which he is directly concerned will be immeasurably greater than it would be if he were merely a salaried employé goes without saying.

MUNICH APPEASEMENT AND THE CLIVEDEN SET

Some words with alien connotations have been cropping out in the American political vocabulary lately. For example, when those selfless patriots, the Democrats of Illinois, held their state convention last week, the orators gave a good workout to such words as "appeasement" and such phrases as "Munich-minded men." The "Cliveden set" is another favorite.

It is improbable that more than a few of those who now mouth these catch phrases know anything about the fabric of events that gave them their present meaning. "Appeasement" is the act of placating or reducing to peace, and usually implies a willingness to go a good half way in attaining the end. That was the sense in which it was first used by the late Neville Chamberlain, prime minister of Britain from May 28, 1937, until May 10, 1940.

Mr. Chamberlain adopted the word as a euphemism designed to obscure his intention of trying to buy off the dictators by giving away property that didn't belong to him—in particular, Czecho-Slovakia. "If we could only find a peaceful solution of this Czecho-Slovak question," he said on July 26, 1938, "I should myself feel the way open again for a further effort for a general appeasement—an appeasement which cannot be obtained until we can be satisfied that no major causes of difference or dispute remain unsettled."

The way of appeasement was not easy, even for those as willing as Mr. Chamberlain and his friends. When Hitler's tantrums over what Mr. Chamberlain called "that faraway country of which we know nothing" began to rasp upon the prime minister's nerves, he determined to restore peace and quiet by sacrificing Czecho-Slovakia to the Fuehrer. He had already announced this intention at a luncheon given May 10, 1938, by Lady Nancy Astor, American born M. P. for Plymouth. She was the leader of what had come to be known as the "Cliveden set," a group of powerful Britons, mostly of wealth and title, who sympathized with Mr. Chamberlain's ideas about appeasement and favored a British-German entente.

These congenial souls gathered at Cliveden manor, the sumptuous Thames estate of the Astors. The "Cliveden set" became known as "Britain's second foreign office," and it was to this little group that Mr. Chamberlain, four and a half months before Munich, stated that "nothing seems clearer than that the British do not expect to fight for Czecho-Slovakia. That being so, then the Czechs must accede to the German demands, if reasonable. . . . Czecho-Slovakia cannot survive in its present form." These observations were relayed to the public by a number of journalists from overseas who were guests at the luncheon. The report, as here given, was cabled by Joseph Driscoll to the Montreal Daily Star.

Germany's ostensible demand was that Czecho-Slovakia cede the Sudetenland, for, as Mr. Chamberlain had made clear at the luncheon, "Hitler wants all the Germans he can lay hands on, but positively no foreigners," and he contended that the Sudetenland was populated by Germans. On Sept. 15, 1938, Chamberlain took off by plane with his umbrella to interview Hitler concerning arrangements at the aerie at Berchtesgaden.

The prime minister returned home, then flew back to Godesberg to confer with Hitler again on Sept. 22. Here Hitler, instead of being grateful to Chamberlain, addressed new demands to him concerning Czecho-Slovakia. Chamberlain flew back to London two days later, and on Sept. 28, just as he was reaching the point in an address to the house of commons where he would have to state Britain's intentions concerning the Czechs, Halifax rushed in with a message represented as just having come from Hitler. It proposed a last meeting at Munich, among Hitler, Chamberlain, Premier Daladier of France, and Mussolini. The Czechs were to have no representation, nor was Russia, altho the Russians had a mutual assistance pact with the French and the French had one with the Czechs.

Chamberlain dramatically announced to the house that he would go to Munich. He sounded as if the conference had averted war, altho he had long since committed himself explicitly about Czecho-Slovakia. He went to Munich; he and Daladier assented to the German occupation of the Sudetenland, and all four leaders expressed a cynical intention to give future guarantees of the new Czech boundaries. On March 15, 1939, Hitler's divisions went over the frontier of what was left of Czecho-Slovakia and the Czechs ceased for the time to exist as a nation.

Americans had no part in any of this complicated double dealing. They had not formulated British and French foreign policy from 1933 to 1939. They were not appeasers or members of any Cliveden set, and none of them went to Munich to sell out a friendly country. But in time the United States inherited the whole kit of trouble, and some Americans began abusing others in terms which were borrowed from Europe.

The British aristocracy takes great interest in politics and most of the time marks out the government as a close preserve. British women, like Lady Astor, exercise great influence in political matters. American snobs by habit have taken little interest in the past in American politics, but they do keep informed on British politics. They followed Mr. Chamberlain thru the intricacies of appeasement until appeasement became a word of reproach, and then they made the fashionable shift to the other side.

Now, in order to continue their association with the British aristocracy on terms that would humiliate any self-respecting people, they are breaking into American politics and bringing their English phrases with them—phrases that have no place in American life and no application to any American problem, past or present. It is quite natural to find these phrases used by people who at heart are far removed in their allegiance from this country, but they sound strange in the mouth of a middle western mayor of Irish extraction.

There's a complaint of too much paper work in this war; and fortunately enough the WPB's request for the saving of paper is just out.—Kansas City Star.

OPA says 65 degrees is warm enough. An apartment house dweller estimates this temperature can be maintained by rapping on the radiators about four times a day.—Omaha Morning World Herald.

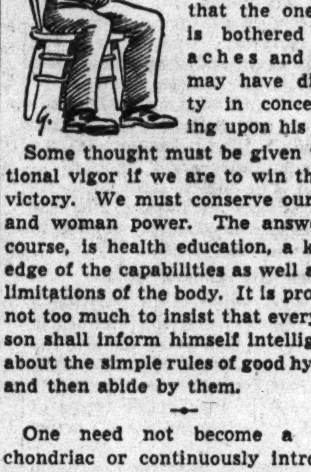
GOOD HEALTH AND THE WAR EFFORT.

No argument should be necessary to convince us that those who are well are more valuable to society than those who are ill. Particularly during the war emergency, our periods of employment are more intense. They are charged with more responsibility. This explains why the stalwart go ahead faster. We realize also that the one who is bothered with aches and pains may have difficulty in concentrating upon his job.



Some thought must be given to national vigor if we are to win thru to victory. We must conserve our man and woman power. The answer, of course, is health education, a knowledge of the capabilities as well as the limitations of the body. It is probably not too much to insist that every person shall inform himself intelligently about the simple rules of good hygiene and then abide by them.

One need not become a hypochondriac or continuously introspective. We must not spend our time wondering, for example, "What is my liver doing?" "How is my heart behaving?" Or "Is my digestive tract at par?" On the contrary, a common sense understanding of the sound principles of well being will save many a layoff.

We can supply the system with good foods and shun stimulants. While muscles will respond to a whip for a brief interval, they will fatigue quickly. Labor requires real fuel.

Then comes the question of rest. Most of us endeavor to establish orderly lives and many should concentrate on acquiring the habit of tranquility. This includes an even temper or what is termed "a good disposition." No small fraction of our mental upsets come about because childhood training has failed to teach the lessons of self-control.

The "flighty" person—even if he is a good producer—is rarely asked for his opinion. Furthermore, some of the material which he turns out may have to be reworked in order to pass inspection. If such an individual can develop the art of relaxation when off duty he may increase his utility a dozenfold.

A certain amount of self-analysis will be demanded. Wherein do I fail? What qualities within me can I cultivate which will make for success? This necessitates the attainment of character and the ability to think and plan. If one is a mechanic he will strive to devise better ways of doing things. Brawn alone is not sufficient. The coördination of effort is more important than the ability to lift a thousand pound weight. While mass action —which means force—is essential, without strategy and a clear cut program we will fail.

But we cannot anticipate that such a regimen will be carried to fruition if our citizens are sickly. Originality and ingenuity are more likely to spring from those whose muscles are in tone, whose nerves possess adequate reserve, and whose vital organs are not overloaded. It calls for quite a stretch of the imagination to expect that great spirits will be housed in rambling, rundown shacks. Will we heed?

RECEDING EYES.

Mrs. B. M. writes: I have noticed that the eyes of my 20 year old son seem to be getting smaller and more deepset. Could this be possible?

REPLY.

The eyeballs do not change. The surrounding tissues may. If the soft parts swell, the orbs may appear smaller. A physical checkup is advised.

TRENCH MOUTH.

Corp. R. writes: What is trench mouth?

REPLY.

An infection of the gums with Vincent's and other organisms. The malady was common in the AEF during the last war. Good oral hygiene and a mild antiseptic mouth wash will be helpful.

Test Your Horse Sense

By Dr. George W. Crane

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 9, part 2.

   Lamb Duck Pig Horse.
2. Which one of these mechanical terms refers to a gear?
   Clutch Universal Brush Pinion.
3. Which one of the following is not a term in botany?
   Caliph Pistil Calyx Stamen.
4. Which one of these pins would not be an article of feminine adornment?
   Cameo Brooch Cotter pin Sorority pin.
5. A professional nurseyman would spend his time caring for Babies Lambs Shrubs Chickens.
6. This is an analogy problem of the sort indicated by the sample, "Man: Woman. Boy: Girl." In each line below the first two biblical terms are related to each other in some way. Try to determine this relationship so you can pick one of the words in large type which has a similar relationship to the third word of the line.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, The Tribune.

NEITHER UTOPIA NOR ARMAGEDDON.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 21.—Your editorial of Sept. 15, "The Caveman's Return," quotes the opinions of one Prof. Hans Elias of Middlesex university. The gloomy content of these opinions is less startling than the realization that such beliefs are gaining ground with a sizable segment of our respected teaching profession.

History shows us that each prophet of glory has generated his own prophet of doom. Your editorial speaks of the crystal gazing proclivities of Henry Wallace and other New Dealers. It would seem that the eminent professor has indulged in more than a little crystal gazing of his own. The distinction has been more a matter of the hue of crystal rather than deductive reasoning from the facts.

To quote Dr. Elias: "Anyway, we shall not be wealthy enough any more [i. e., after the war] to buy more than we need." Such a statement blithely ignores certain economic facts. It denies the continued existence of our raw material resources, our manufacturing facilities or the productive capacities of a vast army of men, whose energies are now necessarily diverted.

The problems of the postwar period will be centered in the readjustment of these factors. While they are very real and difficult problems, there is no reason to believe that they will prove insuperable, particularly if well informed people in positions of responsibility will begin to think constructively on ways and means.

So it is suggested that such gentlemen as Sec. Wallace and Dr. Elias both pack their crystal balls away and put their undeniably excellent minds to work at giving us a socially useful future, neither Utopia nor Armageddon.

W. B. Stewart.

CAKE EATING IN THE PTA.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—Today, at a meeting of the PTA in one of our high schools, the question came up whether a cash donation should be made with which to buy cakes, or whether we should follow the custom of donating cakes for social hour at these meetings. It was suggested that in times like these cake need not be served at all, whereupon one lady arose and said that the issue is not whether or not cakes will be served, but how they will be procured.

If one good reason could be cited why cakes should be consumed at these meetings in the quantities they are, and sugar rationed in the home where little children live, I should like to know it—and I mean quantities, for cakes pour in at these meetings by the dozens. Ladies of our age, so the doctor tells us, need to reduce their carbohydrate intake, and one glance around the room indicated the percentage that really needed to add extra pounds was small.

THE BEST LIKE TYNDALL FIELD.

Tyndall Field, Fla., Sept. 20.—A recent letter from this post signed by "M. A." told of his hard life in the air force. I, too, am stationed at Tyndall field, and have been very happy here. I am speaking for every real soldier on this post when I say we are happy. Who wouldn't be, with the sort of meals they give us? The barracks are far above anything I have seen in the service—one story stucco buildings with smooth cement floors. We are allowed to have radios. There is always hot and cold running water to shave and shower. All the roads are paved.

Any man on the field can get a pass up to four nights a week and all Sunday, unless he has neglected to carry out his simple duties, but the average man need not leave the post for two and three weeks at a time, because we have all sorts of recreational activities within the grounds.

We have moving pictures [every night], girls as partners in our own dance hall, day rooms with pool tables, ping-pong tables, and card tables; reading rooms, and, last but not least, the finest army chapel I have ever seen. Army life is grand—just what the soldier himself wants to make it.

J. O'C.

THE FIRST 3,000 COAT HANGERS.

Camp Pickett, Va., Sept. 19.—As the soldier who appealed thru the Voice of the People for coat hangers for our camp, I wish to acknowledge the generous response of Tribune readers. I was overrun with hangers. We received about 3,000, which were passed out to Chicago fellows and then to the rest of our company.

I am trying to write all of those who sent them, but it's almost impossible. I also received candy, cigarets, magazines, and razor blades. I thank the people who sent them, and I'll try to do my best to keep us all free.

DEFECTIONS IN THE CIVIL DEFENSE.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—It's surprising the number of block captains and zone captains who are resigning after completing or half completing the necessary course of instructions. Why? Very few of these men have enlisted or been called for service. If people only knew how this sort of thing slows up our Civilian Defense organization they would pick men noted for dependability rather than their looks or hail fellow well met manner.

I have heard men elected or chosen for these key positions complain about the amount of work they are expected to do and those that have failed us are evidently not able to "take it." In other words, they're just plain lazy. So the burden falls on those who feel that no sacrifice is too great for this land of ours. Every one can spare a few hours a day. Why not give them to the OCD?

Woman Air Raid Warden.

THEY HAVE FAITH IN US.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—The following is an excerpt from a letter that I received from a dear friend in New Caledonia: "You have no idea how consoling it is for us here, so far away, knowing of the huge war plants we have in the states, and knowing that each and every worker is doing his best to give us the tools with which we can do the job."

It's a grand feeling, knowing that the boys out there feel that way about what we are doing here. But let's surprise 'em. Let's work harder and faster!

POLITICAL INNOVATION.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Why not a Republican senator and a Democratic senator from each state?

Wouldn't this help to eliminate politics and keep the senate more evenly balanced?

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problems a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

HEAT REGULATIONS.

Chicago, Sept. 16 [Legal Friend of the People.]—If a tenant rents a heated apartment flat, in what period of time is tenant lawfully entitled to heat? Also, what are the temperature regulations?

A. M.

Section 96-4 of the city code requires every person controling any tenement house in which the heat is furnished from a central plant to furnish heat from Sept. 15 to June 1 so that the occupants may secure, without such restriction of ventilation as to interfere with sanitary conditions, a minimum temperature of 60 degrees at 6:30 a. m., 65 at 7:30, 68 at 8:30 and thereafter until 10:30 p. m., subject to fine of $10 to $200, provided that notice by registered mail shall be given before any person shall be deemed to have violated this section.

Since it may be difficult to prove sufficient facts to defend an action for rent in case you move out, we advise you first to report violations to the commissioner of health, City hall, and to exhaust the possibility of getting relief by formal notice to the landlord.

DEFINITION—NOTES.

Chicago, Sept. 16 [Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you please explain the difference between a [1] cognovit note and [2] any other kind of a personal note where no collateral is involved?

3. What is the statute of limitations on a cognovit note in [4] Ohio?

5. What is the statute in Michigan?

R. A.

1. It is a note containing a clause authorizing a judgment by confession. It is also called a judgment note.
2. An ordinary note would not contain such a clause.
3. The same as on any other note.
4. Ten years.
5. Six years.

BROKEN WATER PIPE.

Chicago, Sept. 17 [Friend of the People.]—During the summer months we hear so much of the shortage of water. The building next to mine has several large water pipes which are broken. Water has been running very fast and freely from these pipes for the last two years. By now the ground is so saturated that it is running into and soaking the property on both sides. The broken pipes are in the back of the empty store. The whole building is in very bad shape and should be torn down. It has been reported several times but nothing seems to have been done. We would appreciate your investigating the matter or informing us where we may report it and receive some effective results.

E. G.

On Aug. 25 the water pipe extension division shut off service at roundway stop cock [controling valve]. This will eliminate the water leak reported in the above letter.

OSCAR E. HEWITT.
Commissioner of Public Works.

LEGALITY OF WILL.

Chicago, Sept. 16 [Legal Friend of the People.]—I made out my will 20 years ago. The lawyer who drew it up and also both witnesses are now dead.

1. Is that will still legal, or will I have to draw up another will?

2. Should I decide to have a trustee instead of making out a will [3] can I appoint my wife as trustee?

H. S.

1. Yes, as far as the facts stated are concerned, but marriage or birth of a child would affect the situation.
2. A trust is not in general a substitute for a will. If you contemplate such a step, you should have a personal interview with an attorney.
3. Yes, to the exact question asked, but she may lack the experience to be a wise choice.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FAMILY EXPENSES.

Chicago, Sept. 17 [Legal Friend of the People.]—I provide my wife, who is living with me, with necessities of life and also with a cash allowance to do with as she pleases. She wants more than I can afford and threatens to open some charge accounts. What can I do now to prevent any liability on my part for any accounts she may open?

D. M.

A husband is liable for his wife's necessaries and for the expenses of the family. If you provide for her necessaries, then the only question is whether her purchases are expenses of the family. If you refuse to receive those purchases and return them then we see no basis on which you can be held.

Obviously one course would be for you to go to the stores from which she seems most likely to open charge accounts and try to persuade them not to deal with her.

JUVENILE CRIMES FLOURISH IN WAR, SAYS PENOLOGIST

Adult Violations Drop in Same Period.

Adult crime diminishes sharply during wartime, but juvenile delinquency flourishes under the dubious stimulus provided by social and economic conditions during periods of national stress, Sanford Bates, commissioner of the New York state parole board and one of the nation's foremost penologists, said at a meeting yesterday at the Chicago Bar association, sponsored by the Central Howard association.

Factors which tend to reduce crime among adults include the emotion of patriotism prevelant during time of war, which makes the thought of committing crimes against fellow citizens engaged in a common life and death struggle repugnant to many habitual criminals, and the manifold opportunities to earn good wages in industry, which eliminate in many instances the need for turning to crime.

Strangely, these factors seem to operate in reverse with juveniles, the speaker said. The emotion of patriotism readily transmutes itself into a longing for excitement in the immature mind, which, when translated into action, results in an upsurge of crime.

Greater opportunities for work, which act as a deterrent in adult crime, are responsible for an increase among juvenile violations, Bates said. Youths find themselves earning more money than they had ever dreamed of, and get into trouble with their new found oppulence.

Penal institutes, the speaker said, can contribute to the war effort in two ways. They can produce needed materials in their workshops, and they can provide additional man power to the armed forces by the wise exercise of parole.

Paroled to Join Army.

New York state, Bates said, has paroled more than 1,000 men who have been taken into the army. Draft boards receive reports from parole authorities on each individual before inducting him into the army, and service restrictions on use of felons in the army have been considerably relaxed in recent months, he said.

Bates warned against mistaking the current dimunition in adult crime as a sign that the world is getting more honest. When the war is over, he said, an aftermath of crime may be expected, as after the last war.

Presents Immediate Problems.

This is possible in several ways, he said, but primarily in avoiding the mistake made by England in concentrating solely upon the more obvious phases of the war, and neglecting the accompanying social problems.

When director of the United States bureau of prisons, Bates was instrumental in placing the federal penal system upon a civil service career basis, including all wardens of federal penal institutions.

War Widow Twice

'JOKER' ADMITS 70 BURGLARIES; GOT LITTLE FOR LOOT

Leroy Lacourse, 17 years old, nicknamed the "Joker" burglar because of his practice of leaving playing card jokers in the homes of some of his victims, had little conception of the value of some of his loot, according to his story yesterday to Assistant State's Attorney Francis McCurrie.

Leroy Lacourse.

He sold a $700 movie camera for $15, and a $660 diamond ring for $10, he admitted. He explained he sold the ring for so little because he was sure the diamond in it was too big to be genuine.

During the day Lacourse confessed 70 burglaries, police said. He also was questioned by McCurrie about the murder last Monday of Gustave Redemske at 9732 Prospect avenue. He denied knowledge of that crime, and McCurrie said he did not appear to have been involved in it. He will be given a lie detector test tomorrow.

Lacourse, who lives at 6046 Blackstone avenue, is on parole from the state training school for boys near St. Charles where he had served 16 months for burglary.

CALIFORNIA VOTE HELD SHARPEST REBUKE TO PURGE

Richard Lyons Shows How Smearers Interlock.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Richard J. Lyons.

Smear-purge groups of the Atlantic seaboard, which have suffered a long series of defeats in their effort to drive from congress prewar noninterventionists, received one of their most significant rebukes last month in California. That opinion was expressed yesterday by Richard J. Lyons, one of the most effective speakers in the Republican primary campaign last spring. He said that for months he has been making research into the makeup of purge groups in New York for use in the Illinois campaign.

"I'm preparing speeches on the subject which I expect to make for Sen. Brooks," Lyons said. "I have some amazing material. Some of it has just come from California, whose primaries were little publicized east of the Rockies, but where we find this unholy alliance of Communist and millionaire New York smear groups with interlocking directorates could not impose its will on the people of California, regardless of furious campaigning by pay rollers, New Dealers, and the purgers' cabal.

45 Per Cent of Democrats for Warren

"In all the states where the eastern purgers tried to impose their remote control in the primaries, New York, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, and the rest, they were badly beaten, but in California occurred something to my mind most significant. The Republican candidate for governor, Earl Warren, ran also in the Democratic primary against Gov. Culbert Olson, a New Dealer, and Warren received 45 per cent of the Democratic vote cast in the Democratic primary.

"In California candidates may run in both primaries. If they win both they have no opposition in the election—the primaries settle the contest. Warren's vote in the Democratic primary, added to his vote in the Republican primary, gave him 500,000 votes more than Olson. This in a state where the registration was about 65 per cent Democratic and 35 per cent Republican. Also congressmen on the purge list won and it seems likely that in November the Republicans may gain five seats.

"This most significant outcome in California came after the New Deal, the New York smear gang, the burocrats flooded the state with literature, cartoons, and speeches declaiming against prewar noninterventionists and Herbert Hoover's support of Warren for governor. It shows the Republican trend of the year."

Lyons said that a study of various eastern organizations shows interlocking directorates reminiscent of the trust busting days of President Theodore Roosevelt, the blue sky laws later, and the holding company joyriders just before the 1929 depression.

"The totalitarian smear movement, with its interlocking directorates, if not destroyed, can injure us politically, as the interlocking operations of big business damaged us financially in 1929," he said.

Denounced in Dies Report.

"In California, as in Illinois, Michigan, and other primary states, one chief item of smear propaganda was the purge list of the Union for Democratic Action and the left wing magazine, New Republic. This UDA was formed in April, 1941, a hodgepodge of tea-drinking pinks, Socialists, antique college professors, and the like. This Union for Democratic Action was denounced in a report of the Dies committee on un-American activities as the spearhead of a campaign of 'creeping totalitarianism.'"

The Dies report said 27 of the union's officials and members were identified a few years ago with the American League Against War and Fascism. Attorney General Francis Biddle branded this league as a Communist front organization in his deportation order against Harry Bridges.

"Look over the interlocking character of some of these eastern organizations which seek to control politics in the midwest. Here's a list of the officials of Freedom House, New York, president of which is Herbert Agar. Here we find the name of Wendell Willkie as one of its directors. Willkie is also named as one of the founders' committee of Freedom House. Honorary chairman of this committee is Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

"In California, by the way, during the campaign attention was directed by the Republicans to excerpts from an address made by Mr. Willkie at a Brooklyn Republican luncheon June 18, 1940. This was six days before the Republican national convention opened in Philadelphia. This is what Mr. Willkie said: 'Despite our wholehearted sympathy for the allied cause we must stay out of the war.' That's what he was saying when he was looking for delegates.

"Here's another excerpt from that speech by Willkie: 'We do not intend to send men from the shores of this continent to fight in any war. That is not mere selfishness on our part; we shall not serve the cause of democracy and human freedom by becoming involved in the present war; we shall serve that cause only by keeping out of war. I believe in national defense, not as a step toward war, but as a protection against it. It is the duty of the President of the United States to recognize the determination of the people to stay out of war and to do nothing by word or deed that will undermine that determination.'

"And here's an excerpt: 'No man has the right to use the great powers of the Presidency to lead the people, indirectly, into war; only the people thru their elected representatives can make that awful decision, and there is no question as to their decision.'"

Some of Duplicated Names.

Some of the tieups of the purge groups were illustrated by Lyons.

"We find among the names of the committee of founders of Freedom House, with Mrs. Roosevelt and Mr. Willkie," he said, "the name of Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr. He is chairman of the Union for Democratic Action. The name of the president of this union, Dr. Frank Kingdon, British born American citizen, is also there. So is the name of Dr. William Allan Neilson, who is on the list of sponsors of the Union for Democratic Action. Another sponsor of Freedom House is A. Philip Randolph, who is also on the list of sponsors of the Union for Democratic Action. This is the union which the Dies committee called the spearhead of 'creeping totalitarianism.'

"Regardless of its pretentions of holiness, Freedom House is no more nor less than a front, a clearing house where millionaires and communists foregather to purge patriotic members of congress. If these groups have their way, New York, not Washington, will become the capital, and from Freedom House we'll get our orders as to our conduct as American citizens.

Ridicules Cry for Unity.

"The purgers cry out for unity, but the only unity they want is the kind that brooks no interference with their burocratic methods of running the war. They say 'Purge Brooks for Unity,' but only a short time ago they applauded the pardon from the federal penitentiary of Earl Browder, No. 1 communist of the United States, and gave as reasons that Browder's release would tend to bring a greater unity among our people.

"What kind of mental makeup have those who would purge from the senate a man like Brooks and at the same time protect men like Bridges and pardon men like Browder? What will become of the Eddie O'Hares, of the Jimmy Doolittles, of the Lieut. Bulkleys if sometime in the future these great heroes should disagree with the manner in which the government is run? Will they also be marked for purge?"

WOMAN DIES OF BURNS.

WAR TURNS TIDE TO G.O.P. IN STATE OF WASHINGTON

10 Year Democratic Trend Slowly Shifts.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 26.—The state of Washington has been Democratic for a decade, but the tide is turning. It started two years ago when a Republican governor was elected for the first time since the advent of the New Deal. Now the trend back to the G. O. P. is being hastened by influences produced by the war.

Of the state's six seats in the house of representatives, the Republicans possibly will regain one if not two in November. These are the districts constituting the agricultural part of the state east of the mountains. The Republican trend in this region is part and parcel of the farmer's reaction against the policies of the Roosevelt administration that is apparent thruout the west.

In the Seattle, Tacoma, and other largely industrialized districts west of the mountains in which the labor vote is a large, if not predominant, factor, the Democrats remain in the ascendent.

G. O. P. Has Chance in One Area.

In only one of these four districts, the 2d, have the Republicans even a remote chance of electing a congressman. That district is represented by Henry M. Jackson [D.], who was renominated by a vote in the Democratic primary only 1,200 more than was polled by Payson Peterson, his Republican opponent, in the Republican primary.

Democratic strength in the industrial districts is bulwarked by the votes of the working men who are as satisfied with administration policies, notably the Roosevelt anti-inflation program, as the farmers are dissatisfied and for the same reason: The President's proposal to put farm product prices into a straitjacket while retaining power to adjust labor's wages upward.

The Democrats have been strengthened also in the western part of the state by the shift of population to the shipbuilding plants and other war industries on the coast. War has worked mighty changes in the life of all these Pacific coast communities.

Cities Gain in Population.

The war plants have drawn an additional 100,000 population to Portland, Ore., which had 300,000 in 1940. It is estimated 125,000 have been added to Seattle's 370,000. The housing shortage is acute. So is the labor shortage in agriculture and business.

One of the Democratic congressmen in the eastern districts who is likely to be defeated is Knute Hill, a farmer, lawyer and grange lecturer who went to Washington with the New Deal in 1932. He worked up to the management of tax bills for the ways and means committee. Democratic leaders privately concede that Hill probably will be beaten by his Republican opponent, Hal Holmes, a sheep rancher.

Hill has started with trouble in his own party. He is in the New Deal doghouse because of consorting with the America First organization before Pearl Harbor.

Suffers by Labor Shift.

In addition to the backsliding of farmers from the New Deal gospel, the Democrats in Hill's district have been hard hit by the shift of labor on the completed Grand Coulee dam to the coast war industries. In the primary the Republicans cast 22,000 and the Democrats 13,000 votes in this district.

In the Spokane district the Republican leaders think they have an excellent chance of electing Walt Horan, a well known orchardist, over former Sen. Clarence Dill, the stormy petrel of Washington politics. The Democratic representative of this district, Charles H. Leavy, was appointed to the bench and Dill won the Democratic nomination in a primary, the total vote of which was a few hundred short of the total in the Republican primary.

Essays Political Comeback.

Dill was elected to the house in 1914. In 1920 he was defeated for the senate by Stanley B. Webster, his vote against war with Germany being an issue. Two years later, however, Dill got to the senate by defeating Miles Poindexter. He was reëlected in 1928 but rèsigned in 1934. Two years ago he essayed a political comeback, defeating Gov. Clarence D. Martin for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Dill was supported by the notorious labor boss Dave Beck, who for years had reigned as the tyrant of Seattle. Such was the fear that Beck and his goon squads would rune the state if Dill were elected that a popular uprising swept his Republican opponent, Arthur B. Langlie, into office.

Horan, who saw service in the first World war, now has Dill on the defensive with respect to his war record.

Canadian Who Tried to Fly Atlantic in 1919 Dies

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 26 [CP].—Comm. Kenneth John Mackenzie-Grieve, 62 years old, navigator of the open cockpit biplane piloted by Harry Hawker on his trans-Atlantic flight attempt in May, 1919, died today. The two crashed at sea after covering 1,200 of the 1,880 miles to Ireland from Newfoundland. Mackenzie-Grieve was awarded the air force cross for his part in the flight. His widow and one daughter survive.

World War Military Order Elects N. Y. Man Its Head

Sued for Divorce

THE DUCHESS OF LEINSTER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The duke of Leinster is suing his second wife, the former Mrs. Clare Van Neck of New York City, for divorce, it was disclosed today. They were married in 1932. Viscount Tarbat, now a prisoner of war in Germany, was named as the corespondent.

ARMY TO TRAIN INSTRUCTORS AT OLD CCC CAMP

Takes Over Glenview's Skokie Valley Unit.

Conversion of the Civilian Conservation corps' old Camp Skokie Valley at Glenview into a military instructors' training school was announced yesterday by Maj. Gen. H. S. Aurand, commander of the 6th Service command.

Gen. Aurand said the army has taken over the camp as a step in a general plan to utilize camps abandoned by the CCC for military purposes. Congress ended the CCC project last June by refusing to appropriate money for its continuance. Abandonment of the camps is now being completed.

Opens Next Thursday.

Gen. Aurand said the new school will train officers of the military police and the regular army, officers and key enlisted men of the Illinois Reserve militia and officers and key men engaged in plant production work. The training program is intended to equip specialists for the army services of supply with a thoro knowledge of efficiency methods.

Training will begin next Thursday, with commissioned and non-commissioned officers of the 6th service command in charge. The men to be trained will be given one week of instruction.

Gen. Aurand said plans for the use or disposition of other CCC camps in Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan will be made known later. It is contemplated, he said, that those of a portable nature will be dismantled, and that the material salvaged will be removed to other sites where they may be utilized by the army.

From time to time, the fixed camps will be used to house instructors and pupils of the various services of supply and army air force schools, he added.

WM. M. HOYT II. DIES; MEMBER OF OLD CITY FAMILY

William M. Hoyt II., member of a north shore and Chicago family, died of a heart ailment yesterday in St. Francis' hospital, Evanston. He was 50 years old, and lived at 490 Cherry street, Winnetka.

Mr. Hoyt was a grandson of the late W. M. Hoyt, pioneer Chicago business man, with whom he had been associated in the wholesale grocery business. He was a member of the Chicago Athletic club.

Surviving are his widow, the former Miss Elizabeth Cunningham; a daughter, Elizabeth L.; a son, William M. III.; his father, N. Landon Hoyt, 1120 Lake Shore drive; a brother, N. Landon Jr., and a sister, Mrs. Elliott E. Stearns of Cleveland, O. Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow in Graceland cemetery chapel.

PEDESTRIAN HIT, KILLED BY AUTO IS UNIDENTIFIED

An unidentified man about 65 years old, poorly dressed, was killed yesterday in Milwaukee avenue, near Wheeling, by an automobile driven by Timothy Shugrue, 20 of 524 Waukegan road, Deerfield. Shugrue said a snowstorm blinded him and he did not see the man.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 529 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since the first of the year. Of these 401 lost their lives in Chicago, where 15,044 were injured.

When constipation brings on discomfort after meals, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin, as directed on label or as your doctor advises, and feel world's better. Get genuine Dr. Caldwell's.

G. O. P. VICTORIES WILL SPEED WAR, MARTIN ADVISES

Duty to Criticize Delay and Bungling, He Says.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 26 (AP).—Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. [R., Mass.], chairman of the Republican national committee, declared today that "If the people wish to remedy the delays, mistakes, and weaknesses in the war effort, they will send to congress additional Republican members to render powerful, and more effective, the patriotic coöperative opposition."

Keynoting the Massachusetts Republican convention, the house minority floor leader said:

"The mission of the Republican party is clear and well defined. It is our duty to give every ounce of support to the winning of the war; and it is our duty to appraise, evaluate, and perhaps to criticize some of the war efforts for the constructive purpose of remedying mistakes or of preventing them. As a coöperative opposition, we must fulfill that duty."

Stresses Domestic Problems.

Martin added that "we must not neglect—we dare not neglect—the domestic problems, now vastly aggravated by the war, which must be solved before we have the peace and the security we desire in this country."

Martin said that if the United States expects to win the peace as well as the war it must preserve the structure of small business to the greatest extent possible consistent with the war effort.

"It is upon the small business structure—the community industry of America—we will have to build a new prosperity and economic security after this terrible war has ended," he declared.

Warns of Great Changes.

United States Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge [R., Mass.] said that "Many great and far reaching changes are inevitable and necessary, but it would be unfair and unjust to the thousands of our soldiers and sailors to send them out of this country to fight for America and allow America to be so changed by bungling and mismanagement while they were away that they would fail to recognize it when they return.

"America always should be the land of the free—not a land dominated by a group of self-seeking visionaries near the seat of power, who will use a crisis as an excuse to make experimental guinea pigs of us all; not a land in which opportunity depends upon the party in power in Washington; not a land which attempts to stifle every expression of individualism."

Moline, Ill., Sept. 26 [Special.]—Dan Zook, who in 1933 served as go-beween in the ransom kidnaping of Adhemar Huughe, wealthy East Moline business man, was found dead today in the washroom of his tavern here. His testimony for the state in the kidnaping case sent three underworld characters to federal prisons for long sentences.

REFUTE CLAIM OF LABOR CHIEF TO CITIZENSHIP

Union Files Certification of Birth Record.

A certified copy of the birth of James Grady at Shrewsbury, England, on Nov. 6, 1899, was filed here yesterday in the Federal district court to refute the claim of James Leonard O'Grady, president of local 66 of the Elevator Operators and Starters' union, that he is an American citizen. The Building Service Employés' International union which seeks to oust O'Grady from his union office, presented the certificate to the court.

James L. O'Grady.

Last February, the International union notified O'Grady that charges had been made that he was not an American citizen and therefore not eligible, under the union rules, to be an officer of the union. O'Grady replied that he acquired American citizenship thru the naturalization of his father in Chicago, April 15, 1921.

Succeeded Union Czar.

O'Grady, who was elected early in 1941 to succeed the late Matthew Taylor, long known as a local union czar, said he was born in Shrewsbury on Nov. 6, 1900, and consequently he was under 21 years of age when his father became an American citizen.

The international union, acording to Attorney Daniel D. Carmell, replied that its information was that Grady was born in 1899, and not in 1900, and therefore he was over 21 when his father was naturalized. O'Grady was given three months to prove himself a citizen or face ouster.

Changed Named to O'Grady.

The international union filed its answer yesterday, including the birth certificate. The accompanying certificate supplied by the registrar's office at London, showed the birth of the Grady boy on Nov. 6, 1899 and the parents' names as John and Bridget Grady. The international union said that Grady later changed his name to O'Grady.

The next move in the court battle is to come from O'Grady who will be asked to explain the certificate, Attorney Carmell said.

ILLINOIS LABOR DEMANDS FULL DEFEAT OF AXIS

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 26 (AP).—A unanimous declaration of opposition to any negotiated peace with the axis powers brought the 60th annual convention of the Illinois Federation of Labor to a close today.

Delegates opposed a resolution declaring "we pledge ourselves not to forget the innocent victims of Nazi brutality and to oppose all efforts to make peace with the Nazis, but on the contrary to fight on until a complet victory annihilates this scourge of mankind forever,"

The resolution referred to the mass killings of male residents of Lidice in Czecho-Slovakia and other "atrocities intended to throw everlasting fear into the hearts of all free peoples."

WOMAN LEAVES MAID A TIP, THEN LEAPS TO DEATH FROM HOTEL

New York, Sept. 26 (AP).—Adelaide Reckford, 40 year old daughter of the founder of the American Lead Pencil company, jumped or fell to her death today from a room on the 29th floor of the Hotel Barbizon-Plaza.

Adelaide Reckford.

The daughter of the late Louis J. Reckford had been missing since Wednesday night when she attended a theater and then failed to return to the Hotel Chatham, where she had been staying. Her body was found on a fourth floor ledge.

Detectives who went to her room found several notes, one of which identified the body. Another said: "The window tells the story."

Two notes were addressed to the hotel management and to a chambermaid, both expressing regret at the trouble caused. She left $16 for her hotel bill and a tip for the maid.

Miss Reckford's family was prominent in social and welfare circles. At one time she was an amateur golfer of considerable skill.

LABOR'S PRAISE OF MURPHY TOLD BY GOV. GREEN

Charges of 'Double Cross' Denied.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 26 [Special].—Gov. Dwight H. Green replied yesterday to the attack made upon him last Monday by Reuben G. Soderstrom, president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor. Speaking at the federation's convention in Peoria, Soderstrom criticized the governor for appointing Francis B. Murphy as state director of labor to succeed Martin P. Durkin. Soderstrom accused the governor of a "double doublecross" for not supplanting Murphy.

The governor made his reply in a letter to Soderstrom, which was released for publication. The letter said that Soderstrom's remarks contained many inaccuracies. The letter said, in part:

"You are reported to have said that I failed to appoint a man of labor in spite of a written promise to do so. What I actually promised . . . was that I would 'select as director of the department of labor a man qualified to handle all problems of labor; one in whom the wage earners of the state have implicit confidence to administer the laws of the state affecting every wage earner.'

Indorsement Recalled.

"My acquaintance with you came thru the present director of labor. When I saw you and Mr. Olander [Victor Olander, secretary and treasurer of the federation] you stated that Mr. Murphy was a man with great sympathies for the cause of labor, and a person in whom the wage earners of the state had great confidence.

"I know, of course, that you preferred my keeping in office of former Democratic director of labor, but I am sure that it is possible for a man to have great sympathies for the cause of labor, to be eminently fair to labor in the administration of the laws of the state, and yet not to be a member of organized labor. Mr. Murphy has demonstrated that he is such a man."

Labor's Gain Told.

The governor said that Soderstrom had told him at the 1941 convention of the federation that labor had made greater gains in the first legislative session of the Green administration than in any previous session.

The governor denied that he had given any one authority to promise the removal of Murphy on condition that the federation cease its criticism. It was this so-called promise upon which Soderstrom said he based his charge of a "double double cross."

Rear Adm. John Downes, commandant of the 9th naval district, told 1,400 naval officers graduating yesterday from two months training at Tower hall, on the Northwestern university downtown campus, that they must continue to learn if they are to uphold traditions of the navy. The program was held in Thorne hall.

He said the shortness of their training has been dictated by the necessities of war, but that the foundation has been laid for their development into valuable officers. The class included men commissioned before they started their courses.

At Rockefeller Memorial chapel on the University of Chicago campus, Robert M. Hutchins, president of the school, addressed the second class to be graduated from the radio school at the university. He urged the 173 sailors to develop their mental processes while in service, describing "boredom as the true horror of war."

ROB SOUTH SIDE APARTMENT.

Jacob Halperin, sales manager for Seagram Distilleries, reported to police last night that Distilleries, reported to police on Friday that 52d street, and stole $250 worth of jewelry, silverware, and war stamps.

LABOR IN BRITAIN PUTS WAR ABOVE SELF, SAYS TOBIN

Daniel J. Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters [AFL], in a radio talk last night, called upon American war workers and their employers to render greater assistance and make greater sacrifices to win the war. Otherwise, Tobin warned, the struggle will be prolonged indefinitely to the point of possible defeat.

Tobin, who recently returned from England where he attended the British Trades Union congress as a representative of the American Federation of Labor and studied labor problems at the request of President Roosevelt, said English workers, organized and unorganized, are generally submitting "without complaint" to ministry of labor decisions ending work disputes. Exceptions are few, he added.

Shunt Agitators Into Army.

Labor agitators who foment strikes in opposition to union officers, Tobin said, are overpowered by public opinion, and if that fails they are either reshuffled into military service or "are placed out of reach of an opportunity to create trouble."

Groups of employés who walk out in violation of governmental strike regulations and employers who refuse to yield to decisions of the ministry of labor's adjustment bureaus are considered almost as enemies of their country, he said.

"Labor may say this is dangerous," said Tobin, "but workers in England fully understand they are not surrendering any of their rights; that they are merely, because of the dangers confronting them, suspending certain rights for the duration."

Tobin declared that absence of English war workers from their jobs has been curtailed by severe penalties.

Wage Stabilization in Effect.

A stabilization of wages, based on the cost of living, is an accomplished fact in England, Tobin said. For example, he asserted, operators of coal mines are permitted to hike the price of coal if miners' wages are boosted, but to equalize this effect on the cost of living, the government has reduced the price of meat or some other commodity.

Until the British government took a hand, living costs were getting out of control, as they are in the United States, Tobin explained. Since then, he added, Britain's living costs rose only 1 per cent in 13 months, compared with a rise of 12 per cent in 12 months in the United States.

British labor is working an average of 53 hours a week and receiving overtime pay for time in excess of 48 hours, Tobin said.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

K. S. A. writes: "I would appreciate it if you would publish a list of gifts which are suitable for men in service, and particularly men overseas. I understand that gifts for overseas must be in the mail soon to reach the men by Christmas."

ANSWER: We did print a long article giving all the information you request, but if you will send us a large, self-addressed envelope marked "gift list" we will be glad to send you a copy. We also will include an article "What Not to Write to Yanks in Foreign Service." Gifts for overseas shipment must be on the boat before Nov. 1.

M. O. T. asks: "If a man in service who had been married and divorced several times, dies, leaving several under-aged children by previous marriages, would these minor children by his former marriages be eligible for benefits under social security?"

ANSWER: Minor children of a deceased wage earner covered by the act are eligible for benefits provided they are not living with and are not supported by a stepfather.

L. H. J. writes: "I am in the enlisted reserve corps taking the signal corps training for a radio technician. All of my friends and neighbors think I am a draft dodger because I am not in uniform. Isn't there some sort of a insignia, cap, arm band, or something we can wear so people will know we are in and doing our part?"

ANSWER: A recent ruling of the war department in response to just such a request calls attention to the provisions of the national defense act against unauthorized wearing of "any distinctive part" of the uniform, adding, "there is no authority for civilians to wear these insignia [of the signal corps], nor can enlisted reservists or civilian trainees wear the uniform or any part thereof until called to active duty," and any proposed "official" button or pin is also prohibited. Until the war department changes its mind you will have to explain to every one you know or meet that you are "in training."

R. S. R. writes: "Our postmaster insists upon charging foreign postage rates on packages sent to our boys overseas. He claims that when a package bears an A.P.O. number c/o postmaster it is taken for granted that these packages go out of the country and, therefore, we have to pay foreign rates."

ANSWER: Ask your postmaster to look up order number 18478, issued on Aug. 19, which says in part: "Postage must be fully prepaid, at the regular parcel post rates, only to the port of embarkation."

If Back Aches or Ankles Swell, Flush Your Kidneys

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles.

Worry, Colds, working too hard, or overeating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids
Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisonous and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Guaranteed Trial Offer
Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. An iron clad guarantee insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. Get Cystex from your druggist today for only 35c.

AUTHOR'S NOTE: Cystex is produced under the direction of a licensed physician for The Knox Co., one of the largest drug companies in the world with laboratory connections in the U.S.A., Canada, England, Australia and South America. The guarantee of money back unless satisfied is enforced 100% and is a dependable form of assurance to all users of Cystex.

TO WOMEN:

Looking for an opportunity?

Many of our co-workers here at the Fair are now in the armed services. But, as you know, the Fair is still growing. Now, more than ever, we have opportunities to offer women in our store.

Experience not necessary

Perhaps you've had experience selling, or otherwise working in business. If so, that's fine—but it isn't necessary to your doing well here.

Part time or full time

Perhaps you want a full time job. That, too, is fine. But we can use a good many women part time, so they can continue home duties.

Temporary or a career

Perhaps you want to work for only a few months—or just for the "duration." That is OK with us. But we have real opportunities, too, for girls or women who want a career in retailing, and want to get started now.

HOW TO APPLY

Apply 9:30 a. m. to 12 noon
Adams-st. entrance

4 in 1 Pin Now

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Miss Judy Kronheim of the War Production board's division of information studies one bobby pin which in future must do work of four.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26 (AP).—The nation's 40 million women were told today that from now on they will have to make three bobby pins or hairpins do the work. A War Production board order, designed to save metal, not only ordered production of these pins reduced to one-fourth of the 1941 rate, but also directed that no more than 100 pins could be included in a package.

In 1941 women purchased about 140 million packages of bobby pins and hairpins.

Emphasizing that "there has been a large amount of waste of these pins by the public in the past," Harry I. Gillogly, of the WPB consumer durable goods branch, said 5,700 tons of steel will be saved by the curtailment.

UNCURBED PRICES OF FOODS SHOW SHARP INCREASES

Danger of Advances Stressed by OPA.

Prices of foods not covered by OPA ceilings have risen sharply while prices of controled foods have been stabilized, Brunswick A. Bagdon, regional OPA price economist, said yesterday in a food cost study.

"With few exceptions, the uncontroled food prices rose more than seasonally," he said. "Among these were such foods as lettuce, sweet potatoes, and eggs. As a group, the uncontroled products account for about 40 per cent of the average urban family's food budget."

The OPA recently has stressed the dangerous pattern being set by the rise in the cost of uncontroled foods which is permitted by loopholes in the price control system.

Bagdon indicated the food price trends by comparing average prices of foods purchased by wage earners and low salaried workers in Chicago. The foods were selected from a report by the bureau of labor statistics of the average prices of important foods reported by different types of stores, as follows:

BARE NEW DEAL REFUSAL TO STOP ARMING JAPAN

Industry's Warning on Scrap Exports Rejected.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—The record of the futile effort of members of the iron and steel industry to have the administration abandon its prewar appeasement policy toward Japan and curb the export of iron and steel scrap was made public today by A. C. Moore, president of the Chicago Railway Equipment company.

As the nation was engaged in a fevered search for scrap so that American industry can keep on turning out planes, ships, guns, and tanks, Moore disclosed that he and associates in the iron and steel industry sought in vain to have the flow of scrap exports halted.

The appeal of the industry was made repeatedly in 1940 to members of congress, the state department, and even to President Roosevelt. The appeals to congress brought nothing but an expression of sympathy from Sen. Scott W. Lucas [D., Ill.] who, at the time as a leading interventionist, was demanding that this nation do everything to curb totalitarian states.

At the state department a high official scoffed at the possibility of a shortage of scrap even tho a shortage then existed. The appeal to the White House met with silence. At that time the administration side-stepped appeals to curb oil and scrap exports to Japan on the theory such action was preventing the spread of the war to the Pacific.

Prior to 1933 scrap exports averaged about 300,000 tons a year. In the seven years from 1933 to 1940 scrap exports rose to more than 20 million tons, or about 2½ million tons a year. Of the total more than 10 million tons went to Japan.

In 1937 Moore appealed to the late Sen. James Hamilton Lewis [D., Ill.] urging him to support the bill then pending in the senate which proposed to license exports of steel and iron scrap. Moore explained that he was naturally interested in keeping the price of scrap down, but was also vitally interested in the welfare of the country.

Policy Held Unwise.

"It would seem that it is not part of wisdom for this country to make it too easy for Japan and certain other countries to take large amounts of available scrap to be used in connection with armament expansion, to their own advantage and to the disadvantage of the United States," Moore wrote Sen. Lewis on May 5, 1937.

In 1939 Moore pressed for control of scrap exports as did the independent steel and iron producers committee on scrap. Appeals were directed to a number of senators, among whom were Prentiss M. Brown [D., Mich.] and Lucas, on the premises that failure to limit exports was endangering national security and working economic hardships in this country.

Lucas submitted the appeal addressed to him to the state department. It was answered by Lynn R. Edminster, special assistant to the secretary of state.

State Department Not Interested.

Edminster said that the case of representatives of the independent steel and iron producers had been given careful consideration, but, "so far as I am aware, no agency of the government has considered the arguments advanced as indicating any national interest requiring such limitations of exports." This statement was made in answer to the committee's specific mention of danger in scrap exports to Japan.

Edminster further stated that the question of the future supply of scrap iron and steel in this country, raised by the independent producers, "is, of course, a matter of national interest," but added "objective study of the available facts has indicated no such drain on supplies as that claimed by the committee and no probable shortage of supplies in this country in the near future."

Edminster's letter was dated Jan. 12, 1940. Lucas sent the letter to Moore, indicating that he was satisfied with the state department's study of the situation.

When Lucas brushed off the Moore analysis of the weaknesses of the state department position, Moore addressed a stronger letter to the senator on April 29, 1940, expressing the hope congress would halt the administration's appeasement policy by limiting scrap exports.

"History refers to the fact that Nero fiddled while Rome burned," he wrote. "The modern version would seem to put the United States in the position of Rome, with congress acting as Nero.

"While I can understand some young and inexperienced neophyte in the department of state can go quite far afield in an effort to justify a position assumed for certain reasons, it is hard for me to understand congress doing so."

On July 26, 1940, Moore and other independent iron producers addressed an appeal to the White House. Independents appealing were the Chicago Railway Equipment company, the Franklin Steel works, Franklin, Pa.; Marion Malleable Iron works, Marion, Ind., and the Grand Rapids Malleable Iron works, Grand Rapids, Mich. The telegram read:

"We seriously protest the sale and exportation of 300,000 tons iron and steel scrap to Japan which will increase an already apparent shortage in the face of a national emergency and will impose an additional economic burden on iron and steel producers. Respectfully solicit your cooperation and approriate action."

Not until several months later did the administration move to curb scrap exports and the restrictions on exports did not become operative until well into 1941.

NATIONAL LEAGUE RACE ENDS TODAY; CARDS OR A TIE!

DODGERS' HOPE: VICTORY AND 2 ST. LOUIS JOLTS

Beat Phils, 8 to 3, to Hang On.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 26.—The Brooklyn Dodgers' six-run sixth inning against the poor Phils this afternoon threw the National league pennant race into the final day of the season for better or for worse. The big splurge broke a startling 2 to 2 tie and the Dodgers went on for their seventh straight victory, 8 to 3, without having to undergo the rigors of watching the Cubs-St. Louis score board. Those teams were idle because of weather.

This is the first time since 1908 the pennant has been decided in either league on the last day of the season. The American league race of 1908 was decided on the final day when the Tigers beat the White Sox. Had the Sox won the game they would have taken the flag. As it was they finished third, behind Cleveland. The 1908 National league campaign ended in a tie between the Cubs and Giants, Chicago winning the single playoff game, 1 to 2.

It was the 103d victory of the season for the Dodgers, who still trail the Cardinals by 1½ games but who can end the regular season in a tie with the St. Louisians if Kirby Higbe and his lately awakened pals can best Tommy Hughes and associate Phils tomorrow, providing the Cubs beat the Cardinals in both games of a double header in St. Louis. If any of the three scheduled games is rained out or otherwise canceled, the Cardinals will be the 1942 National league champions.

Each Tie an Old Record.

The last National league team to win 103 games prior to the Cards and the Dodgers this year was the Giants of 1912 and they won the pennant by a margin of 10 games over the second place Pirates. Since 1912 only four pennant winners have had 100 or more victories, the 1941 Dodgers with an even 100, the 1935 Cubs with the same total, the 1931 Cardinals and the 1913 Giants with totals of 101.

The Dodgers, in compiling their unfinished run of seven straight victories this week, have looked like the slashing crew that had a lead of 9½ games after the game in Wrigley field on Aug. 15, the day they excited Hi Bithorn into a frenzy of anger that caused him to throw a ball at Manager Leo Durocher.

But all the bullying that made the Dodgers one of the most hated teams in baseball has been absent. The desperate Dodgers, at long last, are contrite and tho it's not hard to find the reason, the mere fact that it has happened is worth something. If they dash to their homes thruout the land tomorrow they at least will go back with some recognition of being reclaimed gentlemen.

Today they started Buck Newsom, who upon his purchase from the Washington Senators on Aug. 31 wired Durocher congratulating him for so sagaciously buying pennant insurance. But today old Buck just didn't have it and it took a couple of other pitchers to finish the job.

The theft of second by Pete Reiser with two out in the first inning set up a score which went across when Dolph Camilli singled.

In the fourth inning Newsom sported a two run lead when Camilli scored at the head end of a triple steal. The bases had been loaded by two walks and a single by Mickey Owen. Camilli's theft of home caused

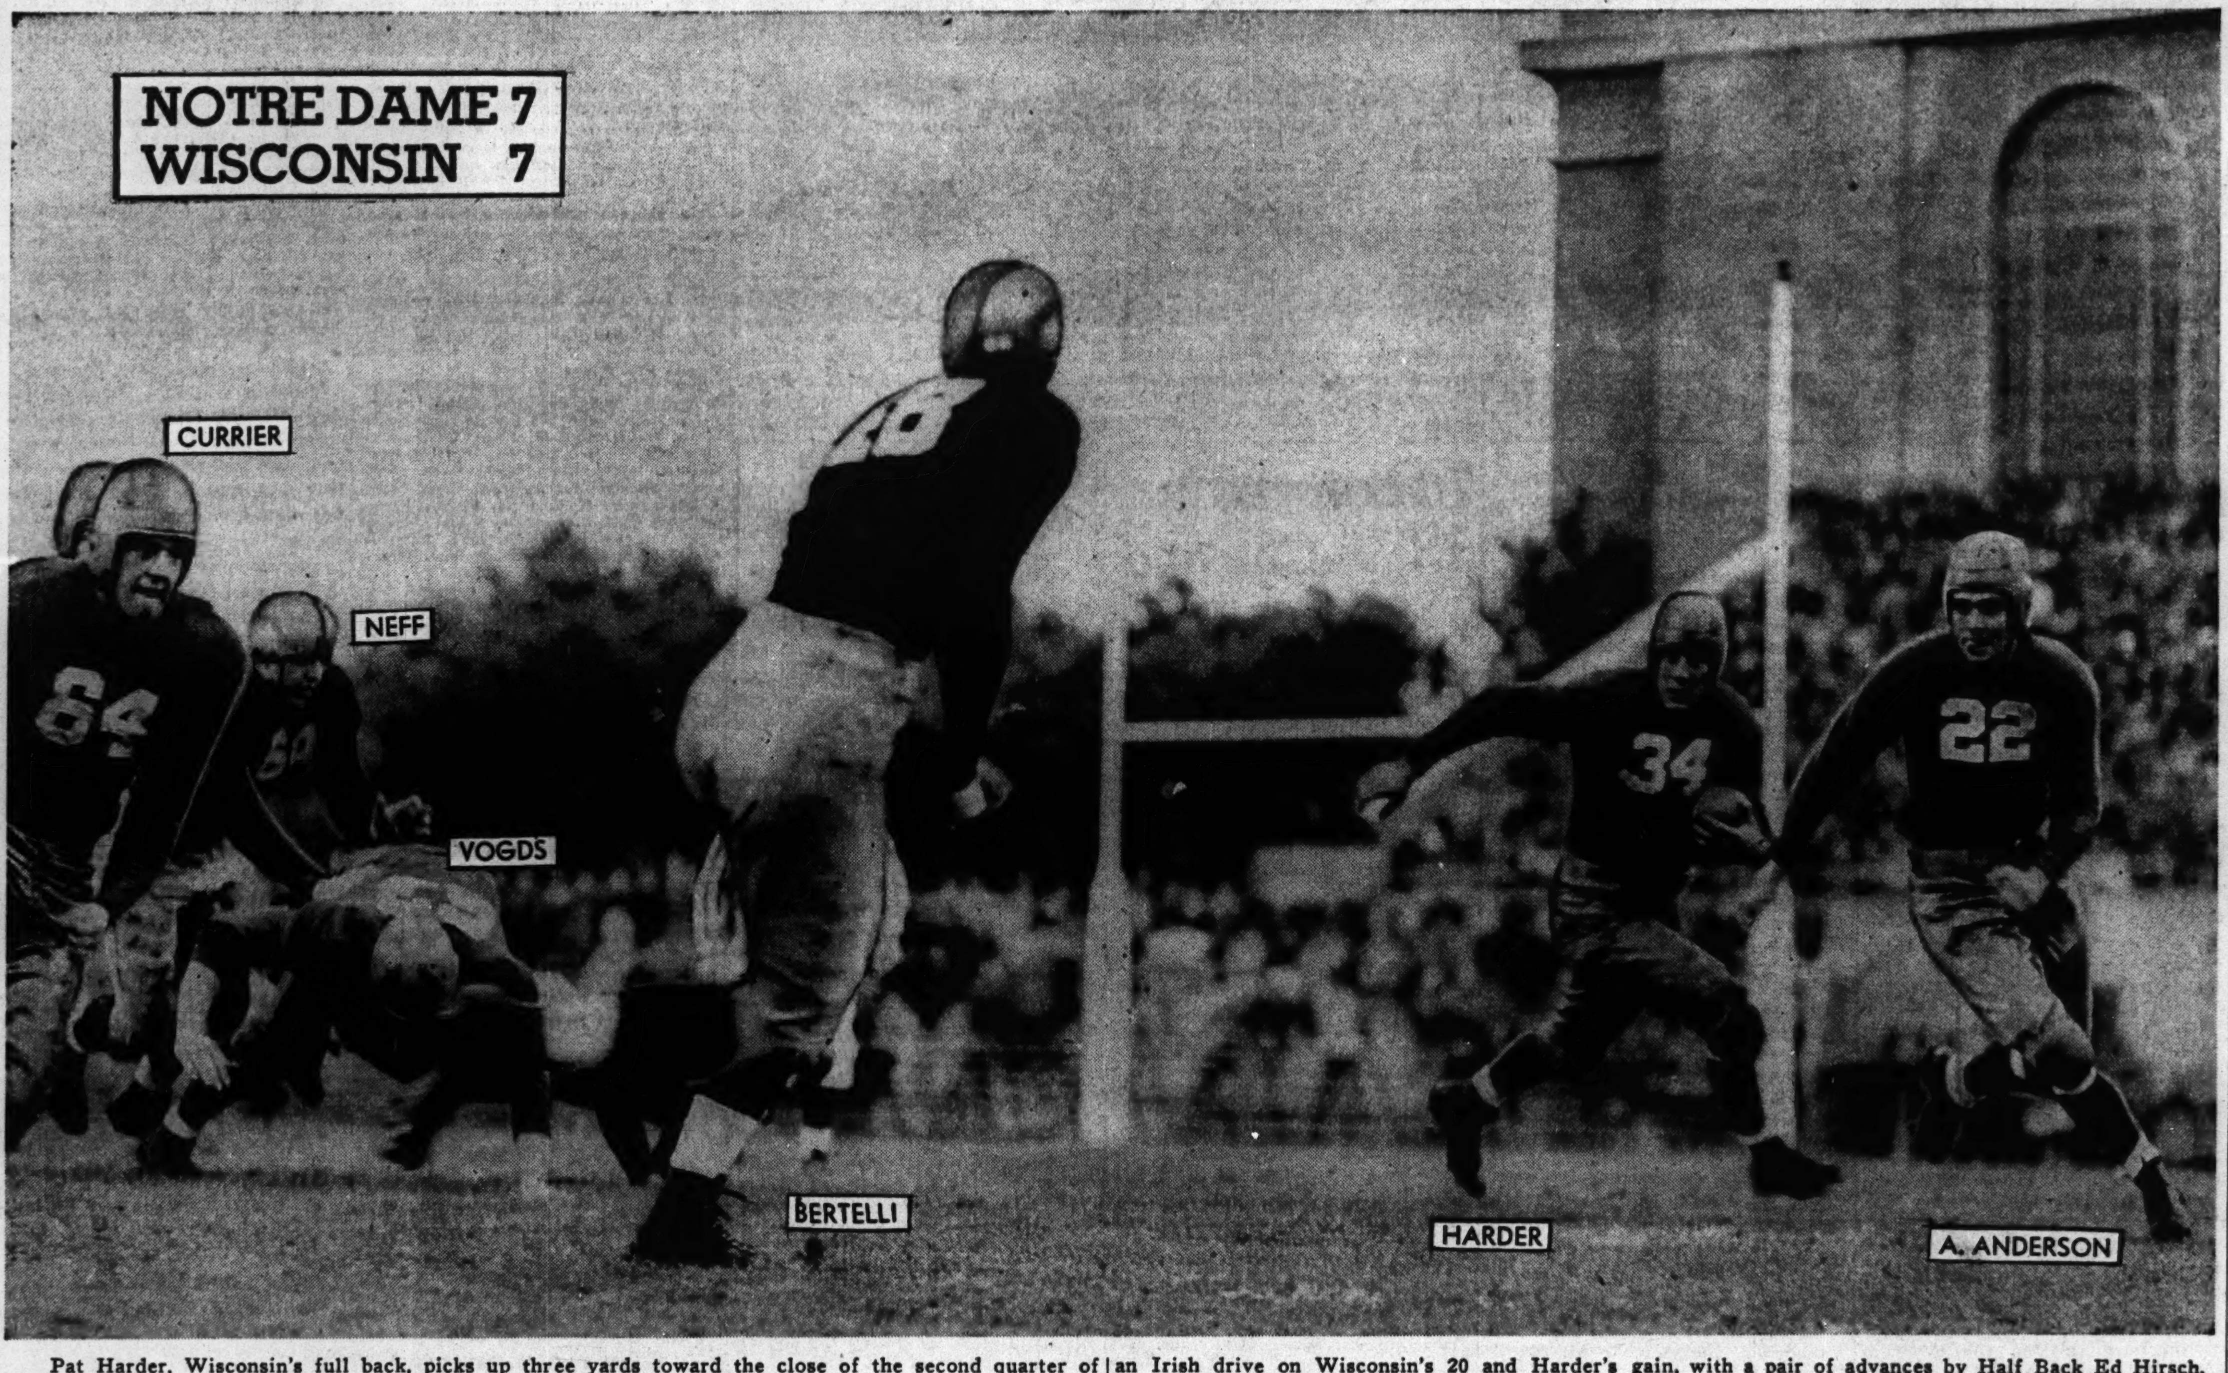
PAT HARDER GETS IN A LICK AGAINST THE IRISH



Pat Harder, Wisconsin's full back, picks up three yards toward the close of the second quarter of the Badgers' 7 to 7 tie game with Notre Dame in Madison yesterday. The Badgers had just stopped an Irish drive on Wisconsin's 20 and Harder's gain, with a pair of advances by Half Back Ed Hirsch, had the ball at midfield as the half ended. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 26.—Notre Dame's men rang up the curtain on a new era in offensive football for the Irish this afternoon in Camp Randall. But when Angelo Bertelli, forward passer of the new T formation, and his mates had finished their battle with Wisconsin's Badgers they could only show a 7 to 7 tie.

Thirty-two thousand sat in on the opening game of the season for the Irish. These thousands, who probably had come despairing of a Wisconsin victory and who rightly regarded the tie as an achievement, saw a determined Badger team yield ground but never quit. Wisconsin's determination paid dividends on nearly all of the enemy's mistakes.

On spirit alone the Badgers deserved their tie, but they backed up their enthusiasm with an alertness that recovered four of Notre Dame's five fumbles and with a defensive strategy that intercepted two of Bertelli's passes to end scoring threats.

Hirsch Scores for Badgers.

Wisconsin fought a defensive battle for nearly all of the second half. In this time the Irish marked up 11 of their 14 first downs, but the Badgers had the pressure on Notre Dame by their touchdown that came on the first Wisconsin play from scrimmage in the third quarter. This touchdown, a 35 yard dash off the left flank of the Notre Dame line by Sophomore Elroy Hirsch, startled the Irish from their lethargy. Notre Dame matched the maneuver in the same period, but a final assault in the last period that marked up five first downs in succession ended when Bertelli's pass was intercepted.

Hirsch and Pat Harder, Badger full back, were the heavy guns in Wisconsin's attack. Hirsch averaged more than eight yards for each time he carried the ball and his peak endeavor was his touchdown run. Wisconsin had kicked off to Notre Dame to start the second half. On fourth down, needing a yard on his own 19 yard line, Bertelli punted. Harder took the short kick and returned 18 yards to Notre Dame's 35.

Hirsch got the ball on a direct pass from center on the first play from scrimmage, started to his own right and turned on the speed to circle the left flank of Notre Dame's five man line. Harder leveled a perfect block on the secondary and Hirsch was away. He finished his sprint by outdistancing Bertelli, the safety, and he crossed the goal line without being touched. Harder followed up with a placement for the point with Ashley Anderson holding the ball.

Notre Dame stormed to the attack and so thoroly dominated the remainder of the third quarter that Wisconsin only had five more plays

Cards vs. Cubs in Pair; Single Victory Does It

Bucky Harris Quits

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26 (AP).—Stanley [Bucky] Harris, 45 year old manager of the Washington Senators, tonight turned in his resignation to President Clark Griffith after 13 years' service as pilot of the now seventh place American league team. He managed the Senators from 1924 thru 1928, and from 1935 to the present.

Concerning his future plans Harris said only that he was acting at this early date with the hope that if there is an opening in baseball for him he will be free to consider it. He declined to enlarge on the statement.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 26.—The weather man stepped into the National league pennant race today to keep the pace setting Cardinals, and the pursuing Dodgers as well, in suspense for another 24 hours. The weather man's contribution erased the budding champions' scheduled opener with the Cubs, bringing on a double header for tomorrow, the last day of the campaign.

Victory in either of these games will definitely elevate the Cardinals to a championship rating regardless of what the Brooklyn Dodgers might do in their season's final with the Phils. Two defeats for the Cards and a Brooklyn triumph would precipitate a tie. This, if necessary, will be taken care of in a play-off series of three games, one here and two in Brooklyn. In this event the start of the world series would be delayed a full week.

Moore, Hopp to Play.

When the Cards assemble at 1 o'clock tomorrow to seek out the one decision that will make them eligible to battle the mauling Yankees, they'll line up in the way that Manager Billy Southworth hopes to have them for the world series opener next Wednesday afternoon, granted there is no tie tomorrow evening.

Terry Moore, the agile center fielder, will go back to work, having recovered from a leg injury suffered almost two weeks ago. Southworth intended to make the shift today, giving no heed to the fact that Harry Walker, Moore's understudy, has pulled a heavy oar in the Cards' swift ride to the top. And Johnny Hopp, benched several days ago because of a cold, as well as a contrac-

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 26.—The University of Michigan eleven this afternoon required only one ingredient of the hoary Wolverine football recipe of a punt, a pass, and a prayer as they scuttled a hapless Great Lakes team, 9 to 0, before a slim crowd of 17,087.

They had little time for punting and less need for praying, these alert and efficient young Wolverines. But passing, with Sophomore Bob Chappius and Junior Cliff Wise at the trigger, they peppered the sailors with an aerial bombardment of 24 passes, 10 of them good for a net capture of 155 yards. Their sorties thru the air finally proved contagious, and the Bluejackets ultimately essayed 27 tosses, nine of them successful.

Consider that all of these doings were wrought without Thomas Kuzma, their number one man, and the suspicion that the 1942 Wolverines have it is further strengthened. Kuzma, injured Wednesday night in the last minute of scrimmage, hobbled to today's game on crutches. The victors admitted this evening that Thomas' line plunging ability would have come in right handy on at least two occasions within the first quarter, when they were halted within the sailors' 3 yard line.

Chappius, 19 year old sophomore from Toledo who is slated for the catcher's job on the Michigan nine next spring, proved he's quite a pitcher also. It was his pass to Paul White over the line in the 12th minute of the second quarter that produced the Michigan touchdown. A lateral and a forward engineered by Robert set up the third period spot for Jim Brieske, substitute center from Harbor Beach, Mich., to make a field goal from the Bluejackets' 18 yard line.

17 First Downs for Michigan.

A glance at the statistics illustrates how completely Michigan dominated the game. They outnumbered the sailors in first downs, 17 to 9, and in total yardage, 423 to 344. They outrushed Great Lakes' bulkier squad by 186 to 89. The Bluejackets appeared unable to untrack themselves after a quick kick by Wise shoved them down to their own 11 yard line early in the game. Bruce Smith, who never played a losing game against Michigan as an undergrad at Minnesota, found his interference frequently too slow for him. Smith and his former Gopher chum, Bob Sweiger, contributed most of the sailors' yardage.

Aside from Chappius and Wise, the entire Michigan working crew of 18 men played smart football thruout.

Rams Go Into Air to Defeat Purdue, 14 to 7

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 26.—Fordham beat Purdue, 14 to 7, in Ross-Ade stadium this afternoon on two long, magnificently executed forward passes, both thrown by Steve Filipowicz.

Frank Malinowski, racing at full speed toward the right hand corner of the field, took the first of these throws at full speed immediately after the start of the second quarter. The ball, which had been on the Boilermakers' 41 yard line, swished approximately 50 yards thru the air and Malinowski dragged it down just before he went into the end zone.

Filipowicz brought off the second of these successful pitches in the third quarter, after Purdue had tied the score at 7 to 7. The play started with the ball on Fordham's 25. Filipowicz angled off, looking for a receiver, while the Boilermaker forwards closed in upon him. At the last possible moment, he let it go.

Hearn Catches Deciding Pass.

Fifty yards down the field, James Hearn slipped in between two Purdue defense men who were reaching up to intercept the throw. Hearn got behind them and as the ball cleared their fingertips by an inch or two, he speared it. Then he was clear with no one between him and the goal. He dashed the remaining 35 yards for the touchdown that decided the game. On both occasions Joe Ososki kicked the extra points for Fordham.

Purdue's touchdown was scored in the last two minutes of the second quarter, the Boilermakers lashing out with a swift thrust and a long pass that advanced the ball 62 yards for a touchdown in two plays.

From his own 38 yard line, Ken Smock knifed thru to midfield. On the next play John Andretich whipped a pass to Fred Smerke, Boilermaker end, who took the ball in the clear and went the remaining 20 yards to the goal. Henry Stram kicked the extra point that brought the game to a deadlock as the half ended.

Purdue Keeps on Driving.

Those were the plays which decided what went up on the scoreboard but even tho the final tally went against Purdue, the Boilermakers' followers were well satisfied with the spirit of their new team. After Fordham had taken that 14 to 7 lead, the Purdue boys maintained their aggressive spirit and had their foes backed up against the goal line for the greater part of the last quarter, threatening at any moment to whip across the play that might save them from defeat.

At one time in this late offensive the Boilermakers made first down on

IOWA SEAHAWKS' AERIAL ATTACK TOO MUCH FOR WILDCAT ELEVEN

BY ARCH WARD.

Northwestern university's football forces learned yesterday that there isn't much opponents can do when United States flyers take to the air.

The Wildcats, who held their own while the battle was conducted on the ground, went down to defeat before the effective forward passing of the navy's preflight team from Iowa City in the opening game of their season in Dyche stadium. The score was 20 to 12.

The crowd of 22,000, one of the smallest turnouts at a Northwestern game in several years, was treated to one of the best played opening contests Evanston has known.

Defeat Is No Disgrace.

Northwestern lost no prestige in its eight point defeat by the team which the previous week overwhelmed Kansas, 61 to 0. The Wildcats' line repeatedly stymied the Cadets' rushes and their back field headliners proved as talented a group as the Purple has claimed in years.

The aviators presented the best running back of the game in Bill Schatzer, formerly of North Central college, but it was their expert aerial attack that bewildered Northwestern. Schatzer set up the Cadets' first touchdown by sprinting 63 yards to the Wildcats' 24 the first time he got his hands on the ball. He scored a moment later from the 1 yard line. The Iowans made their second and third touchdowns on forward passes. They completed six of their nine attempts.

It looked as if the team coached by Lieut. Col. Bernie Bierman was in for another scoring spree when Schatzer tallied in the first few minutes of the game on a drive that carried from the Cadets' 13 yard line. Fred Gage, formerly of Wisconsin, kicked the extra point to give the aviators a 7 to 0 lead.

Graham Stands Out.

Northwestern's line stiffened after recovering from the shock of their opponents' early attack and before the opening quarter ended the Wildcats were nearing a touchdown. The scoring opportunity came when Ed Hirsch, full back, recovered a fumble by Bob Swisher—who had relieved Dick Fisher in the Navy back field—on the Cadets' 28. Otto Graham, whose punting, passing and running made him the glittering all-around player of the day, sped around his right end for 5 yards, then passed to Clarence Hasse for a first down on the 15. Graham moved the ball to the 11 as the period ended.

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 25 [Special].—Master Tommy Farmer, the Iowa passing artist, led his Hawkeye mates to a 27 to 0 victory over Nebraska today which turned out to be the worst Husker licking in 11 years. It was also Iowa's first victory over Nebraska in nine games.

Farmer's sure fire passing produced three Iowa touchdowns and set up a fourth, which came on a 2 yard dash by Ted [Duke] Curran, sophomore half back who was the game's running star.

Nebraska hadn't suffered such a defeat since 1931 when Pittsburgh blasted the Huskers 40 to 0. It also was the worst defeat suffered at the hands of Iowa since 1899 when the score was 30 to 0.

The Hawkeyes and Huskers battled

BY EDWARD PRELL.

The two most dynamic coaches in the National Football league, George Halas and Curly Lambeau, whose teams usually have the most dynamite, will look across the field at each other this afternoon. The teams are the champion Chicago Bears and the Green Bay Packers, who usually are champions when the Bears aren't. The setting is the busy little city of Green Bay, which for 23 seasons has fanatically supported the Packers.

City stadium, a tidy brick structure off East Walnut aveuue a mile from the business district, may be filled to its capacity of 25,000. The Packers and their followers will be confident that there'll be a change made today. In 1940 and 1941 the Bears came up and knocked them off. Even Halas, who can get pessimistic at the slightest provocation, at least when reporters are around, declares his Bears, good as they are, can't keep on winning in Green Bay.

Bears Won Last Year, 25 to 17.

Last year the Bears whipped the Packers, 25 to 17, in one of the most thrilling games of the 47 played between the old rivals. Then the Packers came to Chicago and won, 16 to 14. When the schedule had run its course these were the only blots on their records. In a playoff in Wrigley field, which amounted to a league championship battle, the Bears won, 33 to 14. After trailing the Packers, 7 to 6, at the end of the first quarter, the Bears scored 24 points for a 30 to 7 halftime lead, then coasted.

The war has done things to the superb football casts of both coaches. Green Bay lost 19 from its 1941 team, 16 to the armed services. The Bears lost a dozen men, 10 to Uncle Sam. But their efficient scouting system brought in new talent from large and small towns alike. They had enough veterans left to fit in rookies. The Bears have continued rolling up victories in five exhibition games. The Packers came back after losing to Washington, 28 to 7, in a warmup, to chill the Western Army All-Stars, 36 to 21, with a great display of passing and running.

Since midsummer the rival strategists have been plotting defenses against each other's tricky attacks. The Bears never have quite found out how to keep Don Hutson from catching Cecil Isbell's passes. The Alabama stringbean caught 11 from the Purdue star via Texas against the soldiers in Milwaukee two weeks ago, proving just as agile as in other seasons. The Packers lost Clarke Hinkle, a great full back for a decade. But they picked up Ted Fritsch, a blond hurricane from Stevens Point, Wis., Teachers. Hinkle was great, but from Fritsch's performance in Milwaukee the Packers won't miss him too much. He gives the Wisconsin prides a powerful ground gaining threat.

The Bears took no chances that Sid Luckman, their conjurer of T formation plays, would not be in top condition for the big test. He was shipped home to rest before last week's game in Boston with the Eastern Army All-Stars. Tho Luckman had a painful injury it responded to treatment during last week's drill. Charley O'Rourke, Boston college's Sugar bowl hero of 1941, has shown in preseason games that the Bear attack will function smoothly under his direction when Luckman is sitting on the bench resting between touchdowns.

The record books tell an interesting story of this rivalry which dates back to 1920 when both Lambeau and Halas were playing coaches. That year the Bears won, 20 to 0. After 1941 it added up to 24 victories for the Halas-coached elevens to 19 for the Packers. Four ended in deadlocks. The Bears rolled up 541 points to the Packers' 450.

The prosperous Chicago Cardinals are in Pittsburgh today aiming to whip the Pittsburgh Steelers for their third straight league triumph. The Steelers, reinforced with Andy Tomasic of Temple, and Bill Dudley, triple threat star from the University of Virginia, gave Washington a scare last week before losing, 28 to 14. All of the Cards' three touchdowns in two league triumphs have come on touchdown passes by Bud Schwenk, rookie from Washington university of St. Louis.

Hirsch Piles Thru.

The Wildcats then went in for blitz tactics of their own. Schatzer punted to Graham who signaled for a fair catch on his 18. Mal Kutner, a starting end on this year's All-Star team, bumped him on the play and a 15 yard penalty moved the ball to the 33 yard line.

Nick Vodick, right half back, picked up 12 thru his left tackle and Graham's pass to Wallis clicked for a first down on the Navy's 40. On the next play Hirsch found an opening at center, sidestepped two secondary defenders and outsped his pursuers to the goal. Wallis' place kick again was blocked, but Northwestern was in front, 12 to 7.

It was at this point that Col. Bierman's men remembered that after all they were flyers, not infantry men, and on the first play after the kickoff, Fisher, whose performance today would have warmed the heart of Columbus, where he used to star for Ohio State, whipped a 30 yard pass to Kutner who ran to the goal unmolested. Gage converted and the Seahawks had regained the lead, 14 to 12.

Miss Touchdown by Yard.

The Cadets came within a yard of another touchdown in the second quarter, but the gun ended the half before they could push the ball over the line. Expert receiving by Kutner and Matt Bolger, formerly of Notre Dame, marked the Seahawks' third scoring threat.

The final touchdown was made in the last quarter on a downfield parade that began on the Cadets' 41. Fisher broke away for 34 yards to the Wildcats' 25. He went around his right end for 13 more, giving an impressive demonstration of tight rope walking as he hugged the side lines to the 12. He sneaked thru tackle for six more. Northwestern braced under its goal and tossed back the Cadets for a 6 yard loss on the next two downs. Bus Mertes then passed to Forest Evashevski, Tom Harmon's blocking mate at Michigan, for a touchdown. The attempt at conversion was blocked.

The Wildcats roared back to the Seahawk's 20 before they surrendered the ball and the game a few moments later.

WAKE FOREST IS BEATEN, 6-0, BY NORTH CAROLINA

Chapel Hill, N. C., Sept. 26 (AP).—Wake Forest's two year domination of the University of North Carolina ended today when Hugh Cox, a fleet footed back, scored the touchdown that gave the Tar Heels a 6 to 0 victory before more than 9,000.

The score came 15 seconds after the start of the fourth quarter. Cox and Bill Sigler, helped by the blocking of Joe Wright, Ralph Strayhorn, and Andy Karres, drove from the 28 yard line to the 7. Cox went around left end for the touchdown and Sigler's try for the extra point was blocked.

SOUTH CAROLINA HOLDS TENNESSEE TO SCORELESS TIE

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 26 (AP).—Tennessee's favored Volunteers shared a furious fourth quarter air battle with South Carolina's Gamecocks today in a scoreless tie. A crowd estimated at 14,000 saw the upset.

Gamecock first downs totaled six to the Vols' seven. The Vols racked up only 33 yards net gained to South Carolina's 30 in the first half.

Cifers initiated one drive which the Gamecocks stopped only four yards short of the goal line.

Hinkle to Lead Wailing Wall's Moan Tomorrow

The Wailing Wall, sounding board for the Saturday fortunes—good and bad—of college football coaches, alumni, and rooters for various colleges during the football season, will hold its first regular luncheon meeting of the season in the Bal Tabarin of the Sherman hotel tomorrow at noon. Motion pictures of the Great Lakes-Michigan game will high light the opening session. The luncheon meetings will continue on a men only basis.

Lieut. Paul D. [Tony] Hinkle, head football coach at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, will be on hand tomorrow for comments on the game yesterday between his service team and H. O. [Fritz] Crisler's University of Michigan eleven. Walter J. [Wally] Weber, Michigan freshman football coach, will give a running description of the films.

Eugene Lysen, Minnesota alumnus who has been identified with the Wailing Wall since its inception, is chairman of the group for 1942. Twenty-one colleges and universities are represented on the general committee. Reservations can be made in blocks of eight by calling the convention department of the hotel.

Spartas and Schwabens to Clash Today

BY OFFSIDE.

Matches which will bring together the champion Spartas and the Schwabens and the Vikings and the Slovaks feature today's soccer schedule which calls for all clubs in four divisions to see action. Both featured games will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Columbus, O., Sept. 26 [Special].—Ohio state opened its 1942 football season here today by defeating Fort Knox, Ky., 59 to 0, before 22,555 persons.

From the first few minutes of the game there was no doubt about the outcome. In seven plays Ohio State had scored its first touchdown and seven minutes later counted again, working the ball almost to another touchdown as the first quarter ended. In the first minute of the second quarter the score stood 19 to 0 in favor of the Buckeyes.

Indiana Next for Buckeyes.

Ohio State came thru the game without a major injury and will open its Western conference schedule here next Saturday against Indiana.

So superior were the Buckeyes both on offensive and defensive that the soldiers made but one first down, that as a result of a 9 yard pass. Ohio State netted 440 yards by rushing, to Fort Knox's minus 14. The Buckeyes completed four of their nine passes for 67 yards, while the soldiers made good one of seven tries for 9 yards.

Fekete Is Ohio State Star.

Starring for Ohio State were Regulars Gene Fekete, sophomore full back, and Les Horvath and Paul Sarringhaus at the halves. For the visitors, Corporal John Moody at full back and Sergt. Frank Marsili, half back, stood out as did F. J. Lopp, the captain, who played almost the entire game at right tackle.

The longest run of the game was contributed by Substitute Half Back Robert Frye, a sophomore, who trotted 55 yards thru left tackle, for a touchdown midway thru the third period. The surprise of the game was the strength shown by the third and fourth string Buckeye players. They coördinated like veterans and clicked off more yardage than the regulars while in the game.

Title Fight Is Off, Says Aid of Stimson

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26 (AP).—War department officials stated flatly tonight that the Joe Louis-Billy Conn fight will not be held.

"And that is final," said a spokesman representing Secretary of War Stimson.

"We have been informed that there seems to be some doubt as to whether or not the fight will be held," the official, who asked not to be quoted by name, said. "We understand some stories have been circulated saying that Secretary Stimson will reconsider the question.

"There will be no reconsideration of the question. Mr. Stimson's word was final," the official said.

The official had no comment to make in regard to stories from New York that all hands offered to stage the bout without pay.

STORER LEADS WAY IN DUKE'S 21 TO 0 TRIUMPH

Winston-Salem, N. C., Sept. 26 (AP).—Duke university's Rose bowl Blue Devils of last January opened the 1942 campaign today with a none too impressive 21 to 0 triumph over Davidson college in a Southern conference game before 2,500 spectators. Duke struck for two touchdowns in the second period and one in the third, but were three times piled up and held for downs in scoring territory.

The ball shot out of Johnny Frederick's hands on the Davidson 15 midway in the second quarter and on the next play Duke scored when Moffatt Storer went around left end. Storer set up the second touchdown three minutes later when he broke around left end and raced 48 yards to the Davidson right. Lone picked up 3 yards in two plays and Rute went over right tackle for the score.

Duke turned a Davidson fumble in midfield into a touchdown in the third period. Smith went 23 yards around end to the Davidson 15. Long finally shot thru left guard for 7 yards and the score. Bob Gnatt converted after each touchdown.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 26 [Special].—It was Minnesota power of a different kind here Saturday afternoon as the Gophers opened their 1942 grid season against Pittsburgh, but the scoreboard still read the same as the 1941 national and Big Nine champs smothered Pittsburgh, 50 to 7, in Memorial stadium.

The outclassed Panthers were just no competition for the husky Gophers who rolled to their 18th straight victory behind the solid, but sparkling, running of the newest Gopher star, Bill Daley.

Daley ran wild to score four times in the rampage along with throwing many timely blocks.

Gophers Use 47.

The Gophers piled in 47 men during the game, but the score kept going up even with the new men playing.

The victory may prove extremely costly, however, as Bill Garnaas, the signal caller and best pass catcher on the team, was carried off of the field in the third quarter with a bad knee injury.

The old Minnesota power down the middle wasn't there so much as Daley took the spotlight on his end runs and off tackle slants. But when it was called on Vic Kulbitski, converted center now at full back, met the need with some powerful blasting which is bound to improve as he gets more experience at the spot.

Pitt Ties Game.

Pittsburgh made a ball game of it for only five minutes. After Daley had scored on a 30 yard run with only three minutes gone and Garnaas had converted to make it 7 to 0, Tony Dimatteo, Pitt left half, electrified the crowd of 22,000 by taking the next kickoff and running straight down the middle for 98 yards and a touchdown. Walt West added the point to make it 7 to 7.

But that just about ended the ball game as the Gophers took over. Daley scored once more before the period ended, this time on a 56 yard run, and Herman Frickey, junior half back, added another on a buck thru the line from the 1. Garnaas made one kick and missed one to make it 20 to 7 at the quarter.

Kulbitski kicked a field goal from the Pitt 23 and Daley battered his way over from the 6 to bring the count to 29 to 7 at half time.

Frickey, Daley Star.

Frickey was the big gun in the next 67 yard march but Daley finished the punch by moving over from the 6 and it became 36 to 7 when Garnaas converted.

Dick Kelley, best of the sophomores, ran around right end for touchdown number six, going 23 yards. Bob Kula, who succeeded Kulbitski at full, kicked the point after having paced the 63 yard push with a nice run and lateral to Joe Silovich, another sophomore.

Silovich passed to Bob Sandberg, who replaced Garnaas, for the last touchdown and Silovich added the point to make the final score 50 to 7.

Punt Only Three Times.

Minnesota made 13 first downs; Pittsburgh, 7. The Gophers rolled to 406 yards by rushing to 173 by Pitt. So superior was the Gopher attack they were forced to kick but three times.

Dimatteo, Bill Dutton, and Jack Stettler were the Pitt backfield aces, with George Allshouse a power in the middle of the line. Norm Gestner stood out at end until injured in the third period.

MARYLAND'S "T" WINS, 34-0, OVER CONNECTICUT

College Park, Md., Sept. 26 (AP).—University of Maryland unveiled the tricky "T" formation for the first time today and dazzled the University of Connecticut for a 34 to 0 victory before 6,000. Clark Shaughnessy's team, spotty at times and brilliant at others, scored in every period, meanwhile holding Connecticut to a lone threat that ran out with time as the first half closed. Tommy Mont completed nine of 14 passes for a 215-yard total. Mont tossed three touchdown passes, set up the other two with aerials, and place kicked four of five tries for point.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 26 [Special].—Ray Eliot made an auspicious debut today as new coach of University of Illinois football when the Illini scored seven touchdowns to overwhelm University of South Dakota, 46 to 0.

Held back at the outset by a series of fumbles, the Illini struck their gait late in the first quarter and after that kept up the pace. Eliot used 41 players.

Illinois tried only about a dozen different plays, which were executed capably with excellent blocking to assist Tony Butkovich, Don Griffin, and Dick Good, who led the attack.

The Coyotes were unable to get an attack under way, earning only two first downs to 14 by Illinois. They had a bad break early when their big sophomore full back, Russell Fechter, was injured.

Illini Just Run and Run.

The Illini attempted only nine passes, which netted 20 yards, but they made the impressive total of 475 yards from scrimmage.

Sophomore Mike Kasap, 237 pound guard who was trained by Coach Butch Nowack at La Salle-Peru High school, stood out among the sophomores. Alex Agase, junior guard, and Elmer Engel, senior end, also were prominent.

The hard running Butkovich scored late in the first quarter after runs by he and Griffin had taken the ball to the 2 yard line. Then Good, who appeared at left half back in the second quarter, ran 38 yards for a touchdown and then threw to Buck Correll, who sped 22 yards to the Coyotes' goal. In the third period Griffin crossed up the Coyote defense when he cleverly lateraled to his former teammate at Fenger High school of Chicago, Ray Florek, who traveled 22 yards to score.

Illini Pile on Points.

Butkovich soon broke loose on another hard drive of 32 yards thru the vermillion jerseyed Coyotes. Capt. Jimmy Smith crossed over for the sixth touchdown and the seventh and last resulted when Good lateraled to Smith. There was no scoring in the fourth period when Illinois fourth stringers played.

Griffin carried the ball 19 times for 194 yards, an average of 10. Butkovich carried nine times for 75 yards, averaging 8½ yards. Good ran five times for 74 yards, an average of 14-plus. Statistics:

CORNELL HALTS LAFAYETTE, 20-16, AS RALLY FAILS

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP).—Cornell's new football machine almost stalled today but finally won over Lafayette, 20 to 16, as the Leopards put on a two touchdown fourth period rally. Staffed principally with juniors and sophomores, Cornell gained a 13 to 0 lead in the first half on Walter Kretz's 75 yard punt return and on a 39 yard pass play, Kretz to Fred Westphal, with Francis Paul converting one of the two tries.

Early in the third period Kretz broke thru left tackle for 65 yards and the third touchdown, with Paul again converting. From there on Lafayette set the pace, starting when John Svenson and Joe Braido chased Kretz into the end zone for a safety. The visitors recovered Capt. Roy Johnson's fumble on the Big Red 15 and scored two plays later, Acting Capt. Charles Nagle making the touchdown. Later Lafayette scored from the Cornell 46 yard line in six plays. Nagle completed one pass to McKnight for 34 yards to Cornell's 10 yard line and then punched it over in three times for the score.

BOWEN, FENGER, TAFT TAKE CITY LEAGUE OPENERS

Despite inclement weather three more City league teams entered their first conference victories of the season yesterday. In the south section, Bowen led by Johnny Booth, who broke away for 40 yards and a touchdown in a quarter back sneak in the second period, defeated South Shore, 6 to 0, at 83d street and Yates avenue.

South Shore threatened in the final quarter, advancing down the field to Bowen's 8 yard line before being repulsed.

Fenger Is Extended.

In another south section game, the heavily backed preseason favorite, Fenger High, squeezed out a 4 to 0 victory over Morgan Park on two automatic safeties, both of which were scored in the third quarter.

Taft opened its bid for the north section honors by defeating Schurz, 9 to 6, in Hanson Park stadium. Taft's touchdown came in the second period and was tallied by Right Half Back Johnson. Condan added the extra point. Schurz also scored in the second quarter, when Vic Schwall plunged over from the 1 yard line. Schwall missed on his attempted place kick.

Taft's final two points came in the fourth period when Schwall, attempting to pass from his 7 yard line, was tackled for a safety.

The games between Lake View and Roosevelt; Waller and Amundsen, postponed yesterday, will be played tomorrow.

Tulane Rolls Over USC for 27-13 Victory

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 26 (AP).—Southern California, generally rated in the preseason reckoning as one of the two best teams on the Pacific coast, took a sound beating today at the hands of Tulane, 27 to 13, before 45,000. Tulane exploded two quick touchdowns in the second period against a slow Trojan line that was outcharged most of the way, and continued the assault in the third quarter with two more.

Trojan Substitutes Score.

Trailing by 27 to 0 as the final period started, the Trojans yanked their regular back field and a new combination found a weakness in the Tulane line for two touchdowns. The Trojans' sophomore backs, Mickey McCardle and Hal Finney, did a lot of running, but most of it was lateral as the alert Tulane defense stalked their every move.

It was a most disappointing debut for the new Southern California coach, Jeff Cravath, who started fall practice with a tackle problem and finished today's game with it still on his hands.

STANFORD LOSES FIRST GAME.

Palo Alto, Cal., Sept. 26 (AP).—Washington State college scored a 6 to 0 victory over Stanford today in a game opening the Coast conference season. The Cougars put over a touchdown pass in the second period and protected the lead without difficulty.

CALIFORNIA WINS, 6-0.

Wheaton college opened its home football season yesterda, in Wheaton by defeating Mission House college, 21 to 0. Wheaton scored 15 points in the second quarter on drives of 83 and 24 yards and a safety. In the third period a pass, Sutherland to Scott, gave Wheaton six more points.

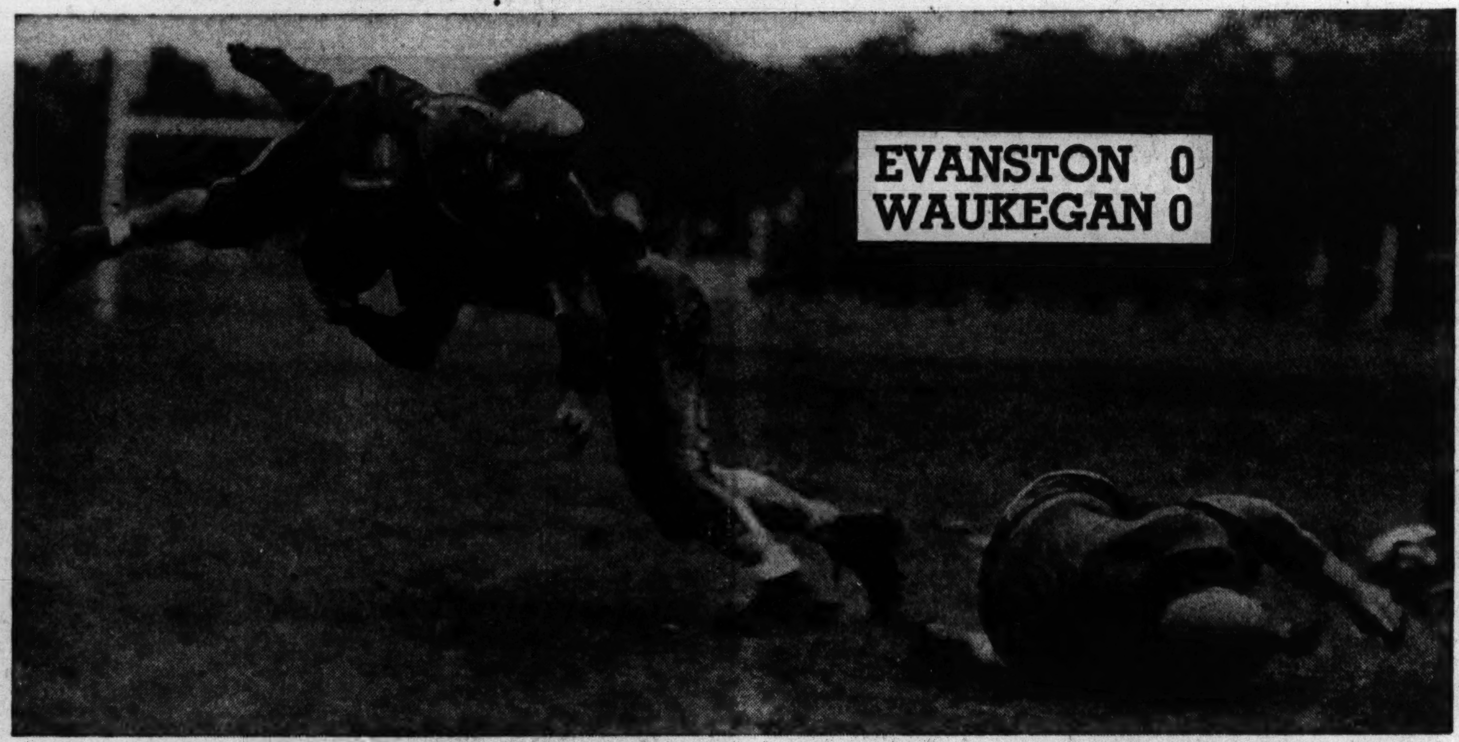
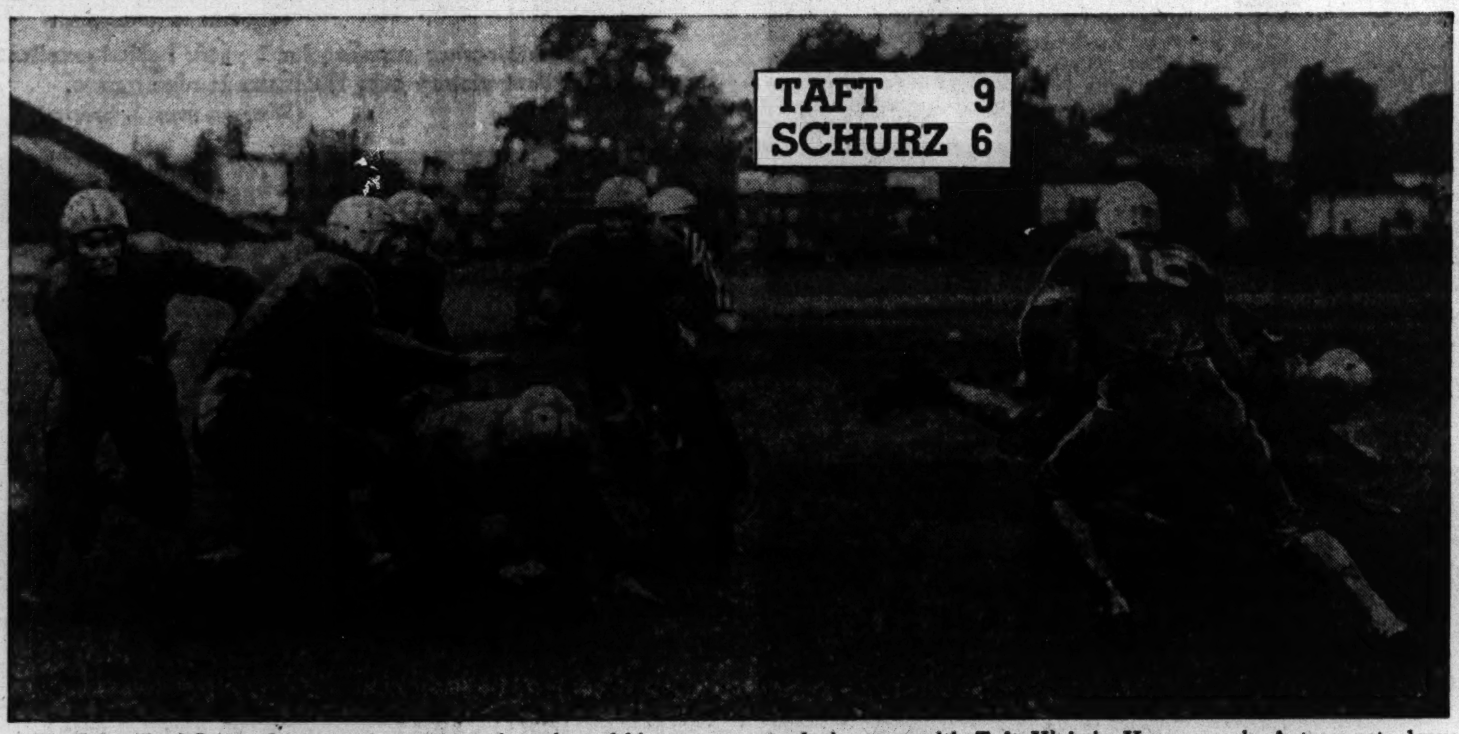
ONE GOES OVER, THE OTHER DOESN'T



For all to see, a Waukegan tackler spears Edward Johns, Evanston Township High school back, and tosses him in midair in yesterday's suburban league opener in Evanston between the rival teams. Surprised as tho he must have been, Johns held the ball after bouncing off the turf. Note one of his teammates on the ground. It was a hard fought scoreless tie.



Vic Schwall of Schurz has enough room to take a few of his teammates along with him on this touchdown trip in the second quarter of yesterday's game with Taft High in Hanson park. A teammate leaves his feet to throw an effective block. Schurz, however, lost, 9 to 6.

Waukegan, Evanston Play Scoreless Tie

Waukegan and Evanston High schools opened the Suburban league football race by playing to a scoreless tie on the Evanston field yesterday. La Grange Is Winner Over York, 14 to 0

La Grange opened the West Suburban league football race with a 14 to 0 victory over York High of Elmhurst on the latter's field yesterday. La Grange scored in the second quarter when Phil Spina passed to Bud Mason from the 15 yard line. The extra point was made by Tom Sandusky. The second touchdown was scored by Bob Wallner on a plunge from the 1 yard in the fourth quarter. He also added the extra point.

The Hinsdale at Downers Grove contest postponed because of weather will be played tomorrow afternoon. Glenbard and Maine will try to play off yesterday's postponement Tuesday. Lineups:

Oak Park, Suburban league 1941 football champions, and Crane Tech of the west section of the City league battled to a scoreless tie yesterday in Oak Park stadium. Oak Park recovered a Tech fumble in the second quarter on Crane's 25 yard line and rushed over a touchdown from the 1 yard line, but the ball was brought back and Oak Park penalized for being offside. In the final period, with only seconds to play, Oak Park tried a field goal, but the ball sailed wide of the goal posts. Lineups:

Illinois College Holds Macomb to Scoreless Tie

Jacksonville, Ill., Sept. 26 (AP).—Illinois college and Macomb Teachers battled to a scoreless tie here today. The only serious scoring threat was a 48 yard drive by Western to the 2 yard line in the third quarter.

MARQUETTE WINS OVER KANSAS IN OPENER, 14 TO 0

Lawrence, Kas., Sept. 26 [Special]. —Two touchdown advances, one from the enemy 48 yard line in the second quarter and the other from the foe's 39 yard marker in the third, enabled the Marquette university football team to win, 14 to 0, in its opener against the University of Kansas here today.

Two sophomore half backs, Johnny Strzykalski and Wayne Johnston, were the Marquette leaders in the two scoring drives. They and the Jayhawkers' passing star, Ray [Red] Evans, provided the day's principal thrills for a slim crowd of 2,006.

Strzykalski Scores.

A 37 yard punt return by Strzykalski on the first play of the second quarter put Marquette on the enemy 11 yard line. Full Back Carl Schuette and Strzykalski picked up 4 yards in two tries and Johnny's completed pass to End John Harrington added only 1 more yard, but on fourth down Strzykalski swept left end to score, and Quarter Back Bobby Dams made it 7 to 0 with a place kick.

Marquette's third quarter touchdown was made on a march from the enemy 39. Johnston's passes to Quarter Back Al Vogt, Harrington, and Half Back Ray Carlson put the ball in position, and Full Back Hal Eigner crashed over from the 1 yard line. Dams again converted to make it 14 to 0.

WOODLAND FOUR AND PARK RIDGE WILL PLAY TODAY

It will be father against son this afternoon when Claude Mackey and the Park Ridge polo team opposes his boy, Buster, and the Woodland Polo club at 3:30 o'clock on the field at River road and Devon avenue.

The Mackeys will be important cogs in two all-star machines, with Del Townsend, Verne Adrian, and Bill Schmidt as Claude's teammates for Park Ridge, and Rudy Maslek, Jerry Fordon, and Bobby Bond riding with Buster for Woodland.

This afternoon's game replaces the previously scheduled and twice rained out contest between Park Ridge and Detroit's Ivory Rangers. The Detroit team had a previous engagement for today in Milwaukee, but will return next Sunday to play Park Ridge in the Tri-State invitational tourney.

BADGERS SCORE FIRST IN 7 TO 7 TIE WITH IRISH

Irish March 57 Yards to Goal.

Notre Dame held Wisconsin, took the ball on Bob Baumann's punt, and marched 57 yards to tie the score. In this drive of six plays the Irish showed the skill and determination that carried them to an undefeated season last year.

Bertelli shot a long pass to Livingstone down the east side line for a gain of 26 yards. Livingstone had been the half back running wide to his right on the T lineup. Big Jim Mello, sophomore full back, then hit over the Badger right tackle for 9 yards.

Livingstone shot thru the line for a first down on the Badger 17. On a quick opening play Livingstone ripped off 9 yards and then lunged for a first down on Wisconsin's 3 yard line.

Mello went over for the touchdown on his second plunge as the Notre Dame linemen literally moved seven Badger men back over the goal. Bertelli's placekick tied the score.

Fumbles Hamper Notre Dame.

Notre Dame apparently had the game under control, but altho they accomplished six more first downs, five of which were linked together, two fumbles and an intercepted pass ended their three goalward surges.

Notre Dame had its best chance to win immediately after tying the score. Wisconsin received the kickoff and Hirsch's second down quick kick was partly blocked by Lou Rymkus. Rus Asbaugh recovered for the Irish on Wisconsin's 34. After a line thrust gained 4 yards Mello plowed off defensive left tackle and raced to the Badger 7 yard line where he fumbled when tackled. Mark Hoskins recovered for the Badgers on the 4 yard line.

After Baumann's kick out from behind his goal line Notre Dame started again on the Badger 39 yard strip. The attack carried into the early minutes of the final period and ended when Tom Miller fumbled on Wisconsin's 13. Hirsch recovered for the Badgers.

Bertelli's Pass Intercepted.

Notre Dame's final drive started on its 17 yard line. Livingstone and Mello did the ball carrying with occasional help from Bill Earley and the Irish rolled up five first downs in 17 plays. After reaching Wisconsin's 24, Mello was held to a yard and on second down Bertelli's pass to Murphy was intercepted by Ray on his own 16 yard strip.

Ray's pass interceptions were matched by the superlative defensive play of Evan Vogds and Ken Currier, Badger guards. Dave Schreiner and Bob Hanzlik were brilliant at defensive ends, but the star of the Badger forwards was Fred Negus, center, who backed up the six man line and seldom missed getting in on every tackle.

Wisconsin made only five substitutions and of these, Jim Regan relieved Hirsch with less than two minutes to play. Harder was particularly valuable at defensive half back and he recovered two of Notre Dame's three fumbles in the first half. Statistics:

Spotting the Pins

Fraternal bowling leagues are commonplace, but it is doubtful if a circuit ever has been organized embracing all the talent to be found in the West Side Knights of Columbus group, which does it pin toppling at the Cascade center. Young as the season is, the league already boasts a 3,118 series. It was fired by the Brownson team, which was paced by Joe Sinke's 244, 275, 227—746. Point is that the league's president, Harry Cronin, and secretary, Elmer O'Brien, are so proud they're willing to have their representatives meet any other fraternal organization or club—preferably for a service men's benefit. Bill Hargadon at Cascade will handle any responses to the challenge.

Les Kilbourne with series of 674 and 700 and John Small with 670 and 688 lead the Windy City major, which shoots its third week of matches tomorrow night. Budweisers, defending champions, are out front with five won and one lost and have fired a 3,198 series and 1,107 game—both highs. Tomorrow's schedule:

Ace Fasteners vs. Bee-Vacs; J. M. Kralovecs vs. Budweisers; O'Keefe Coals vs. Nonebetter Ice Creams; Meister Braus vs. Soper Bros.; Mineralites vs. Cascades; John Tomans vs. Jos. L. Gills; Vogel Bros. vs. T. W. Samuels; Reichman Jewelers vs. Furman Funerals.

A new entry among Chicago's bowling establishments is the 12 lane Glenlake bowl, at 6107-11 Broadway. University council, K. of C., opened the bowl's league play last week, followed by two other circuits. Open play is being emphasized by Manager Bob Dwyer, however. . . . Jimmy Ryan's Prima Pilseners set up something of a mark for other teams to shot at when they fired 1,111 in the major league at the new Stack & Ryan bowl. Jimmy got 627, Eddie Zaller, 621, and Alan Jones, 668. . . . Ray Lauterman's 672 was the standout in the Stack & Ryan Commercial. . . . Those De-Icers you read about in the comics?—well, they can bowl, too. A squad so named leads the Aircraft & Diesel girls' league at Lawrence bowl with three out of three.

Sixteen teams, including the Classic league's ten, are booked in to night's Sunday sweepstakes, to be held at Marigold Arcade, 828 West Grace street. The Thompson Restaurants will try for their third straight victory, having won with 2,912 and 3,070 the previous two Sundays. Tonight's schedule:

7 p. m.—Playdium, Monarch Beer, Thompson Restaurants, Prima Pilseners, Joseph L. Gills, Baby Ruths, Mineralites, Washington Shirts. 9 o'clock—Schlitz, Budweiser, United States Beer, Meister Brau, Ambrosia, Chapin & Gore, Pogue Bourbons, and Edelweiss Beer.

Budweiser Girls set a high early season standard in the Congress Ladies' Classic by shooting 2,802 to win three games from the Newarts. The Logan Square Buicks were runners-up with 2,770, good for two over the Goransons. Women's scores:

Johnny Small would gladly settle for an average of four games he shot recently—each one 240. . . . Business is good but proprietors all over Chicago are battling the pinboy problem. The contract recently signed gives the boys the highest wages of all time here, yet few proprietors can be certain they'll have a full crew when a league is scheduled. . . . Tuesday is spectators' night at Pla-Mor, for that's when the women's major, including WIBC all-events Champion Nina Van Camp, shoots. . . . Gold Crown Beers and Schambergers, co-leaders of the North End Traveling league, meet strong opposition in the Baby Ruths and C. & G.'s tomorrow night. The schedule:

Gold Crowns vs. Baby Ruths at Irving Park, 7 p. m.; Gold Coast Budweisers at Stack & Ryan Bowl, 9 p. m.; Pepsi-Colas vs. Pogues at De Luxe, 7 p. m.; Hunters vs. Keeley Beers at Kaadland, 7 p. m.; Chapin & Gores vs. Schambergers at Northtown, 7 p. m.

Scores sometimes run into fancy figures in junior leagues, too. Take the 2,847 fired by Jim's Old Style Inn in Bowling Lanes' Tuesday circuit. Harry Engleson helped it along with 671, the season's second high for the circuit. Elmer Neddo fired the league's top game for the year, 268. And in the Friday junior at the same house Russ Arens' five got 2,716 after taking off with 819.

For Two Pins, Mr. Miller Would —

Ray Miller set a record for Stevenson Major league bowlers to shoot at when he fired a 298 game. He left the No. 4 and 7 on his 12th ball. . . . Ed Brosius and his Isbell five hit 3,000 on the nose to the Atlas Pragers' 2,947, but the Atlas team took two in the Hyde Park Major. . . . Domestic Linens were high for the league by 206 pins when they hit 2,947 for a triple over McFall's Tavern—which had 2,741—in the South Shore Major. . . . The Stewards and the Kings each swept their opening series, with the Wardens and Deacons, respectively, in the Scottish Rite league.

Adams-Wabash center is to hold its second annual All-American individual tournament, five games across ten alleys, Nov. 7-8 and 14-15. Entries close Oct. 25. . . . Lawrence Bowl's honor rolls for men shooting 250 or over and women 200 or over are nearly full. They've been up since 1940. Eighteen places remain on the women's roll, 35 on the men's. Pins will be given the high shooters this season. . . . Old Pogues gave the Fritzi Scheffs a three game drubbing in the Samuelson Major, while the Wallace Coals were stopped twice by Waggoner Service. This week's schedule:

ALLEY OWNERS WANT PARTS IN ALL-STAR SHOW

Apply for Right to Hold Tourney Eliminations.

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

Chicago bowling proprietors who have agreed to underwrite the cost of the 12 alleys to be installed in the Auditorium Theater, otherwise known as Service Men's Center No. 2, are likewise making it plain that they wish to have a part in the All-Star tournament that is to provide the formal opening for those lanes.

The bowling alley owners received notice just yesterday that the houses in which the Chicago eliminations for the All-Star event would be held were to be named Thursday and within a few hours three had notified Secretary Math Luecker of the proprietors' association that they wished to hold eliminations in their establishments. The three were the operators of Gold Coast recreation, 1213 North Clark street; Hyde Park recreations, Lake Park avenue, and Windy City Bowling association, Cicero avenue.

Bids Must Be in Wednesday.

All bids must be in by midnight Wednesday and the association will determine the establishments in which the eliminations are to take place at its regular meeting Thursday. Each bowler participating then must bowl in the elimination nearest his home.

The deadline for entries in the Chicago eliminations is midnight of Oct. 10, meaning that the bowlers averaging 190 and over must have their blanks filled out and in Luecker's hands in less than two weeks. As bowlers are notoriously slow about filing entries, the bulk of them is expected in the closing days. An entry blank appears in this edition of THE TRIBUNE.

The Chicago eliminations, which are to produce eight men for the All-Star tournament, will be held Oct. 17-18, 24-25, and Oct. 31-Nov. 1. They will be a series of round robins patterned after the recent masters tournament, with eight men to a group. It is anticipated that they will draw largely such shooters as make up the Classic league teams, the fellows whose names are in the bowling news from week to week, but they're intended as well for every sanctioned bowler who can show a 190 or better average in a league last season.

Among Chicago's 500,000 bowlers are many high average men who have seen the stars compete and have been tempted to remark they could knock those fellows off. The Chicago eliminations—and, if they survive those, the All-Star tournament itself—are their opportunity as the national match game title is at the end of the All-Star rainbow. It's up for any bowler in any part of the United States who is willing to enter an elimination in his section and has a sufficiently high average to do so. In Chicago that average is 190, but in cities of 250,000 to 500,000 it's 180 and in cities under 250,000 it's 175.

The All-Star event, under sponsorship of the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors Association of America, will open Dec. 5 and run nine afternoons and nights.

Chicago proprietors who are to pay for those alleys yesterday ran the amount of their contributions to $11,440, tho the subscriptions aren't due until Oct. 1. Those who contributed yesterday were.

WEATHER STOPS SOX AND BROWNS; PLAY TWO TODAY

The White Sox and Browns had no chance to get together in Comiskey park yesterday on account of the weather, and their scheduled single game was wiped off the books. Today the two teams will try to play two games, which will wind up their labors for 1942.

The Browns lead in the season's competition, with 13 victories and 8 losses. The Sox will try to end the season with a flourish after winning three straight at Cleveland over the Indians. The Browns have third place clinched in the American league. Today's double header is scheduled to start at 1:30 o'clock.

Leonard Perme, the Sox southpaw rookie from Waterloo who lost his big league debut last week to the Athletics, 1 to 0, will pitch one of today's games. In the other one, Johnny Humphries will go after his 14th victory. He has lost 12. Denny Galehouse and John Niggeling will start for the Browns.

Manager Jim Dykes of the Sox said last night that Joe Kuhel, who is suffering from a hernia, will not play in the city series with the Cubs which opens Wednesday in Wrigley field. Don Kolloway will continue at first base.

De Kalb Wins, 13-0, Over Whitewater Teachers

De Kalb, Ill., Sept. 26 (AP).—The De Kalb Teachers opened their season by defeating Whitewater Teachers, 13 to 0, on a slippery field today. De Kalb scored early in the second quarter after a 35 yard march. Rushforth plunged over from the 2 yard line but the kick for the extra point was wide. Late in the same quarter a 65 yard drive was climaxed by Henigan's pass to Krieshbaum for 14 yards and a touchdown. Davis placekicked the extra point. De Kalb made 11 first downs, Whitewater three.

W-G-N Will Broadcast Cards-Cubs Games Today

The Chicago Cubs-St. Louis Cardinals double header will be broadcast by W-G-N this afternoon. The first game will start at 1 o'clock.

GIANTS DEFEAT BRAVES; LOSE 2D ON FORFEIT

Child Guests Swarm on Field, Stop Game.

New York, Sept. 26 (AP).—Baseball's bit in the scrap metal drive backfired at the Polo grounds today when the youngsters who got into the ball park with scrap contributions broke up a ball game and gave the Boston Braves a forfeit victory over the Giants.

The Giants won the opener, 6 to 4, with the help of Mel Ott's 30th homer of the season, Johnny Mize's 26th and the steady eight hit pitching of Carl Hubbell. Then the New Yorkers sailed along with a 5 to 2 edge halfway thru the eighth inning of the second game.

However, without any warning, the kids who had brought scrap as their price of admission, swarmed out of the stands and all over the field. An appeal was made to clear the diamond, but it did no good. So, at the umpires' request, the game was ended right there and was forfeited to Boston by the usual 9-0 forfeit score.

All hitting, fielding and pitching records compiled in the forfeited game will be added to the National league averages. The last forfeited game in the National league was June 6, 1937, when Philadelphia forfeited the second game of a double header to St. Louis.

Ernie Lombardi and Tommy Holmes had hit homers for all the Boston runs in the opener, Holmes' wallop coming with two aboard.

The long range guns were shut down on both sides in the final, but Bob Carpenter served up a six hitter to keep the Braves under control all the way. Scores:

Indians Beat Tigers, 3-0, Sew Up Tie for 4th

Cleveland, Sept. 26 (AP).—Mel Harder and Les Fleming combined today to give Cleveland a 3 to 0 shutout over Detroit and assure at least a tie with the Tigers for fourth place. Harder pitched a seven hitter, permitting only one blow in the last four innings.

Hank Edwards started the Cleveland half of the seventh with a single to right and after Ken Keltner sacrificed, Detroit strategy called for a pass to Jeff Heath. Fleming then tripled to League park's right field corner, scoring two runs, and came in himself on Ray Mack's single.

Only 1,000 customers turned out to see the game. The clubs tangle in a final contest tomorrow. A Detroit victory would mean duplication of last year's fourth-place tie between the same two teams. Score:

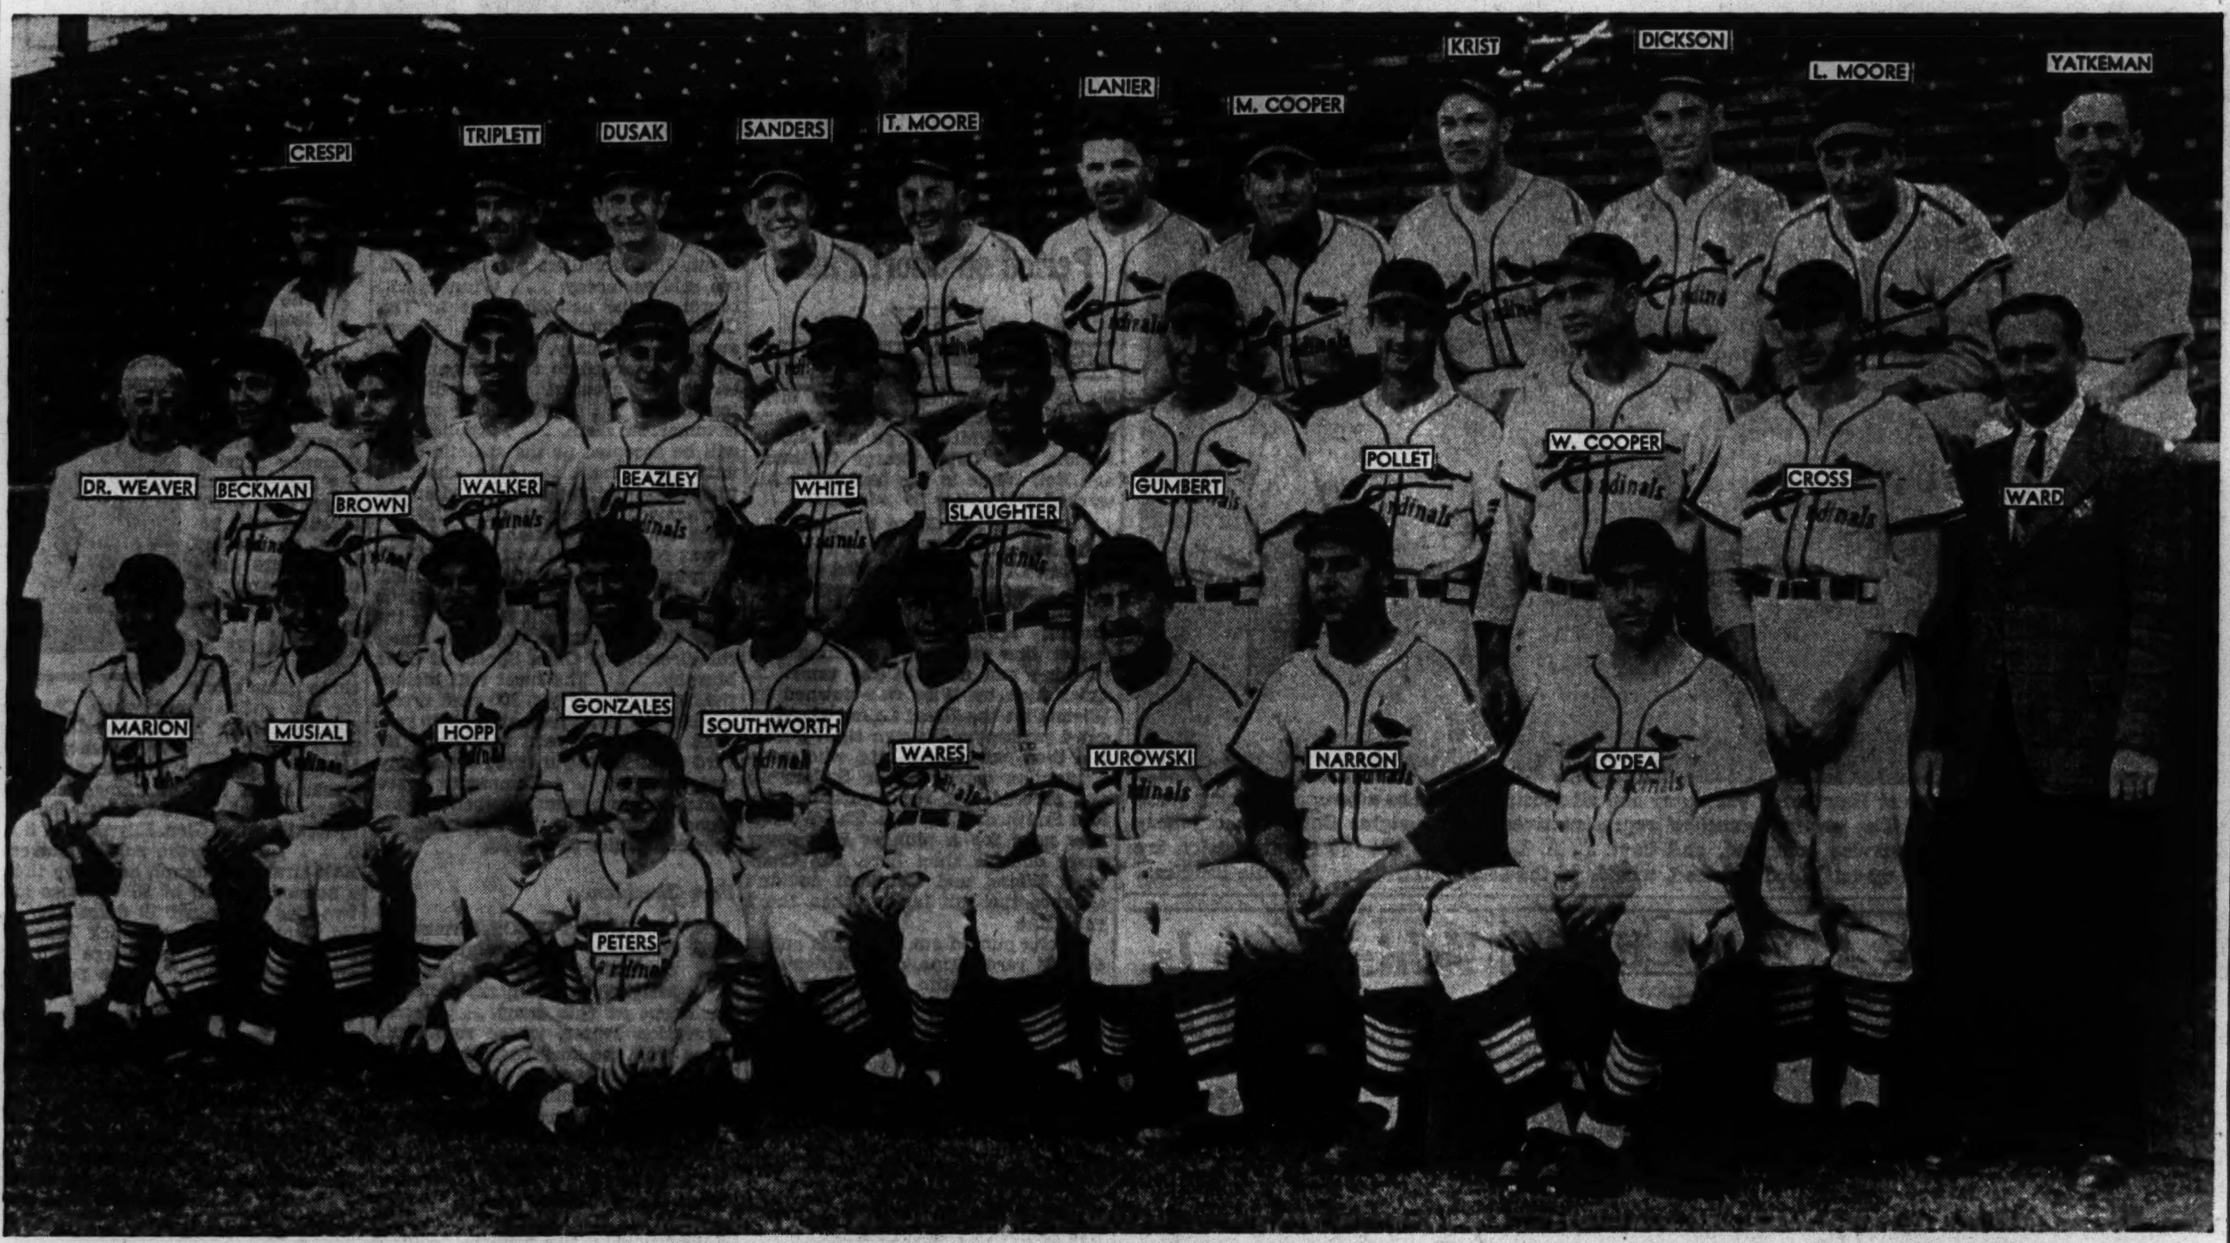
LYONS, VETERAN END, READY TO JOIN BADGERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 26.—Pat Lyons, veteran Wisconsin end, who was prevented from reporting because of heavy schedule of classes, will join the Badger squad Monday, it was announced today by Coach Harry Stuhldreher.

Lyons has shifted his afternoon classes. His presence will strengthen the Badgers at the flanks, where at least one end has had to play 60 minutes of each contest.

HEIRS APPARENT TO THE NATIONAL LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP



Here are the heirs apparent to the National league championship, tho the battle has not been won. The Brooklyn Dodgers continue to hang on to their slender pennant hopes and a three game playoff may be necessary. Included with the Cardinal players are Dr. H. J. Weaver, trainer; Leo P. Ward, traveling secretary; Butch Yatkeman, clubhouse attendant, and Arthur Peters, bat boy. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Cards vs. Cubs in Pair; Single Victory Does It

tion of his batting average, will be restored to first base.

Cooper's Ready—If Needed.

Southworth also will shoot the works tomorrow with his pitchers if it's necessary. He's figuring on Ernie White and Max Lanier, both lefties, but this plan will be junked if the Cards fail to land that needed victory in the first game. If the pinch continues into the final battle, Southworth will turn to one of his two big winners—Morton Cooper the 22-game man, or Johnny Beazley, the freshman who has corraled 20.

Jim Wilson, the Cub boss who would much prefer to arrange things for the impending city series with the White Sox, will have to come up with what he considers his two best bets. Old Lon Warneke will do the sniping in the first game and if he succeeds in that job, the second argument will be taken over by Claude Passeau, who last Sunday wielded the whitewash brush on the first placers. If Warneke loses, Passeau will labor only a few innings, just enough to prime him for the Sox next Wednesday.

Grays to Play Monarchs for Title Today

Leroy [Satchel] Paige has been given the pitching assignment by the Kansas City Monarchs for today's Negro world series game with the Washington Homestead Grays in Wrigley field. It will be the veteran star's first world series start in his 18 year career.

The Monarchs have won three games and need a victory today for the title. The Grays won last Sunday but a protest on the use of four players from other teams in the National league was allowed and the game was ruled out. The Monarchs have won the championship of the American league the last four years.

To sew up the title this afternoon, Paige will have to mow down a batting order which includes such stars as Josh Gibson, outstanding Negro home run hitter of all time, Buck Leonard, Manager Vic Harris, and Howard Easterling. Ray Brown, a right hander, will pitch for the Grays. The game will start at 2:30. The lineups:

DARTMOUTH IS 17 TO 6 WINNER OVER HOLY CROSS

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 26 [Special].—Sparkling sprints by Meryll Frost, coupled with flashes of effective blocking at opportune moments, gave Dartmouth a 17 to 6 victory over Holy Cross here today.

Dartmouth scored its first touchdown in the second quarter when Frost raced around right end for 19 yards. Ray Wolfe counted the other touchdown for Dartmouth late in the third quarter, after Holy Cross had scored earlier in the period, when he swept around left end for the final six yards.

The remaining three points were scored when Kast kicked a field goal from the 8 yard line just before the close of the third quarter.

Mickey Livingston to kick himself out of the game. Ben Warren took his place and in the fifth started a tying process with a homer. Later in the inning Newsom gave way to Larry French and a single by Danny Litwhiler off French drove home the tying run.

Camilli, who has been brilliant in his efforts to keep the faint hopes of the Dodgers alive this week, continued to be the big man in the aforesaid romping sixth. Augie Galan opened it with a double to center and stopped at third on Owen's line single to right field. With the count three balls and one strike, Peewee Reese tripled to right, scoring Galan and Owen.

Sam Nahen replaced Rube Melton and Bill Herman flied to Lloyd Waner, Reese scoring. French singled to right and stopped at second on Dixie Walker's single to left. Arky Vaughan walked, loading the bases, but Reiser forced French at the plate, Danny Murtaugh to Warren. Camilli doubled to right, scoring Walker, Vaughan, and Reiser. Here Johnny Podgajny replaced Nahem. Galan, up the second time in the inning, grounded out to Nick Etten.

Even before the victory today, Traveling Secretary John McDonald posted a notice in the clubhouse announcing without qualification that the Dodgers will leave tomorrow night at 10:30 from the North Philadelphia station for Monday night's playoff game in St. Louis.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP).—The American association's Columbus Red Birds, behind George [Red] Munger's seven hit hurling, took a 2 to 1 lead in the Little World Series tonight by defeating the International Syracuse Chiefs, 4 to 3. The game was loosely played under adverse weather conditions, before 6,550 fans. Score:

Austin, Tex., Sept. 26 (AP).—Three powerful Texas teams ploughed the Kansas Aggies deep under the soil of Memorial stadium today, the 64 to 0 score standing as a warning to any of Texas' challengers this season.

Texas has at least three fine back fields, a line that hasn't been pierced and plenty of reserves.

Playing before 15,000—about the same size crowd that saw the season opener last year—Texas scored one touchdown in the first period, three in the second, two in the third, and four in the final.

Two of the day's most spectacular plays came in the closing minutes of the game. Travis Raven scampered 60 yards for Texas' ninth score, and another reserve, Coy Warren, dashed thru the Aggies another 60 for the final touchdown.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 26 (AP).—Harvey Johnson's field goal today gave William & Mary's Indians their second victory in 17 years over the United States naval academy's inexperienced eleven, 3 to 0, before an opening day crowd of 12,000.

Johnson's goal six minutes after the opening kick-off capped the Indians' only offensive thrust in a bruising contest that was all navy in every other way. It came after William & Mary rolled up two of its five first downs on a drive from the navy 45 to the 13 where the midshipmen held. Standing on the 20-yard line from a difficult angle, Johnson swung his foot against the ball and there was never any doubt about where it was going. It went high into the air and soared about 30 feet above the cross bar, splitting the uprights.

Navy tried to come back time and time again, amassing 14 first downs and starting several long distance drives, but the Middies just didn't have the spark.

COLUMBIA, GOVERNALI WIN.

New York, Sept. 26 (AP).—Columbia rolled to an easy 33 to 0 opening day victory over Fort Monmouth in an Army Emergency Relief contest at Baker field this afternoon. The Lions' victory came mainly on the passing of Co-Capt. Paul Governali, who threw five touchdown passes. Allen Dekdekun, freshman half back, added another touchdown on a 4 yard plunge in the closing minutes.

NORTH CENTRAL TRIUMPHS OVER ELMHURST, 16-0

Don Jacobs and Sam Ontko contributed a touchdown apiece as the North Central college eleven beat Elmhurst college, 16 to 0, in Elmhurst yesterday. The touchdowns were scored in the first and third periods and North Central picked up four more points on safeties scored in the first and fourth.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 26 [Special].—The impetuous William Hillenbrand, living up to advance billings, started Indiana's offensive the minute he got his hands on the ball today and the Hoosier touchdowns continued until a new memorial stadium record had been achieved at the expense of Butler. The score was 53 to 0.

The Hoosiers bettered their stadium mark of 38 points scored against Centre college here in 1936 and became the first Indiana eleven, coached by Bo McMillin, to register more than six touchdowns. Meanwhile the Hoosiers were winning their first season opener since 1937, when they defeated the Prayin' Colonels again, 12 to 0.

Score Twice a Period.

Running over the outmanned Bulldogs, who registered only four first downs by rushing and two by penalties, the Hoosiers scored a pair of touchdowns in each of the four periods, gave one away by a fumble on the goal line and were looking at the Butler door when the gun sounded.

Nver across center field the Bulldogs were unable to cope with the Indiana offensive, despite the fact Indiana used only half a dozen different plays and tossed only four passes.

Hillenbrand, playing little more than half of the game, ran the first Butler punt back 60 yards for a touchdown, and passed to Bob Cowan, sophomore right half back, for another. After that Hillenbrand, who calls the plays, saw to it his teammates shared the scoring when he was in the ball game.

Cowan, Dewar Carry On.

While Hillenbrand was on the bench, Cowan and another sophomore, Jimmie Dewar, left half back from Oak Park, Ill., put on a show for the 7,000 spectators. Cowan displayed some of the speed that enabled him to better Tom Harmon's High school scoring mark in counting a pair of touchdowns. He made 44 yards on three trips, one of which was his 20 yard touchdown run.

on even terms thru a scoreless first quarter but Iowa completely dominated play from then on and gained momentum as the game progressed. The Huskers threatened only once, in the first period, and were held on the defensive mainly by the passing of Farmer and the explosive running of Curran, former Quincy, Ill., prep star.

Farmer, sturdy Cedar Rapids senior, chucked 18 passes and connected on seven of them for a total of 210 yards and the aforementioned three touchdowns. Curran, who earlier this season had been dropped from the squad because he showed an "improper attitude," gained nearly 8 yards every time he carried the ball. He piled up 93 yards in 12 trials.

The Hawks struck out with only three minutes of play remaining in the half. After a punt exchange, Iowa took over on the Nebraska 48. A six yard run by Farmer and a Husker penalty put the Hawks on the 37. On the next play Curran got in the open, grabbed Farmer's pass on the 23, reversed his field and outraced three Husker backs over the goal.

Farmer came back with his aerials to set up the second touchdown late in the third quarter. The drive started on the Iowa 38. Curran set the club in motion by scampering 13 yards and then collaborated with Full Back Chuck Uknes to make another first down on the 35. A moment later Uknes cracked thru to the 20, after which Farmer started throwing. His first pass failed but on the next try he connected with Curran on the 10 and the little redhead fought his way to the 3. Uknes tried the line before Curran struck between tackle and en dto score standing up.

An interception of Howard Debus' pass by End Bill Parker put Iowa in motion again as the fourth quarter started. Curran and Uknes bucked to midfield before a holding penalty set Iowa back on its own 35. This time End Bill Burkett raced straight down the middle, grabbed Farmer's toss on the 27, and kept on moving for another score.

Fumble Leads to Score.

Late in the period Dale Bradley, All-Big Six half back last year, fumbled one of Farmer's punts and Burkett pounced on the ball on the Husker 31 yard line. Trickey made it a first down on the 21 before Farmer started the aerial circus again. Two long passes failed and then, with 45 seconds of play remaining, Farmer shot one to Trickey on the 3 and he stepped over.

It was Nebraska's first game of the season and Iowa's second, the Hawks having defeated Washington university of St. Louis last Saturday, 26 to 7.

WOODFORD LAD WINS HANDICAP AT HAWTHORNE

Mrs. Emil Denemark, who has been rebuilding her stable with many fine prospects during the last couple of months, earned a sizable dividend on one, Woodford Lad, which captured yesterday's $5,000 added Hawthorne juvenile handicap, the stake which featured the Stickney track's army-navy relief day program.

Making his second start in the silks of the west side sportswoman, Woodford Lad put a stop to the winning streak of Eddie [Rochester] Anderson's Burnt Cork, at four straight. Burnt Cork was the the favorite with the crowd of more than 10,000, but the best he could do was to finish second, a length and a half behind. Carbonate, another horse which Mrs. Denemark claimed recently, finished third in the six furlongs dash.

Woodford Lad, which was taken out of a race at Hawthorne less than two weeks ago from A. B. Gay for $2,500, won back more than his claiming price, for his end of the stake amounted to $4,430.

Woodford Lad was as game as they come, for he never could get more than a head in front of the hard-pressing Burnt Cork until about a sixteenth from the finish line. There he began to draw away and concluded a length and a half in advance of the favorite.

The winner carried 110 pounds and covered the six furlongs in 1:15 over the sloppy going. Jess Higley was astride the winner. The entry was worth $16.60 straight, $4.60 place, and $5.60 to show. Burnt Cork paid $3.60 place and $3.40 show.

A 45 piece band from the Great Lakes naval training station was on hand to lend color to the Army and Navy Relief day proceedings. Capt. E. A. Lofquist of the 9th Naval district and Col. Walter R. Jeffery of the Army Emergency relief represented the services.

The day's handle was $546,000 and track officials said they would announce tomorrow the amount to be turned over to the army and navy relief funds.

the 10 yard line. Then came two heartbreaking efforts that lost 5 yards. These were followed by a crisp pass from Smock to Smerke that landed the ball on the 3 and put new life in the Boilermaker hopes. But on fourth down a reverse failed and the ball went over to Fordham.

Even after Fordham punted out, there was still a spark in the Purdue chances for Smock returned the kick to the Rams' 23. This opportunity was lost when Brock fumbled on the next play but hope was revived promptly when Smerke recovered a Fordham fumble on the 35. From here a new offensive carried to the Fordham 10, but on fourth down with five to go, Tony Berto was rushed and thrown for an eleven yard loss.

Boilermakers Never Quit.

These late misfortunes which led to nothing in the way of scoring are related to bring out the fact that the 1942 Boilermakers don't know when they're licked. They kept on playing hard football in an interesting style right up to the finish, keeping alive the chance that at any instant they'd bring off a play that would change the entire status of the game.

The Purdue line, which had been a source of much foreboding on the part of Boilermaker supporters, came through valiantly. Only once did Filipowicz break away for a sizable gain, but this came at a rather unfortunate time. He got loose for 30 yards to the Purdue 41 and from there, immediately afterwards, he pitched the first of his scoring passes. Aside from that one substantial gain, Fordham was unable to advance consistently on the ground.

ARMY AND NAVY DAY AT RACES

GREAT LAKES TIES PIER.

Trailing three matches to none, boxers from Great Lakes rallied to tie Navy Pier, three matches to three, Friday night at Great Lakes.

Whirlaway Is Defeated by Bolingbroke

New York, Sept. 26 (AP).—Whirlaway was repulsed for a second straight Saturday today, but it took an American record breaking burst of speed by Townsend B. Martin's Bolingbroke to shunt the turf's leading money winner to second place in the Manhattan handicap at Belmont park. It was one of three track records shattered during the day.

Bolingbroke, carrying only 115 pounds to the 132 saddled on Whirlaway, ran the mile and a half in 2:27 3-5 and rewarded his backers $31.30 for $2.

The old American mark was set by the South American horse, Sorteado, at 2:28 2-5 while winning the Manhattan in 1939.

Today's winner earned a check for $8,175 while the $2,000 Whirlaway got brought his total earnings to $493,136.

DEPAUW BEATEN, 25 TO 0, BY TRICKY ROCHESTER TEAM

Greencastle, Ind., Sept. 26 (AP).—The University of Rochester of Rochester, N. Y., unleased a tricky succession of spinners and reverses today to defeat DePauw university, 25 to 0.

Full back Dick Kramer scored early in the second quarter, plunging from the 1 yard line after a DePauw pass had been intercepted. Jim Secrest, left half, scored twice in the second period, first with a pass from Howard Brown and again on a 17 yard reverse. After a scoreless third quarter, Kramer made the final touchdown on a 3 yard power dive from the 3 yard line. Dick Secrest, Yellowjacket quarter back, made the conversion by placement.

Prokop, a 192 pound Cleveland product, engineered both Tech's touchdowns. He threw a 30 yard pass to end McHugh for the first score in the first quarter.

Auburn attempted to punt out from behind its own goal in the third period, but Helm broke thru to block the kick for a safety.

Pro Golfers' Tour of South America Canceled

New York, Sept. 26 (AP).—Fred Corcoran, PGA tournament manager, said today that the proposed South American tour of four leading pro golfers, on which they were scheduled to leave Oct. 3, is off because of transportation difficulties. The four players—Open Champion Craig Wood, Ed Dudley, Chick Harbert and Jimmy Demaret—were to compete in the Argentine open, in which Demaret would have been defending champion.

Six of them qualified as iron men, including Linemen Al Wistert, Merv Pregulman, Phil Sharpe and Julius Franks, and Capt. George Ceithaml and Bob Wiese in the backfield. All worked the entire 60 minutes.

Pitching and More Pitching.

On the offensive side in the first quarter, Great Lakes handled the ball three times and Mucha punted thrice. Michigan took complete charge by tactfully ignoring the bulky Bluejacket line and just pitching and pitching and more of the same. A quick kick by Wise was downed by Wistert on the Great Lakes' 11. Wise got 4 yards over his own right guard, and then passed to White, who made a juggling catch on the Sailors' 25 and proceeded to the 9 yard line before Smith downed him. The Wolverines need for a plunger was never more obvious than here, for Chappius, Wiese, and Ceithaml couldn't advance the ball farther than the 1 yard line.

Mucha punted out of bounds on his own 24 yard stripe, and Mchigan began another futile march, climaxed by its failure to take advantage of a first-down-and-one-to-go situation. Robinson got seven yards back of Wistert's charge from left tackle, and then on fourth down, Chappius fired a pass to Sharpe, good for first down on the Bluejackets' 11. Wiese drove to the 1 yard line in two plays for a first down, but he and Chappius were stopped in three thrusts at the center and a Chappius fourth down pass was stopped by Radovich.

Quick Kick by McCullough.

Hugh McCullough, former Oklahoma and Chicago Cardinals' star, got away a quick kick in the final seconds of the first period. The ball went out of bounds on the Michigan 8, which proved the starting point of the Wolverine touchdown march. Chappius stepped back for an ostensible punt, but was soon found sauntering down the field, almost by himself, until Pete Kmetovic had to scramble to stop him on the 50 yard line. Chappius then passed to Madar for a 6 yard gain and Frank Wardley swept around the defensive right end for a 14 yard profit. Chappius' pass to Sharpe brought the ball to the Sailors' 19. Wiese eventually made it a first down, and a Great Lakes offside moved it up to the 13. A Chappius-Ceithaml pass made first down on the sailors' 3 yard mark and then Bob flipped one over the line to White for the touchdown. Pregulman's placement attempt was wide.

After the kickoff, three would-be passes by Bruce Smith went for naught, and he finally punted to Robinson on the Michigan 33. The former Gopher back then intercepted a Michigan pass and returned to the Wolverine 39. He gave the crowd a pair of thrills with two passes intended for Carl Mulleneaux, both frustrated as he leaped for the ball at the goal line. The half ended with Michigan driving into Bluejacket territory again.

Brieske Boots Field Goal.

The Great Lakes offense was thwarted after the third quarter kickoff, and Mucha punted out of bounds on his own 41. Chappius lined a lateral to White, who advanced 5 yards, and Wiese made it a first down on the sailors' 29. Madar made a neat catch of Chappius' pass on the Bluejackets' 6. Chappius got 2 yards, White was stopped and Chappius' pass over the goal line failed. Here Brieske entered the game and with Robinson teeing the ball up for him, booted a field goal from the Great Lakes' 18 yard mark.

A grand return of Pregulman's kickoff by Sweiger, who wasn't halted until he had reached his own 43, set the stage for the sailors' first march worthy of mention.

NEWS FROM ARMY AND NAVY POSTS

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Navy Pier.

SAILORS and marines will compete in an amateur boxing tournament under auspices of the pier athletic department in the new gymnasium and drill hall adjacent to the station, starting Oct. 5, Lieut. Jim McMillen, pier sports officer, said yesterday. . . . Winners will represent the establishment in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves event in February. . . . A trophy will be awarded to the company entering the greatest number of contestants. . . . Deadline for entires is tomorrow noon. . . . Applications will be accepted at the athletic office until that time. . . . Also scheduled to open on Oct. 5 will be a swimming tournament between members of the south and north sections of the pier, it was reported by Lieut. [J. G.] J. D. Murphy, assistant to Lieut. McMillen. . . . The event which will continue until next March will be held in the Lake Shore Athletic club pool under the direction of Chief Specialist G. C. Murphy. . . . The meet will include the 50 yard free style, 100 yard breast stroke, 200 yard free style, 100 yard back stroke, 100 yard free style, 150 yard medley, 200 yard free style relay, and diving. . . . Companies represented in first round competition are troop groups 1 to 28, inclusive, except companies 25 and 27.

Fort Sheridan.

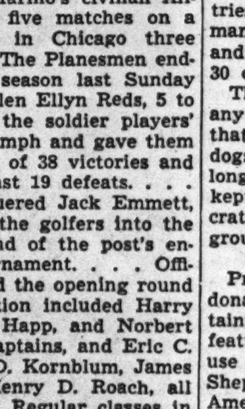
PVT. JIMMY PIERCE, former professional middleweight boxer from West Allis, Wis., has been assigned to a military police detachment at this camp. . . . Recruit Reception center, whose representatives won the fort basketball championship last year, is assembling its team for the opening of the new season within the next few weeks. . . . Four hundred admission tickets for the soldiers of this reservation have been reserved to Lake Forest college's home football games, 100 for each of the four contests. . . . Lake Forest starts the Illinois Intercollegiate conference race against Wheaton on its home grounds next Saturday. . . . The post's six bowling alleys have been opened to enlisted men and their friends Sunday afternoons and evenings, an innovation which no doubt will prove popular.

Great Lakes.

BARRACKS 606 forged to the front in Service school basketball competition last week when it vanquished barracks 504 by a score of 34 to 20. . . . William A. Cook, 606 club's guard, accounted for 10 points. . . . In a previous game the 606 quintet defeated barracks 508, 36 to 24. . . . Russell Anderson and Robert Moll were the big cogs for the 606 team in this conquest, scoring 11 and 10 points, respectively. . . . James Van Orsdel, erstwhile basketball guard at Miami university, recently became the ninth member of last winter's highly successful Bluejacket cage delegation to receive an ensign's commission and, like his predecessors, soon will be sent to sea. . . . Ernie Andres, who played on the station's basketball and baseball teams, and Miss Doris Mann of Toledo, O., were to be married yesterday in Chicago. . . . Another new crop of amateur boxers has sprung up on the station, including Owen Davis, middleweight of company 726; Ted Crimmins, featherweight and brother of Bernie Crimmins, football guard at Notre Dame last year, and George Newbeck. . . . Lieut. Comm. Charles W. Davis, assistant drill and physical education officer, has ordered 84 sets of 16 ounce training gloves from Sammy Frager, Chicago boxing equipment manufacturer and featherweight title holder of the Great Lakes in the last war, to be used in mass boxing drills.

Chanute Field.

THE bowling season will open at the field alleys Oct. 5. . . . At least 30 teams of this army air force's technical training command school will participate in league competition. . . . Norman Hanson of Hollandale, Wis., who paced all league keglers at Chanute during the 1941-'42 campaign with a 184 average, will return to defend his honors as a color bearer of one of the delegations. . . . By rolling 633 he posted the high three game score for the entire event when Chanute defeated Hank Marino's civilian All-Stars in one of five matches on a benefit program in Chicago three weeks ago. . . . The Planesmen ended the baseball season last Sunday by beating the Glen Ellyn Reds, 5 to 0. . . . It was the soldier players' 10th straight triumph and gave them a season's record of 38 victories and two ties as against 19 defeats. . . . Ed Ganske conquered Jack Emmett, 5 and 4, to lead the golfers into the quarter-final round of the post's enlisted men's tournament. . . . Officers who survived the opening round of their competition included Harry W. Beck, C. W. Happ, and Norbert A. Murphy, all captains, and Eric C. Nicholls, Henry D. Kornblum, James R. Knipe, and Henry D. Roach, all lieutenants. . . . Regular classes in fencing are to be conducted soon by Mac Garret, head foil coach at the University of Illinois before entering the service.



Norman Hanson.

Camp Grant.

THE Warrior gridders, whose scheduled game with Lake Forest college yesterday was canceled at the request of the college authorities, are preparing for Saturday's contest with De Kalb Teachers in Bell bowl. . . . The camp's public relations men who covered the game between the Warriors and Wisconsin in Madison on Sept. 19 unanimously voted that sophomore Elroy Hirsch, slippery hipped Badger back, would be one of the most spectacular players in the Western conference this season. . . . Battling Williams, whose correct name is Charles Goldstein and who is a member of the Veteran Boxers' Association of Illinois, has been ordered to report for duty at this establishment Thursday. . . . His group of inductees will include Henry Cullen, hard hitting southpay flyweight of 15 years ago. . . . Frankie Frisco, also an alumnus of the Veteran Boxers' association, has been transferred to Fort McClellan, Ala. . . . Company C, 32d battalion, has won the camp 16 inch softball championship. . . . Joe Rogalski, who once pitched for Toledo, Buffalo, and the Detroit Tigers, was the ace hurler of the Warrior baseball team. . . . He won nine decisions and lost three. . . . Joe Skurski, who served as playing manager of the squad, batted .382 to win batting honors. . . . Corp. Harold Solomon, who is assigned to the sports department in the public relations office, is back on the job after enjoying a well earned two weeks' furlough.

CYO AND BBYO SOFTBALL TEAMS TO CLASH TODAY

Softball rivalry will be initiated between the Catholic Youth organization and the BBYO when the championship teams in the prep, junior and senior divisions of both organizations, play today in the first annual CYO-BBYO softball tournament. The games, starting at 2 o'clock, will be played in Weber park, 3000 North Ashland avenue. The meet is sponsored by the CYO, Jack Elder, athletic director, announced. Hereafter each organization will alternate in sponsoring the event.

The first game today will bring together Blessed Agnes of the CYO and Four Fins of the BBYO for the prep honors. This game will start at 2 o'clock. At 3 o'clock the junior winners—St. Stanislaus of B. & M. of the CYO and the Question Marks of the BBYO will take the field, and at 4 o'clock St. Vitus of CYO and Garden City of the BBYO will clash.

Obedience Class Has 83 Entries.

BY BEN MARKLAND.

Chicagoland kennel owners, on a lean schedule of dog shows because of wartime cancelations, will have one of their few chances to exhibit their best canines in the Shoreland Kennel club show to be held today, six miles southwest of Lake Forest. The site of the exhibit will be the Harold Florsheim estate at the junction of highway 22 and Saunders road near the village of Halfday.

489 Dogs to Compete.

A total of 489 dogs of 56 breeds will compete, including 83 trained dogs which will vie for awards in obedience. Bulldogs lead the list with 41 entries, followed by cocker spaniels and German shepherds with 37 entries each, Great Danes and Dobermann-Pinschers, each with 31 entries, and English springer spaniels with 30 competitors.

The show will be different from any ever before held in this area in that there will be no benching. The dogs, instead of being exhibited on long rows of wooden benches, will be kept by their owners in shipping crates or on leash on the show grounds.

Proceeds of the show will be donated to the Fort Sheridan entertainment fund and two of the show features are based on the wartime use of dogs. Members of the German Shepherd Dog Training Club of America will exhibit trained shepherds which have been taught the fundamental routines necessary for dogs recruited for service with the army. Ralph Bergstrom, training instructor for this group of amateur trainers, will wear a heavily padded suit to exhibit a shepherd which has been taught to attack.

Dogs for Defense, the organization of dog owners which has been assigned the task of recruiting thousands of dogs for army use, will have a display booth at the show, with officers of the organization available to answer any questions about the new movement.

HARVARD LOSES TO CROWLEY'S CADETS, 13-0

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 26 (AP).—One of the greenest teams to represent Harvard in more than a decade surprised a slim opening day crowd of 15,000 by holding the Chapel Hill, N. C., navy preflight's star-studded football forces to a 13 to 0 victory.

Altho Lieut. Comm. Jim Crowley used eight of his own recent high-powered Fordham Rams, his Cloudbusters were held scoreless until the inexperienced Crimsonites, minus all of last year's regulars, began to crack under the terrific pressure in the final period.

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 26 (AP).—Bob Perina turned in Princeton's victory margin over a strong invading Lakehurst Naval Air station team as he ran and passed Old Nassau to a 20 to 6 victory. Perina figured in all three scoring plays for the Tigers, running 28 yards around end for the first touchdown and later connecting with two long passes.

Millions Want Cars, Radios, Utilities.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26 (AP).—If peace came tomorrow Americans immediately would want 5 billion dollars' worth of automobiles, washing machines, radios, refrigerators, improvements, and new homes—and, what's more, would have the money.

The United States Chamber of Commerce made this estimate today, explaining it was based on a national survey of family needs which would be revised from time to time to provide an up to date forecast of the postwar market.

The chamber said its first survey showed that if the war ended now the demand during the first six months would include 2,100,000 automobiles, 1,500,000 mechanical refrigerators, 1,200,000 washing machines, 1,200,000 radios, 1,200,000 items of furniture, 900,000 electric irons, 600,000 sewing machines, and 900,000 new houses.

Plan Home Improvements.

In addition 3.4 out of every 10 home owners plan to make repairs and improvements and 6 of every 10 farmers plan to build or repair outbuildings, barns, fences, and tenant houses.

The survey showed that 56 per cent of the families now are saving money and that 19 per cent are saving for a specific postwar purchase.

However, the chamber reported that most people are not counting on paying cash. It added that "instalment buying will continue to be a major factor in large consumer purchases."

Questioned about their views on the postwar employment outlook, about 50 per cent expressed the belief there would be plenty of jobs, while 38 per cent looked for serious unemployment. Seventeen per cent of the people believed that the country's factories would be able to supply consumer demand within the first six months after the war.

Split on Purchasing Power.

As for purchasing power, 30 per cent of the families said they were better off than before the war, 27 per cent said they were not as well off, and 43 per cent saw no change.

Postwar economics also had the attention of a government agency. The National Resources Planning board issued an agenda for postwar action in the fifth of a series of pamphlets.

"How to shift from the war expenditure of some billion dollars to a peace economy without upsetting the national recovery," the board commented, "is a job that will require the joint coöperative efforts of industry and government, of labor, and of agriculture."

The results of the war effort in this conflict will loom much larger in the national economy than they did at the end of the World War I., the board said.

Present Big Job Problem.

"The men and machines who are making tanks and jeeps and bombs are going to be almost as out of a job as the soldiers and sailors when victory comes," it said. "They will present many of the same problems, and their sudden dismissal, in its effect on the labor market and on the volume of consumer purchasing power would aggravate the dangers of our national economy.

"Indeed, it is arguable that it would be less wasteful to continue some war production beyond absolute military necessity rather than to halt it all precipitately."

RETAILERS URGE SPEEDY ACT TO CHECK INFLATION

The Illinois Federation of Retail associations appealed yesterday to Illinois members of congress to "quit temporizing" and do their part in enacting an all-out program to check inflation.

In a letter signed by J. T. Meek, executive secretary the association, said to represent 110,000 retailers, members of congress were urged to approve the orginal administration anti-inflation program "even with its inadequate definitions."

"We are still waiting," the letter said, "for that stabilization which must come with price freezing."

OPA REGIONAL OFFICES TO ADJUST PRICES OF MILK IN SMALL CITIES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26 (AP).—Price Administrator Leon Henderson today gave regional OPA offices the power to raise or lower milk prices in smaller communities where price differentials between cities in the same producing area have caused a diversion of milk to the high price community and a shortage in the other. The regional offices will be able to deal with such situations more speedily, it was explained, than could the Washington office.

The March ceilings, in many cases, froze abnormal price differentials between localities, OPA said, with the result that milk distributors in some areas were able to outbid others for milk supplies.

Accountants to Ponder war Problems in Four Day Session

Army, navy, government, business, and educational representatives will address the four day 55th annual meeting of the American Institute of Accountants which opens in the Palmer House tomorrow.

Subjects to be discussed include the renegotiation of war contracts, accounting problems in price control, accounting reports to the War Production board, the effect of the war on financial statements, navy cost inspection, and determination of contracts costs by the war department. One session will be given over to discussion of federal income and excess profits taxes.

Commander Norman Loyall McLaren of the navy, retiring president of the institute, will address the Tuesday morning session. Other speakers include Dr. Herbert F. Taggart, Washington, D. C., director of the accounting division of the Office of Price Administration and Dr. Steuart Henderson Britt of Washington, consultant with the national roster of scientific and specialized personnel.

Three Army Men to Speak.

The accountants also will hear Lieutenant Colonels Andrew Stewart, J. W. McEachren, Morris C. Troper, and H. W. H. Burrows; A. M. Cooper, New York, chairman of the institute's committee on federal taxation; Frank S. Hecox, Portland, Ore., Iron Fireman Manufacturing company; James H. Barrett, Detroit, Murray Corporation of America; E. W. Bell, chief of the auditing division of the United States general accounting office, and Dr. T. H. Sanders of the WPB.

Chicagoans who will take part are Frank Ahlforth, president of the Illinois Society of Certified Public Accountants, who will welcome the meeting; Paul Grady of the cost inspection division of the navy; Edward B. Wilcox, who will preside at a "question box" session; George P. Ellis, who will lead a technical session on auditing; Russell H. Morrison, and Jackson W. Smart.

In addition, Dr. Franklyn B. Snyder, president of Northwestern universiay, will speak, and Lloyd Morey, controler of the University of Illinois, will be toastmaster at the annual dinner Wednesday.

The Elijah Watt Sells awards of the institute will be presented Tuesday morning. Two Chicagoans, John W. Shoemaker and Walden C. Cummins Jr., both of Rossetter & Co., will receive a gold medal and a silver medal, respectively. Shoemaker received the highest mark and Cummins was second at the national examination of certified public accountants last November.

New York, Sept. 26 (AP).—An order temporarily restraining Hanson and Hanson, New York securities dealers, from further security dealings in New York state was issued today by Supreme Court Justice Benedict D. Dineen on application of State Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr.

The order was the result of a three month investigation started when the market price of 4 per cent bonds, due in 1936, of the Wisconsin Central railway, Superior and Duluth division, dropped sharply last June.

The drop followed publication of a statement asserting that the Canadian Pacific Railway company was not interested in the bonds. The attorney general charged that reports were circulated by the defendant company indicating such an interest.

Three Persons Named.

The order also named John W. Hession, railway bond specialist employed by Hanson & Hanson. The order, returnable Oct. 9, was served on Hession and on Arnold R. Hanson and S. W. Hanson, copartners in the firm.

Assistant Attorney General Ambrose V. McCall charged that the firm created a rise in market price of the bonds by purchasing them on the New York Stock exchange and then sought to resell them over the counter "at a substantial profit."

Charges Selling Hidden.

McCall also charged that disposal over the counter "concealed the liquidation of the same securities."

The attorney general charged that if the Canadian Pacific official disclaimer had not been made the firm "stood to make a very substantial profit if they succeeded in selling all of the bonds on hand."

It was charged that Hession spread reports that Canadian Pacific was negotiating with large insurance companies for purchase of Wisconsin holdings, stimulating sales of the bonds.

PEAK INDUSTRY NEEDS 15 MILLION MORE WORKERS

Industry needs an additional 15 million workers before our war plants reach production peaks, Charles S. Craigmile, vice president of the Belden Manufacturing company, Chicago, told the National Association of Foremen at the Sherman hotel yesterday. He said approximately one million foremen will be needed to direct the activities of these workers.

H. J. Post of the Clarke Equipment company, Buchanan, Mich., was elected president of the association. C. C. Kendrick of Mel-L-Wool corporation, Chicago, was elected a vice president.

Chicago Bank Clearings Decline to 405 Millions

Chicago bank clearings last week were $405,400,000, compared with $438,300,000 in the preceding week and $392,300,000 in the corresponding 1941 period. Following is the report of the Chicago Clearing House association:

RAILROAD SECURITIES.

Security holders of railroads in process of reorganization and roads which already have emerged from receivership have an important stake in the tax bill now being framed in congress. What the position of these security holders will be with respect to road earnings will depend largely on whether the carriers are to be taxed on the basis of their new or old capitalizations.

Under their old capitalizations and fixed charges, railroads in reorganization have had a relatively sheltered position from federal taxes. Income taxes under the present revenue law are computed on earnings after allowance for fixed charges—interest payment on funded obligations.

In addition, railroads generally have been outside the excess profits tax bracket because of their heavy invested capital structure.

With the taxable property base and fixed charges scaled down, however, reorganized roads now may find themselves not only subject to larger normal income taxes, but also within the excess profits tax bracket.

Under the treasury department's present application of the internal revenue code, most railroad officials believe the largest part of savings from reduced fixed charges would be consumed by taxes, instead of accruing to the security holders of the reorganized roads.

The treasury department has indicated in the cases of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois and Chicago Great Western railroads, both of which emerged last year from reorganization with substantially reduced capitalization and fixed charges, that their income taxes would be computed on the new property base and the current fair market value of their stocks.

In the Chicago and North Western reorganization, federal income and excess profits taxes for 1941 would have amounted to more than 8 million dollars on the basis of the reorganized company, against no taxable income for the debtor company. Reduction in fixed charges under the plan of reorganization is slightly less than 8 million dollars.

The Association of American Railroads is urging legislation which would permit reorganized roads to use their old capitalization as a tax base. The association has estimated that more than 30 per cent of the nation's class one mileage now is in receivership, including 15 major carriers representing about 75,000 miles of track. Of that mileage, approximately 50 per cent is owned or leased by large Chicago roads.

Activity in the bond market recently has centered around railroad securities. The tax position of reorganized roads, as well as sharp rises in revenues, has been said to have stimulated considerable interest in these securities.

REPORT HIGHER MEAT CEILINGS PLANNED BY OPA

Would Aid Packers, Hit Consumer.

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

Office of Price Administration economists have developed plans for widespread revisions of meat ceilings, but announcement is being withheld pending action on the price control bill, it was reported in the Chicago stock yards yesterday. The new plan is said to provide higher meat prices for packers to relieve the "squeeze" between costs of live stock and existing meat ceilings.

The reported adjustment is viewed in packing circles as another "strategic retreat" of price administrators pitted against the forces of inflation.

Since ceilings first were imposed last spring, several upward revisions have been made. Scarcely a day passes but that some packer is reported to have obtained a price increase after satisfying the government he cannot operate unless ceilings for his plant are raised.

Price Control Threatened.

The pressure against the ceilings is said to have been so strong that it at times threatened the entire price control program for meat, as hundreds of packers complained of growing losses and weakened financial structures.

Stock yards opinion is that consumers can shelve any hopes they might entertain of lower meat prices in view of what has occurred during the last few months. The full force of price inflation will not hit the industry until next spring or summer, said market analysts. They recall that the strongest upsurge of prices during the World war did not occur until about 15 months after the United States entered the conflict.

Pressure against price ceilings last week was stronger than ever before. Costs to packers showed the sharpest rise of the year, steers, hogs, and lambs averaging 50 cents a hundred pounds more than in the preceding week. This was the biggest one week rise since last December, when the outbreak of war sent the average up 55 cents.

Average Increase for Week.

Packers last week paid an average of 15 per cent more per pound for beef on the hoof and 10 per cent more for prospective pork and lard than when meat ceilings were established.

The rise in cost of meat animals is indicated in the following monthly average prices of live stock in the Chicago stock yards in dollars per 100 pounds:

	Beef Steers.	Cows & Heifers.	Hogs.	Lambs.
Jan.	$12.60	$10.60	$11.35	$12.35
Feb.	12.50	10.35	12.60	12.00
Mar.	12.75	10.40	13.35	12.00
April	13.15	11.00	14.15	12.70
May	13.25	11.60	14.10	14.10
June	13.15	11.20	14.20	14.85
July	13.50	11.25	14.30	13.95
Aug.	14.80	12.25	14.40	14.50
*Sept.	14.90	12.00	14.35	13.90

*First 26 days. The first ceilings were placed on pork on March 23; on beef and veal, May 11, and on lamb, August 10.

Packers last week paid an average of $15.25 for steers and yearlings, the highest since October, 1928. This was $2 more than the week the government fixed beef ceilings.

Live costs of hogs soared to $14.90, the highest levels in 22 years and $1.45 over prices prevailing when the first pork ceilings were established. The 75 cent rise over the preceding week represented one of the largest such gains in many years.

Outstrips 1917-'18 Rise.

Steers, hogs, and lambs averaged $14.80 last week, 28 per cent more than when the United States entered the war 42 weeks ago. During the first 42 weeks of the World war, records show, the three classes of meat animals rose only 8 per cent.

Various classes of hogs gained 40 to 90 cents last week, with the biggest rise in lard type hogs. Cattle were up 25 to 50 cents, while sheep and lambs showed advances of 25 to 50 cents. Hog prices were steady yesterday. No cattle or lambs were sold.

BANKS TO LEND 200 MILLION TO BENDIX AVIATION

Several Chicago banks will participate in a 200 million dollar loan which Bendix Aviation corporation is negotiating with a nation-wide group of banks under regulation V of the federal reserve board, it was learned yesterday.

The Detroit branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago is handling the negotiations as the fiscal agent of the government.

The V loans carry a government guarantee, and are intended to help war goods producers finance the handling of their contracts, which in many cases involve much more money than the contractors are accustomed to borrowing on their own credit.

Grant Third Tribune Work Award Soon

Another man or woman among the thousands who are contributing to victory thru their production initiative in Chicago area war plants will be chosen soon to receive THE TRIBUNE'S War Worker's award. Members of the committee considering nominations for the September award in the campaign for public recognition of these heroes of the home front will announce the winner about Oct. 10.

Interest in the campaign is growing and many employés who thru their own initiative have found better ways to produce the materials of war have been nominated by their fellow workers and employers for recognition.

Award Is Gold Pin.

From these nominations which should be in the hands of the committee by Oct. 5, will be selected one war worker who will receive a gold pin studded with three small diamonds. The dominating decorative feature is a V for Victory Eagle. On the back of the pin is engraved the name of the winner and the company for which he works.

Employés of war plants in Illinois, Lake county, Indiana, and Kenosha and Racine counties, Wisconsin, are eligible for nomination.

George Dabbert, chief electrician for the Goss Printing Press company, Chicago, won the July award. He found a way to eliminate the drilling of holes which were used only temporarily to hold a grinding fixture to a thread milling machine. Now the fixture is held by electric magnets.

Aids Wire Production.

Kenneth Hope, an American who served four years with the Canadians in the first World war, won the August award. His contribution to the new war is in production of insulated wiring at the Chicago plant of the Belden Manufacturing company. He developed a simple device to hold wire guides concentrically in place on wire insulating spindles.

Selection of the September winner will be made by the same committee which includes Henry T. Heald, chairman, president of the Illinois Institute of Technology; Charles M. Thompson, dean of the school of commerce, University of Illinois, and James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26 (AP).—The foods requirements committee today announced it would establish a stockpile of 2,100,000 tons of sugar as the year-end inventory in the United States.

The committee chairman, Secretary of Agriculture Claude A. Wickard, also served notice that imports of sugar would not be permitted to interfere with more urgent wartime use of shipping space.

Beside the year-end stockpile goal the committee proposed to set up a government owned stockpile up to 250,000 tons in New England as a protection against sea and land transportation difficulties and to compensate for possible increases in shipments of lend-lease sugar from eastern ports.

U.S. Chamber of Commerce Issues a Guide for Business

A special committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce, headed by Leverett S. Kaiser Terms Steel Big Bar to War Output

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 26 (AP).—Henry J. Kaiser, west coast industrialist, today termed steel the real bottleneck in the nation's war production schedule.

"There is nothing more necessary than steel, and we plan to help this situation with our southern California plant, using ore from western mines," said the former contractor whose shipyards at Pacific ports continually vie with one another for national construction speed records.

In an interview, Kaiser said he expects also to set a record with his 55 million dollar steel plant at Fontana, Cal.

"We will be producing pig iron by January, and rolled plate shortly thereafter," he said. "This means only one year, or slightly less, will have elapsed from ore in the mines to finished product, since construction of the steel plant was begun last March."

Kaiser praised the nation-wide scrap drive as a campaign vital to the America's steel furnaces, but had little to say about the amount needed or any new sources.

"It is difficult for me to talk about scrap; I'm not close enough to it just yet," he said. "But I recognize its great importance, and I think the government and civilians alike are doing a fine job of collecting it," he said.

Plant Expansion Planned.

The Kaiser steel plant at Fontana will have an initial capacity of 400,000 tons per year. Kaiser said this output would be raised to a million tons if his current expansion plans are realized. He did not elaborate on these.

"There are too many contingencies," he said.

First ore will come from Kaiser mines near Kelso, on the California desert. Coal will come from Utah. Production schedules call for rolled plate a month or two after the first pig iron is poured in January.

"And that means ready for delivery, too," he added.

Kaiser emphasized the importance of nearby ore sources.

"We've got hundreds of millions of tons of ore right here in California. Somebody should be using it. And somebody is going to—we are."

RAILROAD BONDS REACT FURTHER; OTHERS STEADY

New York, Sept. 26 (AP).—Railroad loans slipped back a little more today on a reaction which started yesterday after their long rise. Profit selling was active in the low priced carriers which led this month's rise. Industrial and utility bonds were generally steady.

Losses ranged from fractions to about a point for International Great Northern "B" 5s, Kansas City Southern 5s, M-K-T adjustment 5s, New York Central 4½s, and Union Pacific 3½s.

Fractionally higher prices were recorded by American Telephone 3¼s, Armour of Delaware 4s, Baltimore & Ohio 4s of '48, and Boston & Maine 4½s.

United States governments were steady, and foreign loans were irregular.

Transactions totaled $4,974,000 face value, compared with $4,649,300 the preceding Saturday.

PROBE OF ALL CARRIER RATES, FARES ORDERED

Subpenas Served on Four Roads.

An anti-trust investigation, involving at least four big railroads and an association of railroads, and which may be extended to the truck and bus transport industry, and possibly the waterway carriers, will start in Chicago before a federal grand jury this week, it was learned yesterday.

The four railroads are the Pennsylvania, Milwaukee, North Western, and Burlington. The association is the Illinois Freight association, made up of railroad members. At the time of the Chicago probe a similar investigation will be conducted by the government in eight other cities.

Admits Records Are Subpenaed.

Subpenas have been issued for all those involved, but have been suppressed, it was learned. Even yesterday, after the news was published, no comment could be obtained from any of the carriers except the freight association, which admitted that its representatives and records had been called by the grand jury for a hearing next Wednesday.

The investigation, government men said, seeks to determine whether these carriers, and, it was indicated, others have conspired to fix passenger and freight rates.

The subpenas require the railroads to produce the records of the organization of the Illinois Freight association and the records of its reorganization in 1936, and to show the signatures of all members. Their books are expected to show, according to the government's demand, rates fixed by the association and others, including the Illinois rate committee, Illinois-Indiana coal and coke committee, and traffic executives' committee.

Contention of Government.

The government contends that it was the practice of the roads to discuss rates at meetings of associations of which they are a part and reach agreement on their rate plans. Then they would present identical requests for new rates to the Interstate Commerce commission, it was said. The commission and intrastate regulatory bodies inquire for 30 days into the reasonableness of the demands, and if they are found reasonable the new rates go into effect.

The investigation will center in Chicago, New York, Washington, Atlanta, New Orleans, Denver, Kansas City, St. Louis, and San Francisco, it was learned. Almost every association in the transportation industry is expected to be brought before a grand jury in these nine centers.

It was understood that reports of transportation congestion and delay involving war shipping started the probe. The war and navy departments were brought into the preliminary conferences, as were the I. C. C., the Office of Defense Transportation, the Civil Aeronautics board, the Office of Price Administration, and the department of agriculture.

Way Cleared for Prosecution.

Officials said none of these agencies brought up any objection, and the way was cleared for prosecution should the grand juries return indictments. One source in Washington said the inquiry will put under government scrutiny the biggest section of American industry ever investigated by the justice department at one time.

A prime concern of the probe, it was said, will be the influence that the railroads may have over the development of transportation services that are competitive, such as motor freight carriers and air transport. A Washington source cited the exclusive contract the Railway Express agency has with the major air lines. Railway express is owned by some 80 railroads.

STOCKS DECLINE AFTER LARGEST RISE SINCE JULY

Loss Is Slight as Volume Continues Big.

New York, Sept. 26 (AP).—Stocks lost a little ground in today's brief market after the most extensive week's recovery since mid-July.

Hesitancy ruled at the opening as profits were cashed on the relatively long advance and accounts were lightened for protection over the week-end. Dealings picked up at intervals and firm spots developed here and there, but fractional losses were in the majority at the close.

Sustaining influences, as during the week, included the persistence of inflation psychology based on the thought that even a compromise between congress and the administration on the price control dispute would fail to halt rising living costs. Improved war news, hopes for corporate tax leniency, and brighter dividends prospects were other factors.

Wage Issue Halts Rails.

The fast traveling rails of previous days turned a trifle lower in the wake of demands of the nonoperating unions for a substantial pay boost.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 0.1 point at 37.8, its first recession since Sept. 19. For the week the average showed a net advance of 0.8.

Today's volume of 226,825 shares compared with 178,480 last Saturday and was the largest for a two hour session since March 7.

Trends were about even Monday, but it was a rallying push from then on. Thursday's dealings of 851,000 shares were the biggest for the year. Low priced stocks were the heaviest traded, altho they quieted down toward the end of the week.

CHICAGO PRICES MIXED.

Prices were mixed yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange, with volume of 6,000 shares. Of the 57 issues traded, 20 advanced, 19 declined, and 18 were unchanged. Volume leaders were Wayne Pump, unchanged; North American Car, up ½; Berghoff Brewing, unchanged, and Middle West, up ⅛. In the half hour after the New York close, Radio corporation was up ¼.

INT. TELEPHONE REPORTS PROFIT FOR SIX MONTHS

Cleaner Firm Also Turns from Loss Column.

The International Telephone and Telegraph corporation yesterday reported net consolidated income of $333,556 for the first half of this year, contrasted with a loss of $14,704 in the first six months of 1941.

Excluded from the consolidated report were accounts of the International Standard Electric corporation and its subsidiaries, principally manufacturing units in various European countries and the far east, of German subsidiaries, and of the Shanghai [China] Telephone company. Accounts of the American Cable and Radio corporation and its subsidiaries, the Spanish Telephone company and the Mexican Telephone company, also were not consolidated.

Accounting Basis Changed.

The loss for last year is computed on this basis, altho earlier inclusion of the $88,464 net income of the Shanghai company resulted in a net profit of $73,760 being reported last year.

The parent company alone had a net loss of $1,913,369 this year, against a loss of $1,727,930 for the corresponding 1941 period.

The Eureka Vacuum Cleaner company also reported a profit for the fiscal year ended July 31, contrasted with a loss the preceding year. Net income was $421,842, equal to $2.09 a share, against loss of $475,113. No provision for federal taxes was necessary, the company said, because of a carry over of losses from the preceding fiscal year.

Since the end of March the company has been engaged entirely in war work or in the preparation for war production.

CORN, SOY BEAN CROPS REPORTED HIT BY WEATHER

Central Illinois Grain Is Believed Safe.

Low temperatures have damaged the corn and soy bean crops in northern parts of the main producing area, reports received yesterday by James E. Bennett & Co. indicated. No specific reports of possible loss in bushels were made.

The bulk of the corn and soy bean crops in central Illinois matured ahead of frost. In the northern areas, especially where excessive rains early in the season forced replanting of corn, the crop is late.

Expect Some Iowa Damage.

The Iowa weather bureau service reported 50 per cent of that state's soy beans were safe from frost, but some farmers believed the freeze had caused damage.

Montana reported that some grain remained to be harvested in the northeastern part of that state and in the mountain area, and that immature wheat probably was damaged.

The grain futures markets were little affected yesterday by the crop damage reports. Wheat held within a range of less than ½ cent and closing sales were unchanged to ⅛ cent higher per bushel. Corn and oats finished unchanged to ⅛ cent lower. Rye was off ⅛ cent. Soy beans advanced 1⅜ to 1⅝ cents on buying induced by prospects that the yield may be reduced.

Trading Is Light.

Trading was unusually light, largely because of uneasiness over possible action of the senate on what constitutes parity price on agricultural commodities.

The normal movement of cash wheat from the west to the east has been reversed by the unusually small crop of soft red winter wheat harvested this year.

A car of new soy beans, the first of the season, was received in Chicago yesterday. It was shipped from southern Illinois to James E. Bennett & Co., graded No. 2 yellow with 14 per cent moisture, and tested 55½ pounds a bushel.

Illinois Honey Production to Be Only Half 1941 Total

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 26 (AP).—The Illinois coöperative crop reporting service estimated today that honey production in the state this year would total 4,520,000 pounds, only 49 per cent of the 1941 production.

Navy Plans Model Streamlined Recruiting Station in Loop Office Building

SAILORS TO BE 'PROCESSED' IN ASSEMBLY LINE

Four Locations Are Under Consideration.

BY AL CHASE.

Lieut. Comm. D. N. Goldenson.

With navy recruiting last week in the Chicago area reaching the highest point in the history of the Chicago navy recruiting station, and September already breaking all previous records, the present quarters in the United States court house are so overcrowded that a new location in a loop office building is being sought. At the contemplated enlarged station a modern streamlined, mass production assembly line will "process" navy recruits at high speed, according to Lieut. Comm. David N. Goldenson, U. S. N., head of the station. Considerable saving in both time and effort will result from the move, he said.

Four loop buildings are under consideration: Railway Exchange, One La Salle building, the Roanoke building, and the Harvard-Yale-Princeton six story building, 317-25 Plymouth court. Twenty thousand square feet of floor space is sought, with as much as possible on one floor. This will be double the present court house accommodations.

Avoids Lost Motion.

The new quarters will enable the prospective sailor to be "processed" [examined] scientifically, with no lost motion from his initial application at the information desk thru to his being sworn in. Several hours will be saved in the first day's routine of various examinations, it was said.

The 10,000 square feet in the present navy recruiting station in the courthouse has a layout which Goldenson termed "almost absurd." Recruits retrace and cross their own line of travel thru the various inspection rooms. At times the station is jammed with lines of waiting recruits.

"The new quarters will be a dream recruiting division, with the recruits going steadily ahead, point by point, like on an assembly line, and coming out completely processed," Goldenson said.

Lassies Serve Coffee.

Recruiting figures may not be printed but it was admitted that the present overcrowded quarters were set up to handle between 750 and 1,000 men daily. And it's no military secret that the Salvation army canteen serves on a top day about 2,000 cups of coffee and doughnuts to the men.

One of the novel feautres of the Chicago navy recruiting station, originated by Goldenson, is the conversion of late Judge Woodward's courtroom into an auditorium where men who have passed all examinations wait their call to be sworn into the service. Half of the room is set aside for mothers, wives and sweethearts of the men, who occupy the opposite side of the big room.

Waiting Sailors Entertained.

In between is a large open space with a piano where for five days each week—Monday to Friday—entertainment is furnished for an hour each morning. Well known radio, movie and stage folk keep the long waiting crowd of men and relatives cheered with a varied program. Lieut. Goldenson also always gives the men a short talk.

There are seven substations in Chicago where navy recruits get a preliminary physical test to see if they're acceptable, and six thruout the state: Rockford, Rock Island, Aurora, Peoria, Springfield, and Champaign. Those who are approved come on to the main station in Chicago.

Lieut. Comm. Goldenson is a graduate of Annapolis and has been in the navy 21 years. He has seen service all over the world, his last overseas duty being at China station.

At the Realty Boards

Hugo W. Mortenson of Mortenson & Johnson will speak on "Stimulating Sales in War Times" before the West Side Real Estate board in the Graemere hotel tomorrow noon.

Row Houses Being Built for War Workers

Sketch of Completed Project

Leonard Downie.

Federal rent control and scarcity of flats and houses will combine to make Oct. 1 one of Chicago's quietest fall moving days in recent years, according to realtors, movers, and utility companies. With a rent ceiling in effect landlords cannot raise the rent so the tenant who might have got a boost, if Uncle Sam hadn't frozen rents, doesn't need to look for another home.

In addition, occupancy of Chicago's apartments is so close to 100 per cent that there wouldn't be much use in looking around even if a tennat wanted to. Few real estate firms have any desirable flats to offer. So even a dissatisfied tenant stays where he is.

It's Rarer, but They Agree.

Leonard Downie, business manager of the Chicago Real Estate board, and Daniel Healy, secretary of the Movers' Association of Chicago, agree that Oct. 1 moving will be much less than last year. Both declare that the rent ceiling is a prime factor in causing the slowup. Healy said moving business would be only about half as much as Oct. 1, 1941.

The Illinois Bell Telephone company reported yesterday that so far this month "move orders" have been 5,938 compared with 7,571 for the same period last year.

Commonwealth Edison company also reported a drop in "turn on" orders for electric service and new meters thus far in September. Last year at this time there were 16,677 orders compared with only 13,239 this year.

More Subletting of Flats.

Peoples Gas Light and Coke company said that September orders for turning on gas to date have been 25,593, compared with 33,501 for the same period last year, a drop of 23 per cent.

There have been more subleases made this fall than in past years, Downie said, resutling from men being called in to service and their families moving out of their flats, subletting them until Oct. 1.

FLORISTS MOVE AS U. S. TAKES OVER BUILDING

Tenants of the seven story Florists' building at 729-35 South Wabash avenue, leased by the government for use in connection with the army air force radio school in the former Stevens and Congress hotels, are being moved today [Sunday] six blocks south to the seven story building at 1433 South Wabash, where they will occupy the same floors. The buildings are almost identical in size.

According to Albert H. Wetten & Co., which negotiated the deal, Spiegel, Inc., which occupied all of 1433, has cancelled its lease.

The tenants being moved from 729 to 1433 are the Amling company, Chicago Flower Growers, Inc., and A. L. Randall company, all wholesale florists, and Standard Novelty and Lamp company. No. 729 is owned by Lucy Blair Linn, Edith Blair, Seymour Blair, and W. McCormick Blair. The owners of 1433 are Joseph H. Shirk and others of Peru, Ind.

100 Landlords Get Temporary Rent Increase

Interim orders were authorized Sept. 18 by Price Administrator Leon Henderson to expedite petitions in which landlords present clearly defined reasons for asking upward rent adjustments.

Howard said that only in clear cut cases — other than those involving hotels and rooming houses—can temporary or interim orders be granted allowing the landlord to collect an increased rent before entry of the final order following investigation.

"This doesn't mean that any landlord can file a petition and have it granted automatically," Howard said. "Only in those cases where the facts presented in the petition clearly entitle the landlord to a rent increase under the regulation will it be granted.

"Granting of any such increase is conditional upon agreement by the landlord to refund to the tenant any amount received thru the temporary order in excess of the maximum rent established in the final order."

SOUTH WABASH AVENUE LEASE.

Wilcox & Follett company, school book publishers, yesterday renewed its lease in the Eiger building, 1249-57 South Wabash avenue, and took enough additional space to give them a total of 60,000 square feet of space.

CHRYSLER GETS QUARTERS FOR DODGE WORKERS

Takes Options on Rental Units Being Built.

Chrysler corporation is securing living quarters for some of its key men to be in charge of its big Dodge aircraft plant under construction on the southwest side. This was disclosed yesterday by Leonard W. Besinger who is building 81 two story row houses in the area bounded by West 58th street, 58th place, South Karlov avenue, and South Pulaski road. Besinger said that Chrysler corporation had made arrangement for the rental of all of the 81 homes to its employés.

It also was learned that Chrysler has not only taken options on all of the 56 rental units in the Boulevard Manor Defense Homes, Inc., project in Cicero, but it has guaranteed payments for three years. The leases will be signed individually, but Chrysler will supervise the deals and decide who the tenants will be.

This $400,000 housing development covers four city blocks bounded by 35th street, South 59th court, Pershing road, and South 59th avenue. It has 82 homes — flats, duplexes, and single family dwellings. Half of the 26 units built to sell have been sold.

Financed by Investors' Syndicate.

The Besinger and Boulevard Manor projects were both financed with FHA insured mortgages thru the Investors' Syndicate of Minneapolis, of which Keston J. Deimling is Chicago mortgage loan department manager.

The 81 units in Besinger's group of homes are arranged in 9 two story buildings, six of them containing 10 units and three with 7 units. Foundations for all are in and work is up to the second story on two of the buildings.

None of the units is for sale. The WPB rent ceiling of $50 on $6,000 "defense homes" will be followed. The rental agent is John H. McGeary, who was owner of the land for many years prior to its sale to Besinger.

Some to be Ready by Jan. 1.

The entire project is expected to be under roof by Nov. 1 with 17 units scheduled for completion by Jan. 1. The financing provides for 81 separate $5,000 mortgages or $405,000 in all.

Designed by Carl J. Kastrup, each unit will contain five rooms; two bedrooms and bath on the second floor and a living room, dinette, and kitchen [with utility room adjoining] on the first floor.

Besinger has been active in residential construction in River Forest, Clarendon Hills, and other western suburbs, and also in Chicago.

Cut Mortgage Convention to 'Conference'

Stanley Johnston.

The annual convention of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America has been canceled on account of the war effort and a "conference on wartime mortgage finance" will be held instead in the Edgewater Beach hotel for three days beginning next Wednesday. All unnecessary convention activities have been eliminated, according to L. A. Clarahan, president of the Chicago Mortgage Bankers' association, which will be host at the meeting.

Rent control, war housing, and postwar problems related to slum elimination, city planning, and urban reconstruction will be discussed. The annual business meeting and election of officers will be held Friday. Charles A. Mullenix of Cleveland is scheduled to succeed Frederick P. Champ of Logan, Utah, as president.

Stanley Johnston to Speak.

Stanley Johnston, CHICAGO TRIBUNE war correspondent, only newspaper man on the carrier Lexington when she was sunk in the Coral sea battle, will speak at a dinner Wednesday evening in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Other speakers scheduled for the conference are Sen. Harold H. Burton of Ohio, John B. Blandford Jr., National Housing agency administrator; Earle S. Draper, deputy FHA commissioner; Miller B. Pennell, MBA counsel, and Mrs. Dorothy Rosenman, chairman, National Committee on Housing Emergency.

William Trufant Foster, president of the Pollak Foundation for Economic Research; Frederick P. Champ, association president; Frederick M. Babcock, Weyerhaeuser Sales company and former head of FHA's underwriting division, and Claude L. Benner, Continental American Life Insurance company, Wilmington, Del., also are scheduled to speak.

Special Meetings Planned.

There will be special meetings for commercial bankers, farm mortgage bankers, and for the Legion of Mortgage Bankers. A fourth meeting will be for officers of the 34 affiliated local mortgage banking organizations. Considerable time will be devoted to "mortgage clinics."

George H. Dovenmuehle of Chicago, slated for election to the board of governors, will be one of six who will answer questions and make addresses in a panel discussion on how to conduct a wartime mortgage business. Chicago now has two members on the board of governors, Irvin Jacobs and Byron V. Kanaley.

CHICAGO BUILDERS TO ASK FOR MORE HOME PRIORITIES

Employment in Chicago is increasing faster than federal officials estimated, according to figures of the Illinois department of labor, made public by the Metropolitan Chicago Home Builders' association yesterday. With this as ammunition and other statistics on war work and lack of housing for war workers in the Chicago area, several officers of MCHB will go to Washington tonight to meet John B. Blanford Jr., head of the National Housing agency.

Joseph E. Merrion, president, Fred J. Walsh, treasurer, John Cummings Lindop, a director, and C. L. Perkins, executive secretary of MCHB, will ask Blandford at tomorrow's meeting for more priorities for homes in the Chicago area. They will outline to him the facts presented a few days ago to Philip N. Klutznick, regional director of NHA, in Chicago, that Chicago faces a housing stortage for its war workers unless federal permission to build more homes is granted.

"Government estimates of employment increases in metropolitan Chicago all have been below actual figures by the Illinois department of labor," said Perkins.

"The government estimated there would be 50,000 new workers for the two months between Aug. 1 and Oct. 1. The state reported the increase from July 15 to Aug. 15, one month, as 2 per cent, or 41,606."

SELL 15 FLAT BUILDING.

The 15 flat building at 6428-32 North Richmond street was sold by Robert T. and Caroline Pentland to Anthony J. and Dorothy Krofta for $39,500, thru Jason-Lotz.

The Alexander Hamilton Institute

EXECUTIVE TRAINING

THE WAR and its demands for production and more production has thinned the ranks of executives to the danger point. The country needs men with executive training just as it needs production workers and men for the armed forces.

THE ALEXANDER HAMILTON INSTITUTE is daily receiving more inquiries regarding its intensive course of executive training than it has field force to handle.

MATURE MEN between 40 and 60 with good education and background of successful business accomplishment capable of interviewing and advising such inquiries are needed.

THERE ARE VACANCIES in the Chicago area, and also in Central and Eastern Michigan. Complete and adequate training as to any procedure given to the men selected.

COMPENSATION by commission and monthly bonus offers satisfactory income.

Write fully, giving telephone number, to Alexander Hamilton Institute.

DAY by DAY on the FARM

By BEN MARKLAND

Barnyard Comedy.

Sept. 26, 1942.

ANY one who has half a sense of humor can depend upon a farm barnyard for a full quota of laughs almost any day of the year. Without even trying to put on a show, the ducks, turkeys, guinea hens, and chickens in barnyards rank with the monkeys in a zoo for comic abilities.

When we strolled around the barnyard of the Du Page county farm the other day we noted three vaudeville acts being staged. A family of Muscovy ducklings, 3 weeks old, starred in the first routine, young turkey gobblers were the principals in the second act, and a fussy guinea hen which refused to perform on the barnyard stage nevertheless received star billing for her rôle behind the scenes.

How to Catch Flies.

The Muscovy duckling skit consisted of a demonstration of catching flies, and any one who ever has seen an awkward yellow duckling in this sort of barnyard maneuver can guarantee its spectator appeal. The fuzzy youngsters waddle around the yard and peer in every direction on the lookout for flying insects. When they spot their prey all signs of awkwardness disappear and their lithe necks spring out like Joe Louis' left jab. Exit fly.

The acrobatic routine put on by the ducklings had considerable action, whereas the young turkey gobblers were funny without any exertion on their part. In the flock of white Hollands are perhaps 20 young gobblers hatched early in the summer, each wanting to imitate the old gobblers of the flock. On bright days when the grown birds spread their tail fans and stretch their wing feathers to the ground the young gobblers follow suit. As a result barnyard vaudeville fans often may lean on the board fence and watch half-grown turkey gobblers [some not more than 15 inches tall] strutting around the barnyard and trying to make themselves believe they're grownup, full-fledged gobblers.

Hen Shuns Barnyard.

The third barnyard act, involving the shy guinea hen, is a sequel of another action reported in this column several weeks ago. The guinea spurned nesting sites she could have occupied in the barnyard and hiked along a fencerow to build a private nest more than 100 yards from the buildings.

After a little detective work the flockmaster found this nest and counted 20 eggs which the hen was incubating. This week he went back to check the nest and found that 17 of the 20 eggs had hatched, but there was no sign of the guinea hen and her 17 chicks. Undoubtedly she is teaching her offspring the habit of aloofness by making them find their own feed in the farm fields. At any rate she is asking for no free food supplies from the flockmaster.

MOTORS—TRAFFIC—HIGHWAYS

DON'T BE A START, STOP COWBOY—IT WASTES YOUR GAS

Motorists interested in knowing the "do's" and "don'ts" of wartime driving are offered this information in a booklet just published by the national conservation bureau, the accident prevention division of the Association of Casualty and Surety Executives.

The booklet outlines the importance of conserving tires, fuel, and automobiles and contains suggestions for drivers on how to handle themselves and their cars during the emergency.

Don't Race Motors at Stops.

Among the "don'ts" motorists should heed, the booklet cautions against racing motors while at stop signals, "cowboy" starting and stopping, and over-choking. These practices waste gas. The "do's" include driving at reduced speed, swapping rides with neighbors, correct tire inflation and rotation of tires to prevent uneven wear, and correct wheel alignment. "Don't 'ride' the clutch," motorists are advised.

"Always bear in mind," the booklet urges, "that this nation moves on wheels. Everything that you can do to ensure the continued operation of our motor transport system is a contribution toward winning the war."

Rules for Air Raids.

Motorists caught out in an air raid or an "alert" are cautioned to practice these rules: [1] Park your car and turn off all lights; [2] turn off and lock the ignition; [3] set the hand brake; [4] get out of the vehicle and seek shelter, but do not lock vehicle doors, as your car may have to be moved by hand or other means while the raid is in progress.

VOICE OF TRAFFIC

CROCODILE TEARS FOR TAXIS.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—The sad story of Benjamin Samuels [vice president of the Yellow Taxi company] of the "troubled" taxi driver trying to find a place to park so as to not violate other traffic laws is indeed a story full of emotion. It made me feel so badly I almost broke down with sorrow and cried. Does that man Samuels think the public is so gullible? Rats! Until Uncle Whiskers got after both Yellow and Checker, they did pretty well as they pleased, and the reason for their apparent immunity is common street gossip. The solution is, "Call taxis." The cabs are a public convenience, not a necessity. They have a very valuable franchise; get more for fares than almost any other similar concern anywhere in the United States.

Mr. Samuels has never known restraint. They deserve no favors, let them hew to the line "even as you and I." It takes old Uncle Whiskers to make those kind of outfits abide by the law. I shed crocodile tears for Mr. Benjamin Samuels and his gang. Yours truly.

ALLAN A. DARE.

PEDESTRIAN CONTROL.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 3.—Pedestrians in this overcrowded city obey the stop and go light signs. The police enforce this control of the walkers. As a Chicagoan, I recommend this system for our city. It sometimes is a nuisance to have to wait a few seconds for a red light to change to green before walking across the street, but common observation will show that it is a great aid in moving traffic with safety. It is certainly a saving to the nerves of drivers not to have walkers dodging among the moving vehicles. C. W.

HOLES IN STREET.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—I want to add my word to others who have written about the holes in our streets which destroy irreplaceable tires. We are still paying taxes to have our pavements repaired.

C. S. FISHER.

PRIVATE GAS TANKS.

Highland Park, Ill., Aug. 26.—When you are trying to make a living pumping gas—in these days when every one is trying to conserve their tires and families are riding double—it sort of hurts to see the wholesale gas tanks filling up private homes that have their own tanks because they own several cars.

If this was stopped it would surely help the little fellow make an honest living. RUTH DENNIS.

SPEEDING BUSES.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—I shall quote from a letter just received from my daughter who made a 725 mile trip this last week: "The speed law is less now, O yes, but every one doesn't observe it. The buses for miles poke along at 40, then all of a sudden pass every one on the road at their usual 60 or more; go that way for miles and slow abruptly down to 40 again. I can't figure it out unless it is that they know when they are in patroled areas and go 40."

Passengers on buses who are even more interested in true patriotism than getting there quickly should make public their experiences in this way.

NOTHING SAVED.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Driving west on Marquette road Sunday afternoon an army car bearing license number USA-114411 whizzed by at a terrific pace. No saving of gas or rubber here.

Perhaps it was a general rushing on an emergency call; but I heard neither bombs nor sirens. I tried to catch up with the car but all that I could do was get close enough to note the tag and find it was only a captain at the wheel. Call to arms, captain? What arms? F. S.

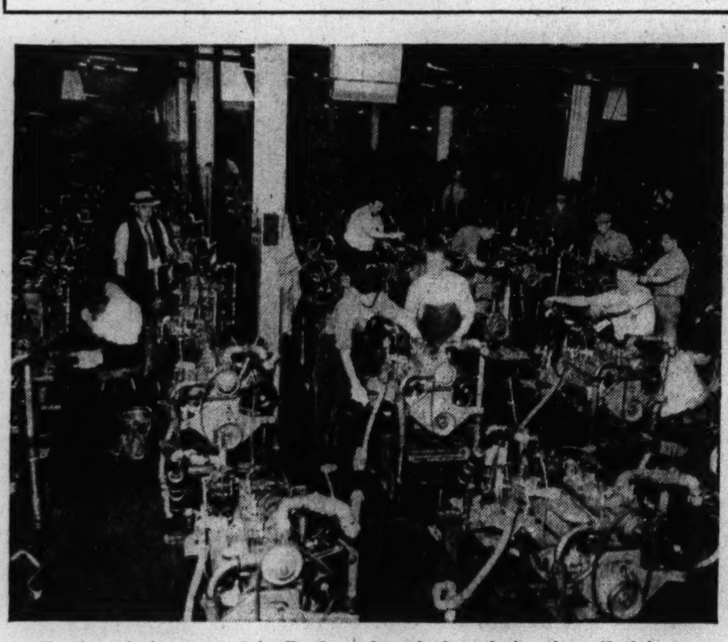
GLASS IN ALLEYS.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—While drumming the kids full af patriotism, why not remind them not to smash glass bottles and jars in pavements or alleys? This happens every day in our alley while the kids walk home from school, and is a tire hazard to the many trucks and cars that must pass here daily. It just cost me $3.50 to have tire fixed because of broken glass. H. B.

RECKLESS DRIVERS.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Not even a war can stop the drivers who continue doing the speedy passing on the wrong side of the road. They have the speed mania and usually choose a curve to do their leap ahead of a slow bunch. Many of the autoists are going slower these days, and that is too dull for a few drivers. It is obvious that the "sudden death" drivers are just the type who will always be reckless at any time. Well, it's just their funeral some time anyway. C. P.

Dodge Tests Military Engines



Engines being tested in Dodge plant before being installed in troop and cargo motor transports, field radio cars, ambulances, army carry-alls, command reconnaissance cars, weapon carriers, and other military vehicles. Fuel used in the tests is natural gas instead of gasoline. The gas mixed with metered volumes of air is fed to the engines by remote control. Exhaust fumes are discharged thru subterranean passages.

AUTO MECHANIC MAY BE PLACED IN DEFERRED DRAFT

The expert automobile mechanic soon may be classified as an "essential worker" to be given preferential draft status, making his contribution to the war effort by keeping America's 20 million vehicles in operation, according to well informed automobile trade authorities.

Calls to arms and shifts to higher paying jobs threaten the current adequacy of personnel in service shops thruout the country, creating a situation that is receiving increasing attention in Washington, these trade authorities say.

Developments in Prospect.

Other developments are in prospect affecting dealers and the motoring public, in addition to nation-wide gasoline rationing, according to opinion in the automotive trade.

Among the expected developments are price ceilings for used cars, possible freezing and restrictions on used car sales, compulsory inspection of tires, and enforced recapping of tires used by all motorists or arbitrary immobilization of the vehicle.

The formula for used car price ceilings will be an intricate one, the trade experts assert, taking into consideration the high, medium, and low price groups, each with a different ratio of value to its new models. There also will be the basic factor of the car's condition and the mileage potentialities of its tires.

Some of the best informed sources anticipate a dual grouping of used car ceilings. One of the groups would cover cars on which the dealer had done no servicing or repairs and could offer no warranty, the other would fix top prices for reconditioned vehicles.

Compulsory Inspection.

Compuslsory inspection of tires and enforced recapping would be designed to get every possible mile out of present tires and forestall carelessness by motorists who believed their occupations would insure them new tire replacements. Tire recapping experts long have maintained that as long as side walls and carcass generally are not seriously damaged, tires can be almost indefinitely reconditioned.

There are 500,000 to 600,000 used automobiles in dealers' hands thruout the country. Altho their tires are of varying condition, these vehicles, along with car servicing operations and the limited volume of rationed new car sales, have kept most of the retailers in business thus far.

For most of the dealers, trade authorities say, operations have been more profitable than many anticipated when production ceased and new car sales were rigidly restricted late last winter.

Full Margin of Profit.

This was explained as largely the result of the fact that altho new car sales average less than 1 to 10 compared with prewar activities, the retailers generally are getting their full margin of profit on both new and used vehicle sales, are indulging in no wild trading, and are not obliged to give exorbitant allowances on traded-in cars to make a sale. Moreover, dealers have been able to reduce their overhead sharply in many ways.

"There is no cut throat competition; no panic to unload," said one trade executive who has just made a survey of the dealer situation thruout the nation.

These factors, supplemented by service operation income, he added, have meant for many dealers a better financial showing than a lot of them were able to make in normal times.

NEWS AND VIEWS

A few months ago the Chrysler division of the Chrysler corporation was turning out fluid drive automobiles to take Mr. and Mrs. American Motorist on trips thruout the nation. Now its big assembly plants are producing exacting and intricate machining jobs—parts for the deadly 40 millimeter anti-aircraft cannon used by both the army and navy.

The Chrysler division is producing three of the most complex parts for the cannon and other divisions of the Chrysler corporation are producing other parts. The Chrysler division now is turning out more than four and a half times as many of each of the parts as were called for in the schedule first laid down when the gun plant was built.

Chrysler engineers had no precedent for turning out the gun parts by mass production methods when they tackled the job. Previously the work had been done by hand, which meant that only a few units could be built.

Many of the tools and machines used in the production of peacetime automobiles have been converted to the gun work, but many others had to be designed especially for the job.

More than 130 separate machining operations are required for one part alone and almost as many for another. A third part requires a tolerance as close as two one-thousandths of an inch.

The largest and most intricate part is made from a solid forging weighing approximately 300 pounds as it leaves the forge department. When finished by the Chrysler division it weighs only 105 pounds, which means that more than 60 per cent of the metal has been cut away during the machining process.

Workers in the huge Packard plant building more Rolls-Royce aircraft engines for Warhawks, Spitfires, and Hurricanes, and Packard engines for navy PT boats, have been informed that nine of their fellows have been honored by Donald M. Nelson's war production drive committee for suggestions which will aid the nation's war effort. Four of the group have been awarded certificates of individual production merit and five were given honorable mention.

One of the group devised a way to divide assignments in engine parts assembly that resulted in a 55 per cent increase in assemblies from his department. Another devised a way to combine boring and reaming operations on one machine, thus freeing another machine for war work. All the others suggested methods designed to speed up production at the Packard plants.

UNDERGROUND! HOW POLAND'S UNSEEN ARMY TAKES RELENTLESS VENGEANCE ON GERMANY

By LLOYD WENDT

IN THE SHADOWS, the German sentry seems a giant of a man. His hobnails crunch softly on the path, he starts nervously at every sound. He is a frightened man. He trods his beat into the deep dark cast by the hulking petrol trucks. He does not utter a cry. A heavy arm clamps across his throat, a knife blade passes between his ribs. In a moment, another dark form walks his beat, a man tense, alert; but unafraid.

In the shadows, there is the soft, muffled sound that is made by creeping men. A wrench scrapes metal, the cap of a gas tank screaks loose, there is the steady hum of a drill biting metal. In a few moments a match flares in the darkness. It is the signal. There is the heavy noise of running feet. A sentry challenges hoarsely, his cry cut off by a shot that seems to split open the blackness. Instantly there is action.

Big searchlights sweep the rim of the camp. Machine guns stutter. Voices bawl out in the barracks. As the doors swing open, other machine guns, trained upon the light squares from the hills to the east, spit an inferno of fire. Then, with a terrible roar, the first big tank of petrol blazes to the skies. Other blasts follow. The gunners in the brush to the eastward can see their targets now. Germans, plunging like demons thru the lurid flame, drop to earth. Their own gun emplacements begin a lethal crossfire. A couple of Very lights silhouette the hills.

But the guerrillas, save for three men, quite dead, their faces soot-blackened, their clothing previously stripped of all identification, are gone. The Germans, herded by howling officers, climb into their trucks for the chase, a foolhardy chase in the black of night. A few motors groan, smashed by the metal scraps the partisan raiders had dropped into the engine blocks (Continued on page 6.)

FIGHTING POLAND SPEAKS

We have been driven underground. Every day a bloodthirsty terrorism takes its toll of victims from among us. The slightest association with the struggle for freedom, even the reading or possession of an illegal newspaper, may mean death at the hands of a firing squad or imprisonment and martyrdom in a concentration camp. Yet free life has been born and is developing in the darkness of conspiracy, swelling into a powerful, unconquerable tide, which will sweep over the occupying powers, who are surrounded by the merciless hatred of all Poles, and prevent the enemy from settling down and strengthening his hold on our country.

The Tactics of Infiltration

By STANLEY JOHNSTON

REPORTS from the Caucasus front, meager tho they are, tell that the Nazi war machine's swift and steady advances made into this southern end of the long Russian battle line have been based on tactics of infiltration. This also was the fundamental technique of battle employed by the Germans in 1939 and 1940 in the swift campaigns of Poland, Flanders, and France.

Not until recently have the A-B-C moves of infiltration as it is practiced by the Nazis in a mechanized blitz war been understood. Even the enemies of the reich over and thru whom the German legions spread by the use of infiltration failed to gain a clear concept of how their very defeat was fashioned around them. In almost every case infiltration was followed by movements of open warfare which were much more spectacular and which brought campaigns to a close. But the basis for each German victory was mechanized infiltration.

Now at last, after three years of war during which the Nazi land armies everywhere have been victorious, it has been possible to pare down to its essentials this technique of infiltration. By putting together fragments from Poland and Belgium and France, with the latest Russian dispatches, it is possible to see this hitherto nebulous infiltration concept that for 23 years has been associated with German arms.

Once understood, the tactics that have been called loose, long-odds gambling in men and equipment suddenly are revealed as sound and considered. Once put into operation, infiltration becomes an exact science that enables properly trained troops, coördinating all arms, including artillery and air, with mechanized infantry and tanks, to breach the strongest lines at small cost to human life.

Perhaps the best and quickest way to describe infiltration is to say what it is not. It does not consist merely of punching a hole in an enemy front, then rushing thru this breach vast quantities of men and equipment that might be trapped and cut off by a determined counterthrust. Furthermore, infiltration does not depend wholly upon heavy tanks that plow thru and then wander at will, even haphazardly, among the enemy's rear defensive, communication, and supply lines.

As the Germans do it their tanks never aimlessly circulate or roam widely in hostile territory. They do not waste their strength and power at extended distances from powerful supporting forces or at long distances from advanced refueling and supply bases. Instead, at no period of the battle are tanks more than one or two miles away from a haven or refuge to which they can retire for service, fuel, ammunition, fresh crews, or to gather reënforcements before proceeding against the next objective.

The Nazi coördination and control of all arms is such that even in the fog of battle all branches constantly operate against specific targets and brace and counterbrace each other. Apparently this system offsets all weaknesses inherent in mechanized forces.

As the Nazis have repeatedly said, the objective of their tactics is total destruction of the opposing forces. They seek not merely to dislodge defenders but also to capture or annihilate them. In its essence it is similar to modern mining methods. Miners drill a series of holes into an ore body, place charges in the holes, then blast the whole mass loose by exploding the charges.

This is a close parallel to German infiltration methods as practiced now in Russia and as developed in the Polish, Flemish, and French battles.

Simplified for clear vision of its vital action, it is seen that the Germans drill a series of holes thru enemy frontal defenses. Then they push a continually increasing charge of men and fire power into these borings. Finally these charges are exploded outward and forward.

The infiltration period of battle is a continual repetition on both large and small scales of this operation. It is a case of drive, consolidate, spread, and then drive again until the whole depth of the enemy defenses has been breached.

Then and only then does the well established technique of open warfare—the movement of swift columns and pincers—come into play. Only after this major breaching has been accomplished by infiltration do the Germans commence their encircling and enfolding movements. All the open warfare, as I said before, is predicated upon a successful working of the blitz infiltration that must crack the defensive shell, let the attackers thru, and make possible swift movements on a large scale.

Every modern army—our own as well—must be equipped with today's weapons to make infiltration work. In Russia the Germans are well equipped with the airplanes, the mechanized artillery, the tanks of varying weights, the anti-tank units, the motorcycle scouts, the armored troop-carrying tractor trucks, and the automatic weapons of all calibers and ranges that are needed. The land over which the fighting is being conducted has a bearing on this—in the jungle different equipment is demanded than in fighting on plains, for example—but infiltration will not work unless the proper weapons and trained troops are available.

German barrages are brief—usually not more than half an hour.

Let us now look at the German army and see how it delivers a major assault. The objective is to break thru an area where opponents have established lines of defense—trenches, mine fields, hidden artillery, hidden anti-tank guns, hidden tank-killer tanks, tank traps, lots of brave and well led infantry and artillery, with a fair curtain of fighter defense in the air. The intention is to achieve the breach, then pour forces into the enemy rear areas and thus surround the troops and equipment on the immediate front.

According to German dictum, no assault is carried out without previous reconnaissance, both air and ground, to determine weak spots. These may be points where fire from only one group of positions covers the front, or they may be supposedly strong forts that are readily attacked from the air. At any rate, the Germans insist that assaults be made against the weakest (relatively) spots in the enemy line. The more powerful points should be by-passed, surrounded, and dealt with at leisure.

Long bombardments are out today. They give too much warning to the enemy. So the Germans say that a bombardment from air and artillery lasting half an hour should be sufficient. So we watch the Germans lay their barrage. It beats at known artillery positions, falls on mine fields, on fortified points, on trenches, fox holes, anti-tank emplacements, and on infantry concentrations.

Almost all weapons take part in this bombardment—mortars, light artillery of the 75 and 105 mm. weights, heavier artillery up to the weightiest guns available, and both horizontal and dive bombers. The intention is to make this brief bombardment as paralyzing as possible.

Toward its close mortars and chemical squads commence dropping smoke curtains to smother the enemy positions. The mortar shells are dropped so that wind will drift their smoke over the enemy advance posts. And the chemical units, dragging their smoke containers, move out as closely as possible to do the same job. As the smoke is being laid the German artillery lifts from the front but continues firing at roads, paths, and highways, at enemy gun positions now supposedly answering the fire.

A general activity along the whole length of the front commences, largely as a feint to keep all defenders busy. Then, rolling out of the smoke and unseen until they are almost on top of the defense, come the real assaults, concentrated at the previously picked points. The smoke has prevented the defenders from seeing the direction these attacks would take until just before they were delivered. This brief start is all that is required in modern war to give the offensive that "sprinter's lead" that pays off so well in all sports.

Heavy tanks and storm artillery lead. The tanks roll over obstructions, crush light guns, shoot up infantry, and press ahead to make the break-thru. Close behind them comes the storm artillery, heavy, high-velocity guns mounted on tractor treads and well armored. They can be swung in a complete circle and may be fired either from a standstill or from the tractor in motion. They are intended as anti-tank killers or as killers for enemy tanks.

Close behind the heaviest tanks come lighter tanks and the tank infantry. In infiltration the tank infantry is often on motorcycles, but in difficult terrain this infantry advances on foot. Usually this infantry consists of a high proportion of pioneer or engineering company troops. They are along to fight enemy troops that pop out of fox holes and attack tanks from point-blank range with Molotov cocktails or flame throwers. They also must remove mine fields or blow up tank obstructions if these obstacles cause the advance to bog down.

Coördinated with this advance by both ground signal and radio are squadrons of more dive bombers. These form the ultra-mobile artillery for the advancing tanks. A well protected anti-tank gun, let us say, holds up the advance. The tank commanders call on the dive bombers and they blast this enemy strong point with 1,000-pound bombs that are more effective than the heaviest artillery fire. The dive bombers are always ready, and inasmuch as squadrons continually are overhead, they can be called into action on a moment's notice.

Graphic Laboratory of Popular Science

In heavy going against strong defenses the initial objectives of several of these "drilling columns" will not be far inside enemy lines. A mile or two would be the limit. Driving forward, the tanks reach this point, clear away enemy resistance immediately around it, and then roll to a halt at spots best calculated to provide their gun crews with good fields of fire. In effect they drive a thin line into the enemy and then establish an "island" at a preselected point. Their duties then become those of defending this island.

Toward it now commences the movement of large numbers of anti-tank guns, dual-purpose mobile artillery of varying weights, infantry, supplies of fuel and ammunition for the tank guns and for the light and heavy machine guns of all the vehicles. The infantry is mechanized, like every other group in these forces. This is done to speed up the movement—because the Germans say that speed is the essence of such tactics—and also to provide the maximum protection for the men who are engaged in the battle.

The infantry carriers are typical. They consist of huge combined tractor and auto vehicles. Power is applied to a great tractor belt, but there are wheels ahead of these belts for better steering and for floating a well armored motor. These vehicles have high steel armor plate sides that turn light and heavy machine gun fire and all light anti-tank missiles unless these strike at 90-degree angles. And within their spacious beds is room for 20 to 24 men, gasoline, ammunition for mortars and machine guns, and other vital equipment.

Usually these trucks also tow infantry cannon—gun howitzers up to 105 mm. that are part of all German infantry units—and the German 50-mm. anti-tank guns. Thirty of these carriers can carry a stripped battalion of 600 men in a single load.

Trains of these armored carriers and supporting light tanks and motorcycle troops roll thru the gaps cut by the heavy tanks. They follow, in fact, immediately on the heels of the heavier tanks, moving in before the enemy can reorganize after the first assault. They are capable of moving over any terrain a tank can cover, and their armor enables them to disregard the light infantry weapons that may be turned against them. They ignore firing from their flanks unless this is from heavy weapons. And, best of all, they are able usually to deliver their cargoes almost intact to the island held by the heavy tanks.

Once at the island, these vehicles are unloaded rapidly and return swiftly to German lines for new cargoes of men and supplies. The first loads take up positions of defense and set up radio communication with headquarters in the rear. Soon their initial defenders are augmented by new loads of troops and supplies, and they push out, enlarging their island. At the same time other troops are fighting along the break, seeking to widen it as quickly as possible. All this, if it follows the ideal schedule, may be accomplished within a matter of two hours.

The troop and supply carriers commence running almost bus service schedules, bringing up guns, supplies, and always more troops to each of the islands. The break lines are being constantly widened, and soon the islands have become sizable areas within which tanks can be refueled and rearmed and within which crews can be rested and prepared for the next step forward. Mechanics repair damaged vehicles, units are given reënforcements to bring them to full strength once more, and they roll out to batter the enemy in the neighborhood once more.

When the garrisons of these support points have attained sufficient strength the second part of the attack begins. This con-

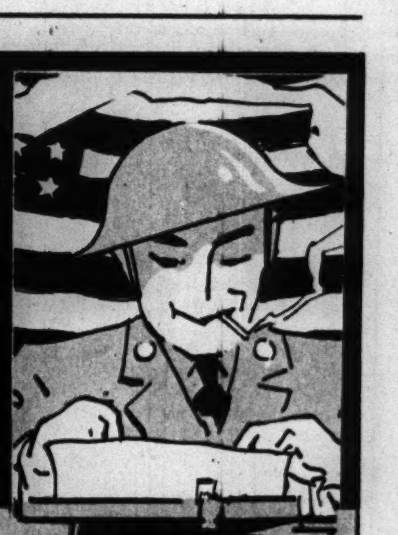
PRIVATE FAY ON PARADE!



In camp, on the march, deep in his fox hole, Pvt. William C. Fay, formerly a member of the sports staff of The Tribune, doesn't forget to save up his notes on army life. Private Fay is a man who can think well of a sergeant, find natural beauties along the last half mile of a 30-mile hike, or grow philosophic over scrambled eggs in the rain. Sometimes he writes on the end of his cot, sometimes on the fender of a supply truck, sometimes he "borrows" a headquarters portable. Privates are busy men, and Private Fay is no exception. The asterisks in this series indicate time out for the war.

By PVT. WILLIAM C. FAY

OUR TROOP TRAIN was rolling southward in the darkness. After three days at the army induction center in Fort Meade, Maryland, we were on the way to ? We didn't know. All army troop movements are secret.

Said the soldier to my left: "It's this time last Thursday. I'm sitting on the back porch. I'm saying, 'Gosh, mom, that was a swell supper!' And we just sit there on the swing. It's nice and cool and we don't talk much. . . . That was last Thursday! Now where am I?"

We were lolling comfortably in leather chairs in the ladies' room.

We arrived at Camp Forrest, Tennessee, at 6 p. m. after 25 hours on the train. Band at station playing, "You're in the Army Now." Nice to have your suspicions confirmed.

This morning we were assigned to companies, some of us to infantry, others to artillery, medical corps, etc. On the way to lunch a northern boy said: "I'm sure glad I got into the infantry instead of the artillery. At least I won't have to pick up those big shells."

Today it was drill—drill—drill, with lectures during rest periods on military courtesy. Our instructors, mostly second lieutenants, like to spice their talks with jokes, some about Hitler and others which are printable. Example:

A three-day rookie was standing guard. His uniform didn't fit. Naturally. The army has only two sizes—too large and too small. A captain, in tailor-mades, passed the rookie, who neglected to salute.

"Soldier," the captain said sternly, "didn't you notice this uniform?"

Honest admiration popped the rookie's eyes. "——!" he exclaimed. "That's a honey, ain't it? Just look at the —— —— —— they gave me!"

I went to the movies tonight and saw Dorothy Lamour—most of her, anyway. The picture was one in her sarong cycle. Best laugh of the night wasn't in the Lamour epic, however. It was the newsreel, with Paul McNutt pointing a stern finger at us (a theater full of soldiers), warning us against the evils of labor pirating and urging us, if we wanted to change our present job, to make use of his United States Employment Service.

First thing in the morning, Paul.

Here's army joke No. 2. It cropped up during a class on military tactics one morning. Our first problem, said the instructor, concerned three ducks crossing a small stream. The poppa duck finally waddled up on the opposite bank—the momma duck followed. Then the baby duck. The baby duck caught its breath, then said triumphantly, "Well, all four of us made it!"

"Why," asked our instructor, "did the baby duck say, 'All four of us made it' when only three ducks swam the stream?"

Answer: The baby duck couldn't count.

The commanding general made an inspection visit this afternoon. I was assigned to the guard of honor. That meant clean uniforms, polished shoes, and an army haircut for those of us who still retained our civilian hair-dos.

The sergeant marched 30 of us to the barber shop at 10:20. Only three barbers, and we had to be back to barracks for early lunch at 11:30. The boss barber, who operated from the right chair, reminded me of the old cartoon of two hillbillies, Zeke and Lem, who were sprawled out, backs resting against a fallen tree.

Said Zeke: "Gosh, Lem, you look so dern comfortable. I wish I had my legs crossed, too."

The boss barber, reminiscent of Zeke, was tall, skinny, had an Adam's apple golf-ball size and a jawful of tobacco he sucked rather than chewed. He spurned scissors, used electric clippers and comb exclusively and devastatingly. His average cutting time was six minutes. He always grunted the question, "Want it short?"

He would grunt again, step to the side, pucker his lips, and C-L-A-N-G! He never missed the brass spittoon on the floor.

When he finished he would squint at what hair remained, pucker—C-L-A-N-G. "Next!"

I was last in line.

"Want it short?"

"No. Just a trim, please."

C-L-A-N-G!—5:23 later—C-L-A-N-G!

I was shorn. So were 29 other guys. He shut off his clippers. In the cash box was $12. Thirty shorn soldiers at 40 cents per.

C-L-A-N-G!

We very nearly won the war this morning. Cook made flapjacks. Refuses to divulge his process, but the product is unmistakable. Synthetic rubber.

Beans for supper. Our first. We're in the army now.

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD with HEDDA HOPPER

WHEN I first came out to Hollywood, eons ago, the studios were almost hysterically engrossed with good form, social usage and the finer points of etiquet as practiced by polite society. Emily Post's modest classic, then hot off the press, was the industry's Bible, and producers badgered their research departments as much over the proper setting for a bridge tea as they did over an authentic reproduction of Westminster Abbey.

I recall a bitter controversy that raged on a certain set for one entire morning. The prop man had provided a tray of cocktails, each containing an olive impailed upon a slender silver fork. Nobody knew just where they'd come from—no one on the set had seen such things in use before and no one was able to decide whether they were the last word in chic, or a glaring vulgarity which would expose Hollywood to ribald cracks from a sophisticated audience.

This was the opening shot of a swank dinner party. If cocktail forks were a new, smart touch, the director had no intention of letting them get away from him. If, on the other hand, some one in props had inventive ideas, he declined to be the guinea pig for a social experiment. A lady visitor from the haute monde arrived on the set when things had reached fever heat. She was appealed to and graciously gave the forks her blessing—saving the day for props and heaven knows how many thousands for the studio whose production was being held up!

No less jealous supervision prevailed in the social behavior of celluloid society. A screen gentleman was the last word in chivalry, poise and tender, yet manly, respect for sacred womanhood. The heroine was as safe with him as she'd be in church, and the heroine herself gave off gentility in a thick vapor which often obscured the finer points of the plot. They were so gosh darned refined they squeaked!

Ah me! Then came the postwar generation, the depression, the speakeasy era, or what have you. Suddenly it was no longer smart for ladies to be ladylike or men to be courteous. Our so-called smart young folks were getting themselves plastered in public, their social register mammas were rushing around having their pictures taken for magazines, advertising everything from cold creams to mattresses—college men made a point of dressing like something that had been fished out of a manhole, and flappers interlarded their conversations with expressions hitherto confined to bordellos. Exhibitionism was on the rampage and the sky was the limit.

The screen, which reflects "life in our time"—took off its corsets, heaved a gusty sigh and, tossing Emily Post into the nearest ash can, sent out for a copy of the "Queensberry Rules." Today, anything that goes in the ring, goes in the drawing room, and to stay in either you've got to be able to take it. If the old order was sometimes pretty terrible, the new order is worse—and the merry quipster who announced that bad taste was better than no taste at all—had quite evidently never seen some of our modern light screen entertainment.

Back around 1930, Jack Oakie made his picture debut in the screen version of the musical comedy, "Hit the Deck." Somewhere in the opus, Jack, who played a tough gob, in a fit of exasperation hauled off and booted a B girl (Glenda Farrell, I think), who was giving him the run-around. This bit of horse play drew belly laughs from the audience and put a permanent kick in pictures. For months afterwards, a writer who couldn't work a good sound kick into the script somewhere was a gonner. From then on they were kicked in all the best drawing rooms, not to mention the boudoir.

Next, Jimmy Cagney jammed an overripe grapefruit into the beautiful face of Mae Clarke, in "Public Enemy," and woe to any femme star thereafter who balked at the custard pie routine. A gentleman was once a man who never slapped a lady, no matter what the provocation. Now, our really fashionable screen hero not only slaps them, he kicks, slugs, shakes, and spanks them at the drop of a hat—any of which attentions so highly inflames the lady in question that she swoons with passion for him. Any day I look to see one of our screen blue-bloods bite a hunk out of some glamor gal's ear—mayhem being the only form of romantic expression overlooked, to date.

Nor is the strong-arm stuff confined to the stronger sex. In almost any picture today you'll see the heroine, overcome with tender emotion, clout her screen lover on the head with the nearest weapon at hand. This, too, works like magic.

In 20th Century's recent screening of "The Black Swan," Maureen O'Hara slapped George Sanders so hard that tears came to his eyes (I didn't think even onions could do that!), and it was a good thirty seconds before he could go on with his acting. It speaks pretty well for George that he remained true to his pre-film training and refrained from knocking her cold. Maureen said she was sorry and that her brothers in Dublin hadn't taught her to pull her punches—so we can take it for granted that (socially speaking) the Irish are right in there slugging, too.

A glance at the score sheet shows a fairly even balance between the sexes. In "Texas," Claire Trevor laid Glenn Ford out with a bung starter—in "Go West, Young Lady," Penny Singleton did the same with an iron skillet. In "The Desperados," Evelyn Keyes bats him on the head, first with a horse shoe and then with a water bucket. In "Forest Rangers," Paulette Goddard, responding to the romantic urge, turns a fire hose on Fred MacMurray—and later he spanks Paulette.

In "No Time for Love," Fred gets slapped, this time by Claudette Colbert. In "My Sister Eileen," Janet Blair and Roz Russell mix things up and Janet takes on Allyn Joslyn and George Tobias for a good going over. In "They All Kissed the Bride," Joan Crawford unhooks a full arm swing at Melvyn Douglas. In "The Meanest Man in the World," Priscilla Lane dittoes Jack Benny, and in "Priorities on Parade," Betty Jane Rhodes, as a lady welder, goes around slugging all the boys impartially, just to show them how strong she is.

Irene Dunne took a tanning from Patric Knowles in "Lady in a Jam," and Lana Turner was knocked cold by Bob Taylor in "Johnny Eager" and had plenty of rough handling from Clark Gable in "Honky Tonk." The champion to date is perhaps young Diana Barrymore, who in her first starrer at Universal, "Between Us Girls," gets punched in the eye, booted and spanked by her lover, Bob Cummings, and severely slapped by a heavyweight wrestler—all of which she returns with interest.

But why go on? The list is interminable and it all adds up to the same thing. All of the studios are doing it to all of their people, and each picture strives to top the last one released. Since the public obviously enjoys this type of entertainment, it bespeaks a curious phase of modern psychology. Oscar Wilde once said that "Nature copies art," and if this be true, we are evidently developing a new style of genus homo. Whether the modern male, subconsciously annoyed at having his former prerogatives usurped by the weaker sex, gets a kick out of seeing them slapped around—whether the modern girl, secretly burned up at the passive resistance of her male contemporaries, enjoys a vicarious thrill from seeing one of her sisters beat up by a screen lover—willy nilly, we have this new conception of romance between the sexes which seems to thrive only on violence.

Perhaps it's just the old caveman routine refurbished—a wistful return to the primitive. In "Moon and Sixpence," George Sanders says to the Tahitian girl whom he's planning to marry: "I shall beat you, you know." And Ata, the dusky belle, casts down her eyes and replies shyly, "How else should I know that you love me?"

Time was, when the smitten swain would spread a spotless handkerchief upon the parlor carpet, drop to one knee, clasp the fluttering fingers of his lady fair and stammer: "Miss Simkins—say the word that will make me the proudest and happiest of men!" The modern Romeo snatches up a phone and shouts: "I love you, kid! Meet me at the stadium tonight and we'll slug it out—whaddya say?" But, strangely enough, in either case, young people manage to keep on getting themselves married. So, you see? It's still love that makes the world go round—even if today it has to go 15 rounds before the wedding bell rings!

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

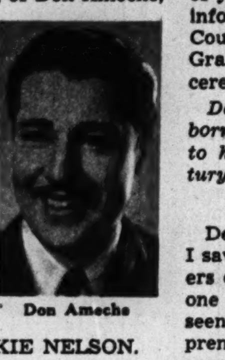
Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I enjoy the acting and singing of Don Ameche, and I'm wondering why he does not appear in more pictures. What is the latest picture he has made? Also some information on his life and a picture.

Thank you very much. I wish you a lot of good luck.

Yours truly,

MISS JACKIE NELSON.



Don Ameche

Dear Miss Nelson: So nice of you to write. Don Ameche's most recent film is "The Magnificent Dope," opposite Henry Fonda and Lynn Bari. He was born in Kenosha, Wis., and educated Columbia college and University of Wisconsin. He's 6 feet tall, weighs 170 pounds, and has dark hair and eyes. Married and has four children. Appeared on stage and in radio before entering motion pictures.

Dear Miss Tinée: I am also one of your fans. I enjoy reading your information about the movie stars. Could you tell me how old Betty Grable is, and her address? Sincerely, BETTY TOPEL.

Dear Betty: Betty Grable was born Dec. 18, 1916. You can write to her in care of Twentieth Century-Fox studio, Beverly Hills, Cal.

Dear Miss Mae Tinée: Recently I saw George Montgomery in "Riders of the Purple Sage." It is just one of the many pictures I have seen him in. Outside of his supreme handsomeness I think he can act as well as any of the other actors in Hollywood. I was overcome when I saw his first picture, "The Cowboy and the Blonde." I wish I could write him a fan letter. Would you please put his address in your column? Thanks a lot.

CATHERINE GAINES.

Dear Miss Gaines: Mr. Montgomery will be mighty happy to hear from you, I'm sure. Here's his address: Twentieth Century-Fox studio, Beverly Hills, Cal.

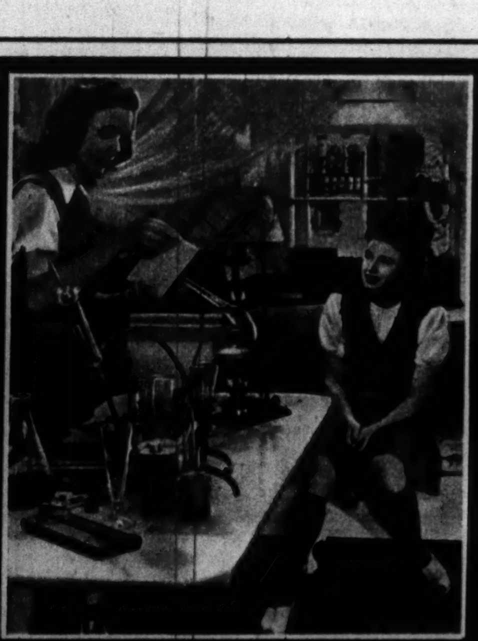
GRAPHIC LITTLE THEATER PRESENTS GINGER ROGERS IN "The Major and The Minor"

1 Susan Applegate (Ginger Rogers), a farm girl from Iowa, discovers that her latest job as scalp expert is like all the rest, an invitation to men customers to make a play for her. When Mr. Osborne (Robert Benchley) proves to be a wolf in sleek clothing she gives him an unfinished egg treatment and walks out.

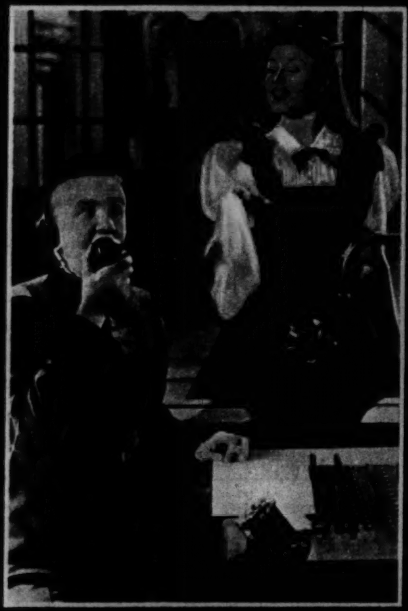
2 Thru with New York, Susan heads for Iowa, but the fare she had saved doesn't meet the increased rates. So Susan converts herself into a half-fare passenger. It works until the conductor discovers her secret, so she seeks shelter in the drawing room of a Maj. Philip Kirby (Ray Milland). He immediately takes a liking to the "child" and gives her his lower berth.

3 It is all very innocent, except to Pamela Hill (Rita Johnson), Kirby's fiancee, who boards the train to surprise him and is surprised herself instead. Pamela leaves in a huff and a hurry.

4 Maj. Kirby is instructor in a military academy headed by Pamela's father, and he realizes that Pamela's "misunderstanding" could ruin his career. So to prove his innocence he demands that the little Susan be his week-end guest, and she goes to Col. Hill's home, masquerade and all.



5 Susan's kid act fools every one but Pamela's little sister, Lucy (Diana Hill). Lucy agrees to keep Susan's secret if Susan will help her stop Pamela's plot to keep Kirby out of active service, which he has been seeking. They steam open a letter of Pam's and discover she has been writing an influential friend in the war department that Kirby's services at the academy are indispensable.



6 Susan does help. Vamping the switchboard operator, she puts thru a call to Washington. Imitating Pamela's voice, she convinces the influential friend that the academy after all feels it must not stand in the way of Kirby's active career.

7 Kirby gets his call to duty. Susan is delighted and makes a date to meet him after a dance at which she is guest of honor. She wants to tell him something. But her partner, Cadet Osborne (Frankie Thomas), has invited his parents, and Mr. Osborne recognizes the scalp expert.

8 He tells Pamela, and when Susan arrives to meet Kirby she finds the angry fiancee instead. "If you don't leave here as a child," storms Pamela, "I'll reveal a scandal that will ruin his career."

9 Susan goes home to Iowa, but shortly Kirby comes to see the "little girl" for whom he had acquired a strange affection. Desperately, Susan masquerades as her own mother, telling him Susan is visiting relatives. "I'm sorry," he says, "because I'm leaving for active duty. Susan probably told you about Pamela. She broke our engagement and married a business man with a sturdy 4F rating."

10 Delighted by this news, Susan says good-by, then rushes into her own clothes, and to the station. Kirby is surprised to have the beautiful young lady speak to him, yet has a vague feeling that he knows her. "Going west?" he asks. "Yes," Susan replies, "to marry a soldier before he goes on active duty—a fine chap named Maj. Phil Kirby." (THE END)

GUARD YOUR WAR-TIME COLORS AND FABRICS FOR LONGER WEAR!

Use the Ivory Flakes way

TODAY, MORE THAN EVER, you'll appreciate the way Ivory Flakes take good care of every nice thing you wash. So mild, so gentle, this fast flake form of Baby's pure Ivory Soap is a real protection for cheery colors, precious fabrics.

DON'T SAVE IVORY FLAKES for your stockings and undies alone. Many colored things you pile into the family wash should get gentle Ivory Flakes care. Today dyes and fabrics are changing! Treat them gently for longer wear! Avoid strong soaps! Trust your war-time colors and fabrics to Ivory Flakes.

RULES FOR LONGER WEAR!

BRIGHT RAYONS—Prints or plain—dresses, blouses, housecoats, slacks.

WOOLENS, MIXTURES—Sweaters, blankets, socks, dresses.

GAY COTTONS—Sports clothes, better dresses.

WASHABLE HOME FURNISHINGS—Good table linen, bedspreads, curtains, draperies, slipcovers.

To help colors and fabrics stay lovely:

AVOID hard rubbing, or long, punishing runs in a washer, which may loosen dyes, weaken or shrink fabrics.

DON'T use strong soaps or hot water.

RINSE in lukewarm water.

DRY away from heat or sun.

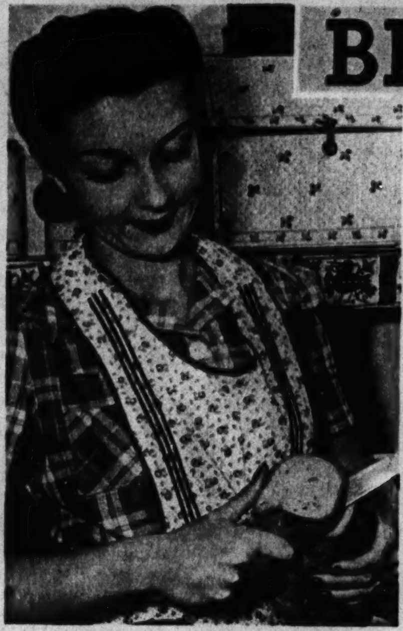
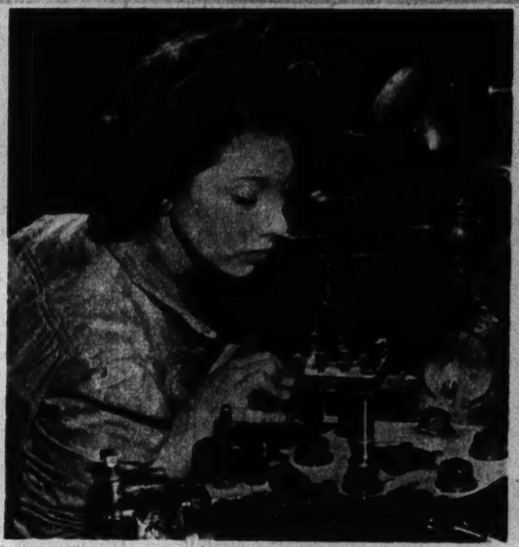
BE CAREFUL



1 It's not only un-smart but unpatriotic to have 'accidents. At home, don't do foolish things like this. Cut away from you.



2 In the factory, wear a cap or tight net to keep that hair away from machinery.

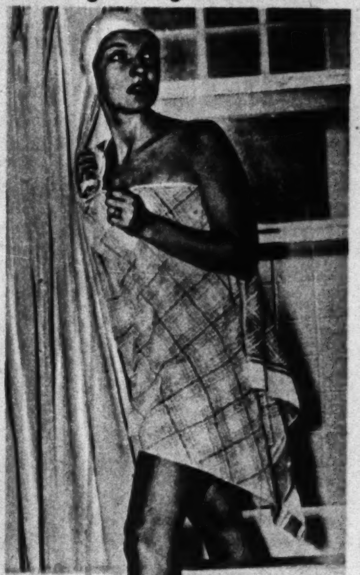
3 And don't trust to shaky footing when you are climbing—use something solid and big enough to stand on.



4 Similarly at home, don't step from the tub to a bare floor. Insurance statistics predict 51,000 accidental deaths in homes for 1942.

DO NOT DISTURB

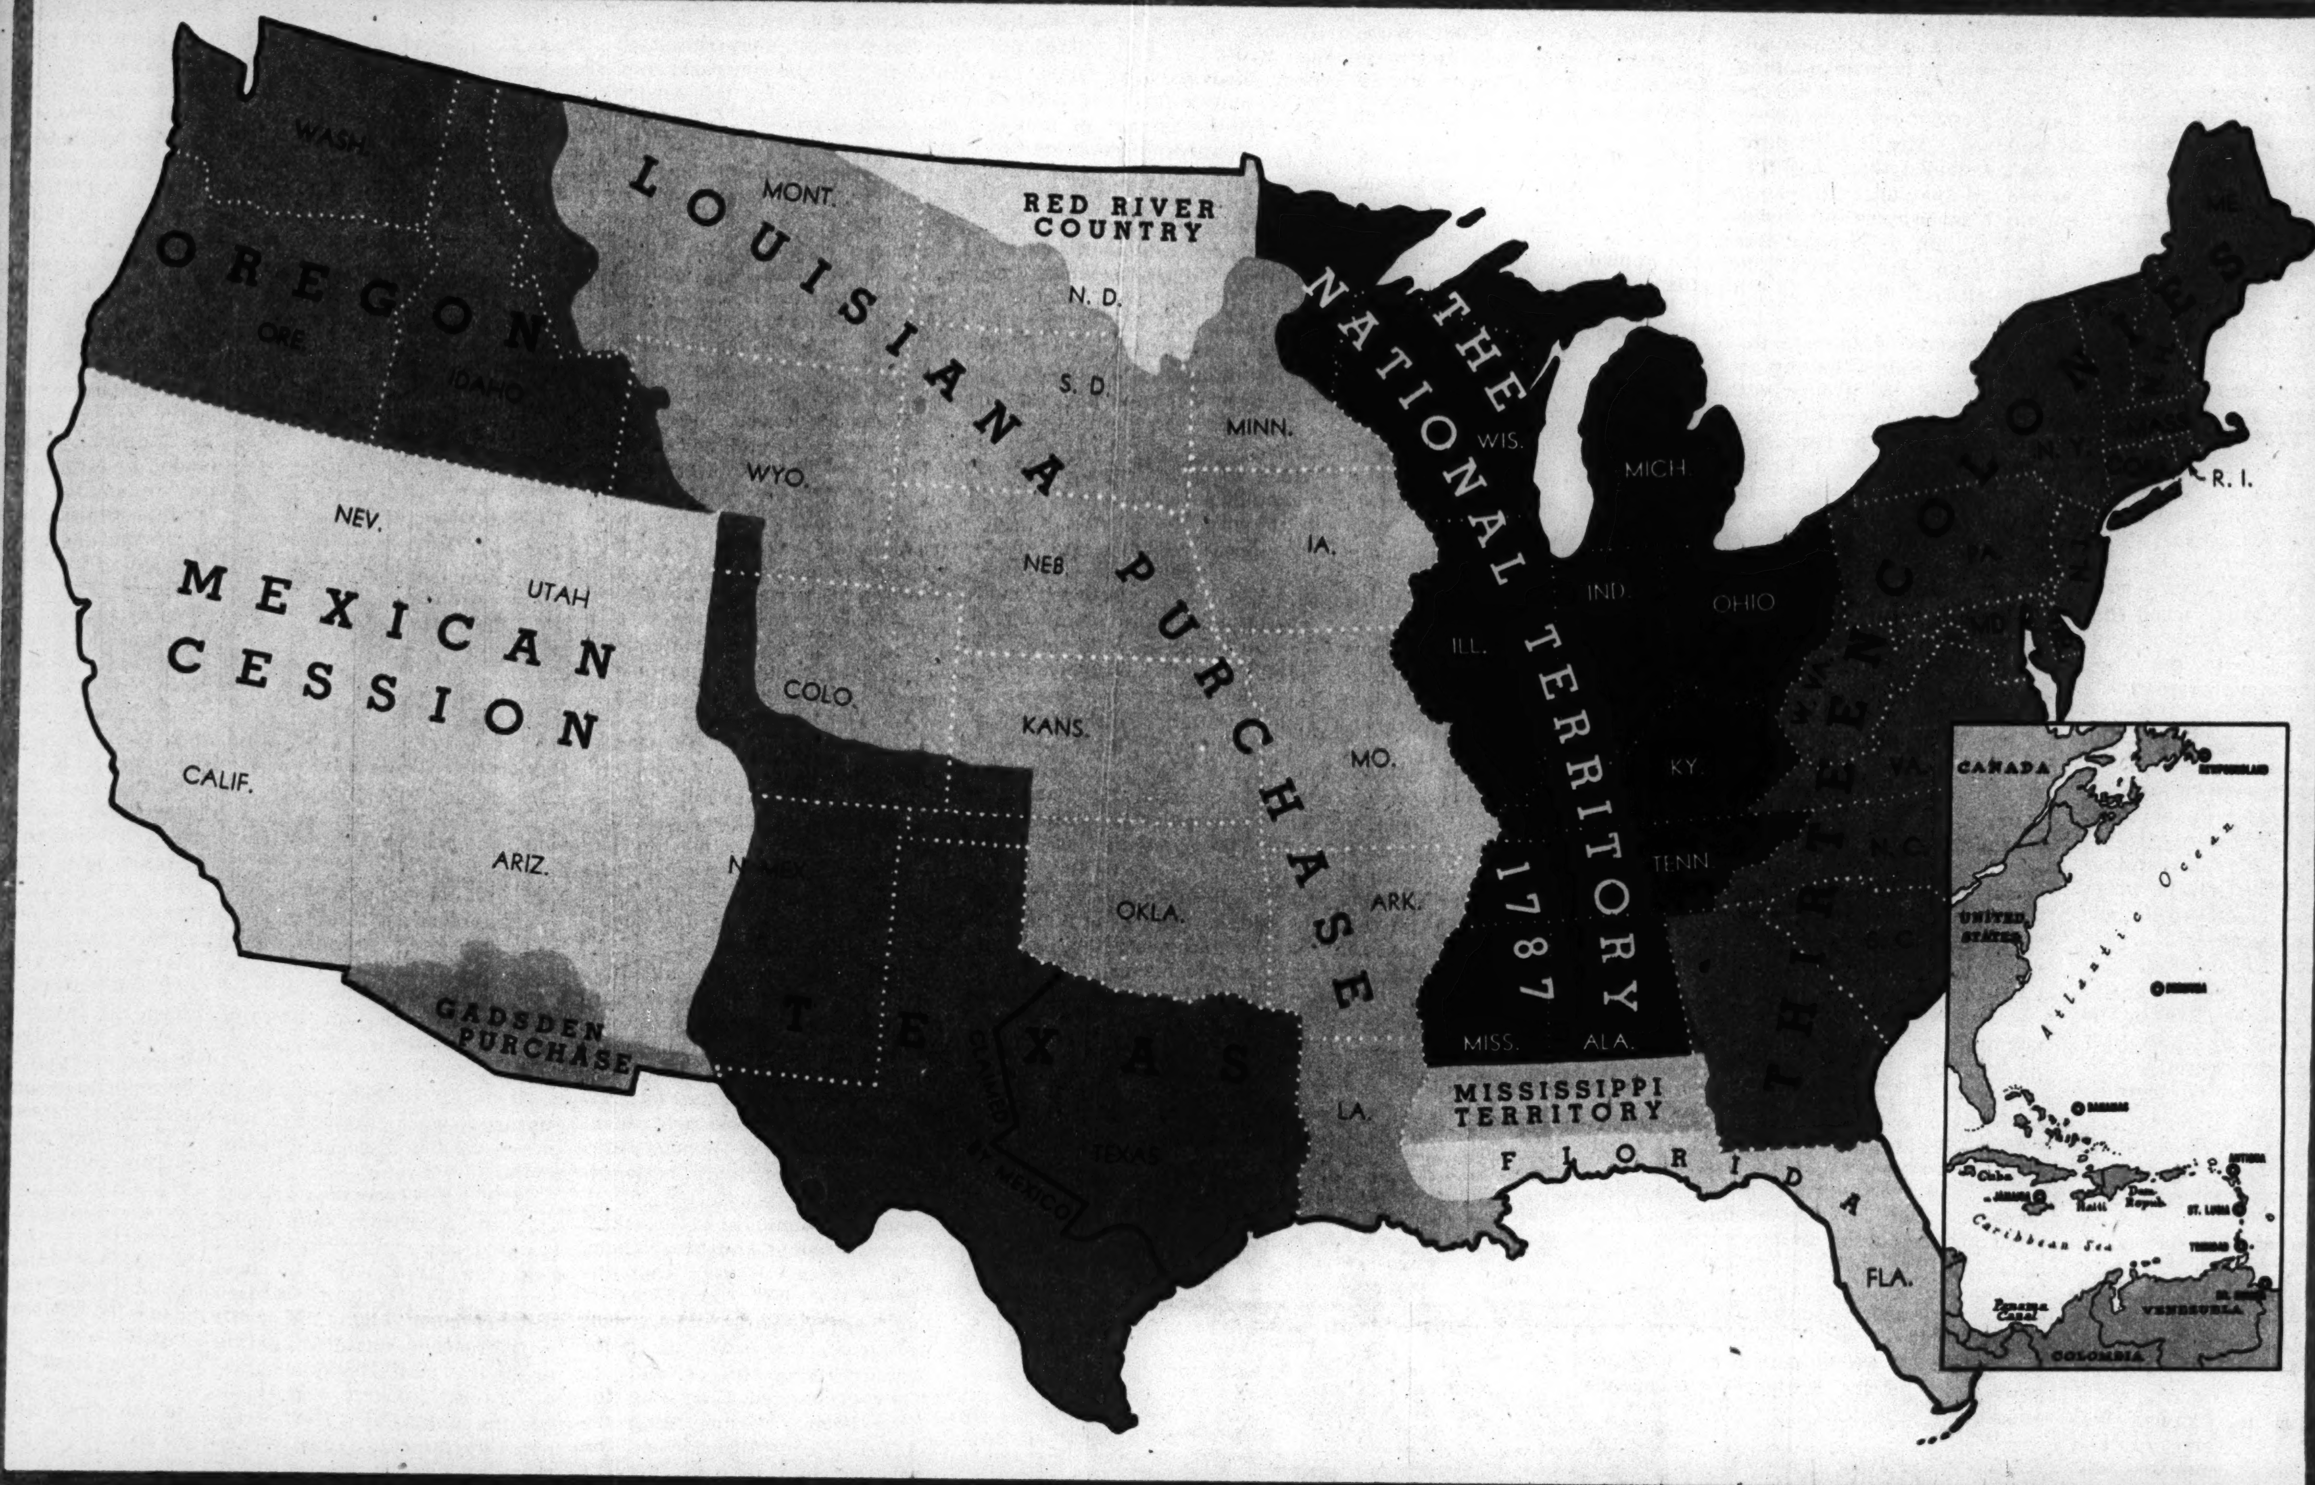
HOW WE ACQUIRED OUR NATIONAL TERRITORY

By
Robert R. McCormick



Map showing the territories described in this story, including, in the inset map, the island air and naval bases in the Atlantic and Caribbean.

THE NATIONAL TERRITORY

WE HAVE now seen how the original 13 states were settled. Now we will consider the accretions which have made our nation as it is today.

The Frenchman, Cartier, like other early discoverers, was looking for China. He thought the St. Lawrence river came from there and named the rapids at Montreal "La Chine," the French for China. Here the capital, Montreal, was established and from here explorers pushed out over the radiating waterways.

Northward the Ottawa river rose in an interminable wilderness. To the south progress by Lake Champlain was stopped first by the warlike Iroquois and then by English and Dutch settlers. To the west the water highway extended unvexed for thousands of miles.

Ascending the St. Lawrence river, crossing Lake Ontario, and passing Niagara Falls, the French empire builders came to a convenient promontory on the south shore of Lake Erie, which they named Presque Isle, and fortified.

A few miles inland they found the headwaters of the Allegheny river on French creek. Floating down that stream to the confluence of the rivers that form what is now known as the Ohio river, they built Fort Duquesne and clashed with a young man who was to loom large in French, British, and American affairs—George Washington.

Farther west they met no opposition. Marquette and Joliet discovered the Chicago portage; La Salle followed the Mississippi to its mouth and claimed the entire valley for his sovereign. Du Lhut, another famous French explorer, navigated Lake Superior to its western tip.

In that far-off day, the French placed the same misguided confidence in forts that they did in 1939. They built tremendous structures at all strategic points—Fort Duquesne, Fort St. Louis, Fort Chartres, Fort Vincennes, Fort Niagara—all of which were to fall or to be evacuated.

There was no such western pathway for the English settlers as the St. Lawrence river. The only easy pass, thru the Appalachain mountain range, that of the Mohawk valley in New York, was held by the mighty Iroquois nation. South of that the valleys were too steep for the explorer's canoe.

The New England colonies, moreover, were contained by the province of New York and Canada. Their people turned to the sea.

Expansion of Pennsylvania was definitely stopped by Braddock's defeat.

It was from the southern colonies therefore that western extension began. The famous Daniel Boone and the almost forgotten Henderson crossed the divide and established settlements that were to grow into the states of Kentucky and Tennessee.

The conquest of New France by Forbes, Johnson, Amherst, and Wolfe did not immediately change the status of the western country, for King George III. forbade the colonies to settle west of the Allegheny mountain range and thereby furnished one of the three main causes of the Revolutionary war.

A few Dutch drifting north, but many more New Englanders going west, began populating the mountain country east of Lake Champlain. A dispute arising as to whether the country was a part of New York or New Hampshire, an order of the king in council awarded the land to New York which was in the better grace with the British authorities, while the proclamation of 1763 placed part of the country in the jurisdiction of Canada.

The population formed a military organization, the Green Mountain Boys, who defied the royal authority. It was this organization that captured Fort Ticonderoga in 1775. The country was ruled by committees of safety until 1778 when a state government was set up. Vermont was not admitted to the Continental Congress because both New Hampshire and New York claimed it.

The same year a declaration of independence was adopted. The name New Connecticut was first taken, later to be changed to Vermont.

The tiny republic maintained its independence from the British empire until that nation recognized the independence of the United States. It continued as a free republic until 1790 when New York recognized the state which was admitted into the Union in 1791.

A century and a half later when some rich summer residents established a fox hunt in the English manner, the natives would not let them wear red coats reminiscent of British soldiers.

After Spaniards from St. Louis had advanced into Canada as far as St. Joseph, George Rogers Clark of Virginia, raising an army in Kentucky, captured Kaskaskia and Cahokia on the Mississippi, Vincennes on the Wabash, and the falls of the Ohio, and repelled an attack on St. Louis.

The French settlers welcomed him, and the territory from which the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and portions of New York, Pennsylvania, and Virginia were later to be formed was ceded to the United States in the peace treaty.

After the peace the Indians resisted the encroachments of settlers. They defeated the army of Gen. St. Clair in 1771, and dominated the country west of the mountains until overthrown by Gen. Wayne at the battle of Fallen Timbers in 1794, but another battle had to be fought at Tippecanoe, Indiana, in 1811.

The little known War of 1812, beginning with the Fort Dearborn massacre, was primarily a war of the western settlers against the Indians, and in this they were entirely successful, altho it was not until 1833 that the Blackhawk war moved the red man across the Mississippi.

It will be seen, therefore, that the middle west was originally occupied by the French; taken from them by the British; invaded by the Spanish; and finally conquered by George Rogers Clark acting for the state of Virginia which ceded it to the Continental Congress; and that Vermont fought a separate war of independence and joined the United States in 1791.

Foreword This is the second of two special sections reprinting the absorbing account of the growth of the United States from its earliest days to the present. Designed originally as a series of radio addresses, the material was rearranged in chronological order and published in book form. The first section, published last Sunday, dealt with the 13 original colonies. This section carries the story on into the westward expansion and up to our most recent acquisition of territory—the bases in the Atlantic and Caribbean.

chartered by foreign rulers, the states of the Northwest Territory were created by the American nation. They have no colonial history and no colonial ties. Their mother country is the United States. The first settlers, veterans of the Continental Army, brought with them the fierce patriotism of the soldier of which veterans of all succeeding wars have continually renewed the flames.

Arrivals from east and south have absorbed this fervor, have mingled with and intermarried with the military settlers, and have forgotten both sectional and foreign attachments.

From this background springs the uncompromising nationalism of the middle west.

LOUISIANA

We have seen that when La Salle descended the Mississippi river from Lake Michigan to its mouth, he claimed the entire watershed for his king. Fur traders followed him and trading posts were established thruout the region, of which the principal one, St. Louis, was strategically located near the confluence of the Illinois and Missouri rivers with the Mississippi, as upon a crossroads of four great highways, and not far from the mouth of the Ohio river.

La Salle then went to the gulf coast by sea, only to be murdered by his followers. It remained for Le Moyne to found the city of New Orleans after other efforts at settlement had failed; for d'Iberville to organize the colony.

When France ceded Canada and all of Louisiana east of the Mississippi river to Great Britain in 1763, she secretly gave New Orleans and everything west of the river to Spain.

The only event of historical importance during the period of Spanish sovereignty was the display of military genius by Gov. Bernardo de Galvez, a young man in his 20's, who marched an army into Canada as far as St. Joseph during the Revolutionary war, and also reconquered Florida from the British.

Americans now moved into the Northwest Territory and Kentucky, and Tennessee; developed the fur trade; felled the forests, and produced a surplus of foodstuffs for export. Their only avenue to the world was down the Mississippi river and thru New Orleans. The Spanish colonial authorities who had worked harmoniously with the Americans during the Revolutionary war, favored this trade and allowed the transfer for freight from river to ocean bottoms for shipment to Spanish, French, or American ports.

The Spaniards, still thinking imperially, sought to dominate the valley and even encouraged American settlements west of the Mississippi, as at New Madrid. The settlers, in turn, having their communications with the world thru New Orleans, and cut off from the original states by the mountains, formed various projects for western governments—to the consternation of the United States authorities in Washington.

Meanwhile the French monarchy fell; the directory succeeded the Revolution; and as order came out of chaos, France's imperishable desire for colonial empire revived and found expression in the imperious mind of First Consul Bonaparte. This ingenious French soldier-diplomat traded an Italian duchy to Spain for Louisiana.

However, before the transaction was consummated, war became imminent, and Napoleon calculated that American money would buy war supplies, and that Louisiana in American hands would embroil that country with Britain, so he instructed his ministers to sell Louisiana to the Americans for fifty million francs.

By this time the Spanish government became dissatisfied with its Italian duchy in which French generals gave the law and collected the taxes, and sought to make trouble for France by abrogating the treaty which allowed American produce to pass thru New Orleans.

American anger flamed. The Federalist minority, seeking to capitalize the situation, clamored for a march on New Orleans, and as has often happened, forced a policy upon the party in power.

Jefferson was constrained to send Monroe to Europe as ambassador to buy New Orleans from France; also to try to buy from Spain the Floridas, between whom and the United States were many controversies and much friction.

Ensued one of those incidents which were to become commonplace in our diplomatic history. Our emissaries were completely hypnotized. The French diplomats persuaded them not even to see the Spaniards. Instead of buying New Orleans and Florida for 10 million dollars, or less, from Spain, they were sold Louisiana by France for 15 million dollars.

It is interesting to note that the king of Spain, having delayed signing the treaty with France until shortly before France delivered possession to America, the outraged French prefect utilized his brief reign to reinstate French law as it had been before the reforms of Napoleon, and this is still the law of Louisiana.

The treaty with France provided that French wines should always enter Louisiana free from duty, which part of the treaty became a scrap of paper in 1920 when national prohibition was enacted.

When the treaty was ratified by the senate and the payments appropriated by congress, the republic came into possession of the largest single acquisition in its history—a land running from the subtropics to the subarctic, from the Mississippi river across the Rocky mountains, from fertile river bottom to barren mountain top and desert; farming country, grazing country, mining country.

To the west of this domain a new frontier a thousand miles long had been created over which the restive American pioneers gazed hungrily at the lands of the dying empire of Spain. To the south of the old states, the Floridas remained filled with intrigue and disorder.

How this explosive condition burst into a whole series of wars, will be the subjects of subsequent chapters.

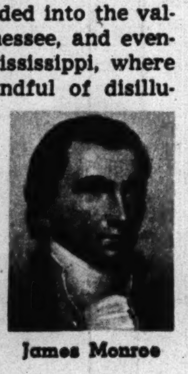
FLORIDA

Everyone has heard of Ponce de Leon, and his search for the fountain of youth. This almost mythical character discovered Florida in the year 1513 and claimed the North American continent for King Ferdinand of Castile.

Hardly less famous is De Soto, who, hoping to emulate Cortez's conquest of Mexico, landed a little army near Tampa, marched up the west coast of Florida, crossed Okefinokee swamp, at that time presumably a lake, and reached the Savannah river at the present site of Augusta, Ga.

Following this river to its head, he descended into the valley of the Tennessee, and eventually to the Mississippi, where he died. A handful of disillusioned survivors found their way to Tampico.

Other explorers, seekers after gold and conquest, followed—too many to mention—none of whom found gold or a civilization upon which to impose his rule.



James Monroe

It was for a group of French Huguenots to make the first successful settlement in Florida; they built a town and fort at the mouth of the St. John's river in 1564. However, they and their reënforcements were massacred by the Spaniards three years later. Their conqueror, Menendez, founded St. Augustine.

This city survived many vicissitudes to become the first Florida winter resort—and so, if not the fountain of youth, at least the refuge of old age.

The colony throve. Missions to the natives that conducted not only the religious but a large part of the economic life of the settlements extended to the present day Tallahassee and into what is now Georgia.

Not until a century later was the government of Pensacola established and then only because La Salle was planning French settlements on the gulf coast.

An English colony had been planted in Chesapeake bay as early as 1607. Subsequent settlements along the coast as far south as Beaufort brought the English and Spanish into contact and therefore into conflict.

The Floridas were now threatened from both west and north. Pensacola changed hands four times in one year. There were constant border wars and massacres, but it was not to hostile forces that Florida was destined to fall.

In 1762 the British navy and troops from Massachusetts and Virginia captured Havana, with a spoil of 20 odd million dollars. An amusing story is told of the disposal of the loot.

The bulk of it was kept by the British officers as aristocrats. A small amount was allotted to the Virginians as gentlemen. The Massachusetts soldiers, as tradesmen, received none at all. Among them was Israel Putnam, later to take deep revenge for this insult heaped upon injury.

To get Havana back, Spain ceded Florida to Britain.

As distinguished from colonies settled by companies with charter rights, Florida was taken by force, as was New York before it.

English governors replaced the Dutch and Spanish governors. English law replaced Dutch and Spanish law. Royal grants to individuals established populations that were loyal to the crown in the Revolution. Their descendants are noted for their attachment to Britain to this day.

Spanish armies from Louisiana reconquered Florida in 1781. In the peace treaty Florida went to Spain. Of this transaction the historian, Frederick Dow, says:

> "War having ceased with England, one of those numerous deals made in Europe with regard to possessions in America was arranged between the powers there, whereby Florida was again traded off to Spain for the Bahama Islands. The interests of the inhabitants of these traded countries seems to have been the least consideration."

The treaty between America and Britain after the Revolution double-crossed the Spaniards in providing that if Florida should be ceded to Spain, the north boundary should be the 31st parallel, but if retained by England the boundary should be 88 miles farther north. Spain was displeased, but stipulated in 1795 that the boundary should be the 31st parallel, west all the way to the Mississippi river.

In 1810 and 1812, citizens of western Florida, having revolted, organized a republic and asked admission to the Union. The United States occupied Florida from New Orleans to the Perdita river, claiming, in spite of the treaty of 1795, that this territory had been ceded with Louisiana.

In 1815 the British Col. Nichols captured Pensacola, while England and Spain were at peace, as a base from which to invade the United States, but was expelled by Gen. Andrew Jackson.

English traders, Indians, escaped slaves, and American revolutionists, at times assisted by American regular troops and warships, kept Florida in turmoil until finally Gen. Jackson invaded and pacified it in 1817, executing a number of disturbers, including two English merchants.

In 1819 all of Florida was ceded to the United States in settlement of damage claims of American citizens and the abandonment of the American right to Texas as part of the Louisiana Purchase.

TEXAS

When De La Salle, seeking the mouth of the Mississippi river, inadvertently landed in Texas, built a fort, and claimed the territory as part of Louisiana, Spanish occupation of Mexico was already 150 years old.

Its military and its missions were already established as far north as Santa Fe, where the Pueblo Indians had become a docile peasantry, but neither the military nor the missions could do anything with the Comanches in eastern Texas.

The American claim to Texas as part of the Louisiana Purchase, therefore, was about as good as most claims to territory in the new world, and it does not appear to have been questioned in the United States. When, however, disorders and frictions in Florida, to which we had no claim whatever, had reached a point where annexation had become the only possible solution, President Monroe was approaching his second election.

The Louisiana Purchase had been unpopular in New England. The acquisition of Florida was certain to be unpopular there. Monroe was persuaded by John Quincy Adams, his New England secretary of state, that the inclusion of Texas in the Louisiana Purchase would completely alienate the east. He, therefore, contracted with Spain, in 1819, to make the Sabine river the western boundary of Louisiana, and was reëlected without opposition.

A year later a certain Baron de Bastrop induced the Spanish government to allow one Moses Austin to settle immigrants in Texas. Spanish rule having been overthrown shortly after, Austin's son, Stephen, persuaded the self-named Emperor Iturbide to confirm his right and, Iturbide passing swiftly from the scene, obtained the confirmation of his charter from the Mexican republic.

Austin's activities as a settler of immigrants were extremely successful. A general immigration law being later enacted, more settlers were brought in, and, as happened all over North America, many individuals squatted on the land without title.

The new arrivals, intent upon developing their holdings, were not interested in politics and, as Austin made no use of his great grant of political authority, but constantly interceded with Mexico to improve the condition of the settlers, the communities prospered peacefully with as little political organization and government as has ever been seen. How long this growing community of American settlers might have lived at peace as a part of Mexico, if the American government had not attempted to acquire Texas, we cannot know.

As it was, John Quincy Adams, having been elected President by the house of representatives in a deal with Henry Clay, the outstanding champion for the inclusion of Texas in Louisiana, sent a mission to Mexico City to negotiate for the purchase of Texas.

The revolutions of the Spanish colonies had been inspired by ours, and Central American revolutionists acclaimed the United States and American statesmen with such unlimited enthusiasm that Americans did not doubt that Mexico would part with Texas, whose sparse population was of American ancestry. The Mexicans, however, considered themselves the heirs of the Spanish empire in North America from Yucatan to the nebulous north end of California, and however incapable of holding or settling the land, would not sell Texas to Adams, nor later would they sell it to Jackson. On the contrary, they began to look upon the American born population with fear and suspicion.

The Texas settlements prospered and expanded for 15 years while Mexico was passing thru such a series of revolutions as have characterized all Spanish-American countries; savage dictators, harking back to conquistadores being ascendant at one time, groups of sentimental and theoretical republicans at another.

During the ascendancy of the former, the colonists were harassed in various ways, as by the outlawry of slavery, by laws against American immigration, by oppressive tariffs, by planting of garrisons among the settlers.

The actions of the offended settlers in holding massmeetings and later holding conventions and petitioning for a separate state of Texas, and even, adopting a constitution for the state were proceedings contrary to Mexican law and tradition, but Austin, altho imprisoned for nearly a year, succeeded in having the Texans' grievances redressed and their offenses condoned.

He was pressing steadily along the road of his desire that Texas should become an autonomous state in the Mexican republic, when Mexican soldiers arrested some American settlers without warrant and held them without trial in a Mexican fort. Then their neighbors besieged the fort, and in order to obtain cannon to bombard it, attacked Mexican troops and drove them from Texas. Having thus incurred the enmity of the existing government, they took refuge in the cause of Santa Anna's successful revolution. They exchanged King Log for King Stork. Santa Anna declared a centralization of the government, and to prevent state resistance, ordered a reduction of the militia of the Mexican states by 80 per cent.

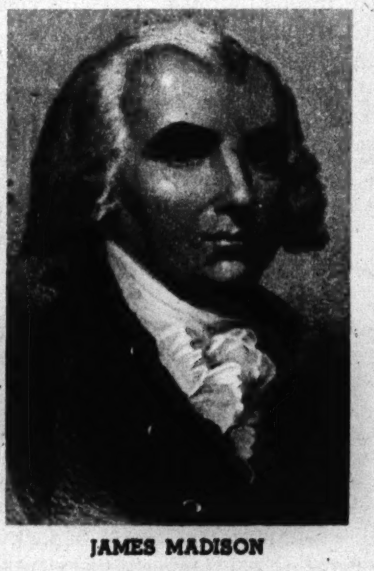
The state of Zacatecas resisted the order, and was ravaged by fire and sword. The governor of the state of Coahuila-Texas called out the militia to defend the old order, and was forced by Mexican troops to take refuge in flight. The Texans were now in great danger and totally unprepared to meet it.

If the 13 colonies had no central government at the outbreak of the Revolutionary war, they did have 13 experienced colonial governments, hundreds of experienced politicians, and officers accustomed to command troops. Texas had no colonial government and no army. Until a state government could be formed, action could only be taken by communities, a slow and ineffective procedure, made more difficult by efforts of the Mexican authorities to capture the American constitutional leaders.



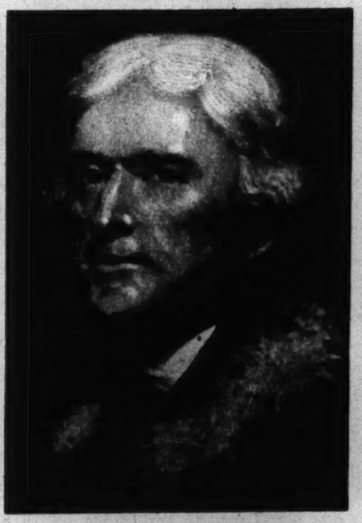
JAMES MADISON

Into this chaos Austin returned from prison. He gathered around him a committee of leading men and advised the municipalities of Texas to send delegates to a consultation—a new word in government, apparently meaning less than a convention.

But before the delegates could be chosen, Gen. Cos landed at Campano and marched on San Antonio. The committee thereupon called for volunteers and sent to all the local jurisdictions to raise men.

Delegates to the consultation met at San Felipe in November, elected a provisional governor and state council, and declared Texas to be a constitutional state in the Federal Republic of Mexico.

It would be futile to describe in detail the actions of the unorganized bands of heroes who, badly misdirected by the temporary government, fought for Texas against the armed convicts composing the Mexican army.



THOMAS JEFFERSON

At first the Texans were successful in several skirmishes, captured San Antonio, and drove the Mexicans from the state. The Mexicans returned in greater force and literally annihilated the Texas volunteers.

All Texas soldiers who were captured were massacred by decree of the Mexican government.

At this time occurred a great epic of American valor. One hundred and eighty-two Texans held the Alamo for 13 days against 2,400 Mexicans, refused to surrender when the walls were breached, and died fighting to the last man. Here the names of Travis, Crockett, and Bowie became immortal. Here originated the famous saying: "Thermopylae had its messenger of defeat. The Alamo had none."

In March of 1836 a constitutional convention issued a declaration of independence, adopted a constitution, and appointed an experienced soldier, Sam Houston, to command the army.

He assumed command of his totally untrained force at Gonzales and, rather than risk a battle, retreated steadily, defying the anger of the settlers who had to flee from their homes before the Mexican invaders.

After he had been drilling the army for a month he learned that he was near Santa Anna, who had indiscreetly divided his army into several widely separated detachments. Houston immediately marched against him while Santa Anna, who also had learned of Houston's general whereabouts, called Gen. Cos to join him, and prepared to destroy the last Texan army.

Come face to face at San Jacinto, there was a tiny artillery duel, two guns against one. The next day Houston at first decided not to attack, at the request of his officers, and then to attack, at the wish of his men. He surprised the Mexicans in camp without pickets or outposts and killed or captured most of them, among the latter Santa Anna, with a Texan loss of only two killed and 23 wounded.

The United States had been trying to buy Texas for nine years, four under the northeastern Whig, Adams, and five under the southwestern Democrat, Jackson. Now Texas, having freed herself at the cost of blood and treasure, offered annexation. President Jackson refused it!

No doubt he was angry that the Texans had accomplished what he had been unable to do, but he also had the 13 year old political reason. He was running Martin Van Buren for President on the Democratic ticket and did not want to irritate the northerners by creating another southern state; or infuriate the abolitionists by extending the boundary of slavery. The most he would do for his brothers in blood was to sign a resolution of congress, recognizing the independence of Texas; and this he did grudgingly.

Santa Anna was now freed by the Texans on the condition that he go to Washington and in behalf of Mexico negotiate a treaty for the annexation of Texas to the United States. He kept his word, perhaps to make sure that no other general would succeed where he had failed. Jackson refused to accept Texas alone, but offered to take Texas plus northern California. Ambition to obtain a greater annexation would seem to explain this inconsistency.

Jackson served out his term. Van Buren came and went, with no move to annex Texas. It was not even an issue in the election of 1840.

For nine years Texas had to carry on, constantly harassed by Indians, threatened and invaded by Mexico, and to indulge in diplomatic flirtations with France and England, before she could find safety in the American Union in 1845.

Since then the history of Texas has been that of a state in the Union, but the stamp of individual nationhood has not been erased. To this day Texas and Texans are distinguished for their independent frontier-like character.

Texas had been free eight years when William Henry Harrison, hero of the battle of Tippecanoe, was elected President after a campaign in which annexation was not proposed by either party. It was far from his thoughts and the thoughts of his followers. But one month after his inauguration he died, leaving the Presidency to Vice President Tyler, whose political unimportance had been characterized by the campaign slogan: "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too."

This political accident, whose views had not been inquired into by the Whigs when they nominated him to get southern votes, had inherited that Virginian urge for empire which had led Washington to his battles across the Alleghenies, Patrick Henry to conquer the Northwest Territory, Jefferson to buy Louisiana, and Madison to occupy Florida. No sooner was he sworn in than he started to campaign for the annexation of Texas.

But before we recount the political events in the United States that resulted in the annexation, let us see how Texas fared in her lonely existence. Her independence was recognized by France in 1839, by Holland and England one year later.

Mexico, altho weakened by recurring revolutions and chronic bankruptcy, conducted a guerrilla warfare against the little nation. Her armies captured San Antonio twice, and retreated across the Rio Grande before Texas forces could be raised to oppose them. In retaliation Texas sent one expedition to conquer New Mexico, hoping to divert the trade of the northwest, from the Santa Fe-St. Louis trail to the Rio Grande valley; another attacked Mier on the road to Monterey.

Both of these expeditions were badly conducted and were captured. The prisoners were brutally treated but not massacred, as prisoners had been in the first year of the revolution. To a Mexican proclamation demanding submission under dire penalties for refusal, the Texas congress replied by a resolution annexing California and about one-half of Mexico.

Public opinion in Texas was overwhelmingly for annexation to the United States, but the Texans had to act with great circumspection in the absence of assurance that an annexation treaty would be ratified. England and France would be offended by an approach toward annexation, and their aid was important to obtain Mexico's recognition of Texan independence.

The British minister explained his country's attitude in the following language: "The British government and its officers study the interests of their own country alone."

Altho France had lost Canada to Britain and had twice ceded

Louisiana, she continued to cherish longings for American empire. She persistently intrigued in Mexico and tried to conquer it during our Civil war.

In this difficult situation, Presidents Sam Houston and Anson Jones displayed skill almost unparalleled in diplomatic history. They induced the British minister to Mexico to effect an armistice, during which Texas and Mexico were to negotiate a settlement of their differences, and which resulted in Mexico's agreeing to a treaty of independence to be submitted to a Texas convention. At the same time, they negotiated a treaty of annexation with President Tyler which was signed in 1844, when another Presidential election was impending.

Henry Clay, who had been the first proponent of the retention of Texas in the Louisiana Purchase, and was now a candidate for President, declared against it, as did Van Buren, for whom annexation had been sidetracked several years before. Statesmanship as well as politics seemed to recommend this course. So violently was New England opposed to annexation that John Quincy Adams, who, when President, we remember had tried to buy Texas, announced that "the annexation of Texas would spell the dissolution of the Union." South Carolinians, equally violent, said that unless the United States annexed Texas, the southern states would do so.

Clay was nominated by the Whigs on a platform that did not refer to annexation, but the Democrats wrote a platform demanding the reannexation of Texas and the reoccupation of Oregon.

It will be remembered that under direction of President Jefferson, Lewis and Clark had followed the Columbia river to the Pacific ocean. This river had been named after the merchantman "Columbia" in which a Capt. Grey had discovered its mouth and sailed into the river in 1792, something that none of the famous navigators of the Pacific had done.

John Jacob Astor established trading posts on the river in 1811. Thus America held a solid claim to this much of Oregon territory, and in addition, thru the Louisiana Purchase, to whatever claim the French had, and by virtue of the treaty of Florida to any Spanish right that had ever existed.

However, the British had taken over Astor's forts in the War of 1812, and altho they returned them in compliance with the treaty of 1818, the Hudson's Bay company was by that time too firmly established to be opposed.

By the treaty of 1818, the country west of the Rocky mountains between Spanish California and Russian Alaska was held in joint occupancy by the United States and Great Britain. The British confined their activities to fur trading; the Americans formed settlements. They organized a government, petitioned congress for recognition as a territory, and were refused. They continued their agitation, and for once Americans claimed a moral issue. It was that the Hudson's Bay officers were living out of wedlock with Indian squaws. The western states, always strongly nationalistic, took up their cause and joined with the Tyler men in demanding the reannexation of Texas and the reoccupation of Oregon—all of it.

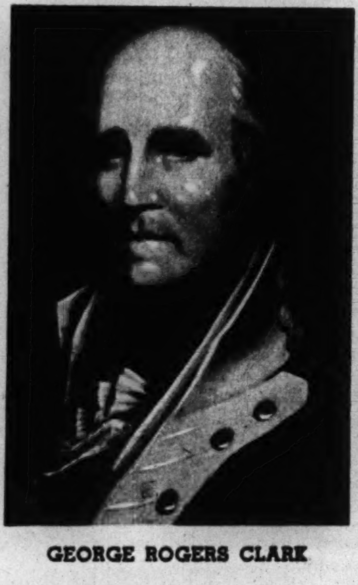
Van Buren, who straddled the annexation issue, could not therefore command the necessary two-thirds vote for the Democratic nomination. Eventually James Polk was nominated.

Tyler had sent the treaty to the senate before the conventions. After the nominations had been made, the senators defeated it by a vote of 35 to 16. Tyler then presented a joint resolution to the house, providing for the annexation of Texas, hoping to secure a majority of both representatives and senators, and announced his candidacy for the Presidency on the platform of Tyler and Texas.

Annexation became the dominant issue in the campaign. So intense was public feeling that France and England, who had agreed to send a joint note of protest against the annexation to America, reconsidered when it was suggested that such action, if it might influence congress, would infuriate the voters and assure the election of Polk. Mexico, for her part, announced that the annexation of Texas would mean war.

As election day approached, Tyler, to secure the annexation, sacrificed his ambition to succeed himself, and withdrew from the race. Polk came out for "the reannexation of Texas and the reoccupation of Oregon." Clay took so many contradictory positions in trying to straddle the issues, that he offended many elements of the population, and damaged his reputation in history.

Polk was elected, and congress adopted the joint resolution; the senate by the narrow majority of 27 to 25.



GEORGE ROGERS CLARK

By this time Mexico had agreed to the independence of Texas. France and England offered favorable treaties to Texas if she would remain independent, and it appears that Houston and Anson Jones at that time preferred to head an independent, if small, republic, to which they would have tried to add New Mexico, California, and some of the Mexican states, than to take the inevitable minor parts in a great nation. But public opinion in Texas was overwhelming. The Texas convention unanimously defeated the treaty with Mexico for independence and unanimously accepted the offer of the United States for annexation.

The insignificant Tyler had added Texas to the Union by masterful political manipulation. His little known successor was to complete the nation by bold diplomacy and carefully planned military conquest.

CALIFORNIA

Everybody knows that Vasco da Gama discovered the way around the south end of Africa to India and that Magellan found the straits bearing his name at the southern tip of the Americas.

The northeast and northwest passages not being practicable, the North Pacific area was the most remote sea from Europe and therefore the latest discovered and least explored.

Central and South America came under Spanish rule after Balboa and Pizarro crossed the Isthmus of Panama, but the efforts of Cortez to work northward along the Pacific coast were unsuccessful.

One Rodriguez did land in California in 1542, and in 1579 the famous buccaneer Drake debarked on that coast, built a temporary settlement, and claimed the land for Queen Elizabeth. Returning to England, he made plans for a permanent colony but failed to carry them out. Had he done so, he would have anticipated the settlement at Jamestown by a generation.

Spanish adventurers, in their efforts to find rich and feeble people to despoil, climbed far up the eastern slopes of the Rocky mountains, but did not cross the great American deserts. Behind them, Mexican civilization, with its missions, its presidios, its gold miners, and its handful of settlers pushed slowly north along the tableland of Mexico, so like that of Spain; followed the Rio Grande to Santa Fe and the Gila and the Colorado rivers to the Gulf of California. There it stopped for a hundred years.

A ship carrying oriental merchandise from Manila to be transshipped across the isthmus at Acapulco, crossed the Pacific ocean from west to east for the first time in 1565, and thereafter was followed by a yearly Manila galleon.

Winds and currents wafted these ships past Japan and across the ocean at about the 40th parallel, roughly the latitude of Chicago, New York, and San Francisco, to a landfall on the coast of California, which they followed to Mexico. Efforts at discovery and settlement from these ships were all fruitless.

In the meantime the Russians had crossed Siberia, and Bering traversed the straits of his name. His successors founded a colony in Alaska in 1740. English and Dutch warships and buccaneers appeared off the coast of California from time to time, and Frenchmen were reported approaching from the headwaters of the Colorado.

In the face of all of these dangers, the now decadent Spanish government in Mexico was impelled to real exertion. Accordingly, expeditions by sea and by land set out from Lower California, and after great hardships made settlements at Monterey in 1760 and at San Francisco and San Diego some years later.

An overland expedition following the Gila river to the Colorado pushed across the desert and joined the others in 1776. Some settlers followed, but the route never became a highway.

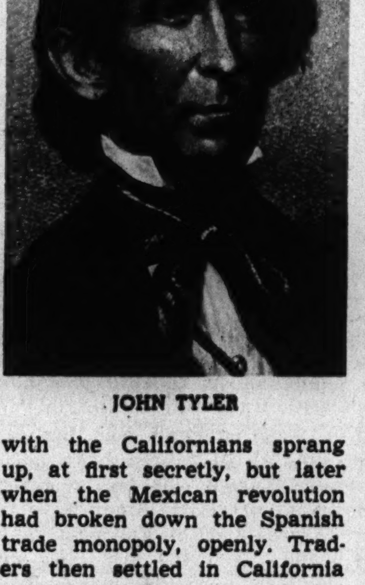
An expedition from the Russian colony came to San Francisco to buy food and was denied, until their leader, Nikolai Petrovitch, became engaged to the daughter of the Spanish governor, Rezanoff, in perhaps the most picturesque international romance of history. The lover died before they were married; his affianced bride refused to be consoled and became a nun.

Somewhat later, while the British and Americans were occupied in the War of 1812, the Russians founded Fort Ross on Bodega bay as a post from which to trade with the Californians.

Spanish civilization in California followed the pattern we have seen in Mexico and New Mexico: missions, presidios, ranchos, trade monopoly. Strangely enough this race of treasure seekers did not discover the gold in the hills.

The Californians did not sympathize with the Mexican revolution, nor recognize it until 1824. This revolution broke down the communications between California and Mexico, and also broke down the authority to maintain the trade monopoly.

We have seen that after the Revolutionary war New England was cut off from the west by New York state and Canada, and that her citizens turned their energies to the sea. Unlike the European empires, they had no colonies to exploit and had to seek business where they could find it. They took whales and furs off the coasts of Oregon and California. They made repairs in the harbors. Trade with the Californians sprang up, at first secretly, but later when the Mexican revolution had broken down the Spanish trade monopoly, openly. Traders then settled in California ports, mingled and intermarried with the natives.



JOHN TYLER

Economically, California became dependent upon the colossus of the north, and New Mexico in much the same way depended on American merchants trading from St. Louis to Santa Fe.

The most important overseas settler in California was John A. Sutter, German born, of Swiss citizenship, a man of wealth who endeavored to found a veritable barony on the Sacramento river. When America and Britain compelled Russia to retire to the famous latitude of 54° 40′, he bought Fort Ross and moved its ordnance to a fort of his own. Here he engaged in a variety of enterprises and here he became the receiving station for most of the transcontinental migrations, many of which he saved from catastrophe.

After the Louisiana Purchase, fur companies had begun pushing farther and farther up the western rivers and into the mountains and deserts. Finally a leader in the fur trade, by the romantic name of Smith, started from Salt Lake, passed thru all of the mountain ranges and came into California. The Patties, father and son, reopened the trail from Santa Fe and the Gila river. Others followed them or found different passes. Traders followed the trappers. Horses were so cheap in California that speculators bought them and drove them across the trails to the United States. Tales of the California climate already were brought back to malarial Missouri. An immigration began, which reached sizable proportions in the forties.

American settlers became important in California, far beyond their numbers, not only because of their superior energy but because it appeared that men of their blood would sooner or later dominate the country. For some years the Americans did not challenge the native Californians' rights to the political offices, but became more and more the deciding force in the recurring revolutions.

We have seen that President Jackson was trying to buy California as early as 1836. The same year was planned the expedition of Naval Lieutenant Wilkes, which, starting two years later, explored the islands of the Pacific and California coast. A landing party followed the overland route from Oregon to San Francisco. In 1842, in compliance with his orders, and in a mistaken belief that war had broken out between the United States and Mexico, and that a British fleet was about to seize California, Commodore Jones occupied the capital, Monterey. The same year Capt. John C. Fremont, U. S. A., set out to map the country from the interior. For three years he spied out the land and mapped the routes of overland invasion.

In 1842 also, Santa Anna, the catalyst of Texas and California defection, sent Gen. Micheltorena with an army of cutthroats to be governor of California. By 1844, the fateful year of President Polk's election, he had caused a revolt and was compelled to flee from the state.

During this rebellion, both the governors and the rebels had been compelled to enlist Americans in their forces, showing the latter the extent of their power.

As it became more and more evident that the Mexican republic would not long be able to hold California, a number of plans were formed for its disposal. One plan encouraged by France, England, and Spain, that actually was attempted by these powers 20 years later, was for the restoration of a monarchy under a European prince. Another plan was for the creation of an independent nation, perhaps joined to Oregon, New Mexico, and Texas under French and British protection. The Hudson's Bay company sought substantial privileges. The British intrigued for a large land grant, and urged the Californians to seek refuge in the British empire.

However, America held the strongest hand in furtherance of its plans in that by far the greatest number of foreigners in the province were Americans, and that behind them was a steady flow of trappers and settlers over the mountain passes.

"These men loved the United States with the hot passion of youth. They cherished no illusion that democracy or freedom could live under any other form of government. They held an implicit faith, which acted upon them with the force of some deep religious conviction, in the unbounded future of the American nation. The expansion of the United States to the Pacific, the establishment of continent-wide boundaries, the absorption of Oregon, Texas, and California, the development of untold natural wealth that lay idle and neglected, the control of oriental trade—this was the program that 'Manifest Destiny' enjoined upon the American people.

"The United States was determined upon annexation at the risk of war with any nation or nations that stood in its way."

MEXICAN WAR

It was the Mexican war which completed the United States.

President Polk had only been a dark horse nominee in the Democratic convention of 1844. He was elected by a minority of the popular vote. The annexation of Texas had been Tyler's issue, not his. The platform for the reannexation of Texas and the reoccupation of Oregon had been a political deal to which he was not a party.

When Texas' annexation became a fact before his inauguration, southern interest waned on Oregon, but in the Northwest Territory, always the most nationalist section of the country, people insisted on "Fifty-Four Forty or Fight." There was therefore considerable international speculation as to Polk's future conduct. He did not leave the matter long in doubt.

By the terms of the annexation agreement, the United States was to settle with Mexico the boundary of Texas. The old French claims extended to the Rio Grande tho the Texans had never advanced beyond the Nueces river. In order to be in possession of the whole claim, while negotiating the boundary, Polk dispatched an army to the Rio Grande river.

Then with the entire American military establishment on the Rio Grande, and depending upon overseas communication, which the British navy could cut, he assumed an unyielding attitude on the Oregon question. In his brusque inaugural address he said that the whole of Oregon was by right American—was settled by Americans—and that the government owed them the duty of protection. He reasserted that the Monroe Doctrine forbade further colonial settlement on this continent.

The American claim was for the entire territory west of the Rocky mountains from California to Alaska. The British claim was the boundary of the Columbia river.

When Great Britain failed to modify her insistence upon the Columbia river boundary, Congress, with the full support of Polk, denounced the provision of the treaty of 1818 that America and Great Britain should hold Oregon in joint occupancy.

In the end the boundary was compromised. The 49th parallel, which had been accepted as the north end of Louisiana, was extended to tidewater, and this after war had begun with Mexico. The British ruling class, owning stock in the Hudson's Bay company, was conciliated by a provision allowing it to operate on the American side of the boundary.

Because American soldiers have not been hereditary aristocrats, headed by nobility and royalty, it has been customary for military historians to disparage them. This, I am sorry to say, is no less true of American historians, even military historians, than of foreigners.

Polk's preparations for the war were perhaps the most comprehensive ever made. They included first, a diplomatic mission to negotiate for the desired ends; second, the weakening of enemy resistance by sowing discord in his ranks. This latter was attempted in three ways: Santa Anna, the recurring president of Mexico, then exiled and living at Havana, was allowed to slip thru our blockade on the understanding that he would overthrow the existing régime in Mexico, and then make a treaty giving to the United States Upper California, New Mexico, and the Rio Grande boundary of Texas.

A lieutenant of marines, one Gillespie, was sent secretly across Mexico to tell Thomas Larkin, the American consul at San Francisco, to persuade the Californians to throw off Mexican sovereignty and accept annexation; and to find Capt. Fremont of the engineer corps, who was somewhere on or near the Pacific coast with a force of about seventy soldiers, actually or ostensibly on a surveying expedition, and use them as a center around which to rally the American settlers and trappers in the Sacramento valley.

He was also to notify Commodore Sloat, in command of an American squadron, that if and when he should learn that war had broken out, he should occupy the Californian ports and formally annex the state.

The military plans were no less comprehensive. The main force on the Rio Grande was to invade Mexico at Matamoros, ascend the river to Camargo, and then strike south to Monterey. A second army was to move out from San Antonio, cross the Rio Grande at Eagle Pass, and take possession of Chihuahua. A third expedition would leave Fort Leavenworth, cross the boundary at Bent's Fort and take possession of New Mexico, then cross the desert and invade California.

Altho Mexico had threatened war if the United States should annex Texas, and had broken off diplomatic relations as soon as this had been done, she made no military demonstration when Gen. Taylor moved an army to Corpus Christi, but when he advanced to Point Isabel on the Rio Grande, Gen. Ampudia, commanding the Mexican army at Matamoros, demanded that he retire north of the Nueces river or accept battle. Shortly after, a Mexican force ambushed an American outpost and the United States declared war.

Henry Clay

Space will not permit me to detail the ensuing campaign so graphically described in his autobiography by our greatest general and military writer, Ulysses S. Grant, and briefly by me in my life of the general.

It will suffice here to say that Gen. Taylor won the two battles at Palo Alto and Resaca de la Palma, ascended the river to Camargo, marched overland and stormed Monterrey. Gen. Kearny advanced on Santa Fe, where an army gathered to meet him. This army was so thoroly undermined by American propaganda that it disbanded without offering battle. Gen. Wool started from San Antonio with 4,000 men and a large wagon train. He is described as a strict disciplinarian, a man of ceaseless vigilance and tireless energy, but he lacked the heart of a soldier, failed to attain his objective, and sought refuge by joining Gen. Taylor. Col. Doniphan, a volunteer frontiersman, detached from Kearny's force with eight hundred other frontiersmen, conducted a train of American merchants thru El Paso, won the battles of Presidio and Sacramento, and captured Chihuahua. This he held for two months, altho not joined by Gen. Wool, and then conducted his army to Gen. Taylor at Saltillo. Comm. Connor occupied Tampico with a naval force and was reinforced by Louisiana volunteers. Contact was established between Gen. Taylor's force at Saltillo and Tampico.

After giving their orders to Comm. Sloat and Consul Larkin, Lieut. Gillespie overtook Capt. Fremont marching north towards Oregon. Fremont returned to the neighborhood of Sutter's Fort, where he was joined by a number of trappers and settlers.

In the tense atmosphere, hostilities broke out between Mexico-California troops and the settlers. The latter declared that California was an independent state and raised a flag consisting of a red bear and a red star on a white background.

Sloat could not make up his mind to occupy the ports until he heard of the revolt; then he took possession of Monterey and San Francisco.

When word came to Fremont that the navy had occupied San Francisco, the American flag was immediately adopted and his force moved there.

Comm. Stockton, who replaced Comm. Sloat, commissioned Fremont a major, Gillespie a captain, took their force to San Diego by sea, and occupied Southern California.

The Southern Californians later took up arms and it required the combined forces of the navy, Fremont's volunteers, and a hundred regulars under Gen. Kearny who had arrived from across the desert, to subjugate them after a number of skirmishes.

• • •

All of the original objectives of the Americans had now been attained. New Mexico and California were occupied. Taylor had taken Monterrey and Saltillo; Connor, Tampico; and Doniphan, if not Wool, had occupied Chihuahua. The only part of the plan that failed was that Santa Anna, having seized the presidency, refused to stay bought and would not negotiate a peace.

"To conquer a peace," to use President Polk's term, it was decided to send an army under Gen. Scott to occupy Vera Cruz and march on Mexico City.

The diversion of a portion of Taylor's army to the coast to attack Vera Cruz could not be concealed. Santa Anna, learning of it, conceived the brilliant idea of attacking Taylor while Scott was in transit, on the military principle of defeating the enemy in detail.

He came upon Taylor at Buena Vista, and was completely defeated. The consequence of his brilliant idea was that he was compelled to turn back and meet Scott's assault with his own army weakened in numbers, in material, and in morale.

How Gen. Scott's army was assembled, how it landed, bombarded, and took Vera Cruz, how it fought its way up the mountain slopes in the battle of Cerro Gordo, how it waited for replacements and reinforcements at Puebla, then fought the battles of Contreras and Churubusco, and finally entered Mexico City after the bloody assaults of Molino del Rey and Chapultepec—for these events I refer you again to the memoirs of Gen. Grant.

The American armies had marched a total distance of fourteen thousand miles over bad roads, and none; had won fourteen battles and many skirmishes, always against heavy odds, and without sustaining a defeat. Such a record is unsurpassed in history.

By this time the nation was conquest-minded. There was a strong movement to occupy and hold the whole of Mexico, but President Polk insisted upon his original plan.

The treaty of peace brought into the United States New Mexico, California, and the disputed part of Texas—five hundred and twenty-six thousand square miles of territory. Adding to this two hundred and ninety-two thousand square miles, between the Columbia river and forty-ninth parallel, acquired under threat of war, we find that James Polk, the dark horse of 1844, contributed to the United States more territory than the original thirteen colonies, more than the Northwest Territory, than the Louisiana Purchase, or the annexation of Texas. This almost forgotten President should be recognized as one of the greatest conquerors of all times.

SPANISH WAR

We have seen how Russia formed a settlement in Alaska in 1783, moved as far south as Bodega bay near San Francisco, and then, under American and British pressure, returned to the parallel of 54° 40′.

Defeated and humiliated in the Crimean war, during which settlements on the Bering sea had been bombarded and sacked by British warships, Russia sympathized with the Union in our Civil war because England and France favored the Confederacy. Russia even sent a fleet to New York harbor with which it intended to raid British commerce in the event war broke out between America and Britain.

In gratitude for this assistance Secretary of State Seward in 1867 persuaded congress to purchase Alaska, including the string of islands extending into the eastern hemisphere. Russia was glad to receive the cash for a territory she could neither exploit nor defend.

Our next expansion was to Samoa. Various islands had been occupied for the collection of guano, and abandoned. In 1872 the United States, at the request of the natives, to whom it gave a constitution, occupied Pago Pago, the best harbor in the Samoan group, and, after various frictions and conferences with Great Britain and Germany, assumed jurisdiction over the island of Tutuila and other eastern Samoan islands.

The Hawaiian Islands were discovered by Capt. Cook in the year 1778. They were extensively used as a stopping place by vessels plying the Pacific in the days of sailing ships. There were the usual wars among the natives and the inevitable friction between them and the white settlers.

The American missionary movement, which had been important in the acquisition of Oregon, was decisive in that of Hawaii. The families of missionaries became planters and traders and dominated the population.

When France made aggressive demands upon the islanders the American residents appealed to the United States, and the French were constrained to withdraw their demands. It was in 1893 that the Americans revolted, unseated Queen Liliuokalani, established an independent republic with Sanford B. Dole as president, and asked America for annexation. President Cleveland, altho he had been extremely aggressive in asserting the Monroe Doctrine in South America, refused this annexation. It was accepted by President McKinley and congress in 1898, to furnish the United States a refueling base for ships that were to reënforce the fleet in Manila harbor.

For some time Cuba had been in insurrection against Spain. The Spanish methods of repression, no more serious than are found necessary by conquerors in holding down resisting populations, aroused intense indignation in the United States.

In February, 1898, the United States battleship Maine blew up in Havana harbor. The cause of the explosion has never been definitely determined. No guilty party ever was detected. American public opinion believed that the ship was blown up by Spain, and war was declared to be in existence on April 25.

Probably not 1,000 Americans had then heard of the Philippines. Finley Peter Dunne, the humorist, expressed the general ignorance when he said, "They did not know whether they were islands or canned goods."

At the time an American fleet happened to be at Hongkong, leading the leisurely social life of the navies of that day. This fleet steamed to Manila, passed the batteries of Corregidor Island in the night, and destroyed the Spanish fleet.

To secure a base for our squadron, an army was dispatched to take the navy yard at Cavite and the city of Manila. The Filipinos were in revolt, and Manila was surrounded. The Spanish commander, preferring American to Filipino occupation, surrendered the city after requesting an opera bouffe assault, to satisfy Spanish honor.

The American army now came face to face with the Filipinos. Friction resulted. Fire was opened; the Americans, using short range black powder rifles and one Colt machine gun against the Filipinos with smokeless, high powered Mausers taken from the Spaniards, were compelled to charge whenever they were fired upon. In consequence they were constrained to advance farther and farther into Philippine territory and finally to complete its subjugation, not without recourse to some of the methods so heartily condemned when used by the Spanish in Cuba. A war to free the Cubans had resulted in the conquest of the Filipinos.

American operations against the Spaniards in Cuba were confined to a blockade in the interests of the Cuban insurrectionists, somewhat on the policy of "all aid short of war," but a Spanish squadron, having crossed the ocean and put into Santiago, Cuba, was blockaded in that port by our navy.

As our navy could not enter the port, an army of about 15,000 men was transported from Tampa and landed on the beach at Daiquiri. It marched against Santiago and stormed Spanish troops entrenched on San Juan hill and El Caney.

The American artillery, using black powder, was ineffective, and the infantry had to advance under cover of its own fire and that of a battery of Gatling guns. In the opinion of Maj. Gen. Frank McCoy, retired, who took part in the battle, the battery of Gatling guns was the decisive factor. This service and the use of the machine gun in the Philippines were lost upon our military authorities, who ignored these weapons until they were introduced by a National Guard regiment serving in the army for the defense of Texas in 1916.

The American army now invested the city. It was without artillery capable of damaging the Spanish fleet and was sickening with tropical diseases. Whether it could have stormed the harbor forts was not put to the test. The Spanish fleet sailed out into the teeth of a vastly more powerful blockading squadron and was annihilated.

• • •

By this time a Spanish fleet had started for the Philippines via the Mediterranean sea and Suez canal. America countered with the announcement that an American squadron would be sent against Spain. This greatly disturbed the European powers, who, altho they had plundered the Americas for 400 years, could not contemplate an American assault on holy Europe.

Their offer of friendly offices led to the peace treaty at Paris, whereby Cuba was freed; Puerto Rico, invaded but not yet overrun, was ceded to the United States; the Philippines were sold to the United States.

A wave of imperial enthusiasm followed. A colonial government was set up in the Philippines, but imperial rule over a subject people soon palled. Military men pointed out the folly of holding distant possessions that did not pay the cost of defense. The Filipinos continually petitioned for independence.

American farmers, suffering from the competition of coolie labor, backed their efforts. Finally in 1934 President Roosevelt signed an act for our withdrawal from the islands in 1945.

Guam and Wake Islands were taken with the Philippines to be used with Midway Island and the Hawaii group as relay stations for a cable to the Philippines.

Seldom in history have such great naval and military victories been obtained with such small means. Unfortunately, the intelligentsia of the country were entering upon the long period of toadyism that still affects them. Supercilious comment by foreign critics on our efforts was accepted slavishly. Our leaders, at least the peers of Clive, Cecil Rhodes, and Lyautey, were overwhelmed with criticism and relegated to obscurity. May these few words start an American movement to recognize the achievements of these and other great Americans.

Our next territorial accretion was at Panama. It will be recalled that Balboa and Pizarro crossed the American isthmus at Darien, but the pass at Panama became the route over which the plunder of Peru was taken to Spain. Various projects for building canals were suggested during the Spanish era, but such efforts were foreign to the Spanish nature and came to naught.

The conquest of California in 1848 and the discovery of gold in 1849 gave America a need for better communication with its Pacific coast than was afforded by pack trains across the mountains and deserts or sailing voyages around Cape Horn. The idea of a canal was revived.

At that time there were British claims to most of Central America, where any canal must be built. American needs and British claims were compromised in the Clayton-Bulwer treaty of 1850, which provided that when a canal should be built across the isthmus it should be open to ships of all nations in peace or war, and which defined the limits of British Honduras.

In 1855 Americans built the Panama railroad.

The canal problem remained too great for solution until De Lesseps, fortified by the prestige of his successful building of the Suez canal, organized a French company to construct a canal at Panama under a concession from the republic of Colombia. This company suffered from corruption, and even more from yellow fever, and failed. A second company overcame the first handicap, but could not solve the problem of sanitation.

As we have seen, the Spanish-American war had aroused an imperial spirit in this country. Having fought a war on two oceans, and having had to send the battleship Oregon around the Horn, to arrive just in time to be decisive in the naval battle of Santiago, the nation was determined to construct a canal at Nicaragua or Panama.

In 1900 the secretary of state, John Hay, negotiated a treaty for the United States to build the canal, but making it a neutral canal, open to all nations in time of war. This treaty was rejected by the United States as derogatory to American dignity and American interest; and the next year a treaty was negotiated in which Great Britain agreed to American sovereign rights in the canal.

Negotiations with the republic of Colombia for the United States to construct the canal were held up in the Colombian senate.

A revolt was started in Panama. The United States prevented Colombian troops from landing and suppressing it—as I know, for I was there. The United States then recognized the republic of Panama, negotiated a treaty for the construction of the canal, purchased the rights of the Panama Canal company, built the canal, and fortified it at both ends.

Later, in the administration of President Wilson, the United States paid Colombia 20 million dollars as an admission of the wrongful act of his predecessor, President Theodore Roosevelt.

The Virgin Islands were discovered by Columbus and were named by him. In 1815 Britain gave them to Denmark as bases from which to furnish dairy products to the British West Indies.

When in 1917, on entering the World war, the United States became defense conscious, Denmark reaped a neat 25 million dollars by selling them to the American republic.

In this treaty the United States ceded its right to northern Greenland, gained by the discoveries of Perry and MacMillan — rights become important since the development of long range aviation.

ISLAND BASES

After the Spanish-American war, Cuba realized that the American navy was necessary to her safety, and accordingly in 1903 leased to the United States the harbor of Guantanamo on her southeast coast as a naval base. Cuba was probably the more ready to lease Guantanamo because the population was of French extraction and had proved over the centuries to be utterly unassimilable.

In 1904 an agreement was reached between the United States and Cuba giving the former the status of military protector, with complete rights to use harbors, roads, and any other territory necessary for this purpose.

The next military extension was at Nicaragua. Americans had persuaded themselves that the Nicaraguan was the preferable route when de Lesseps undertook to build a canal at Panama, and held to this opinion until Sen. Hanna's masterful presentation of the advantages of the Panama route in 1902, which led to the episodes related in the preceding chapter.

After the Panama canal was built, our chief interest in the Nicaraguan route was to prevent it from falling into other hands than ours.

Nicaragua's financial difficulties became our opportunity. In return for a payment of three million dollars in 1916, she granted us in perpetuity, free from taxation, the exclusive rights for a canal on her territories.

• • •

Nicaragua also leased to us for a period of 99 years, subject to renewal, the Great Corn Islands and a naval base bordering on the Gulf of Fonseca, on the theory that they would enable us to protect the Panama canal and our rights in Nicaragua.

These were the precedents for the 99 year leases on certain territories in possession of Great Britain.

By them we acquired in 1941 the right to erect fortifications and maintain seven navy and airplane bases on islands in the Atlantic ocean and one in South America.

Since then we have taken Greenland into protective occupation. Greenland is well known to us as the point of departure of Leif the Lucky, from which he made the first discovery of the American mainland.

Settled at the end of the 10th century, its people formed a self-governing republic, which they lost in 1261 when they swore allegiance to the king of Norway.

At its height, the population reached some 3,000 souls. There were Christian churches, a monastery, and a convent. Communication with Europe ceased early in the 15th century, and the population died out, probably from tuberculosis.

Greenland was rediscovered by one Bradore in 1492, the same year that Columbus discovered the Bahama Islands. At one period in the European kaleidoscope, Norway was joined to Denmark. The allies gave it to Bernadotte, the French king of Sweden, in 1814 in payment for his aid against Napoleon, but left Greenland in the possession of Denmark. Altho a settlement was made on the island in 1721, there are today fewer than 500 whites on its 700,000 square miles of wilderness.

The only value of Greenland to us is as an advance outpost from which to observe any expedition advancing against our continent. It is not suitable as a large base for any purpose.

Taking the British occupied islands from north to south, we learn that Newfoundland was discovered by John Cabot in 1497, sailing in search of the northwest passage, in behalf of the merchants of Bristol, under letters patent from King Henry VII. of England, and that it was visited by a Portuguese, Gaspar Corte-Real, after whom was named the Gaspé peninsula on the mainland, and by Jacques Cartier, the founder of Canada.

Since Cabot discovered the mainland of America in this year, and Columbus only reached it a year later; and since Bradore rediscovered Greenland the same year that Columbus discovered the Bahama Islands, may we conclude that Columbus' title of the greatest discoverer of all time was not based upon his superior enterprise, but because he discovered rich Incas and Aztecs to rob, while his rivals only found penniless Eskimos.

Long before any government was set up, fishermen from many countries used Newfoundland for drying codfish and ran to its harbors for shelter. The question is sometimes raised whether one of these humble men, rather than the widely publicized royal emissaries, was not the real rediscoverer of America.

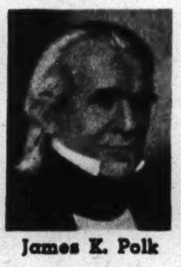
As was customary in that day, the civilized men exterminated the natives of Newfoundland, a race akin to the Eskimos. Many of the fishermen became squatters, without royal titles, as other fishermen did at various points on the mainland.

Efforts at establishing governments proved abortive, because the various officials, commissioned to be royal governors, were only interested in gold, until George Calvert made his first settlement; and he, finding the location inhospitable, abandoned it within the year and moved to Baltimore.

British settlers were constantly harassed by the French and by unwise British legislation enacted in the interest of the fishermen sailing from England. In spite of the latter, a government was established in 1728, and, in 1832, Newfoundland was given a colonial charter.

French fishermen, and after the Revolution American fishermen, have kept up endless disputes over fishing rights adjacent to the land and in the harbors.

When I was on the island 40 years ago I found a hardy, if poor, population. Since then economic conditions have deteriorated. The colony became bankrupt in 1933 and was compelled to give up its charter and was reduced to the status of a crown colony. Recent reports are that the population is dying off from tuberculosis because of malnutrition and bad sanitation.



James K. Polk

Newfoundland was the first landfall of a ship from northern Europe. It is the closest point of North America to the Azores and the European mainland. It is the first land suitable for debarking a force from northern Europe to invade America. It presents an area ample for an army of any size. It will furnish lumber to house and build depots for such a force, but will produce little or no food for an army of any size.

A naval or air force based in Newfoundland can easily prevent commerce between North America and northern Europe.

Held in sufficient force, Newfoundland is almost a complete defense for the North American continent. This force should be greater than any which could be landed by air, and should be equipped to attack any such force without delay.

The next base is Bermuda, named after the Spanish or Portuguese discoverer, Bermudez. An English colony was established there in 1609. In 1612 it was made a part of the Virginia company. The two companies were separated shortly after.

This little island went thru all of the political and religious tribulations of Virginia and Massachusetts, which developed the American principles of free republican government and religious toleration. In 1775 it sympathized with our Revolution and supplied the powder with which George Washington took Boston, but being an island far off shore, was unable to obtain its own independence. So while Virginia, and to a lesser extent, Massachusetts, mothered the greatest nation on earth, Bermuda has now become little more than a winter hotel. In this it resembles the once mighty Hudson's Bay company, which is now only a chain store.

The best winter air route between Europe and North America is from either Portugal or Spain to the Azores, to Bermuda, to North America. If we hold Bermuda in sufficient force, this highway will be barred.

South of Bermuda lie the West Indies. They all passed thru the same metamorphosis. Their native populations were massacred or carried away to slavery. They became nests for pirates. They became valuable spoil later as "sugar islands" for European countries; were fought for and bandied back and forth at the conclusions of the various wars.

Slaves were imported and later freed. East Indian and Chinese coolies were introduced in the days when these islands produced most of the sugar of the world and when they furnished one-fourth of the British overseas trade.

With the decline of the sugar trade, the West Indies became economically worthless. There were, therefore, no changes in ownership from 1815 until the Spanish-American war.

All of the West Indies are of potential use in attacking North America, but occupying the islands we own and upon which we have naval and military rights, we are infinitely superior to any possible opponent or opponents.

The British West Indies have a variety of colonial governments, and none of them is a democracy. The northernmost of them are the Bahama Islands, once politically affiliated with Bermuda. British occupation of the Bahamas has been continuous except for a few days when an American expeditionary force took possession of Nassau during the Revolutionary war, and between 1781 when Spain captured them and 1783 when in the treaty of Versailles she exchanged them for Florida.

After the Revolution, a number of Tories were settled there by the British government, under the famous Gov. Dunmore of Dunmore's war with the Indians on the Virginia frontier in 1774; but these found the soil and climate so unsatisfactory that most of them returned to the mainland and obtained American citizenship.

The capital, Nassau, was a busy port for blockade runners in our Civil war, and the Bahamas were the principal resort of bootleggers during prohibition. Their largest industry today is deep sea fishing for sport and winter vacationing.

Nassau itself is a natural naval and aviation outpost about 200 miles east of Miami. There is deep water for ships. There are docks, oil tanks, seaplane anchorage, an excellent landing field, and, in addition, hotels, and winter cottages available to accommodate a garrison, mechanics, and flying personnel. In war, there is no civilian use for all these facilities. Temporary bases for aerial patrols farther east and south can be established in the lee of a number of islands and keys.

Antigua, in the Leeward Islands, better adapted to be a base for destroyers and seaplanes than for heavy ships, is therefore more of an observation post than a base for operations of a fleet. Discovered by Columbus in 1494, and except for a short French occupation in the early 1600's, it has been in continuous British occupation. Antigua is a sort of a brother-in-law of the United States, as Daniel Parke Custis, first husband of Mrs. Washington, was born there. Antigua also was pro-American in the wars of the Revolution and of 1812.

Santa Lucia, in the Windward Islands, discovered in 1502, because of its strategic location at the end of the trade wind route to America, and its excellent harbor, was a continuous battleground between England and France for 300 years, finally going to the former in 1803. It was from here, that great naval tactician and scoundrel Rodney sailed out to defeat deGrasse, but not until the latter's blockade of Cornwallis in Yorktown had led to the capture of his army, the culminating victory of our Revolutionary war.

Jamaica, immediately south of Cuba, was another of the islands discovered by Columbus. It remained under Spanish domination until it was captured by Admirals Venables and Penn, the father of the founder of Pennsylvania, acting for Dictator Oliver Cromwell.

The Spanish population was expelled. Their slaves took to the mountains and maintained a wild independence until the end of the 18th century.

Jamaica was the abode of the famous pirate Morgan. From here he set out on the expedition to pillage Panama. At the height of his career he was the royal governor of the island. It was the base for the British invasions of Florida and Louisiana in 1815.

In 1907 after the terrible Kingston earthquake, Rear Adm. Davis of the American navy, bringing relief to the stricken people, landed marines to prevent looting and provoked a minor international incident.

Trinidad, the southernmost island of the chain, was another of Columbus' discoveries. It was plundered by Sir Walter Raleigh in the 16th century, and taken by Great Britain in 1707. Before cement supplanted asphalt as a road binder, Asphalt lake was extremely valuable. The island is still valuable, but now because of petroleum deposits and oil refineries.

Trinidad is to any invasion of North America attemped via Dakar and South America, what Newfoundland is to any invasion from Europe. If it is adequately held, it will be an absolute bar to any invasion of North America from that direction.

Our southernmost base is in British Guiana, an observation post without military value. Its location has a passing interest for us in that after the duke of York had taken New Amsterdam from Holland by force in time of peace, Holland accepted Guiana as compensation.

A greater interest is that in the boundary dispute between Great Britain and Venezuela which led to President Cleveland's intervention. Secretary Olney, our last great secretary of state, used the following imperious language, which our possession of these bases makes trebly true:

"Today the United States is practically sovereign on this continent, and its fiat is law upon the subject to which it confines its interposition, because its infinite resources combined with its isolated position render it master of the situation and practically invulnerable as against any or all other powers."

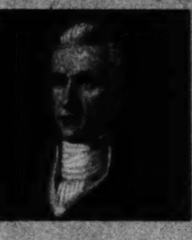
DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS

This is another in a series of biographical sketches of America's historical celebrities appearing every week in the Graphic Section. The illustrations are taken from a famous work, "The National Portrait Gallery of Distinguished Americans," published in 1865.



W. R. Davie

WILLIAM RICHARDSON DAVIE, warrior and politician, was born at Egremont, Cumberlandshire, England, June 20, 1756. At the age of 7 he was brought to America, where he was adopted by an uncle, a clergyman of the Waxhaw settlement of South Carolina.

He was educated at Queen's Museum college of Charlotte, N. C., and the College of New Jersey (now Princeton), being graduated from the last named institution with honors in 1776. Altho he immediately began the study of law in Salisbury, N. C., and was admitted to the bar in 1780, much of the time in the seven years following his graduation was devoted to military pursuits.

Altho born in England, he was a strong supporter of the American cause. In 1778 he helped raise a troop of cavalry at Salisbury and was commissioned a lieutenant. Soon, however, he held the rank of major. As a member of Pulaski's division he was gravely wounded while leading a charge at Stono, near Charleston, on June 20, 1779. After he had recovered he recruited another troop, early in 1780, and campaigned in North Carolina with Sumter's forces or independently. Elevated to lieutenant colonel, he took a brilliant part in covering Greene's retreat from Camden, and later harassed Cornwallis in his retirement into South Carolina.

General Greene appointed him commissary general of his army, and in this capacity he accompanied Greene thruout the campaign from Guilford Courthouse to Ninety-six. Altho Davie preferred fighting to the less glorious task of feeding an army, he filled the position of commissary general in an able manner.

After the war he settled in Halifax, N.C., where he soon became prominent as a lawyer. He represented the borough of Halifax in the state legislature from 1786 to 1798. During this time he was active as the leader in founding the University of North Carolina, by which he was given the first honorary degree ever bestowed by that institution.

In 1797 he was made commander of the North Carolina state troops and chairman of the state's boundary commission. In 1798 he was elected governor.

While serving in this office Davie was appointed a brigadier general by President Adams to serve in the war that threatened with France. In 1799 he was a peace commissioner to France. A stanch opponent of the policies of Thomas Jefferson, he was eliminated from politics by the Jeffersonian forces in the congressional election of 1803.

Two years later he retired to his plantation in Lancaster county, South Carolina. In 1813 he declined appointment as a major general by President Madison. He died Nov. 29, 1820.

PERFECT POEMS

MARCHING ALONG

(From "Cavalier Tunes.")—By ROBERT BROWNING

Kentish Sir Byng stood for his King,
Bidding the crop-headed Parliament swing:
And, pressing a troop unable to stoop
And see the rogues flourish and honest folk droop,
Marched them along, fifty-score strong,
Great-hearted gentlemen, singing this song:

God for King Charles! Pym and such carles
To the Devil that prompts 'em their treasonous parles!
Cavaliers, up! Lips from the cup,
Hands from the pasty, nor bite take nor sup
Till you're
CHORUS.—Marching along, fifty-score strong,
 Great-hearted gentlemen, singing this song!

Hampden to hell, and his obsequies knell.
Serve Hazelrig, Fiennes, and young Harry as well!
England, good cheer! Rupert is near!
Kentish and loyalists, keep we not here,
CHORUS.—Marching along, fifty-score strong,
 Great-hearted gentlemen, singing this song?

Then, God for King Charles! Pym and his snarls
To the Devil that pricks on such pestilent carles!
Hold by the right, you double your might;
So, onward to Nottingham, fresh for the fight,
CHORUS.—March we along, fifty-score strong,
 Great-hearted gentlemen, singing this song!

LOWLY LIVER AND POOR LITTLE PRUNE COME INTO THEIR OWN

By MARY MEADE

WOMEN have always been interested in recipes. Once upon a time all they wanted to know about a recipe was "will it make something different and delicious?" Now they want their recipes to make something delicious, nutritious, and economical. No fancy touches, either. All of the ingredients must be readily available:

Angel prune pudding fits wartime requirements for food. It's delicious, to be sure, but it contains healthful prunes and energy-filled nuts, too. It's the kind of dessert you'll be serving after a light meal, perhaps a salad luncheon.

ANGEL PRUNE PUDDING

1½ cups crushed graham crackers
½ cup chopped nuts
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ cup honey or sugar
3 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped, cooked prunes

Mix crumbs, nuts, salt, spices, and baking powder. Combine honey, beaten egg yolks, vanilla, and prunes, add to dry mixture and blend. Fold in egg whites which have been beaten until stiff, but not dry. Bake in greased 9 inch pie plate at 350 degrees for half an hour. Serve cold with whipped cream.

• • •

Baked liver loaf is another dish which fits the new requirements for recipes. Pork, beef, or lamb liver may be used in the interests of economy. Calves' liver is too delicate in flavor and too expensive to be used in a loaf, in my opinion.

Liver is one of our most valuable foods, and is recommended for weekly inclusion in the diet.

LIVER LOAF

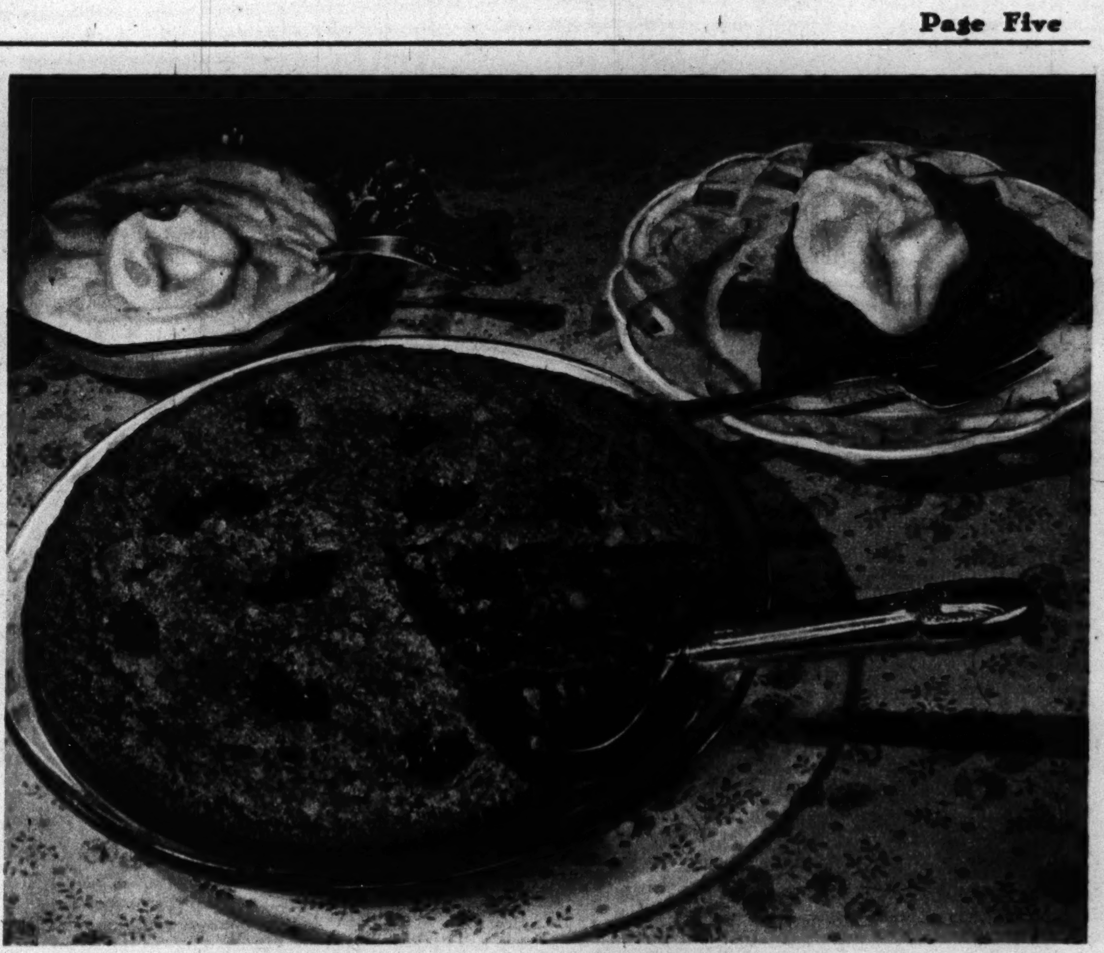
1 cup milk
8 slices bread
¼ cup bacon drippings
2 eggs
1 No. 1 can pimientos, chopped
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons minced onion
½ teaspoon sage
Bacon slices

Cook sliced liver in simmering water for 5 minutes, then grind it. Soak bread in milk. Combine all ingredients but bacon slices. Mix thoroly and pack into a greased loaf pan. Place bacon strips over the top of the loaf. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 1½ to 2 hours.

Creamed potatoes and peas, a tossed salad of curly endive or watercress with shredded carrot and sliced radishes, fresh fruit or fruit whip for dessert, and a beverage will round out a dinner menu which features liver loaf.

Calf liver should be broiled to be at its best. Remember that liver is done as soon as the color has changed. It takes but a few minutes to cook the liver of a young animal to tenderness. Overcooking produces tough, leathery texture. Before broiling calf liver, brush it with melted butter or salad oil. Don't "parboil" it or you'll remove some of the delicate flavor. Other kinds of liver may be scalded before cooking, but not calf liver.



Simply made, nutritious and O, so good! That's angel prune pudding, made with graham crackers.

TODAY'S PRIZE RECIPE

ROLLED CINNAMON BREAD

(Easy-to-make breakfast bread)
(2 small loaves)

1 cake compressed yeast
2 tablespoons lukewarm water
1 cup milk, scalded
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
1 egg, beaten
3½ to 4 cups flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
⅓ cup brown sugar

Soften yeast in water. Dissolve sugar and salt and melt shortening in hot milk. Cool to luke warm. Stir in yeast and beaten egg. Beat in flour, using enough to make a soft dough. Beat or knead until elastic. Roll out on lightly floured board to ¼ inch in thickness. Sprinkle with combined cinnamon and brown sugar and roll as for jelly roll. Cut roll in half and fit into 2 small greased bread pans. Let rise until doubled in bulk, 30 to 45 minutes. Bake about 1 hour in moderate (350 degrees) oven until done.

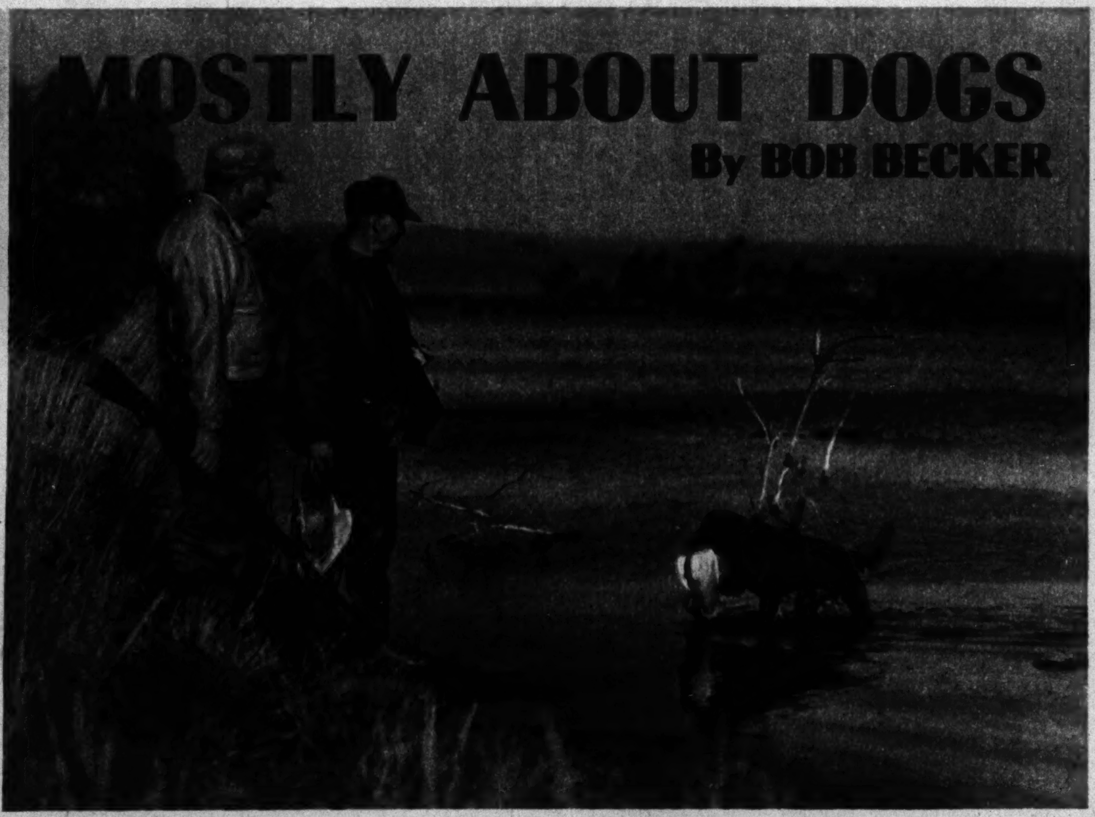
MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

By BOB BECKER



Autumn focuses attention on the breeds of dogs used for hunting game of all kinds, a sport that goes back to the days of ancient man. Here is a Chesapeake Bay retriever, one of the well known retrieving breeds popular with waterfowl shooters, pleasing two South Dakota sportsmen by its quick retrieve of a mallard duck.

THIS is the time of the year when a very large and distinctive group of dogs are taken off the inactive list and polished up for "active service" on the front where shotguns are booming. A sportsman knows this group very well, the setters, pointers, spaniels, retrievers, beagles, and other breeds which help perpetuate and add so much to the sport of hunting, one of the oldest outdoor sports known to the human race.

Now that we are at war and there is emphasis on the conservation of food, a dog that can find a crippled or dead game bird for his master is going to play a more important rôle than ever in the game fields this fall. If there ever was a time when a game bird shot by a hunter should be retrieved and brought home for table use, this is it, for such game (with a food value of millions of dollars) represents a saving of meat for our armed forces.

The retrievers such as the Chesapeake Bay, Labrador, golden, and others which can smash thru heavy vegetation on land and swim in almost any kind of water to get the ducks, and the springer spaniels, American water spaniels, cockers, clumbers, and retrieving pointers and setters, thus indirectly will be making their contribution to the war effort this fall when they help their owners in the hunting fields.

The airedale is one of the breeds that is going to see service as a sentry and guard dog with the army. This specimen is owned by Harold Florsheim and is named Pepper Pot.

Last year in South Dakota alone 3¼ million pheasants were taken by hunters and used for food. Many times that number of ducks were killed by sportsmen, yet this fall it's likely that 130,000,000 ducks will come south. And South Dakota has the greatest crop of pheasants in history. Partridges, rabbits, quail, geese, and other game brought home by hunters cannot be overlooked as valuable sources of food which saves other meat. Sporting breeds not only make the "harvest" of this game possible in many cases, but also provide pleasure for millions of sportsmen.

Altho a brainy, obedient setter, pointer, retriever, spaniel, or other hunting dog that has been trained is worth money, trainers and breeders are constantly telling us that only a small proportion of hunters know why such a dog has a definite cash value. And they add that this group also does not understand how much work goes into a trained dog. We're inclined to agree with the trainers after having contacts with hundreds of hunters who have asked us to help them find topnotch gun dogs.

Having owned hunting dogs for many years, it didn't take us very long to add up some figures the other day on what makes a good hunting dog click and how such a dog puts money into circulation. A puppy from excellent hunting stock is anything but overpriced if it costs only $25 or $35. Supposing we put down just $35 as the cost of the setter, pointer, retriever, or spaniel. The dog must have good food, so let's see about this item. At the end of two years an owner can hardly have spent less than $75 for dog food, judging by our books. This sum is for a good dehydrated or dry food, plus possible purchases of scraps, bones, tripe, or other meat which the owner may want to feed to his dog.

So far we haven't touched the training angle and already $110 (or more) has been marked as "outgo." And how that setter, pointer, retriever, or spaniel needs training! The dog's education may cost anywhere from $15 per month up. We'll assume that the owner is very lucky in getting the dog trained for only $25 per month. It will need at least 4 months the first season, and then he'll go back for a couple of months the second season for polish and to correct mistakes. Even if we put down a bill for only 5 months of training there's $125 at a minimum and the dog already represents an investment of $235. And no trainer doing an honest, thoro job is getting rich at $25 a month for his patient work and long hours.

Only an owner who has trained his own dog patiently day after day, month after month, knows how true this is. In fact, we have a hard time figuring out how some trainers can (for example) feed and educate a big Chesapeake or Labrador and make any great amount of money when they charge $35 or $50 per month. Besides all the months of work necessary to develop the dog, the trainer must buy pigeons, pheasants, and ducks with which to train the dog in addition to all the regular kennel expenses.

Besides the original cost of a good hunting dog, the money spent on food over a period of two years and training to make it obedient, answer a whistle, walk at heel, quarter its ground, stand steady to shot and flush, retrieve tenderly to hand, (and point if it is a setter or pointer), we haven't allowed one penny for distemper inoculation, a bout with eczema, or other ailment which means veterinarian fees. Something must be set aside in our cost computation for this angle of dog care.

Take the estimate of $235, add something for the expense of sickness, and then a few more dollars for leashes, collar, whistle, brush, comb, and a few accessories, and it's easy to see why a trained hunting dog of just average speed and ability represents a sizable amount of money.

after removing their sparkplugs. A few others get under way, only to halt when the linseed oil or the sugar, introduced into the gas line, takes effect. Still others keep going, their searchlights scanning the ditches. Suddenly, giant trees topple before them, and giant trees fall behind them. There is a hell of grenades, Molotov cocktails, and rifle fire. Two Germans live, because they are taken prisoner.

The guerrillas of Kielce wood have done their night's work. Their bearded, flame-haired leader, Kalina (named for the red berry bushes that dot the St. Cross mountains in central Poland) leads a quick retreat back to the fastness behind Kielce. It is not the guerrilla's job to win battles. His task is to harry the enemy, and live to fight another day. Kalina has lost five men, including two while taking the patrol east of the camp. He has fired perhaps 2,000 rounds. He has accounted for perhaps 80 Germans, 15 trucks, and 10,000 gallons of gasoline. It is good. But the Germans will be at the wood tomorrow.

Two weeks before Kalina was Maj. Dobrzanski of the Polish army. From 5:30 o'clock of that first day of September, 1939, his troops had fallen steadily back before the hell of Stuka fire, tanks, and massed artillery as the Germans, without warning, signalled the end of their 10 year non-aggression pact with Poland. Back, endlessly back, for 35 days; one of the greatest and most hopeless fights valiant defenders have ever made against a superior foe. The Poles were cut to pieces, their armies were encircled, ground down, annihilated. Their cities were smashed, their civilians murdered. Finally, organized resistance had to end. Maj. Dobrzanski and some of his troops defending Lwow, like thousands of other Polish fighting men, made their escape after the fall of the city on Oct. 5.

Escape to where? The enemy crowded in upon all sides. Nazi camp fires blazed upon the Bug and the Vistula. Still, the Nazis could not be everywhere. They did not reach the forest in the Swietokrzyskie (St. Cross) mountains, near the city of Kielce.

There Kalina, for Maj. Dobrzanski chose that name, gathered 1,000 men. Men hungry and tattered, with few weapons and little ammunition. Men who had fought 35 days against the might of Hitler and who, in defeat, had battled their way thru the surrounding armies for one purpose: That they might live to fight again.

During those hopeless, chaotic days Polish soldiers by the thousands were fleeing across the frontiers, attempting to escape to England and France, where they might again take up the battle. But the men under Maj. Kalina elected to make their stand in Poland. Once having won a chance to reorganize within the temporary safety of the Kielce forests they intended to struggle on as irregulars—men without military standing in enemy eyes, men doomed to die when they could fight no longer. Kalina's 1,000 wanted no peace. They had seen their cities bombed, helpless refugees strafed along the highways, unarmed captives shot for no further offense than fighting for their homeland. Each man had personal reasons for vengeance, a burning hatred for everything German.

About Kielce were 14 villages, inhabited mostly by women and children and elderly men. In these villages, Kalina found food and help. He soon organized secret supply lines and his troops scoured the countryside, returning with German guns and munitions, and even a few German uniforms. The guerrilla does not hesitate to wear the uniform of his enemy when necessary. He is a doomed man in any event, and sometimes he can work more effectively in the garb of his foe.

As Kalina led his raiders back from their successful attack on the Nazi motor park, his mind was busy with plans for the next day. Sooner or later, he knew, the Germans would have to attack. They would bring up reënforcements. The main German forces were miles away, and the advance units that had infiltrated behind the Polish lines, cutting communications and demoralizing organized defense, were now virtually isolated. They outnumbered Kalina 15 to 1, or they did before his raiders started their work, but they had not yet dared to advance upon the wood. Now they would have to come. Their aviation would come up. Maj. Kalina knew what to expect.

Still, in spite of the most successful raid on the petrol dump, the Germans did not attack. The troops at Kielce sent out calls for help (they did not bother to code their radio messages after the country was taken) but no reënforcements appeared. The high command thought it insane to send out more troops to take a few hundred isolated guerrillas. The commander at Kielce could worry about that problem himself.

Maj. Kalina resumed his attacks. The morale of the Nazi division at Kielce began to snap. They had conquered Poland, yet every night their men died under Polish guns. They dared not venture outside their main stronghold. The German commander refused to take chances with men who wouldn't fight according to rules. These wicked Polish "bandits" would not get out where a man could shoot at them. They clung to their ravines and crags and swooped down at night, and then ran away again before a man could fight back. It was unnerving, and very unfair.

The missions of harassment continued. A dispatch rider, hurtling along a country road, suddenly left his wheel and flopped to the dirt like a sack of grain. A wire, stretched across the road between two trees, had caught him at the throat. A truck driver, boring thru the darkness, careened into a ditch when another truck suddenly flashed its lights directly in front of him. He didn't live to learn that it was not a truck, but two auto lights fixed to standards in the road, which were flashed on when he was directly ahead. Five trucks were caught in that trap during a single night, and the Kalina partisans replenished their supplies.

German speaking Poles rode into the very headquarters of the German command to deliver messages seized from Nazi courriers. Kalina had already read them, and his men met the truck caravan they ordered out. Those German speaking Poles never came back, but they knew in advance that 20 Germans would die, and 10 trucks would be lost for the two lives they gave. In addition to that, rumor had it that they shot five men, including a German officer, when the ruse was discovered and the Nazis sought to take them.

Two of Kalina's hot heads captured a German officer's car, donned the uniforms of two of the officers themselves, put guns in the back of the third and the driver, and went on a tour of Warsaw, 100 miles away. With the officer an unwilling guide, they made an inspection of the German military establishments, noting weak points that Kalina might want to attack. They were saluted properly by the German garrison soldiers and arrived safely back at Kielce a day later.

Finally, so grave were the losses and so great was the fear, that the Germans had to make an attack in force upon the wood.

The Germans had a busy day of it. Home made land mines blew up their advancing patrols. Deadly cross fire from the St. Cross hills crumpled the infantry ranks. Small tanks and assault cars stalled in the rough terrain, ran into traps when the narrow roads blew up behind them. They never even reached the forest. Then Kalina began to retreat. The Germans, underestimating the size of his force, followed in spite of their losses. The guerrillas encircled them, and began the counter-attack.

Polish soldiers in Scotland rehearse commando tactics in gasproof coats. Fellow Poles at home are fighting a different but as effective warfare against the Germans.

While the fighting was in progress, a detachment of Kalina's partisans attacked the railroad bridge the Germans had laboriously reconstructed and smashed and destroyed a train of freight cars rumbling to the relief of the German supply. Hardened guerrillas wept when they saw those needed materials burning, but they were too small a party, and in too acute danger, to carry any away.

Back in the forest, Kalina and his men suffered too. The Nazis had brought up aviation, not much—the high command, safely out of the foothills, scorned to provide real aid—but enough to do damage. They could see no concentrations, but their bombs found some targets in the forest. Kalina himself was wounded, mortally as it developed.

The Germans could not take the wood. Several days later the village near which the battle had begun was visited by a strong detachment of the Gestapo, who set fire to the town at several points simultaneously. Several days later another and larger punitive expedition visited all 14 of the villages in the vicinity of Kielce. The inhabitants were accused of aiding the guerrillas. Seven of the villages, Huciska, Krolewiec, Lelitkow, Skloby, Sulko, Szalasy, and Wisniewiec, were utterly wiped out. Altogether, 1,200 persons were murdered.

For five months Kalina's forces had been battling the Germans in Kielce province. Then, in April, 1940 to the commander's short wave radio came a message from representatives of the Polish government in exile. For the sake of innocent men, women, and children who would be slaughtered for every guerrilla success, he was ordered to disband his men. The fight for free Poland would go on. Small groups of men would continue to harass the enemy, sabotage and slowdowns and non-compliance would prevent the Nazis from wholly conquering the country. But an unarmed, helpless people could not bear cruel reprisals such as had been inflicted upon the 14 villages.

Kalina, himself mortally wounded, knew that the plea of the government was right. His men dispersed, in groups of 10 and 12, to help organize the underground movement in Poland. The Germans, despite their desperate efforts and the rewards they offered, never capturd Kalina. He died, somewhere in Poland, a free man, an inspiration to free men everywhere.

Having defeated Poland, the Nazis began the division and subjugation of the country. The territories of western, and a large part of central and southern Poland were, in October, 1939, incorporated into the German reich. The remainder of occupied Poland, including the cities of Warsaw, Cracow, Radom, and Lublin, was called the "Government General," except for a small area near the Tatra mountains, which was given to the "Slovak state," itself under German domination.

Having divided the country, the Germans began the extermination of Polish culture and nationality. This was accomplished first by the seizure of intellectuals, among them the university professors, for internment in the 23 concentration camps established in the country. Newspapers were suppressed, radio stations closed down, and the people were forbidden to assemble, unless called out by the German masters. Polish peasants were uprooted from their lands, workers, including women and girls, were torn from their families and shipped into Germany to labor in the war plants, and a program of ruthless elimination of all who protested began.

The details of the atrocities committed against the Polish population are recorded in two huge "black books" published by the Polish government in exile. In July of this year, S. Mikolajczyk, Polish minister for home affairs, estimated that 400,000 Poles and Jews have been killed by the Nazi terror in Poland; that 1,500,00 have been deported to forced labor in Germany, that 200,000 are prisoners of war in Germany, and 170,000 have been forced into the service of the German army.

These cold figures, appalling tho they may be in relation to Poland's total population, only faintly reveal the horror of what has happened to the unfortunate country. Among those million and a half deported are young girls taken from their families to serve in brothels, among the 400,000 dead are the victims of hideous tortures in the prison camps, and the populations of whole villages cruelly shot down for alleged infractions of Nazi orders. Nor do the figures include the Poles slowly starved to death by the seizure of food supplies and the dislocation of their national economy.

But the slow torture and dismemberment of Poland has not stopped the fight for freedom in that country. The under-

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph.D.

Managing Editor, Popular Photography Magazine

Low-angle shots give novel effects, even in portraiture. In this picture of a Polynesian beauty the angle emphasizes the chin and the lips, thus bringing out these prominent features strongly in the picture.

IF YOU stop to analyze some of the most striking pictures you have ever seen you will soon notice that they are angle shots — taken from below or above the subject, so that they give a refreshingly different impression of an otherwise quite ordinary theme.

One of the typical mistakes of amateur photographers is to snap every picture from the same angle. This angle is dictated by the view finder of the camera they happen to own. If it is a box or folding camera or a reflex all their pictures will be taken from waist level, because this level happens to be most convenient for looking thru the view finders of these particular cameras. And the amateurs who own 35-mm. cameras with eye-level finders will invariably make their pictures from eye level.

It should be obvious that shooting regularly from the same angle will lead to uniform —and in the long run boring— pictures. But, quite apart from this, it is equally obvious that these amateurs do not pay any attention to the angle the subject itself may be calling for. They merely look thru the view finder and press the release, assuming that what they see thru the finder is the picture.

But good pictures are rarely found ready made in nature. They are created by the photographer, who must use his camera plus quite a bit of ingenuity to bring out the best features of his subject. One way of doing this is to take the picture from an angle which will emphasize certain parts of the subject and subdue others.

Take, for instance, portraiture. This is one type of photography in which best results are obtained usually by placing the camera at the eye level of the subject. Yet even here a change of angle or viewpoint can make a great deal of difference. By moving the camera slightly lower, emphasis can be placed on the chin and the nose, which will appear somewhat heavier and larger than other features. This may be desirable in many cases. On the other hand, a high camera angle in portraiture increases the size of the head and broadens the shoulders, while the hips will appear narrower—if the picture takes in that much of the figure.

Action shots, scenics, pattern pictures, and architectural subjects call to an even greater degree for the proper selection of angles. In the case of action subjects a low angle will do a lot to emphasize speed. This is especially true if the subject is off the ground during the action, as in jumping, running, dancing, and the like. By shooting from a low angle you will create the impression of much greater height.

If you are interested in pattern shots, which show more or less regular repetitions of the same subject—for instance, rows of parked cars or geometrical patterns such as street car rails at an intersection — high-angle shots will work wonders for you. This will help you to fill out the entire negative with the pattern and will flatten out the subject for you in such a manner that the pattern shows to best advantage.

Buildings and statues have always been favorite subjects for angle shots. Owing to the mechanics of the camera itself, even beginners cannot help but use this technique when they point their cameras upward to snap such subjects. The results invariably show quite a bit of distortion, with skyscrapers leaning backward and with slender statues resting on massive bases. Often these effects seem exaggerated, but they usually give very striking pictures. This is especially true where the photographer has been able to turn a seeming disadvantage into an advantage by emphasizing the distortion. He can do this by stepping up close to the subject and pointing the camera upward. The distortion will be even greater if he kneels or places the camera on the ground.

ground movement is constantly growing, growing to the extent that the Germans have been forced to keep 25 divisions in Poland, in addition to the forces of the Gestapo, the SS (Schutz Staffeln), the SA (Sturm Abteilungen), the Hitler Youth. Also, Germans living in Poland began the organization of the Selbst Schutz, an armed "defense" force, prior to the invasion, and now these traitors have good need to defend themselves.

Early in the war, the Germans attempted to set up a puppet government in Poland, hoping thus to accomplish more easily the pacification of the population. But they could find no Quisling. Among those approached was the eminent Prof. Stanislaw Estreicher, of Cracow university, whose family originated in Germany generations before. He refused to serve, whereupon he and 180 other members of the faculty were taken to the inhuman prison camp at Oranieburg, to join the gallant Stefan Starxynski, mayor and defender of Warsaw, and other patriots. Like Mayor Starxynski, Prof. Estreicher died there soon after, according to underground reports.

The underground movement is comprised of many organizations led by brave patriots who spread their secret instructions about the country by means of nearly 100 secretly printed newspapers and hidden radio stations. These organizations, among them "Independent Poland," "Freedom," "Fight," are allied in the general "Movement of the Working Masses of Poland." They are in contact not only with one another, but with the Polish government in exile, and with underground organizations in the rest of occupied Europe.

The harassment of the German conqueror is ingeniously and effectively organized, whether it is for acts of violence, or the stubborn, passive resistance which so infuriates the Fascists, and against which they have proved so helpless. Professional persons, working men, and housewives comprise the underground organization. They work in the darkness, in constant peril, but they have perfected a network that reaches thruout the country, and when their leaders met under the noses of the Gestapo to issue the famous "Manifesto," every section of the country, and every stratum of Polish society was represented. The clear call of defiance and hope and passion for liberty that came forth from this meeting has electrified the downtrodden people of all Europe.

In April of this year, the program of sabotage and destruction formulated by the underground grew so effective that Heinrich Himmler himself, dread chief of the Gestapo, was forced to visit Poland to arrange reprisals. There followed bloody weeks, and thousands of Poles were killed, but the underground goes on, even more powerful than before.

The possession of any one of the pamphlet-size newspapers of the underground press is punishable by death in Poland. Similarly, any person caught listening to unlawful shortwave stations or to foreign broadcasts is sentenced to death, and German newspapers have repeatedly reported the imposition of such sentences, sometimes upon Polish women.

German planes with radio finders are frequently in the air, seeking out these secret transmitting stations, which are usually mobile and are moved from time to time to escape detection. When the general location of a transmitter has been discovered, Gestapo cars also equipped with direction finders are informed, and they move in for the kill.

One of the secret freedom stations was operated in the heart of Warsaw by a group of young Poles led by Karol Kot. For months this station kept in communication with the units of the underground, rebroadcast the BBC news announcements from England, debunked Nazi propaganda, urged sabotage, and resistance to Nazi orders, and purpled the Gestapo chiefs with insulting humor.

Finally the Gestapo found the station, in a building on Sosnowa street. Gestapo thugs moved in with machine guns. Most of the young men with Kot were slain, and the equipment was captured, but Kot himself managed to escape.

The Germans were infuriated. They offered a reward of 10,000 marks (about $4,000) to any Pole who would give information concerning Kot. No Pole would talk. The Germans then seized 200 hostages, and broadcast announcements that some of the hostages would be killed for every day that Kot was not delivered up.

In their strongholds, the Germans are merciless to their conquered foe, and the underground cannot reply with equal violence. But sometimes the Nazis forget themselves, and venture out too few in numbers. Not long ago, Gov. Frank, directing the suppression of Poland, sent seven Gestapo men to Cracow to discover an underground press. Several days later Gov. Frank received a package containing seven Gestapo uniforms and a short letter, which said: "Your agents from Berlin found life in Poland so interesting and pleasant that they have decided to remain here forever. Under the circumstances they no longer need their uniforms, which are returned herewith."

Since the German invasion of Russia, the Polish guerrillas, now working in bands of 10 to 12, are getting some arms and they are also receiving assistance from Russian partisans. As a result, Poland is again becoming a battleground, the Germans live in terror, and thousands of their troops are immobilized.

TACTICS OF INFILTRATION

sists of extending operations laterally as well as ahead. When several of these islands commence lateral pushes, at once they cut off and anchor all the enemy troops behind them. Unless the enemy slides out of the trap by precipitous retreat he is surrounded. Once this happens, ever-increasing pressure is brought to overwhelm or cause surrender.

But while the lateral operations are commencing, another push forward by the heavy tanks toward new islands is being made. There is the gun, bomb, and smoke preliminary assault, then the tanks push on, and they are followed by the infantry and mobile artillery. Once more the infantry pushes on. Fresh units leapfrog over those that already have given battle. New squadrons of dive bombers appear and reappear, always ready to assist if the tempo of the attack is slowed down.

By this time the attack has caused a real bulge into the enemy lines. Every effort is made to keep the pressure from every part of the bulge. All along the sides, and ahead, too, the probing lines of tanks are moving out, hunting down strong points, seizing islands, where the German troops move up in a continually repeated and incessant cycle that is simultaneously fulfilling itself in many points.

While the tanks and infantry do the real ground work, they cannot go ahead unless air superiority over them is continually maintained. They must have the dive bomber assistance. The bombers watch the progress of the German troops and, knowing objectives, can readily see where reefs of enemy resistance are slowing down the Nazi flood. Screaming down in steep dives, they let go their bombs at everything that moves behind the enemy lines. Well concealed guns reveal their positions when they fire at tanks.

Enemy tanks that roll out to do battle disclose their positions by movement. They, too, are bombed. And despite British disparagement of dive bombers as effective anti-tank weapons, the Germans repeatedly have destroyed enemy tanks with their bombers. Direct hits will stop even the largest tanks by blowing off tractor belts or perhaps by killing crews from shock. Near misses have tossed heavy tanks over on their sides, putting them out of the battle. The Germans believe that a 1,000-pound bomb is worth expending to put a tank out of action.

In France the Germans showed that these infiltration tactics will plow right thru even a well organized defense-in-depth zone. Because the tanks do not wander widely, far from supply points or defensive zones, they cannot be allowed to penetrate and then, cut off, to be singled out and defeated thus. Altho the infiltration appears to be made recklessly and in contradiction of all established war principles, it is actually a carefully calculated affair in which a minimum risk of men and equipment is taken.

But, once thru the defense zone, the slow, laborious punching ahead of the heavy tanks is dropped. The lighter armored cars, motorcyclists, and advanced pioneer columns commence fanning out in pincer arms. The tanks move ahead as swiftly as possible, bringing with them the ammunition, fuel, food supplies, and rolling machine shops of a blitz army. But the scouts are far faster.

These scouting columns, with their towed anti-tank guns, mortars, and light and heavy machine guns, pack a terrific punch for the actual numbers of men involved. They form the open warfare spearheads. And here again speed is the key. They pop up so far behind enemy lines that usually they meet no defense. In France these motorcycle troops—once the campaign developed into the open warfare stage—were seizing and holding rail and road centers that were from 100 to 150 miles ahead of the main forces. But they were so deep into the French lines that they usually met with no resistance whatever.

But even these daring troops were not as exposed as most students of military strategy imagine. Given the air support the Germans have always provided for their ground troops, the motorcyclists are not far in time from their main body. Dive bombers cover 150 miles in a little more than 30 minutes. They range out ahead of the cyclists and provide them with the terrific artillery punch that otherwise would be entirely missing.

A classic example in France of the German open warfare was given after the initial Nazi break-thru at Sedan. While one column raced over 40 miles due south and hurriedly set up a defense line to prevent the French armies based in the elbow behind the Maginot line from moving west to assist the hard-pressed French and Belgian frontier forces, another German column curled around westward from Sedan and soon had the original break 80 miles wide. It then extended from Sedan to Maubeuge.

The third and probably the strongest column raced northeast from Sedan and within a few days had reached the English channel at Boulogne. This isolated the British expeditionary force of 440,000 men, the Belgian army of 600,000, and the three French mobile armies that had moved up into Belgium. So swiftly did the Nazis reëforce and supply the pincers arm that cut in behind these united nations troops that the French and British were unable to break out to the east or south. Of all these troops only 300,000 odd British managed to escape, and they came by water, leaving behind all their equipment at Dunkirk.

Infiltration coupled with open warfare was first used by Ludendorff in March, 1918. It had the same initial success at that time that it enjoyed in 1940. Ludendorff threw his armies against the British in an effort to break thru to Amiens. His ultimate objective was very similar to that successfully reached by the Nazis. He intended to continue on thru Amiens to the channel after breaching the allied forces.

The mopping up of the northern area that would thus be cut off would have given the Germans the continental side of the channel. It would have sliced apart the British and French armies and would have uncorked the German U-boats that were being held in German and Belgian harbors by British mines and control of both sides of the channel narrows.

Ludendorff won an initial victory, completely destroying the British 5th army. He was stopped short of Amiens, however. This was probably due more to the physical exhaustion of his troops than to the hastily whipped up resistance that wavered before him here.

This example of infiltration followed by daring open maneuvering was never forgotten by the Germans. The element of physical exhaustion was overcome by the introduction of the mechanized division, which also helped to increase the speed of maneuver, which always has been highly important in open fighting. The tactics outlined here have been perfected by the Germans and are being used in Russia today. We must meet them with our own troops as soon as we have armies in the field against the Nazis.

RIGHT IN THE NECKLINE!

By LOUISE DOOLEY

THE NECKLINE of a dress can be a determining factor in the attractiveness of the face above it. A little study of facial contour and the line needed to compliment it will tell any woman the most becoming one for her. Round, chubby faces don't react very well to little Peter Pan collars. The cherub face group will usually find that the V line is the most flattering for them. This same line a little emphasized is best also for the woman whose neck is short and heavy.

Many women with long, thinnish faces have the mistaken belief that the round collar was designed especially for them. However, this type of face is usually accompanied by a rather longish neck, which seems to stretch even longer from such a collar. A V neckline pulled back a little at either side will be much more becoming; it adds grace to the length. There are so many varied lines in dresses in fashion at the present time that every woman can find the one most suitable for her, be it draped, severely plain, square, or round.

The woman with a thin face and its usual accompaniment of a longer than average neck should make certain that the effect of length isn't intensified by a narrow, deep V. A graceful compromise, particularly flattering for the owner of a long, thin face and neck, is a V broadened by the sides into something of a square line.

The skin of the neck and throat is subject to much neglect but in reality requires just as much care as the delicate skin around the eyes. Thoro scrubbing to keep it immaculutely clean and free from telltale marks of coat collars, plus generous lubrication each day with a rich cream, will help maintain its beauty. The lubricating cream might well have whitening ingredients, since this skin has a tendency to darken or become rather sallow. The massage accompanying this procedure should be gentle and always in an upward motion in order to avoid breaking down the tissues.

If a makeup foundation is used it should be brought well down on the neck to avoid the demarcation line that gives the impression that two-toned skins are being worn. Powder also must be evenly applied, but special care should be taken to dust off all excess to avoid its rubbing off onto dress fabric.

WOMEN ON THE CAMPUS

By
NANGLE

WOMEN who formerly kept house, taught school, or did office work, who had the necessary qualifications of a college degree, with mathematics thru calculus, are now being trained at the University of Chicago to become instructors or laboratory directors for the signal corps. The need for such feminine specialists is great, and any woman who can meet the qualifications and feels she has an aptitude for the work is urged to take advantage of the training. It's tuition-free, one of the courses sponsored by the United States Office of Education in its engineering, science, and management war program.

Among those taking the course now are three married women. Mrs. Elizabeth Bechtel of Pittsburgh is one. She has, she says, "been a vegetable for 15 years," keeping house and caring for a son. Her husband is now in the signal corps; she's taking training in electronics so they can be a team in the service. Wonderful mental exercise she finds the training, too. Mrs. Milford Benham of Olney, Ill., was graduated from the University of Illinois in 1935. She, too, wants to make a team; her husband just completed a somewhat stiffer course of training in the same field. Mrs. Cesarine De Vinney of Columbus, Wis., has two sons; weighing her qualifications and her aptitudes, she felt that no other type of war work would suit her as well.

Ruth Wolkow is a Wellesley graduate; Patricia Walsh finished this spring at Smith. Beth Grill of Peoria, Ill., majored in chemistry at Bradley Polytechnic institute but has spent the last five years teaching public school music. Rose De Muth is a former teacher from Green Bay, Wis.

The class, smaller than it should be, since the need for these specialists is so very great and the training is so accessible, is a hard-working one, on a schedule that calls for an eight-hour day, six days a week. In the course of training each student builds both a small and a large radio set, forming the chassis of sheet metal, building the cabinet, placing the instruments in the proper place, wiring and testing it unassisted. Each learns to handle woodworking devices, drill presses, and welding equipment.

These women are proving that brains and mechanical skill are no masculine monopoly, and every one of them might be an example to the rest of us, who are so conversationally willing to "do war work" but so confused about getting started!

The map drafters at the University of Chicago are another example of women who do their country's bidding—which is to please, please take training to serve where they are most needed. This course, too, is tuition-free. The sole educational requirement is high school graduation. Add to this the aptitude for and interest in work that calls for patience and precision and the country has the services of a map drafter at the end of 12 weeks! One more man can be released for combat duty.

All in all, war colors every activity at the University of Chicago. One group of meteorologists is half way thru a special nine-month course. More than 200 more young men, members of a U. S. army air force training detachment, have just begun their training.

This new khaki contingent joins the huge number of men in blue at the University of Chicago Naval Training station, who are in a sense the university's guests. All drill and study much too hard for social life during the week, but are entertained almost every Sunday at a tea dance and buffet sponsored by the Midway USO and given at Ida Noyes hall. Here the co-eds join with faculty wives and women of the Hyde Park district in entertaining them as royally as possible.

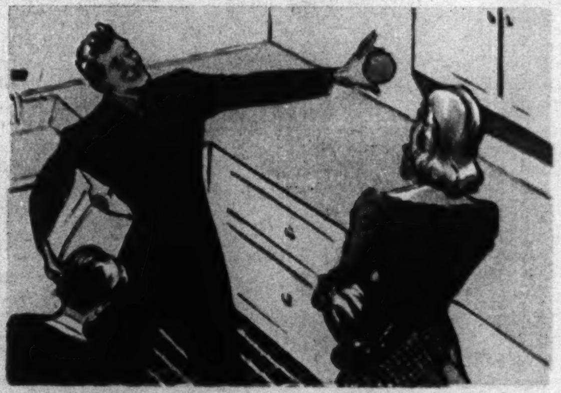
2 "Look. The U. S. Government says you need vitamin C every day—because you can't store it in your body. For good health, you need at least 75 milligrams of it—and that's a lot, as vitamins go!



3 "What's more, it's a scarce item—not found in most foods. Open cooking destroys it in a hurry. So chances are pretty slim of getting enough—unless you have plenty of citrus fruit.

4 "An 8-ounce glass of fresh orange juice gives you all you need for the best of health. So!—pernickety appetite or not—I want my orange juice! And I want you to have it—and the youngsters!" (And Mrs. J just smiles, without ever telling Mr. J that orange juice is also a valuable source of vitamins A, B_1 and G, and calcium!)

FEEL FIT AS A FIDDLE Tomorrow

TAKE PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA Tonight

SAY GOODBYE to those "morning blues." Next time you overeat, or stay up late at a gay party, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia at bedtime and wake up feeling "fit as a fiddle". That's because Phillips' does more than merely neutralize excess acidity—it finishes the job. After settling the stomach, it goes on to act as a very gentle laxative promotes a mild yet thorough elimination. It's an ideal laxative-antacid. Read directions on package and take as directed thereon or as prescribed by your physician.

ONE-TWO ACTION

1 NEUTRALIZES EXCESS STOMACH ACIDS—and does it almost quicker than it takes to tell. Relieves that uneasy feeling of discomfort almost immediately.

2 ACTS AS MILD LAXATIVE. Gentle—does not upset the system and leave you feeling "all wrung out". Take any time—does not act with embarrassing urgency.

Many physicians recommend it FOR YOUNG CHILDREN

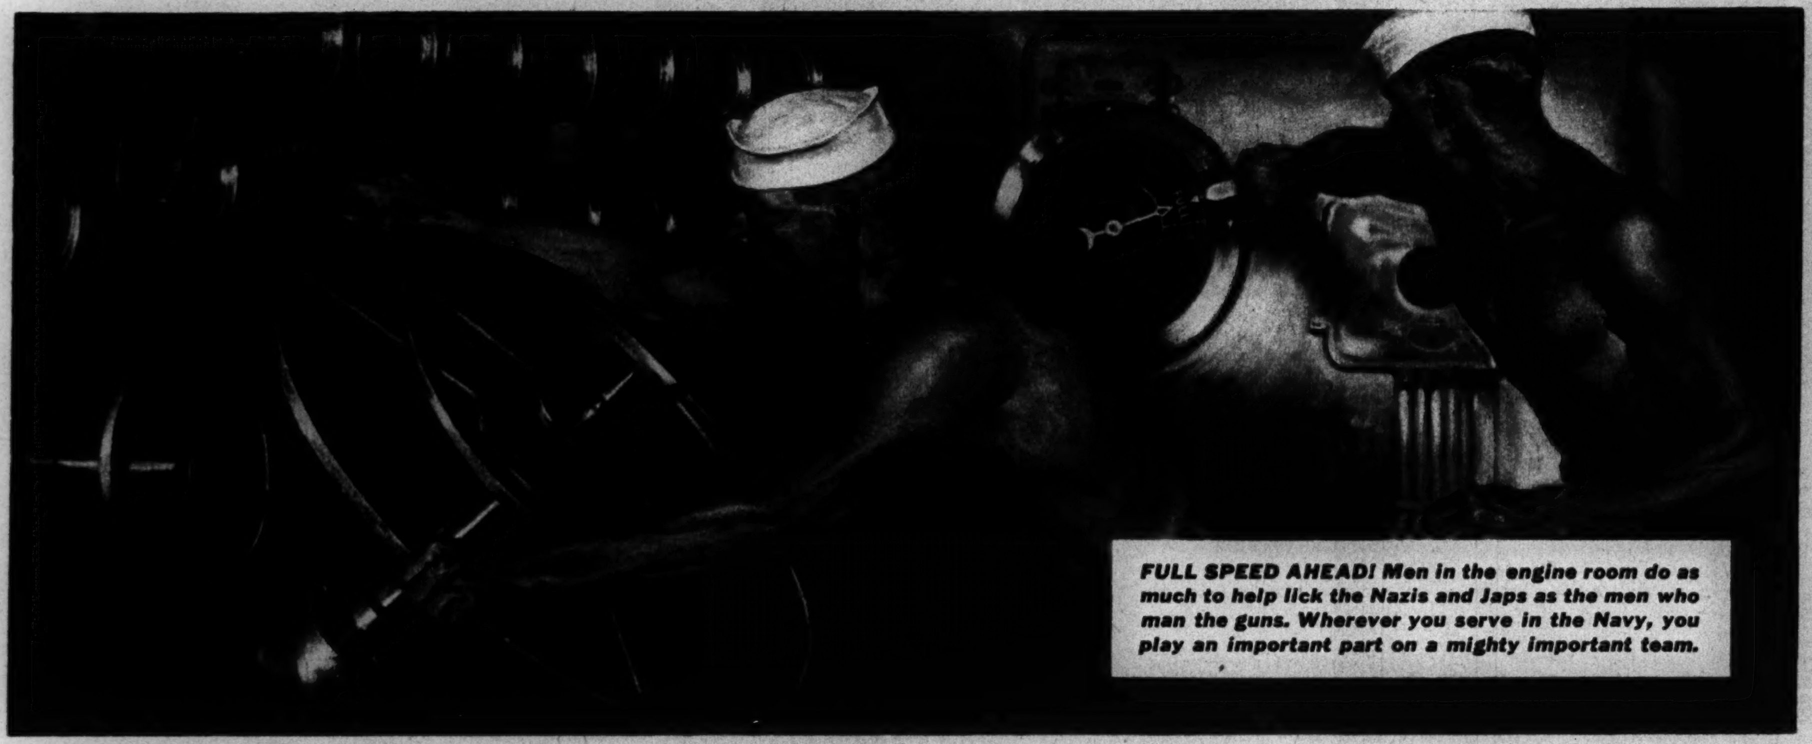
TO ALL MEN 17 to 50 NOT YET IN UNIFORM



FULL SPEED AHEAD! Men in the engine room do as much to help lick the Nazis and Japs as the men who man the guns. Wherever you serve in the Navy, you play an important part on a mighty important team.

The Navy calls you to serve your country. For action, training, quick advancement—choose while you still have the chance.

YOUR country is calling you to service. It's the greatest service that any American can give—to protect your home and your loved ones—to keep the fires of freedom burning.

Many of your friends have already answered this call to service. More are going every day. And within a short time you may also be in uniform.

There's no time to lose if you want to choose. The Navy offers a big opportunity to every able-bodied American to do the most for his country—and for himself.

What the Navy offers you

Your place in the Navy is a man-size job. And it offers you a man's reward. It offers you a clean, healthy outdoor life that will harden you, toughen you, put you—and keep you—in top-notch physical trim.

It offers you action, adventure and travel to the far corners of the world. It offers you good pay, the finest of quarters, the best of food. And it offers you the chance of a lifetime to become an expert in the trade of your choice.

Radio, aviation, electricity, engineering, photography—these are but a few of nearly 50 skilled trades in which the Navy may give you free training. Free training that would cost you $1500. Free training that will fit you to do a better fighting job right now—fit you to land a better peacetime job when the war is won.

You get ahead fast in the Navy. Your first promotion comes after approximately two months, upon completion of recruit training. By the end of your first enlistment, you can be making as much as $138 a month. And there are new allowances for men with dependents.

Remember, too, your pay is all yours to spend. It all goes into your pocket because your living expenses are paid—three good meals a day, clean, comfortable quarters, the finest medical and dental care. And on top of that, the Navy gives you $133 worth of uniforms—complete outfits for both summer and winter.

The Navy makes men!

It's a great life. It makes great men. Men who want responsibility—and are trained to take it. Men who want to do the most for their country—and are doing it. Men who are playing an important part on an important team—the U. S. Navy.

You want action. You want to fight for your country. You want to build your own future. Here's your chance. Talk to your nearest Navy Recruiting Officer today. Get his friendly advice. Ask him for the book that gives you all the facts—"Men Make the Navy." 48 pages filled with pictures of the Navy in action. Shows the pay you get, trades you may learn, promotions you may win, requirements you must meet—all the facts to help you decide. It's FREE.

1. A chance to serve your country.
2. Clean, healthy life.
3. Good food—and plenty of it.
4. Good pay—up to $138 a month.
5. Free clothing—$133 worth.
6. Free medical and dental care.
7. Travel . . . adventure . . . thrills.
8. Opportunity to be an Officer.
9. Training in nearly 50 trades.
10. Future success in civil life.

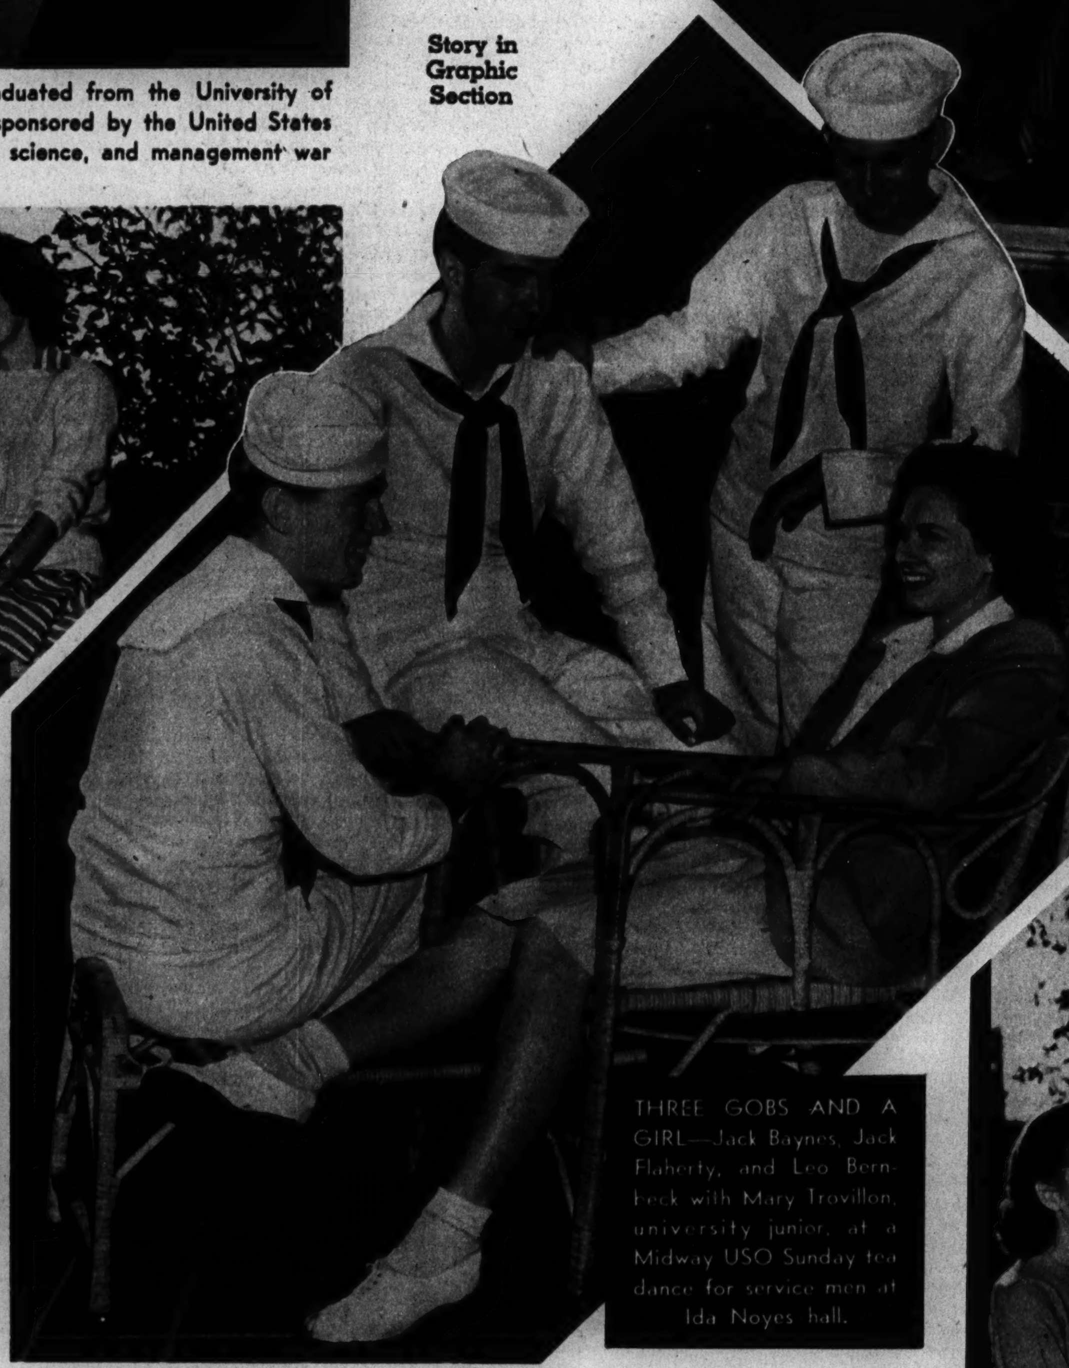
NEARING THE FINISH—Blanche Goodheim of Chicago is about to complete her course in map drafting. Young women who are high school graduates are being urged to enroll.

DANCE GUESTS—Melvin Buckles of Portland, Ore., and Dave Strieter of Chelsea, Mich., both in the yeomen's office at the U. of C. Naval Training station, and Jeanne Krender, university senior and volunteer hostess.



THREE GOBS AND A GIRL—Jack Baynes, Jack Flaherty, and Leo Bernbeck with Mary Trovillon, university junior, at a Midway USO Sunday tea dance for service men at Ida Noyes hall.

STUDENT OF ELECTRONICS—Lorraine Golden, U. of C. graduate, tests a radio set built by herself. The training is designed to furnish instructors and laboratory directors for the United States Signal corps. Like the course in map drafting, it is government-sponsored and tuition-free.

FORMER TEACHERS—Beth Grill of Peoria, Ill., and Rose De Muth of Green Bay, Wis., study the characteristics of condensers and inductances at an oscilloscope. The need is urgent for trained persons in such highly technical subjects.

NEW FLYING FORTRESS

The B17-E is described as the most powerful of the army's flying fortress planes. It has four motors and mounts guns in power-operated revolving turrets.

PASTE STAMP HERE

U.S.S. LEXINGTON

The valiant aircraft carrier that led American naval and air forces to victory over the Japanese in the Coral sea last May before Jap planes crippled her and she sank.

PASTE STAMP HERE

TORPEDO PLANE

Planes like this, a Douglas torpedo bomber, sank two Jap aircraft carriers in the battle of the Coral sea. They are deadly weapons against surface ships.

PASTE STAMP HERE

"SCRATCH ONE FLAT-TOP"

When Lieut. Comm. Bob Dixon's squadron sank a Jap aircraft carrier in the Coral sea he radioed to the Lexington these words: "Scratch one flat-top!"

PASTE STAMP HERE

CORAL SEA HERO

Captain (now Rear Admiral) Fred Sherman commanded the Lexington in the battle of the Coral sea. He was the last to go when it became necessary to abandon her.

PASTE STAMP HERE

APPRENTICE SEAMAN

When a man enlists in the navy he is known as an apprentice seaman. This rating is indicated by a single white stripe around his sleeve cuffs.

PASTE STAMP HERE

NAVY OFFICERS

You can tell navy officers by their braid. A single stripe means ensign; two stripes, a lieutenant, senior grade; three stripes, a commander; four, a captain.

PASTE STAMP HERE

AN OLD-TIMER

A sergeant major of the marines. The five "hash marks," those slanting stripes on the lower part of the sleeve, each denote four years of service.

PASTE STAMP HERE

ARMY OFFICERS

Two silver bars indicate a captain's rank; a gold oak leaf, a major; a silver eagle, a colonel; one star, a brigadier general, and four stars, a general.

PASTE STAMP HERE

AMERICAN BATTLESHIP

The U.S.S. South Dakota is now one of our newest and finest ships. It is 750 feet long, displaces about 41,000 tons, and carries nine 16-inch guns.

CUT OR TEAR ALONG THE PERFORATION

PASTE STAMP HERE

DIVE BOMBER

The navy's Curtiss XSB2C-1 carries a heavier bomb load at higher speeds for greater distances than any other plane of its type. It's known as "Pride of the Navy."

PASTE STAMP HERE

WAKE ISLAND

U. S. marines, aided by civilian workers, made a heroic stand at Wake. In the thick of the fighting they radioed home, "Send us more Japs!"

PASTE STAMP HERE

ATTACK BOMBER

The Douglas A-20A attack bomber is a real fighting plane. It can carry 1,200 pounds of bombs at 240 miles an hour and has a range of 1,000 miles.

PASTE STAMP HERE

GRUMMAN FIGHTER

In the battle of Wake Island the marines used these fighters, which fly 325 miles an hour and mount two machine guns in the wings, two in the nose.

PASTE STAMP HERE

GENERAL WAINWRIGHT

Maj. Gen. J. M. (Skinny) Wainwright succeeded General MacArthur as U. S. commander in the Philippines, and put up a valiant defense in Bataan and Corregidor.

PASTE STAMP HERE

CAMOUFLAGE

Experts paint big guns with crazy-quilt patterns and cover them with nets and tree branches to hide them from the eyes of enemy flyers.

PASTE STAMP HERE

FLYING FORTRESS

This big airplane, the pride of the air corps, carries 6,000 pounds of bombs, is heavily armored, protected with machine guns, and has a range of 3,500 miles.

PASTE STAMP HERE

PURSUIT PLANE

The Bell P-39, or Airacobra, one of our best pursuit planes. It has a 37-mm. cannon firing thru the propeller and six machine guns in the nose and wings.

PASTE STAMP HERE

SUBMARINE

The American submarine Triton, one of our newest types, is 299 feet long, mounts 10 torpedo tubes. Heroic crews sink ships in Jap waters with such subs.

PASTE STAMP HERE

CONSOLIDATED BOMBER

The Consolidated B-24 flies 320 miles an hour, carrying a four-ton bomb load and a crew of six to nine men. Heavily armed, it has a 3,500-mile range.

These guns protect cities, bases, and ships from air raiders. They can fire explosive shells four miles into the air and are manned by trained anti-aircraft gun crews.

PASTE STAMP HERE

CAPT. COLIN KELLY

American flying hero who sank the Jap battleship Haruna, 29,600 tons, with three direct bomb hits. He lost his life following the attack.

PASTE STAMP HERE

LAUNCHING DESTROYER

American shipyards work day and night building destroyers and other warships that will fight the war on the sea and guard our convoys.

PASTE STAMP HERE

U. S. HEAVY CRUISER

American cruisers are named after large cities. The Chicago, shown above, is one of our fine warships. It is 600 feet long and 66 feet wide and has a speed of 37.6 m.p.h.

PASTE STAMP HERE

A HEAVY CRUISER

The U.S.S. Minneapolis is a fine example of a modern heavy cruiser, altho it is almost 10 years old. It mounts nine 8-inch guns and carries a crew of 594.

PASTE STAMP HERE

ARMY DOCTORS

Army doctors and nurses watch over the health of our troops. Working in field hospitals under difficult conditions, they have repeatedly proved themselves heroes.

PASTE STAMP HERE

U. S. COAST GUARDS

The coast guard becomes a part of the regular navy in time of war and helps to man our shore defenses and our anti-submarine patrols.

PASTE STAMP HERE

ARMORED DIVISIONS

Streamlined American armored divisions are among the toughest, best equipped fighting forces in the world. It is they who lead the ground forces into battle.

PASTE STAMP HERE

THE SIGNAL CORPS

Fighting units must keep in touch with one another in the thick of battle. That is the job for the brave, efficient men of the army signal corps.

PASTE STAMP HERE

FIGHTING MARINES

Our "Devil Dogs" often meet the enemy hand to hand. They are toughened by rigorous training, and in the marine corps are found some of the world's best warriors.

PASTE STAMP HERE

YANKS IN EGYPT

American airmen and tank fighters are helping the British battle the axis armies on the deserts of ancient Egypt, one of the world's oldest battlefields.

PASTE STAMP HERE

JIMMY DOOLITTLE

Brig. Gen. James Doolittle, ace American flyer, led the American squadron that surprised and bombed Tokio, capital of Japan, on April 18 of this year.

PASTE STAMP HERE

THEY "KEEP 'EM FLYING"

Our technical experts, battling the heat and sand of Egypt, are on the front lines, making repairs on American planes—"keeping 'em flying" when they're needed most.

PASTE STAMP HERE

AMPHIBIAN ASSAULT BOAT

This all-steel monster, which rolls on two caterpillar treads, can travel on land and water, carrying 25 American soldiers and their needed battle supplies.

POSTER STAMP ALBUM OF EVENTS

The UNITED STATES of AMERICA in WORLD WAR II

HOW TO FILL ALBUM Here is an eight-page stamp album to commemorate events since America's entrance in World War II. The first series of full colored stamps appears in today's Picture Section. Paste these stamps in the spaces provided for them in this album. Other series of stamps will appear each Sunday for the next six weeks. When you have placed them all in this album you will have a beautiful and valuable history of the present conflict.

CURTISS COMMANDO

This 25-ton military transport plane is now being delivered to the army air forces. It will carry troops, one or more jeeps, and field artillery into battle zones.

PASTE STAMP HERE

WAACS AND WAVES

American women, in addition to those working in the arms plants, are taking their places beside our soldiers and sailors as auxiliaries, performing military duties.

PASTE STAMP HERE

FIGHTING GUN CREWS

Gun crews on our merchant ships guard against submarine attacks. The gunners are last to abandon a ship that has been hit, for they hope to catch the emerging sub.

PASTE STAMP HERE

WAR PLANT WORKERS

Millions of workers in the United States war plants are doing their part to defeat the axis powers. They are helping to win the "battle of production."

PASTE STAMP HERE

"TOSSING THE CANS"

Strange looking guns on destroyers and patrol ships hurl "ash cans"—depth charges—into waters where enemy subs are believed to be lurking.

PASTE STAMP HERE

AMERICAN RANGERS

Like British commandos, Americans are being trained to raid behind enemy lines. These troops, dressed in black, with faces darkened, are picked for bravery

PASTE STAMP HERE

AIR RAID ON GERMANY

American flyers have joined with the British in bombing German military objectives. They fight thru heavy anti-aircraft fire to bomb Nazi strongholds.

PASTE STAMP HERE

CONVOY TO MALTA

American warships fight their way thru heavy air attacks to convoy British supplies to the island of Malta, which menaces the axis life line in the Mediterranean.

PASTE STAMP HERE

AMERICANS IN INDIA

Even in far-off India, American troops are stationed, ready to battle the Japs should they attempt to invade. The soldiers watch a Hindu fakir perform.

PASTE STAMP HERE

BARRAGE BALLOONS

Balloons like these suspend steel nets high in the air to guard against surprise attack by enemy planes and to force them into the range of anti-aircraft fire.

WHO WAS CAUGHT?

IT isn't often that a fish catches a fisherman, but that really happened to the Teenie Weenie Cowboy.

Several of the Teenie Weenies had expressed a wish for one of the Cook's famous baked minnows, but the little men had been so busy getting in their Winter's supply of frog hams they hadn't a minute to spare for fishing. Besides catching the frogs, the hams had to be dressed, salted and then smoked for several days so they could be stored away for future use. The little folk usually cured 40 hams and the same number of shoulders. That took a lot of work and every last Teenie Weenie man had to do his share, but one day the Cowboy found time enough to try for a fish.

He crawled out onto a beech limb which grew out over a deep spot in the creek, and baiting his hook with a piece of fresh frog meat, he dropped it into the water. He sat for a long time without a single nibble and, as it was a warm, lazy day, he dozed off to sleep. Suddenly a minnow grabbed the bait and gave such a hard pull it threw the Cowboy off his balance and he tumbled backward off the limb into the water. Being a trifle heavier than the fish, the Cowboy's weight pulled the fish out of the creek and it came to a stop on the limb from which the Teenie Weenie had just fallen.

The Cowboy was afraid to climb the fish line for fear that his weight might pull the fish over the limb and back into the creek. The line was far too short for him to swim to shore with it, and so there was nothing to do but hang onto the string and hope that someone would come to his help.

The fish fluttered and jumped. If the Cowboy had not been one of the strongest Teenie Weenies, the minnow soon would have been back in the creek with his fellows:

"I'm going to land this fish if I have to stay here all day," muttered the little fisherman, and he began to shout for help at the top of his small voice.

It was a lucky thing that the Turk, the Dunce and the Sailor happened to hear his shouts. They came running to the spot and their eyes fairly popped with astonishment when they saw the fish on the tree limb and the fisherman in the water.

FOLD HERE

"You mean the fish has caught you," laughed the Turk, as he crawled out on the limb followed by the Dunce and the Sailor.

The three Teenie Weenies soon reached the line and made it fast to the tree limb, while the Cowboy swam safely back to the bank. It took a great deal of careful work to remove the fish from the limb without losing it, for the minnow wiggled and squirmed tremendously. Finally, they brought it to the shore and the Cowboy proudly carried it home on his strong little back.

All the Teenie Weenies laughed when they heard how the fish had caught the Cowboy, and for days afterward the little chap was nicknamed Fish by his friends.

The Cowboy likes a joke, so he was not cross when a Teenie Weenie would wink at the crowd and say, "Fish, tell us how it feels to be caught by a minnow!"

The Turk and the Sailor dressed the minnow while the Cook prepared the dressing with which it was to be stuffed. He mashed the soft part of three grains of hominy and to that he added finely chopped hazel nut and a quarter of a hickory nut kernel.

The fish was four and half Teenie Weenie feet long, or about two and a half inches in our measurement. Of course, it was much too long to go into the Teenie Weenie stove. The head and tail had to be removed so it would go into the tiny oven. After the fish had been stuffed with the dressing and sewed up, it was baked a golden brown. When the Teenie Weenies had eaten it, they all agreed that it was the best fish they had ever eaten.

READY TO EAT CEREAL

NEW KIND OF OATMEAL CEREAL COMES ALL READY TO EAT! CORN and RYE Added for Flavor

Of course, the big news is . . . nourishment plus convenience. CHEERIOATS is 75% ground oatmeal, and provides full oatmeal amounts of Vitamin B_1, Vitamin G, Calcium, Phosphorus, Niacin and Iron. It's the "old reliable" for breakfast nourishment . . . in modern, ready-to-eat form. Fulfills all the requirements for a ready-to-eat cereal, as laid down for the National Nutritional Program. General Mills, Inc., Minneapolis, Minnesota.

SMILIN' JACK
DOWNWIND HAVING BEEN ATTACHED TO CIVIL AIR PATROL INTELLIGENCE HAS STARTED ON AN INSPECTION TOUR OF CAP TASK FORCE BASES WITH CAPT. SMILIN' JACK MARTIN--- CINDY, I'M HAPPY MY OL' PAL JACK ASKED ME TO ENTERTAIN YOU WHILE HE'S AWAY-- HOLD STILL-- I'M TRYING TO CAPTURE YOUR EXOTIC CHARM--
WHY ATLAS MAIDEN-SWOON, I'LL BET YOU TELL THAT TO ALL THE GIRLS! HOW DID YOU BECOME AN ARTIST?
I ALWAYS SKETCHED AND FLEW BUT I LOST A FOOT IN A CRASH SO I QUIT FLYING AND CONCENTRATED ON ART--HOLD STILL, GODDESS--
JACK ARRANGED FOR DOWNWIND AND HIMSELF TO RIDE TO ONE BASE IN AN ARMY BOMBER, BUT WHILE IN FLIGHT THE PILOT WAS ORDERED TO INVESTIGATE A GROUP OF ISLANDS OFF SHORE--
S-2 RADIOED IN CODE THAT THEY GOT A TIP THAT ONE ISLAND MIGHT BE A RE-FUELLING BASE FOR SUBS--
I HOPE IT TURNS OUT TO BE TH' LAIR OF THAT MURDEROUS AXIS WATER-SNAKE, BARON MONSOON-- DOWNWIND, DID YOU NOTICE HOW QUICK LT. COCKY, THE NAVIGATOR, PLOTTED OUR NEW COURSE!
SO DO THE PILOTS! LOOK! WE'RE IN PEA SOUP FOG YET---
--LT. RUSTY, OUR PILOT, KEEPS THIS BOOM BOOM WAGON ON COURSE BY INSTRUMENTS-
WELL, WE FINALLY BUSTED OUTTA TH' SOUP AND THERE ARE TH' ISLANDS--
YEAH, AN' LOOK! TH' TIP WAS TRUE-- THERE IS A SUB--
NOW, WE'LL SEE WHY LT. ROCKROCK, TH' BOMBARDIER, EARNED HIS WINGS! HE'S JUS' CALCULATED SPEED, WIND, DRIFT, ALTITUDE, ETC. FOR HIS BOMBSIGHT SETTING AND-- BOOM
--THERE! HE GOT HIM!
WOW! THREE MUSKETEERS DID IT AGAIN! PILOT AND NAVIGATOR GET YOU THERE AND TH' BOMBARDIER GIVES 'EM TH' OL' ONE-TWO!
TEAMS LIKE THIS PLUS RADIO AND FLIGHT ENGINEERS ARE GIVING TH' AXIS BLOODY NOSES ALL OVER THE WORLD!
HEY, THIS SHOW ISN'T OVER! LOOK! TWO AXIS FIGHTER PLANES, DOWNWIND--
OH, NO? ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN IN THIS WAR-- THOSE PLANES MIGHT BE FROM AN AXIS CARRIER OR A SECRET ISLAND BASE--
QUICK! MAN THE GUN TURRETS

THE MAKERS OF LISTERINE ANTISEPTIC PRESENT

REMEMBER THIS FAMOUS LISTERINE AD?

A PRESCRIPTION FOR YOUR TEETH!

How to use it: At least twice a day use this cream paste as you would any tooth paste.

More than 14 ingredients

The new Listerine tooth paste prescription is compounded with more than 14 carefully selected ingredients, precisely balanced to give you maximum polishing and cleansing qualities without danger to the enamel.

What to expect: 1. Sensational "Pin-Point" Cleansing (thanks to a special ingredient) gets after many tiny microscopic spots on enamel some of which might be missed entirely by a less efficient dentifrice.

2. An Eye-Widening Taste Thrill that sets your mouth tingling, leaves it feeling fresher, cleaner, sweeter.

3. Economy that You Can Measure in Hard Cash. See for yourself how little of this new, energized tooth paste prescription is needed to get results!

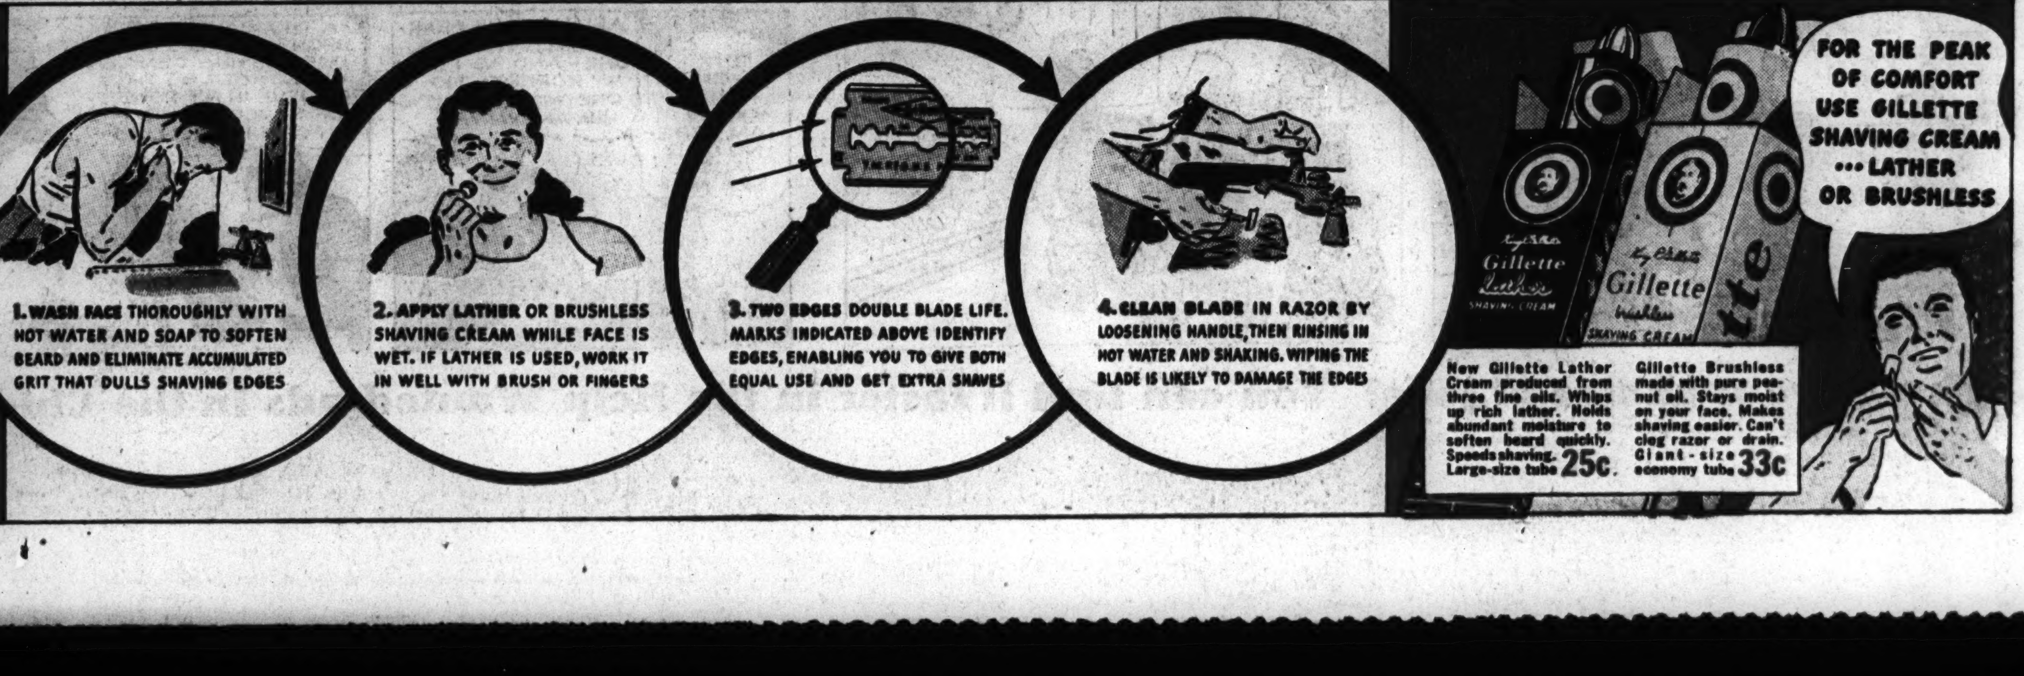
Easy To Get Extra Shaves With Every Gillette Blade This Simple Way

GILLETTE BLADES are built to last much longer and give you far more shaving comfort than ordinary blades. Their edges, the sharpest ever produced, are so hard they actually cut glass. That's why you can "stretch" a Gillette Blade out for one extra shave after another!



1. WASH FACE THOROUGHLY WITH HOT WATER AND SOAP TO SOFTEN BEARD AND ELIMINATE ACCUMULATED GRIT THAT DULLS SHAVING EDGES
2. APPLY LATHER OR BRUSHLESS SHAVING CREAM WHILE FACE IS WET. IF LATHER IS USED, WORK IT IN WELL WITH BRUSH OR FINGERS
3. TWO EDGES DOUBLE BLADE LIFE. MARKS INDICATED ABOVE IDENTIFY EDGES, ENABLING YOU TO GIVE BOTH EQUAL USE AND GET EXTRA SHAVES
4. CLEAN BLADE IN RAZOR BY LOOSENING HANDLE, THEN RINSING IN HOT WATER AND SHAKING. WIPING THE BLADE IS LIKELY TO DAMAGE THE EDGES

BLASTS HITCH-HIKERS ON WAR MACHINE

WILL COUNTY'S SCHOOLS FEEL IMPACT OF WAR

Fewer Buildings Get More Pupils.

BY JOSEPH GREEN.

Clyde Scott, average American, is worried. He is a construction superintendent and in these wartimes is doing well enough financially. That doesn't worry him. But he is a father and the problem of a father's duties to his children is what perturbs him.

"Forty pupils in a one room school—one teacher for the lot of them!" he exploded. "What kind of an education can the kids get that way?"

Flood of New Families.

The pupils, including Scott's daughter, Jean, in the 6th grade, are crowded into a small building at Custer Park, crossroads village five miles south of Wilmington and the government's huge ordnance works. The building was adequate and one teacher could handle the enrollment before the war plant moved in. But with thousands of families moving into the area, the picture is changed. Custer Park and Will county as a whole are feeling an educational pinch.

Forty per cent of the Will county school territory has been affected by the establishment of the military reservation. School enrollment has increased between 5 and 10 per cent in the areas influenced. Grade school enrollment is up about 10 per cent. High schools show a slight drop.

School districts where the influx hit with greatest force were staggered, but recovered with the aid of government funds, allocated for such a purpose. But Custer Park is the victim of a weak strategic situation. Its facilities and money were used almost to a maximum before the population wave hit. So even a little increase was enough to cramp the district. And because it was hit only lightly, the government is reported willing to help some, but not as much as Custer Park folks would like.

Want Another Teacher.

Custer Park wants the government to pay another teacher, to put it bluntly. The government countered last spring with an offer to transport some of the pupils to other schools, caring for a number of pupils proportionate to the number added by the arms project.

This would be about eight pupils, according to an estimate last spring, when Custer Park school had 36 students. Forty-four were expected this year, and the prospect was too much for the teacher, who quit. There was more money in running a boarding house in Wilmington, anyway. So Mrs. Grace West, who had been teaching for $85 a month, left, even tho she was offered a raise. Mrs. Bessie Blair, wife of a munitions worker, took on the assignment this year at $100 a month.

Custer Park's problem might be solved thru further negotiations this fall with the federal security agency. But last week no further moves had been made from Custer Park. Clyde Scott maybe had decided to make the most of it. After all, the war has brought many another problem.

Seven Districts Lost.

As for the rest of Will county, numerous adjustments have been necessary and in general the federal government has shared costs caused by the ordnance plant, according to Louis F. Bottino, Will county superintendent of schools.

Seven entire school districts were lost to the ordnance plant and parts of another 10 were taken. About half the dislocated residents moved out of the county. Half shifted to other districts in the county.

Wilmington has had the greatest increase, grade enrollment nearly doubling, from less than 300 to more than 500 and with one-third increase in high school enrollment, Bottino reported.

The government has promised a four room addition to the grade school and put up two temporary four room structures to care for pupils brought in by two 500 family housing units at Wilmington. Trailer and other shelters are occupied by an estimated 500 more families near Wilmington.

New Teacher at Braidwood.

At Braidwood the government is paying a fourth teacher, added when the ordnance plant increased enrollment from 100 to 130. This plan was in effect last year and the fourth teacher is on duty this year, pending renewed government approval of the district's request to continue the plan.

The Elwood school district lost three-fourths of its taxable property to the government project. Many families, of course, were forced to move out of the district, but others came in trailers. The government paid three-fourths of the school costs last year and is expected to do the same this year.

Last year Elwood had 140 grade pupils taught by three teachers. The village has a two year high school.

300 More in Joliet.

Joliet, county seat and largest city in the county, with 14 grade schools and a large high school, absorbed between 300 and 400 new grade pupils with little trouble. High school enrollment of about 3,000 last year, dropped about 300 this year, altho the war plant brought an estimated 150 pupils. Many dropped out of school, however, for armed service or war industries.

To meet the increased enrollment

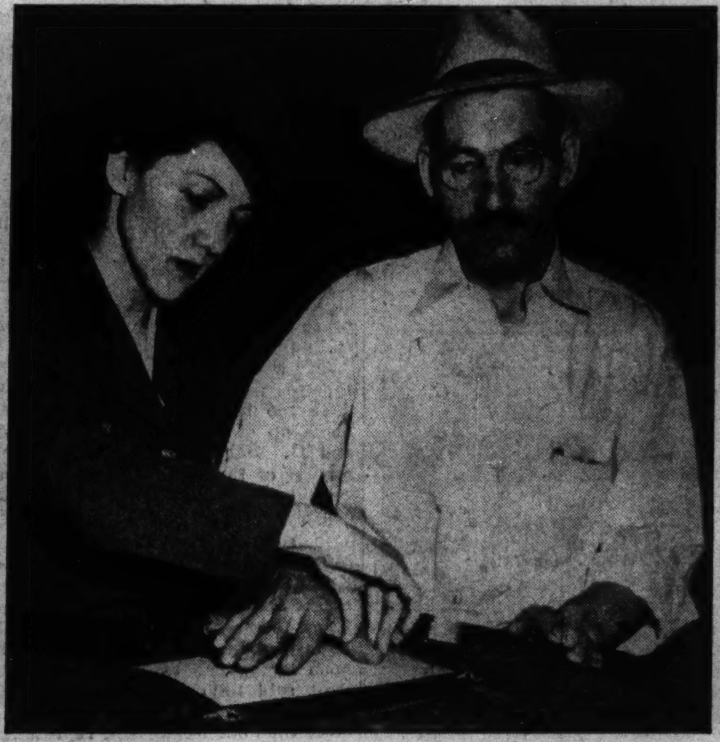
Bridgeport Civilian Defense Office Nears End of Organization Task

One hundred hours of civilian defense work gave Susan Mach, Lorraine McLaughlin, and Helen Werner the privilege of wearing these official OCD uniforms. The women's activities center in the community of Bridgeport, in division 3. Their headquarters are at Mark White square, 29th and Halsted streets. Miss Mach is chairman of the community's Red Cross activities and women's work; Miss McLaughlin is a Red Cross aid, and Miss Werner is chief of the Bridgeport civilian defense office staff. This office ranks among the best organized in the division.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]



All of the block captains and other civilian defense aids in the community are now finger printed. Miss Mach helped Andrew Simon, 3236 South Morgan street, record his prints. He is captain of the community's block 4 in zone 25.

Everybody wants to help in Bridgeport, and interviewers determine the work for which volunteers are best suited. Helen Werner is interviewing Mrs. Irene Ivanaski, 3142 Lituanica avenue, while her son, Leon, listens. Mrs. Sabina Herrmann, 2960 Throop street, relates her qualifications to Margaret Fitzer. Young Joseph Herrmann is the alert witness.

Meetings like this are held every two weeks at the community's headquarters. Seated from left to right are Bill Lamb, salvage chairman; P. J. McCarthy, community director; Lorraine McLaughlin, Susan Mach, Helen Werner, Stanley Mazeika, and Margaret Fitzer, morale chairman. Standing are Community Commander Ray J. Welsh, Joseph McKeon, and William O'Brien.

A map of the community is being inspected by Stanley Mazeika, 3319 Lituanica avenue, a member of the community's board of directors and a block captain; Bill Lamb, 3549 South Lowe avenue, salvage chairman, and Joseph McKeon, 634 West 37th street, a member of the board and assistant air raid training director. The hat on McKeon's head is the official air raid warden's cap. It's made of steel, weighs three pounds, and is painted white so community residents can see it during a black-out.

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Fifty women dressed in natty blue uniforms with shiny gold buttons answer questions all day long at 219 South La Salle street. They claim they have never been stumped on a question since their office opened in April and since people have been calling Central 7182 for information. They are volunteer members of the growing staff of the Central Information bureau of the Office of Civilian Defense dedicated to answer anybody and anything on questions and problems created by the war.

All day they tell men and women where to get allotment blanks, how to reach a soldier boy in Africa, how to erect a flag pole, how to display the flag, how to get to wear a uniform, and what a Chicagoan can do to win the war.

Some questions are vague, such as "Where can I reach a man in the United States army?"

Some Are Specific.

Some involve a specific answer such as "How many air miles are we in Chicago from Canada, the Atlantic coast, Pacific coast, and the gulf?"

The women make use of the almanac, a complete file of clippings of all Chicago newspapers, and an information file compiled with help from all bureaus of the government, army, navy, city hall, and Office of Civilian Defense.

Each volunteer on the information bureau staff must give two full days in the office. Director of all question answerers is Mrs. G. Corson Ellis and assistant in charge of public relations is Mrs. M. T. Bissell. The office manager is Miss Louise Nathan.

In addition to answering questions the bureau sends out to information people in each community of the metropolitan area a bulletin with all the latest facts and figures on defense training schools, educational events, civilian defense activities and meetings. In charge of this bulletin is Mrs. Dorothy Engert, production manager. Mail information is handled by Mrs. John Wentworth.

Mrs. Barney Lewin is the clipping editor and responsible for the complete clipping file of all news stories pertaining to life under war conditions.

Each Question Filed.

Every question that is asked by the public is saved in a box and when the day is over they are filed according to subject matter. First question asked by the women who call and who come in is "How can I get to wear a uniform?" Fifty per cent of the women who want to wear uniforms prefer blue.

Of this says Mrs. Willner, "Our question file is certainly going to be an eye opener for fashion designers. For eons women have been accused of robbing birds for plumage to please their vanity. Suddenly we discover that women want to dress alike and wear a uniform."

Most common question from the men is "How can I take a course training me for defense work?"

News columns in the daily papers cause a rush of one kind of question or another. The women at the information bureau one day were besieged with offers of blonde hair. The clipping file revealed that a picture had been in the paper showing the kind of long blonde hair needed for markers in making bomb sights. All day long the phone tinkled and an excited voice at the other end of the line would reveal, "I have blonde hair. How can I get it to the army?"

No Bleach or Dye.

Mrs. Willner says, "The army has all the blonde hair it needs. It had all its requirements in a few days after the SOS was sent out."

A great many women were discouraged when the information bureau revealed that the hair had to be 14 inches long, never bleached, never dyed and never permanented. Many blondes were discouraged to find they couldn't qualify and would have to do something else to serve their country.

The questions pour in. "How can I send $1 to San Francisco?" one man asked.

"Just a moment," soothed the question answerer at the information bureau. After a little checking it was revealed that the Kraft Cheese company was trying out its very effective siren.

Eager to Help.

In general the women at the information bureau have discovered that Chicagoans are panicky about probable black-outs, air raids, and sirens. They all want to help do something. Many women call the information bureau and want to help in the war effort.

Hundreds of questions pour in about nursery schools. Women with small children at home want some place to leave them so they can go to work in defense factories. The bureau has a file of nursery schools located in every section of the city.

Now and then a patriot gets discouraged. One man complained, "I want to make a fancy V for Victory on our street corner. I went out and bought black dirt, clam shells, and a flag. Now some one tells me I will not be allowed to go on with this project."

"Our job," explains Mrs. Willner, "is to answer, suggest, and soothe. It's really very interesting. We meet all kinds of people."

DOWNS SAYS U. S. WASTE HINDERS ALL OUT EFFORT

Campaigns for Seat in 6th District.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Thomas J. Downs, Republican congressional nominee in the 2d district, took a blast last week at nonessential spending that is interfering with the war program. Downs is campaigning for the seat vacated by Rep. Raymond S. McKeough to run for United States senator.

"It is absolutely necessary to our all-out war effort to do away with unnecessary nondefense spending," Downs told members of the 6th ward regular Republican club.

"Nothing should interfere with the war program. All unnecessary nondefense projects should be shelved until victory is ours. No business like execution of the war progress can be expected until the administration begins concentrating on gun barrels instead of pork barrels.

War No WPA Project.

"It should be kept in mind by administration leaders that the war is not a WPA project. We cannot make America the real arsenal of democracy until we correct the Washington bureau of burocracy."

Downs' opponent is Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], who has the full backing of the city hall Democratic organization. Rowan has been devoting the first part of his campaign largely to the strengthening of the party machine thru the district, which has been somewhat weakened by the defection of workers now ensconced in lucrative war jobs, and by the inroads of selective service.

Daniel A. Anderson, who withdrew in Downs' favor in the Republican primary last spring, in a series of statements in a south side community newspaper is urging the election of both Downs and Sen. Brooks. He said last week that before Pearl Harbor the Democrats in Washington had failed to prepare adequately for war because they underestimated the strength of our enemies, while Republicans opposed unprepared entry into the conflict until after the nation had been attacked.

Fight on in 3d.

In the 3d district, where a lively fight is on by Fred E. Busbey to unseat the Democrat, Congressman Edward A. Kelly, the principal campaigning thus far has been done by the G. O. P. nominee. Kelly has spent much of his time in Washington, but said he expected to return to his district in a few days. Observers say the 3d district is one of the three Democratic holdings in Chicago that stand a strong chance of going Republican in November.

Kelly called attention from Washington last week to Busbey's membership several years ago in a communist organization. Busbey has made no secret of the fact that he did associate directly with the Reds while gathering ammunition for the tireless Americanism work he has done for years for the Illinois department of the American Legion.

Congressman Kelly pointed out that, like Busbey, he is an ex-service man. He served in France with the field artillery. He said he has supported all major soldier legislation in the house, including the soldier bonus and the restoration of pensions for Spanish war veterans. He declared he was one of the sponsors of the recently passed soldier benefit measure.

All Must Sacrifice.

Speaking before the 18th ward regular Republican organization last week, Busbey struck at those who talk a good war but do not share in its sacrifices.

"The formula for victory requires a determination on the part of all that we will give all, even our lives, to achieve victory," Busbey said. "Lip service will not do. Half hearted service will not suffice.

"Victory will call for months, possibly years, of trials and hardships. There must be a subordination of self to duty and a general willingness to sacrifice and assume heavy responsibilities. Patriotism must replace lethargy; the will to victory must replace indifference. The war must be fought and won by patriots, not politicians."

Lauds Brooks' Work.

The energy, accomplishments and leadership of Sen. Wayland Brooks as the head of the G. O. P. state ticket in Illinois have been major factors in infusing the winning spirit into the Republican camp in the 1st congressional district, it was declared last week by William E. King, who is the nominee against the Democrat, William L. Dawson.

"Since Sen. Brooks got into action, the Republican drive thruout the state has taken on new life," said King. "This is particularly true of the 1st district, which is about to return to Republicanism decisively after eight years of indifferent incumbency by the Democrats.

Many colored voters who previously voted Democratic intend to vote for the entire Republican ticket this year, King said. One of the principal reasons is the amendment to the soldier vote bill, introduced in the senate and fought to passage there by Sen. Brooks. This amendment waives the payment of poll tax by men and women in the service to qualify them as voters, which hitherto had kept Negroes from voting freely in eight southern states.

PASTOR TO MARK HIS 25TH YEAR IN PRIESTHOOD

The Rev. Peter Engelin, pastor of St. Martin's church, will celebrate the 25th anniversary of his ordination today with a noon mass at the church, 58th street and Princeton avenue. It will be attended by clergy thruout the city as well as friends and parishioners.

Father Engeln was born in Chicago and educated in St. Anthony's parish here. He studied at Quigley preparatory seminary, the North American college in Rome, and St. Mary's seminary in Cincinnati. He was ordained in 1917 by the late Cardinal Mundelein.

He served as assistant pastor at St. Elizabeth's church, St. Clement's, and St. Benedict's, the latter in Blue Island. His first pastorate was at St. Petronilla in Glen Ellyn. He became pastor of St. Martin's in June, 1941.

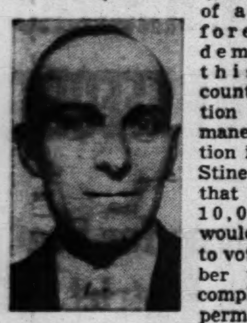
Moore, Mrs. J. R. Raymond, and Mrs. W. F. McDonald.

CLERK IN GRUNDY HAS 20 TEACHERS ON VOTERS' TRAIL

His Aids Register 8,406; 2,000 More to Go.

In Grundy county they say that J. F. Stine, the county clerk, is a man of action and foresight. He demonstrated this to the county's satisfaction on the permanent registration issue. When Stine learned that his county's 10,000 voters wouldn't be able to vote in November unless they complied with the permanent registration act, he acted.



J. F. Stine.

On June 15, a month and a half before Attorney General George F. Barrett ruled that traveling branch registration officers were legal, Grundy had them. Stine said he figured they'd be made legal because there wasn't much other way of registering the voters. He said if he waited for the voters to come to Morris, the county seat, to register, well, he'd be in for a pretty long wait. Even a lot of persons who visited the courthouse in Morris regularly didn't register until he set up the traveling branches. He said if he hadn't had them he'd only have registered about 700.

2,000 Yet to Go.

Instead he has registered 8,406 from the county's 26 precincts. He figures about 2,000 more to go and he says his deputies will have them registered before the second registration day on Tuesday, Oct. 6. His deputies brought in 7,281 before Saturday, Sept. 19, the first general registration day. This left 1,125 who trekked to the polls at that time. Only three voters registered then in the 2d precinct in Braceville, out of more than 350. He said his deputies had registered the rest of them previously.

His deputies are school teachers from Grundy's schools. He's had 20 of them and he said they work fine because they print so well. He said they don't make much money, enough maybe for some gas for their car or a little electric bill, but that's all.

500 Now in Army.

Stine said that his registration will be about the same this year as last. Altho the county has lost about 500 resident voters to the army, that many more have moved in and become eligible. Nearby war plants attracted them. Stine has been Grundy's county clerk since 1930. Before that he was a postman in Morris.

REGISTER IN WILL COUNTY

The Will county clerk's office in Joliet is open until 9 o'clock each evening, including Saturday, in an attempt to register the still unregistered half of the county's voting population. To date a total of 33,000 of a possible 65,000 or 75,000 voters are registered to vote in the Nov. 3 election. This is the first time the permanent registration act is being applied in downstate Illinois.

18,000 Sign Sept. 19.

Of the total number, 18,000 registered in the county's precinct polling places on the first general registration day, Saturday, Sept. 19. Previous to that 15,200 registered at the clerk's office and the few traveling branch offices established by the county clerk, Joseph H. Hartley.

Hartley said that he doesn't expect to establish any further traveling branches. He said he believes the final general registration day, Tuesday, Oct. 6, together with the availability of the clerk's office, will complete the registration.

21,000 Register in Kankakee.

In Kankakee county, 2,252 voters registered on the first general registration day in polling places thruout the county. This brings the total to date to 21,623. A possible 30,000 are eligible to vote.

There are no further plans in Kankakee county to establish additional branch offices, as the county clerk believes the final registration day will bring in the remaining voters. The branch offices were used extensively in Kankakee county. They were started immediately after Attorney General George F. Barrett ruled them legal.

Loretto Englewood Group Plans Social Wednesday

The first social of the year will be held by the Loretto Englewood auxiliary at 2 o'clock Wednesday in the high school, 6535 Stewart avenue. The party will welcome new members. The following officers of the auxiliary are on the committee: Mrs. Zazell O'Donnell, Mrs. Peter Redican, Mrs. J. J. Cahill, Mrs. John Champlin, Mrs. J. B. Connelly, and Mrs. James F. Battle.

Parish Youths Plan Hay Ride

Miss Eileen Golden, 3444 South Paulina street, is vice president of the Young People's society of Our Lady of Good Council parish. The group will meet Wednesday in the parish hall, to complete plans for an October hay ride.

BRIDGEPORT HAS FRONT RANK SPOT IN DEFENSE WORK

Civilians Rally to Aid in Many Branches.

One of the ways in which Bridgeport's civilians are keeping faith with their 5,000 fighting men is thru their civilian defense organization. There are 49,500 civilians in Bridgeport, the area bounded on the west and north by the south branch of the Chicago river, on the east by Canal street and on the south by 39th street. They live in 240 blocks within that area, which has been divided for civilian defense purposes into 34 zones of eight and 10 blocks.

Bridgeport started its civilian defense activities in January. Its present office in Mark White square, 29th and Halsted streets, was opened in April and has been in constant use since then. Some time back, the headquarters was the Mark White branch of the Chicago Public library.

Boast 150 Flags.

The civilian defense office is officially open from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 at night, but there's usually some activity going on until 10 or 11. This might be one of the reasons why Bridgeport's unit is considered among the best organized and operating in the division. There are more than 150 American flags on Bridgeport's street corners, and that doesn't include those set up by private citizens in front of their homes.

The community commander of Bridgeport is Ray Welsh, a broker, of 2942 South Emerald avenue. Working under him is P. J. McCarthy, supervisor of Mark White Square, who is the community director.

The zone captains and block captains complete the organizational set up. Many of the captains in dual capacities, as chairmen of various committees. William Lamb, 3549 South Lowe avenue, heads the important salvage committee. Bridgeport has done well so far in salvage. In a previous drive, the organization collected more than $1,000 for old, useless items. The money went into the unit's treasury to be used for office supplies and other civilian defense equipment.

Train 300 Policemen.

If disaster strikes in Bridgeport, there won't be a dearth of Red Cross first aiders. Miss Susan Mach, 3441 Lituanica avenue, heads that committee, and she and her aids have trained several thousand men and women in first aid practices.

The community protection comes under Brendan Hartford, 3652 South Wallace street, while the training of auxiliary police is headed by Capt. James Markham of the Deering station [19]. Three hundred auxiliary policemen have already been trained and another group of even larger proportion is being trained now in classes at Mark White square. Codes and signals are being explained to block captains and other civilian defense personnel in a three day course beginning tomorrow at the Healy school. Between 600 and 1,000 will participate in this class.

Leader in Training.

The organization's training director is William O'Brien, 3010 South Quinn street. He arranges for classes in instruction in the various phases of civilian defense. Josephine McQuade, 2917 Bonfield street, is recruiting director, and she and her aids interview residents of the community who seek to do civilian defense work.

Fingerprinting which is virtually completed in the community came under the direction of Anthony Bedlow, 602 West 25th place; Roland Sartina, 3018 South Union avenue, and Joseph Spirando, 634 West 25th place.

Other training aids are James Doyle, 2944 South Canal street; Margaret Fitzer, 3029 South Parnell avenue, and Robert Hamilton, 3845 South Wallace street. They have been concerning themselves with the various gases and their counteraction.

G. O .P. FACES HOT FIGHT TO KEEP 3D DISTRICT SEATS

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Republicans are somewhat grimly preparing for their clash with Democratic forces in the 3d senatorial district Nov. 3, well aware that here they can either gain a senator or lose a house member in the struggle for control of the state legislature.

Gov. Green has proclaimed his interest in the impending battle, and the Democratic machine has let it become known that leaders are determined to seize the wavering balance of power in the Illinois lawmaking body. The G. O. P. margin is 28 to 23 in the senate and 79 to 74 in the house of representatives.

An analysis of voting records showed why the Republicans look none too happy in the 3d district, made up of parts of Wards 1, 2, 4, and 11. But repeated and insistent reports of the trend of the so-called "silent vote" render the Democrats cautious in claiming victory.

G. O. P. Used to 2 Seats.

Significant is the fact that for the first time within memory the Democrats are out after two of the three house seats for this district, with its largely Negro population and stubborn Republican tradition. One student said he checked records back to the Civil war and never found more than one Democratic representative there.

Things are not as bad as they appear at first glance, resident experts say. In this year's primary, the Republican side offered only desultory contests, while on the Democratic, there was the Prof. Paul H. Douglas vs. R. S. McKeough fight for United States senator; the William L. Dawson [2d ward committeeman] vs. Ald. Earl B. Dickerson battle for congressman, and the Sen. William A. Wallace vs. Christopher C. Wimbish set-to for state senator.

These clashes brought the Kelly-Nash money into the predominant 2d ward of the district, while Republican money was free in the 1st ward, which had lively contests and is almost wholly in the 1st senatorial district. That factor is out of the way now.

Of growing importance is the obtaining of jobs in private industry by Negroes who formerly were virtually imprisoned on the relief and WPA rolls by discriminatory practices. At the time of the April primary the change-over was only starting, but the movement now is in full swing.

"The result is independence from political whipcracking," said Rep. Charles J. Jenkins, Republican senior house member, who is teamed with Rep. Dudley S. Martin, well known for his oratorical prowess.

Benjamin G. Clanton, former assistant state's attorney, is a seasoned lawyer who was in public service in Springfield before he entered the army in 1918. He won the Republican senate nomination without trouble.

Clanton Hard at Work.

Clanton said that he is not waiting for the apparent drift to bring victory to Republicans, but is buckling down to hard work to overcome "the efforts of tax paid Kelly-Nash pay rollers who are campaigning every day."

Opposing Clanton for the senate is Christopher C. Wimbish, who also was a former assistant state's attorney—and a former Republican.

When the two teams meet in the house race Nov. 3 Republicans are hopeful that the Democratic incumbent, Rep. George Garry Noonan, will run so far ahead of his teammate that the G. O. P. will bring in both its men ahead.

A good part of Noonan's strength lies in the 17 precincts of the 11th ward at the west side of the 3d senatorial district. Under Illinois' unique cumulative voting system, here every voter can "plump" three votes for Noonan. In the April primary Noonan nearly doubled the vote of his teammate, Fred J. Smith, 3206 South Michigan avenue, a city employé.

Rep. Jenkins, the stronger candidate on the Republican side, is jogging along with Rep. Dudley S. Martin and telling the voters to vote for both of them. Martin is an instructor in political science, residing at 3736 South Michigan avenue and is out for his second term.

Patricia Hughes Wed

At a recent ceremony at the church of St. Thomas the Apostle, Miss Patricia Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Hughes, 5547 Drexel boulevard, became the bride of Robert K. Szyman, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Szyman of Mount Greenwood. They are making their home at 8805 Justine street. The bride attended Loyola university and the bridegroom attended Illinois Institute of Technology.

VIRTUALLY ELECTED

Frederick A. Virkus, president of the Illinois division of the National Small Business Men's association, on Thursday night virtually became a state representative by action of the Republican senatorial committee for this district, which includes most country townships of Cook county.

The committee appointed Virkus to the vacancy on the G. O. P. ticket caused by the withdrawal of Rep. Arthur W. Sprague of La Grange, who during his second term accepted a navy lieutenancy and is now at Quonset Point, R. I. Virkus became the teammate of Rep. Bernice Van der Vries of Winnetka, new chairman of the women's division of the county G. O. P. committee. Rep. Emmett McGrath is the Democratic nominee for the house.

Because there are only three nominees for three house seats in this "setup" district, the Nov. 3 election is regarded as a mere formality for these candidates.

Virkus is 63 years old and has resided in La Grange for 40 years. He is president of the Virkus company, publishers of historic-genealogical reference books.

YMCA TO HOUSE GLIDER PILOTS' GROUND SCHOOL

Englewood First in City to Give Training.

Twenty-two members of the army air corps enlisted reserve corps will take up residence tomorrow at the Englewood YMCA as the department becomes the first in the city to be designated as a ground school for training glider pilots. The course is being conducted under the supervision of the civil pilot training program, an auxiliary to the air corps. When they have completed their course the men will be assigned to active duty as staff sergeants. They receive no salary during their training period but get subsistence.

Other eight week courses will be held starting Nov. 23, Jan. 18, March 15, May 10, and July 5. The glider pilot training program is divided into two parts. Ground school instruction will be given in the Englewood YMCA building, 6545 South Union avenue. Flight instruction will take place at the Harlem airport.

240 Hours of Ground School.

The ground school course covers 240 hours and includes courses in mathematics, physics, civil air regulations, navigation, general servicing, and operation of aircraft, code radio, military and physical training, aircraft identification, military science and discipline, and meteorology. The flight instruction consists of 35 tq 45 hours of flight training. This part of each eight week program will be under the direction of Fred L. Schumaker, head of the Schumaker flying service at Harlem airport.

The glider school is open to any man between the ages of 18 and 36. No particular educational qualifications are necessary and men with minor physical defects will be accepted for training.

Courses Open to Civilians.

The technical ground courses are open to civilians upon payment of a fee. It is expected that men who take the ground work on a civilian basis will be studying to complete ground requirements for securing a pilot's license.

Announcement of the creation of the glider program was made by Arthur E. Sharp, chairman of the board of the Englewood department. Edmund Daly, 8056 Honore avenue, instructor in science at Calumet High school, has joined the staff of the Y to act as coördinator for the glider school. Daly has completed a course in civil pilot training which qualifies him as a teacher in the program.

and costs, 25 per cent of the county's school districts are taxing their limit of $1.37½ on the $100 valuation, $1 for operation and the rest for building purposes.

Districts which have levied maximum taxes and still need aid may apply for federal help, Bottino reported. So far all formal requests have brought aid, except in the case of Custer Park, where the plea was denied.

District 44 at Ritchie, near Custer Park, is in about the same fix as Custer Park. There they want help, but the plan has not been worked out, Bottino reported.

Another problem of the ordnance plant influx is the fact that population varies according to the weather and the kind of work being done at the plant. Changes in the kind of work brings shifts in school enrollment. The schools thus need continual adpustments.

Teachers are hard to get, Bottino added. Half a dozen rural schools now have teachers who are serving only temporarily. They'll leave as soon as regular teachers can be found.

Rebekah Lodges to Honor I. O. O. F. Officer Tuesday

LECTURE ON WAR BY DE SEVERSKY TO OPEN FORUM

The Englewood Lions club forum will start its third season Thursday, Oct. 29, at the Englewood High school auditorium, 62d and Stewart avenue, when Maj. Alexander de Seversky discusses "Victory Thru Air Power." His address will be based on his theory that World War II. is a race for air superiority.

Gen. Henry J. Reilly, who headed "Reilly's Bucks" in World War I., and spent a year in Europe during the current conflict, is billed as the second speaker in the series. With 35 years of military background, he will speak on "America's Grand Strategy in the War," Nov. 16.

The forum series raises money to buy eyeglasses for indigent children of the community, and to support a deaf-oral Boy Scout troop.

64 Year Old Albee House Being Remodeled.

When the Blue Island Woman's club holds its second session of the season Tuesday, Oct. 27, it will meet in its own club house. The new headquarters, an aged Victorian home on Maple avenue, was bequeathed to the club by Mrs. Myrtle Myrick Albee, who died last June 12. The two story frame home was built in 1878 by the mother of Mrs. Albee's husband. It has a low flat roof and rambling porches. The rooms are large, with 15 foot ceilings. Many antiques are among the home's furnishings, which also were left to the club.

The home is framed by a garden, massed old trees, and rose trellises. Its donor was born in 1859 in Holland, Mich. She spent the early years of her life in Kansas. As a young woman she taught in the public schools for several years. In 1880, she married Harry W. Albee, and became the mother of two daughters, Mary and Florence, and a son, Charles, all of whom preceded her in death.

Contributor to Funds.

She was never an active member of the club because of her frequent absences from the city, but kept in close touch with its activities and philanthropies. She was especially interested in the work of the community service department of the club, and frequently contributed funds for its philanthropic work. As years passed, she became more interested in the club's general work and during the golden jubilee year, three years ago, expressed a desire to show her interest in the club in some financial manner. Upon her death it became known that it was during that period that she provided for the bequest. Mrs. William T. Ewing, a close friend of Mrs. Albee, was president during this period.

A remodeling program is under way now. It will be completed by the club's second meeting. The first floor will be used for club rooms, while the second floor is being converted into a modern apartment.

On House Committee.

A house finance committee has been appointed by Mrs. John Kent, president. Mrs. Ewing was named chairman. Assisting her are Mrs. W. R. Pickett and Mrs. R. F. Heitman. A house furnishing committee is composed of Mrs. Wesley Smith, chairman, Mrs. A. G. Carlson, Mrs. F. A. Willen, Mrs. August Schreiber, Mrs. George Roll, Mrs. Robert Krueger, and Mrs. Roy Massena. The club is in its 53d year and has 197 members.

ST. RITA ALUMNI WILL HONOR 270 HEROES TODAY

Between halves of a football game today, the St. Rita Alumni association and the Fathers' club of St. Rita High school will dedicate a flag, honoring the 270 graduates of the school now in the country's service. The dedication will take place in St. Rita's field, 63d street and Oakley avenue.

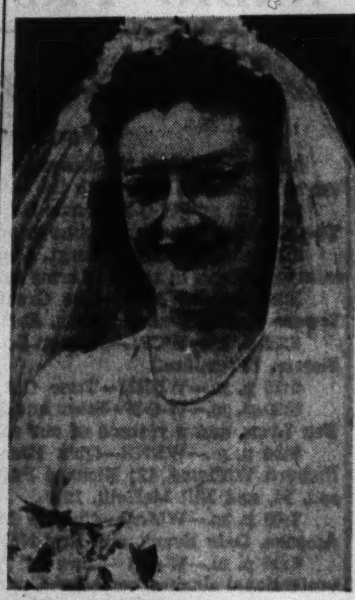
Municipal Judge William V. Daly is chairman of the affair, and president of the association. Speakers will be the Rev. T. R. Find, president of the high school; State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney; Judge William J. Campbell of the United States District court, members of the alumni and Judge Daly.

Several posts of the American Legion and the high school band will have active part in the ceremony. The event is expected to serve also as a homecoming of former students. In the morning a memorial mass will be celebrated in honor of Lieut. John O'Connell, killed in action in the Philippines; Sergt. James Fedigan, RCAF, killed in action in Europe; John McWilliams, killed in action by a German submarine in the Gulf of Mexico, and Edward McFarland, who died in service. All are former students at the school.

Women of South Side B'nai B'rith Meet Today

Soth Side B'nai B'rith Young Women's club will have its first fall meeting at 2:30 o'clock today at the Hyde Park YMCA, 1400 East 53d street. The meeting will be held at the YMCA the second and fourth Sundays of each month. Miss Lorraine Kaplan is president.

Summer Wedding



Miss Dorothy Guerin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Guerin, 6542 South Fairfield avenue, and John Dorgan, son of Mrs. Mary Dorgan, 5734 Christiana avenue, were married recently at St. Rita's church.

JEWISH COLLEGE BEGINS SESSIONS ON WEDNESDAY

The opening convocation of the College of Jewish Studies will be Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in Bialik hall of the college, 220 South State street. Dr. Louis Gottschalk, professor of history at the University of Chicago and president of the board of Jewish education, will speak. The college is an institution organized to train Jewish religious leaders, club leaders, and Jewish scholars. The college also conducts a program of Jewish youth and adult education.

'Thar She Blows' Will Be First Nighter Play Tonight

An original comedy titled "Thar She Blows" written by Anthony Wayne will be the starring vehicle for Les Tremayne and Barbara Luddy on the "First Nighter" program from 7 to 7:30 tonight on W-G-N. Musical background for the drama will be supplied by Eric Sagerquist and the First Nighter orchestra. Bret Morrison will be cast as Mr. First Nighter, the host to the theater party.

Miss Claire, T. L. Thomas Operetta Stars.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

In response to appeals from thousands of listeners W-G-N will reopen its Chicago Theater of the Air, presenting operettas beloved by all America. The season will be opened next Saturday, Oct. 3, with Sigmund Romberg's popular "The New Moon" scheduled as the première production.

Miss Marion Claire again will be starred in these musical treats. For the opening show W-G-N has engaged Thomas L. Thomas, noted baritone of the Metropolitan Opera company, to sing the leading male rôle.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will continue his radio talks. The Theater of the Air productions will replace the summer concert series, America Loves a Melody. The operettas will be broadcast from 8 to 9 o'clock every Saturday over the coast to coast facilities of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Emphasis on Melodies.

A full dramatic cast of Chicago's best known actors will portray the story of the operetta. Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N produtcion chief, who will be in charge of the operettas, has announced that more emphasis will be laid on the music than in other seasons. In order to include all of the best songs from each operetta a narrator will be used to tell portions of the story.

The musical background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and the W-G-N chorus, directed by Robert Trendler.

"The New Moon" was selected for the opening show because of its great favor with listeners. It has been presented every year on this series. It contains several of Romberg's most popular melodies—the romantic "Lover Come Back to Me," "One Kiss," "Wanting You," and the stirring "Stout Hearted Men."

Scene Is New Orleans.

"The New Moon" was first produced at the Imperial theater in New York Sept. 19, 1928, with Evelyn Herbert as "Marianne Beaunoir," the rôle to be taken by Miss Claire, and Robert Halliday as "Robert De Misson," the part to be sung by Mr. Thomas. The scene is New Orleans in the year 1793.

Miss Claire has sung all of the leading feminine rôles in the Theater of the Air productions, now going into their fourth year. She has built up one of radio's largest and most loyal listening audiences. Many Marion Claire fan clubs have sprung up across the nation. These groups gather on Saturday night to listen to the operettas.

ATTILIO BAGGIORE TO CLEVELAND FOR ANNIVERSARY SHOW

Attilio Baggiore.

Attilio Baggiore W-G-N's operatic tenor, will go to Cleveland tomorrow for a guest appearance on a special show, "WHK Goes Mutual," to be aired over W-G-N and Mutual from 8:30 to 9 p. m. The program will mark WHK's full time entry into Mutual membership and the eighth anniversary of the network which now numbers 207 stations.

Representing other stations on the show will be Joe Gentile and Ralph Binge, comedians of CKLW, Detroit-Windsor, and Elvera Ruppel, soprano of WGR, Buffalo. WMK entertainers will include Marvin Arnold, Lillian Sherman, Dick O'Heren, Sheelah Carter and Willard's orchestra.

MAID OF AMERICA SHOW BACK TO W-G-N TUESDAY

Salute Heroic Figures on Program.

"Maid of America," a program dedicated to the American way of life, will return to W-G-N for its second season at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Highlighting the program this year will be dramatic sketches of little known facts in the lines of great men and women in American history. Guest stars of stage, screen and radio will participate in the program each week.

The heroic work of Mary Ann Ball Bickerdyke, Civil war nurse, will be dramatized on Tuesday's show. A native of Galesburg, Ill., Mary Bickerdyke was responsible for the formation of the first nurses corps in the northern army during the Civil war.

Bob Trendler and the W-G-N orchestra will provide music and choral background. Russ Brown will be guest singer on the initial program. Brown will sing "Daybreak" and "Smiles."

The orchestra will present "This Is the Army, Mr. Jones," from Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army." As a salute to the Music Maid, Heather Tweed, mistress of ceremonies, the orchestra will play "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody." A George Gershwin medley will be included.

The program will be aired from W-G-N's main studio. It will be produced by Lou Jackobson. Scripts will be written by Jack Payne and the announcer will be Jack Brickhouse. The program will be open to the public.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 28.

Tender plants should be placed under the protection of cold frame or removed to the house to avoid injury from early frost. If an increased number of bedding plants is desired, stock plants should be lifted and potted, or cuttings made from firm, sturdy wood of the plants in the beds.

Cuttings of geraniums can be made of the firmest wood [or of the stems] which means that when bent the stems will snap, not bend, which indicates they are soft and not the best for cuttings. It will not injure them after cutting to let them remain exposed for a day and then placed in sandy soil.

Tuesday, Sept. 29.

The perennial borders can be remade now, and fall is a fine season to make changes that are required. Perennials delight in a deep, well enriched soil, well drained. The whole border may be replanted, but to do so that plants must all be lifted, placed to one side, or heeled in, and then soil spaded. All débris must be removed.

Wednesday, Sept. 30.

Tulips should be planted in early October. The bulbs make a fall root growth. American grown tulips are as good or better than Holland grown bulbs. A selection of tulips, using the various groups or types from the early varieties to the latest, in combination with plants in the perennial borders, will give a long period of bloom.

Thursday, Oct. 1.

If interested in hardy chrysanthemums, visit displays in local nurseries to become familiar with the best varieties. Mark those wanted and order for spring delivery because these plants should be planted in spring rather than in fall.

If they must be fall planted, be sure to give them protection after the ground freezes, or place them in a cold frame until spring. Protect the plants, for few there are that are dependably hardy. They should be divided and replanted each spring whether hardy or not.

Friday, Oct. 2.

Lift or dig all roots and bulbs that require winter protection before frost cuts them down, such as gladiola, tuberose, tuberous-rooted begonia, caladium, and canna. Plant lily bulbs as soon as they are received. Place sand under each bulb at time of planting.

Saturday, Oct. 3.

Divide and replant peonies. Do not plant too deep or they will not flower well. Lift and pot a few annuals, such as marigolds, calendulas, dwarf asters, flowering tobacco, etc., for flowering indoors. See that the yard is cleaned up for winter. Remove all accessories indoors.

Mulch lily-of-the-valley with old manure, but not too deep, to increase the vigor of the plants. The same may be done to the Spurge of Pacysandra plants. All ground cover plants are greatly benefited with a much. Mix sand with old manure or humus before spreading.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park Conservatory.

James Melton Guest on Kostelanetz Hour Today

James Melton, tenor, will be guest singer on the Andre Kostelanetz-Albert Spalding concert at 3:30 p. m. today on WBBM-CBS. Melton will sing Cole Porter's "Night and Day" Silesu's "Love, Here Is My Heart." The orchestra, conducted by Kostelanetz, will present three South American tunes and the "Waltz" from Tschaikowsky's "The Sleeping Beauty."

Desire Defauw Is Guest Conductor of Symphony

The first of a Sunday series of Summer Symphony programs will be heard at 4 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC. Desire Defauw, Belgian conductor, will direct the orchestra in "La Peri" by Dukas, Ravel's "Introduction and Allegro" for small orchestra and harp, featuring Edward Vito, harpist; Chabrier's "Espana," and "Fetes."

WAYS SUGGESTED TO STOP WASTE OF FUEL IN HOME

Few Simple Repairs Can Reduce Heating Bills.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

[We'll be glad to send leaflet with names of some helpful products for fuel saving this winter, as well as hints for preventing fuel waste. Please send stamped, addressed envelope with your request for leaflet to this department.]

As insurance against fuel waste this winter, there are many steps a home owner can take. Here are some:

First of all the heating plant should be checked over by an expert, cleaned and repaired, if necessary, so that it will function at maximum efficiency.

All pipes and ducts and boiler will help give you a warmer house for less money if they are insulated.

If there are leaks in any boiler or smoke pipe joints furnace cement may be the answer. If there are leaks inside a boiler there are stop-leak compounds which can be applied internally. There also are boiler-cleaning compounds to eliminate grease, dust, soot, etc.

Thermostat Is Help.

Other heating plant aids include a thermostat, placed in a proper location, clean filters in warm air furnaces [the new fiber glass filters are inexpensive and fireproof], and provision for some sort of auxilliary humidity if the heating system does not provide same. Be sure the heating plant isn't trying to heat all out of doors, as well as the rooms inside of the house.

Ceiling insulation will save a good deal of heat. Roof insulation will sometimes save as high as 30 per cent.

Weatherstripping, storm sash and storm doors also are big fuel savers. [Both weatherstripping and storm sash will pay for themselves in time, and it will not take a long time to do it, either.]

Door seals on bedroom doors will make it easier for your basement boiler or furnace to heat the house nicely and quickly in the early morning. Special door seals for outside doors also are a big help.

Use of Plastic Caulking.

If you would keep cold air from entering your house around door and window cracks, you can use plastic caulking compounds which come in different colors or which can be painted. The work is usually done with a caulking gun, and oakum can be used to pack any large openings before caulking them.

It should not be forgotten that closed Venetian blinds have a certain insulating effectiveness and the same is true of two window shades at each window.

If you are certain your house is a fuel waster you may be interested in recent estimates of possible savings thru insulation, and that, if a house is fully insulated, side walls, roof, windows, etc., you can cut your fuel bills some 50 per cent or more!

Type of Coal Important.

If one has a coal burning furnace or boiler fuel can always be saved by buying the correct type of fuel for the particular heating system.

Booster fans will increase the heat from warm air furnaces, and save fuel. The lagging circulation of old hot water systems can likewise be speeded up.

One very simple leak to watch this coming winter is the leak of heat from living rooms and hall, if you don't keep the fireplace damper closed when the fireplace isn't in use.

SOUTHWEST SIDE Y'S TO LAUNCH MEMBER DRIVES

Membership campaigns will be launched next month in three southwest YMCA's. Herbert W. Thompson, president of the Beverly YMCA, will direct the campaign there. The drive at the 111th street department will be headed by Dr. Wayne Lee Allen, a member of the board for 15 years. Clarence Overton will head the campaign in the Englewood department. He has been chairman of the Y's membership committee for three years. The campaign organizations have been completed for the drive.

Play Yard for 400 Wins Contest Prize

This play yard at 84th and Elizabeth streets was awarded a portable pool for its contribution to the drive to keep children off the streets. It used to be a vacant lot, and its conversion was the work of Caw McDonald, 8410 Elizabeth street. It is now the headquarters for 400 members of the 18th Ward Lawn Savers club. The Chicago Motor club sponsored the contest.

144 Southwest Siders Receive Permits for New Tires, Tubes

Permits to purchase passenger automobile tires and tubes were issued by rationing boards to 69 southwest side applicants for the week ending Sept. 19. The permits were for the purchase of 79 tires and 110 tubes. The boards also issued rationing certificates to 75 southwest side applicants for 230 truck tires and 242 truck tubes.

Largest grants were to three trucking firms: Dealers Transfer company, 100 West 91st street, for 27 tires and 54 tubes; Spector Motor service, 600 West 25th street, for 11 tires and 32 tubes, and Interstate Dispatching company, 2700 South Halsted street, for 12 tires and 26 tubes.

Persons and firms receiving the permits are:

SWIMMING POOL AWARDED PLAY YARD IN CONTEST

400 Children to Enjoy Motor Club Gift.

The 400 children who use the play yard at 84th and Elizabeth streets will have a portable swimming pool to add to the fun next summer. The pool was awarded to the play yard by the Chicago Motor club in tribute to its contribution in keeping children out of the streets.

Pledge to Keep Off Lawns.

The play yard, a converted vacant lot, is the work of Caw McDonald, 8410 Elizabeth street. It is said to be used by more children than any other privately constructed play yard in the city. The children who romp there are members of McDonald's 18th Ward Lawn Savers club. The children in joining pledge to keep off lawns and out of the streets.

The yard contains a volleyball court, basketball back stop, slide, swing, teeter totters, a merry go round constructed from wagon wheels, a croquet set, horseshoe courts, trapeze and horizontal bars, swings, stilts, and a large sand pile. An outdoor fireplace provides a place for marshmallow and wiener roasts and picnics.

Palos Park Resident Winner.

Mrs. Robert S. Bridges Jr., 9410 South 81st street, Palos Park, is another southwest resident awarded a prize for her play yard. Hers is located in Palos Park, a half block from 95th street—a four lane highway. It contains all play yard facilities, as well as a private sand pile for babies. She received a sand box for her play yard. The first prize was awarded to Mrs. Virginia Gates, 3908 North Kimball avenue.

The awards are being made by Charles M. Hayes, president of the club.

Holy Name Bowlers.

The newly organized bowling league of St. Clare of Montefalco Holy Name society began its bowling season recently at 5112 South Halsted street.

GIRLS OF YWCA HOLDING THREE STUDY PARLEYS

Business, Industries, and Schools Represented.

Annual conferences are being held this week-end by the industrial, business, and high school girls' councils of the YWCA. The industrial girls' conference is being held at Forest Preserve lodge near Glenview. Its chairman is Miss Ruth Hogan, new president of the YWCA League of Industrial Girls.

Slated for discussion are consumers problems, led by Amy Justice; equality, justice, and opportunity for minority groups, led by Elsie Vander Geist; recruiting factory workers for YWCA clubs, led by Sophie Pierucki; work problems and winning the war, by Ina Lightfoot Sandifer.

Laura Stone, who heads the conference planning committee, will lead the devotional services today. Recreation between meetings will be directed by Gertrude Daube.

Meeting at Bartlett.

The YWCA business girls are meeting at Sunset Service camp at Bartlett. Miss Marjorie Boyes, president of the City Wide council of YWCA business girls, is leading the conference. Problems to be discussed are economic and legislative changes affecting business girls, and YWCA leisure time activities.

Southwest representatives at this conference will be Jane D'Arcy, 1536 West 104th street; Wanda Wrobel, 5315 South Aberdeen street; Lorraine Matecki, 9028 Justine street; Muriel Bruncke, 6516 South Winchester avenue; Dorothy De Lucca, 2801 South Wells street, and Alice Fisher, 3434 West 62d street.

High School Girls.

The youngest of the week-end's conferees are the high school girls of the YWCA Girl Reserve clubs, meeting at Camp Sagawau, near Lemont. Their discussions will center in knapsack libraries, first aid classes, hospital aid classes, cookie making for the USO, training in child care.

Southwest attendants are Mildred Lezi, 3364 South Halsted street; Joanne and Jean Clifford, 5613 Peoria street; Helen Gulis, 351 West 61st place; Harriet Buchinski, 1657 West Garfield boulevard; Harriett Hindelwicz, 5036 South Hermitage avenue; Wanda Boles, 5152 Justine street; Lorraine Kina, 4814 South Elizabeth street, and Jean Bassmire, 4722 South Throop street.

De La Salle Parents Feted.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Pvt. William Gallagher Jr., 8043 South Marshfield avenue, arrived recently at the finance replacement training center at the army's Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis, Ind., to begin a basic training in finance. After completing an intensive field training program he will be sent to school to study army pay methods. He is the husband of Mrs. Frances Gallagher, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gallagher, 8256 South Elizabeth street.

Pvt. Gallagher.

Capt. John Jerry Marantic, 3755 West 62d place, recently was placed in command of an air corps depot training unit at the New Orleans army air base. At the expiration of a former enlistment as a sergeant major, Marantic was recommended for a commission. He returned to active duty as a captain last April. Previous army service included a tour of duty on Corregidor, and travels in China and the East Indies. In civilian life, Capt. Marantic was a purchasing efficiency engineer.

Cadet Albert O. Rondel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rondel, 6717 Perry avenue, is stationed at the army air force basic flying school at Pecos, Tex. After completing his training there he will be sent to an advanced flying school.

The former organist at Good Shepherd church, 2719 South Kolin avenue, is among the new recruits at Camp Grant. He is Louis S. Bolewski. Another southwest resident at Camp Grant is Frank J. Petrovich. He said that in civilian life he used to remove obstreperous patrons from a Chicago ballroom.

The promotion of Prosper J. Danadio, 157 East 115th street, from private to corporal was announced recently at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill. He is attached to a medical training battalion.

John Kopecky, son of Mrs. Katherine Kopecky, Argo, has been admitted as an officer candidate to the air force officer candidate school at Miami Beach, Fla. Upon completion of his course of instruction, Kopecky will be commissioned a second lieutenant.

Cadet Bernard Peter Rom, 21, son of Mrs. Agnes Rom, 2050 West 23d street, was graduated recently from recruit training at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, as honor man of his company. Thru a series of aptitude tests given the 130 men of his company, he has been selected to attend one of the navy's service schools. He was a member of St. Stephen's parish basketball and baseball teams, and was graduated from St. Ignatius High school in 1939. Until his enlistment several weeks ago, Rom was a paper trimmer for the Mid-States Gum Paper company.

Cadet Rom.

The United States forces have a former paper hanger, too. He is Samuel Solowitz, 718 West Englewood avenue, who was promoted from a private first class to technician corporal. He is stationed at the Oklahoma City air depot.

CATHOLIC CLUB TO OPEN SEASON NEXT THURSDAY

The South Side Catholic Woman's club will hold its opening reception at 1 o'clock Thursday at the Southmoor hotel, 67th street and Stony Island avenue. Mrs. Edward E. O'Reilly, 7919 South May street, is president. Other officers are Mrs. James A. Allely, Mrs. Harry Berteines, and Mrs. Bart McDonough, vice presidents; Mrs. A. H. Frank, recording secretary; Mrs. F. A. Degnan, corresponding secretary; Mrs. James Magner, treasurer; Mrs. John J. Calnan, war service chairman; Mrs. Peter J. Joyce Jr., citizenship chairman; Mrs. Fred C. Lang, education; Mrs. Thomas J. Burke, financial secretary; Mrs. F. J. Maxwell, social service; Mrs. Ray Dolan, child welfare.

UPHOLSTERING
by Expert Union Craftsmen
ON VERY EASY PAYMENTS
EVERYBODY thinks it's NEW!
Yes, that is a statement we have heard dozens of times from customers who have had their furniture re-upholstered by us! Our own BIMROSE FACTORY METHOD assures you complete satisfaction, because the entire suite from the frame up is completely re-built under our own personal supervision.
Bimrose Seven Star Service!
★ No charge for pick-up or delivery. No storage charges on "hold orders."
★ All springs re-set and re-tied. If they are broken, we replace them.
★ We re-set the webbing, and if it has lost its strength or life it is replaced.
★ All platforms completely rebuilt and restored to their original condition.
★ All new seat cushions with the finest moss and cotton felt filling, and inner-spring units.
★ All pieces delivered to you "just like new," and our workmanship guaranteed for 5 years.
All Work Done in Our OWN MODERN FACTORY
109th St. at Michigan Avenue, Roseland
WE INVITE YOU to visit OUR FACTORY, see the work being done on your own suite or chair. We do not send our work out. Our upholsterers are all Union Craftsmen. NO PIECE WORK. YOUR FRIENDS OR RELATIVES WILL RECOMMEND US!

U. OF C.'S 3D 'WAR OPENING' TUESDAY

DOWNS BLASTS HITCH-HIKERS ON WAR MACHINE

Urges Nonessential Spending Halt.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Thomas J. Downs, Republican congressional nominee in the 2d district, took a blast last week at nonessential spending that is interfering with the war program. Downs is campaigning for the seat vacated by Rep. Raymond S. McKeough to run for United States senator.

"It is absolutely necessary to our all-out war effort to do away with unnecessary nondefense spending," Downs told members of the 6th ward regular Republican club.

"Nothing should interfere with the war program. All unnecessary nondefense projects should be shelved until victory is ours. No business like execution of the war progress can be expected until the administration begins concentrating on gun barrels instead of pork barrels.

War No WPA Project.

"It should be kept in mind by administration leaders that the war is not a WPA project. We cannot make America the real arsenal of democracy until we correct the Washington bureau of burocracy."

Downs' opponent is Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], who has the full backing of the city hall Democratic organization. Rowan has been devoting the first part of his campaign largely to the strengthening of the party machine thru the district, which has been somewhat weakened by the defection of workers now ensconced in lucrative war jobs, and by the inroads of selective service.

Daniel A. Anderson, who withdrew in Downs' favor in the Republican primary last spring, in a series of statements in a south side community newspaper is urging the election of both Downs and Sen. Brooks. He said last week that before Pearl Harbor the Democrats in Washington had failed to prepare adequately for war because they underestimated the strength of our enemies, while Republicans opposed unprepared entry into the conflict until after the nation had been attacked.

Fight on in 3d.

In the 3d district, where a lively fight is on by Fred E. Busbey to unseat the Democrat, Congressman Edward A. Kelly, the principal campaigning thus far has been done by the G. O. P. nominee. Kelly has spent much of his time in Washington, but said he expected to return to his district in a few days. Observers say the 3d district is one of the three Democratic holdings in Chicago that stand a strong chance of going Republican in November.

Kelly called attention from Washington last week to Busbey's membership several years ago in a communist organization. Busbey has made no secret of the fact that he did associate directly with the Reds while gathering ammunition for the tireless Americanism work he has done for years for the Illinois department of the American Legion.

Congressman Kelly pointed out that, like Busbey, he is an ex-service man. He served in France with the field artillery. He said he has supported all major soldier legislation in the house, including the soldier bonus and the restoration of pensions for Spanish war veterans. He declared he was one of the sponsors of the recently passed soldier benefit measure.

All Must Sacrifice.

Speaking before the 18th ward regular Republican organization last week, Busbey struck at those who talk a good war but do not share in its sacrifices.

"The formula for victory requires a determination on the part of all that we will give all, even our lives, to achieve victory," Busbey said. "Lip service will not do. Half hearted service will not suffice.

"Victory will call for months, possibly years, of trials and hardships. There must be a subordination of self to duty and a general willingness to sacrifice and assume heavy responsibilities. Patriotism must replace lethargy; the will to victory must re-

YANKS TO GET BALLOT REQUEST CARDS FROM OFFICIALS AT CAMPS

The home folks don't need to help Johnny Doughboy get his ballot for the Nov. 3 election, officials of the Chicago board of election commissioners said last week. Cards for men in the armed forces to fill out to request ballots are to be made available to them by the armed services at camps and stations. When certified to by a commanding officer these cards are to be mailed to Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes in Springfield, who will forward them to local election officials who will mail the ballots.

A specific provision of the new soldier ballot law is that he is to be permitted to vote even tho not registered. This is especially important in downstate Illinois, where a permanent registration system is just being installed.

There is doubt expressed whether most overseas service men can cast their votes by mail before the polls close. Passage of the new law was delayed by the southern poll tax bloc.

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Fifty women dressed in natty blue uniforms with shiny gold buttons answer questions all day long at 219 South La Salle street. They claim they have never been stumped on a question since their office opened in April and since people have been calling Central 7182 for information. They are volunteer members of the growing staff of the Central Information bureau of the Office of Civilian Defense dedicated to answer anybody and anything on questions and problems created by the war.

All day they tell men and women where to get allotment blanks, how to reach a soldier boy in Africa, how to erect a flag pole, how to display the flag, how to get to wear a uniform, and what a Chicagoan can do to win the war.

Some questions are vague, such as "Where can I reach a man in the United States army?"

Some Are Specific.

Some involve a specific answer such as "How many air miles are we in Chicago from Canada, the Atlantic coast, Pacific coast, and the gulf?"

The women make use of the almanac, a complete file of clippings of all Chicago newspapers, and an information file compiled with help from all bureaus of the government, army, navy, city hall, and Office of Civilian Defense.

Each volunteer on the information bureau staff must give two full days in the office. Director of all question answerers is Mrs. G. Corson Ellis and assistant in charge of public relations is Mrs. M. T. Bissell. The office manager is Miss Louise Nathan.

In addition to answering questions the bureau sends out to information people in each community of the metropolitan area a bulletin with all the latest facts and figures on defense training schools, educational events, civilian defense activities and meetings. In charge of this bulletin is Mrs. Dorothy Engert, production manager. Mail information is handled by Mrs. John Wentworth.

Mrs. Barney Lewin is the clipping editor and responsible for the complete clipping file of all news stories pertaining to life under war conditions.

Each Question Filed.

Every question that is asked by the public is saved in a box and when the day is over they are filed according to subject matter. First question asked by the women who call and who come in is "How can I get to wear a uniform?" Fifty per cent of the women who want to wear uniforms prefer blue.

Of this says Mrs. Willner, "Our question file is certainly going to be an eye opener for fashion designers. For eons women have been accused of robbing birds for plumage to please their vanity. Suddenly we discover that women want to dress alike and wear a uniform."

Most common question from the men is "How can I take a course training me for defense work?"

News columns in the daily papers cause a rush of one kind of question or another. The women at the information bureau one day were besieged with offers of blonde hair. The clipping file revealed that a picture had been in the paper showing the kind of long blonde hair needed for markers in making bomb sights. All day long the phone tinkled and an excited voice at the other end of the line would reveal, "I have blonde hair. How can I get it to the army?"

No Bleach or Dye.

Mrs. Willner says, "The army has all the blonde hair it needs. It had all its requirements in a few days after the SOS was sent out."

A great many women were discouraged when the information bureau revealed that the hair had to be 14 inches long, never bleached, never dyed and never permanented. Many blondes were discouraged to find they couldn't qualify and would have to do something else to serve their country.

The questions pour in. "How can I send $1 to San Francisco?" one man asked.

"Just a moment," soothed the question answerer at the information bureau. After a little checking it was revealed that the Kraft Cheese company was trying out its very effective siren.

Eager to Help.

In general the women at the information bureau have discovered that Chicagoans are panicky about probable black-outs, air raids, and sirens. They all want to help do something. Many women call the information bureau and want to help in the war effort.

Hundreds of questions pour in about nursery schools. Women with small children at home want some place to leave them so they can go to work in defense factories. The bureau has a file of nursery schools located in every section of the city.

Now and then a patriot gets discouraged. One man complained, "I want to make a fancy V for Victory on our street corner. I went out and bought black dirt, clam shells, and a flag. Now some one tells me I will not be allowed to go on with this project."

"Our job," explains Mrs. Willner, "is to answer, suggest, and soothe. It's really very interesting. We meet all kinds of people."

Orchestra to Give First Concert Tonight

The South Side Symphony orchestra, an amateur musical group, the membership of which includes clerks, an insurance broker, housewives, and a mechanical engineer, will give its first concert of the fall season at 8:15 o'clock this evening at the Hyde Park Baptist church, 5600 Woodlawn avenue. The proceeds will go to the USO. Miss Sydney Schoolman, 16, a student and the youngest member of the group, is a violinist. The orchestra now only has a string section, but within a few months it is hoped that all sections will be complete.

"Dean" of the 41 members of the South Side Symphony orchestra is Robert Sansone, music teacher of the South Shore High school. The group has been rehearsing thruout the summer for the concert tonight. At right, Libby Mayer, a clerk, rehearses for the concert. Her instrument is the cello. This will be the first concert of the orchestra under the direction of an experienced conductor. The conductor is Irwin Fischer, former conductor of the NYA orchestra.

NATIONAL SALON OF CAMERA CLUB SET FOR OCT. 4-30

The fourth annual national salon of the Lens Camera club will be held at the Southside Community art center, 3831 Michigan avenue from Oct. 4 to Oct. 30. This is the only national salon conducted by a Negro organization. One of the new features for this year's showing will be an exhibit called "Chicago's most photogenic women of 1942" which will consist of portraits of south side women.

A "photographic tea" will open the salon Sunday afternoon, Oct. 4. Many of the women whose portraits will hang in the "most photogenic" section will serve as hostesses. Robert W. Smith is chairman of the salon committee. Judges will be Dr. Max Thorek, Miss Alice Davey, and David Ross. Tomorrow is the closing date for submitting pictures.

The club has its headquarters at the Good Shepherd community center, 5120 South Park way. Officers are Frank Marshall Davis, president; Miss Rosine Tyler, secretary; John Gross, treasurer, and John W. Felton, financial secretary.

250 Women Offered Free Job Training.

BY CHARLES WRIGHT.

In marked contrast to the peaceful days of 1892, when the first students arrived at the midway, the University of Chicago will begin classes Tuesday for the third "war opening" of its history. Fifty years ago, workmen busily finishing the original buildings mingled with the students of what was known to some as "Harper's Folly." This year the student body will be in a wartime setting, with marching platoons giving the quadrangle the air of a huge military camp.

Not only will many of the enrolled students be studying courses directly designed to prepare them for service on both the home and the battle front but part time students also will be given training by the university as a contribution to the war effort. More than 250 women will be given free training in five government sponsored war courses during the fall quarter. The courses, offered in coöperation with the United States office of education, are designed to prepare the women to replace men needed for active military service.

75 Women to Learn Map Making.

Tomorrow 75 women will begin work in a 12 weeks course on topographic map making. These maps are necessary to military strategy. Another group of women will begin classwork in photogrammetry, the science of making maps from aerial photographs. The school of business will give an intensive 10 weeks course in office supervision for 125 women beginning Oct. 5. The curriculum of this course is designed to train qualified women for office management, personnel work in ordnance plants, and other office positions in war industry.

Two courses in industrial statistics for women will also be offered. Among the 50 women in the first course—a survey of statistical [illegible] already employed in war industries. This course will begin Oct. 5. The following day the other course, more advanced, will begin. Men as well as women will be trained in all the courses with the exception of office supervision. An additional 16 men will be given a course in optical shop work offered by the physics department. These and similar courses this fall will probably have an enrollment of 500 men and women before the fall quarter ends.

Enlisted Reserve Quota Filled.

Thousands of men already in service, both in the navy and army, will take classes at the university. Quotas for the enlisted reserve of these two services will be quickly filled, according to A. J. Brumbaugh, dean of students. The quotas could have been filled long ago, but the university has been accepting men on the basis of ability and not according to application.

Officials expect a decline of about 20 per cent in enrollment because of the war. Exact figures are not available as there is no advance registration with the exception of new students. The entering class in the "college," an arrangement by which a student may complete his education at about 20 years old, will be approximately 100 more this fall. One hundred twenty-five will enter the first year of the college, which begins at what corresponds to junior high school. This is compared with 80 last year. High school graduates, who enter the college for the last two years, number approximately 625, a slight increase over last year.

49 Student Editors Enter.

The entering students include 49 who in high school were editors of school publications. The class also included 33 former high school presidents and 17 high school class vice presidents. Two well known names of the university are combined in one freshman, James Castle Mead, a grandson of both Prof. George H. Mead, who died in 1931, and James H. Tufts, who died last month, both members of the faculty.

Elmer W. Donahue, another freshman, is a grandson of Andrew C. McLaughlin, University of Chicago historian. John M. Dickerson, of Cleveland, O., member of the entering class, is the grandson of J. Spencer Dickerson, a Chicago Baptist leader instrumental in founding the university and for 17 years a member of the board of trustees.

New Bachelor Degree Available.

A new program of study, leading to the degree of bachelor of library science, has been inaugurated this year. Formerly the graduate library school only offered advanced work. The new course was instituted because there is no other basic library school in Chicago.

Preinduction military training will be continued. Military training will be offered thru the ninth course of the institute of military studies. There will be two battalions of 550 men each in the course. There also will be conditioning classes for men as well as women given by the physical education department.

G. O. P. FACES HOT FIGHT TO KEEP 3D DISTRICT SEATS

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Republicans are somewhat grimly preparing for their clash with Democratic forces in the 3d senatorial district Nov. 3, well aware that here they can either gain a senator or lose a house member in the struggle for control of the state legislature.

Gov. Green has proclaimed his interest in the impending battle, and the Democratic machine has let it become known that leaders are determined to seize the wavering balance of power in the Illinois lawmaking body. The G. O. P. margin is 28 to 23 in the senate and 79 to 74 in the house of representatives.

An analysis of voting records showed why the Republicans look none too happy in the 3d district, made up of parts of Wards 1, 2, 4, and 11. But repeated and insistent reports of the trend of the so-called "silent vote" render the Democrats cautious in claiming victory.

G. O. P. Used to 2 Seats.

Significant is the fact that for the first time within memory the Democrats are out after two of the three house seats for this district, with its largely Negro population and stubborn Republican tradition. One student said he checked records back to the Civil war and never found more than one Democratic representative there.

Things are not as bad as they appear at first glance, resident experts say. In this year's primary, the Republican side offered only desultory contests, while on the Democratic, there was the Prof. Paul H. Douglas vs. R. S. McKeough fight for United States senator; the William L. Dawson [2d ward committeeman] vs. Ald. Earl B. Dickerson battle for congressman, and the Sen. William A. Wallace vs. Christopher C. Wimbish set-to for state senator.

These clashes brought the Kelly-Nash money into the predominant 2d ward of the district, while Republican money was free in the 1st ward, which had lively contests and is almost wholly in the 1st senatorial district. That factor is out of the way now.

Of growing importance is the obtaining of jobs in private industry by Negroes who formerly were virtually imprisoned on the relief and WPA rolls by discriminatory practices. At the time of the April primary the change-over was only starting, but the movement now is in full swing.

"The result is independence from political whipcracking," said Rep. Charles J. Jenkins, Republican senior house member, who is teamed with Rep. Dudley S. Martin, well known for his oratorical prowess.

Brooks' Action Is Big Help.

Another powerful factor which is speedily improving the Grand Old Party picture in the district is the dramatic rôle played by United States Sen. Wayland Brooks, Republican, who put thru the amendment knocking out the southern poll tax as a bar to soldier-sailor voting.

"The courageous and resourceful fighting that Sen. Brooks did against the poll tax is bringing back thousands of Republicans who have been believing they had turned Democratic," Rep. Jenkins commented.

Benjamin G. Clanton, former assistant state's attorney, is a seasoned lawyer who was in public service in Springfield before he entered the army in 1918. He won the Republican senate nomination without trouble.

Clanton Hard at Work.

Clanton said that he is not waiting for the apparent drift to bring victory to Republicans, but is buckling down to hard work to overcome "the efforts of tax paid Kelly-Nash pay rollers who are campaigning every day."

"It has been 10 years since I've seen such unity in our party in this district as we have now," Clanton said. "Voters don't like the Robert E. Crowe deal, which shows there is such a dearth of material in the Democratic party that they have to go to the Republican party for candidates, including Crowe and Wendell E. Green."

Opposing Clanton for the senate is Christopher C. Wimbish, who also was a former assistant state's attorney—and a former Republican.

"Sen. William A. Wallace, defeated by me in the primary, has joined our forces," Wimbish said. "In the Democratic party we have unity, while on the Republican side it's every man for himself.

When the two teams meet in the house race Nov. 3 Republicans are hopeful that the Democratic incumbent, Rep. George Garry Noonan, will run so far ahead of his teammate that the G. O. P. will bring in both its men ahead.

A good part of Noonan's strength lies in the 17 precincts of the 11th ward at the west side of the 3d senatorial district. Under Illinois' unique cumulative voting system, here every voter can "plump" three votes for Noonan. In the April primary Noonan nearly doubled the vote of his teammate, Fred J. Smith, 3206 South Michigan avenue, a city employé.

Rep. Jenkins, the stronger candidate on the Republican side, is jogging along with Rep. Dudley S. Martin and telling the voters to vote for both of them. Martin is an instructor in political science, residing at 3736 South Michigan avenue and is out for his second term.

Speed Up Weather Forecasts

At a recent ceremony at the church of St. Thomas the Apostle, Miss Patricia Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Hughes, 5547 Drexel boulevard, became the bride of Robert K. Szyman, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Szyman of Mount Greenwood. They are making their home at 8805 Justine street. The bride attended Loyola university and the bridegroom attended Illinois Institute of Technology.

VIRTUALLY ELECTED

Frederick A. Virkus, president of the Illinois division of the National Small Business Men's association, on Thursday night virtually became a state representative by action of the Republican senatorial committee for this district, which includes most country townships of Cook county.

The committee appointed Virkus to the vacancy on the G. O. P. ticket caused by the withdrawal of Rep. Arthur W. Sprague of La Grange, who during his second term accepted a navy lieutenancy and is now at Quonset Point, R. I. Virkus became the teammate of Rep. Bernice Van der Vries of Winnetka, new chairman of the women's division of the county G. O. P. committee. Rep. Emmett McGrath is the Democratic nominee for the house.

Because there are only three nominees for three house seats in this "setup" district, the Nov. 3 election is regarded as a mere formality for these candidates.

Virkus is 63 years old and has resided in La Grange for 40 years. He is president of the Virkus company, publishers of historic-genealogical reference books.

MORE ACCURACY IN FORECASTING WEATHER SEEN

War Evokes New Ideas at U. of C. Institute.

"Do you think it will rain?" Often a conversational opener, this phrase will be a less debatable question after the present conflict has ended. The pressure of war, according to Dr. Carl G. Rossby, chief of the University of Chicago institute of meteorology, has led to a "streamlining" of weather forecasting and its allied science, meteorology.

The net effect of "streamlining," usually viewed with alarm by scientists, in this case has been an improvement in weather forecasting. The simplifications, plus new principles discovered, mean more accuracy in weather reports now so important to military strategy.

"Obsolete" Ideas Discarded.

There has been a tendency in weather forecasting," Dr. Rossby reported, "to drag along a lot of obsolete matter. It has been necessary to discard obsolete methods and data. For the first time we have taken stock of our science. In the past observation helped keep up from thinking."

The need for simplification was especially evident in teaching, he said. Hundreds of men in military service are studying weather forecasting and meteorology at the institute. These students, many of whom will be instructors at their posts, will have to explain the principles of weather forecasting to men who in many cases have had no more than a high school education.

This need precipitated a search for simpler methods, which, as it turned out, were more effective. An example cited by Dr. Rossby is the change in the method of measuring high and low pressure areas, important to weather forecasting. Formerly the rate and direction of the movements were computed by calculus. When simplification was needed it was found that the same results could be obtained by an algebraic formulae.

War Work Takes Precedence.

The institute, founded in 1940 when the military forces suddenly discovered the need for trained weather men, is now almost wholly devoted to "war work." Their discoveries will not be passed on to civilians until the war is ended. Almost all the students at the institute are enlisted in some branch of the military services. Groups studying include aviation cadets and naval ensigns. While figures on the enrollment cannot be released, the number of students have increased with each class. The fourth class will begin this fall.

According to Dr. Rossby training in weather forecasting and meteorology will be the most useful of all types of training given by the military forces when the service man returns to civilian life.

Meteorologists, he said, will be needed in all great systems of power development, such as the Tennessee Valley Authority. A field is also opening up in geology, especially in determining soil erosion and methods of checking it. And he pointed out the possibility of the use of wind power in the future.

POLLYEA TWINS TAKE PARALLEL CAREERS TO OCD

Become Block Captains the Same Week.

There is an hour difference in their ages. They were married the same year, now have the same number of children, identical jobs and incomes. Even their mother can't tell them apart. And when civilian defense came along, both were appointed block captains, almost simultaneously.

These twin brothers, the only twin block captains in the city, are Dave M. Pollyea, 4015 15th street, and Maurice Pollyea, 5511 Ingleside avenue. Their appointment within the same week was coincidental—neither community commander realized the other twin had been named.

The Pollyea twins were born in Kiev, Russia, April 23, 1900, the sons of Rabbi and Mrs. Mandel F. Pollyea. In 1906 the family came to the United States, and a home was established on the south side. There were five other children beside the twins—three sisters and two brothers.

Work at Packing Plants.

When they were boys, Maurice worked for Swift and company, and Dave for Armour. They both served as scoutmasters at their respective plants. Their wedding days were only a month apart, and each now has two children. Maurice has one married daughter, Ruth, 19, and a daughter, June, 13. Dve's eldest is Gertrude, 16, and he has a son, Robert, 11.

The brothers now work for the same company, as salesmen, and are known as the "Case-Moody Twins," even to having that embroidered on the back of their work shirts. The cashiers at the plant have difficulty in telling which is which, and the brothers now make it a point to speak whenever spoken to—for many times Dave's [or Maurice's] friends hail Maurice [or Dave].

Their careers in civilian defense work have paralleled, just as did their careers in the years before OCD. Their blocks are similar in population, each with a row of business buildings, a few two-flats, and a number of cottages.

Sworn in by Mayor Kelly.

Both men were sworn in as auxiliary police officers for the OCD by Mayor Kelly a few months ago, Dave for the Fillmore station in the 25th ward, under Col. A. L. Brodie, and Maurice for the Hyde Park station in the 6th ward, under Capt. Ed Quinn. Even their dedication of service flags was held at approximately the same time, and with 20 stars in each flag.

The brothers have been co-treasurers in the Zephyr Twin club for a number of years.

There is only one point on which the brothers differ. That is politics. Dave serves as Republican precinct committeeman under William Lass, committeeman of the 23d ward, and Maurice is Democratic assistant precinct committeeman under Dave Eichner, committeeman of the 6th ward.

Coincidence Still Reigns

Identical twins, leading almost identical lives, are Maurice and Dave Pollyea, who, residing in widely separated sections of the city, were appointed block captains almost simultaneously.

place indifference. The war must be fought and won by patriots, not politicians."

Lauds Brooks' Work.

The energy, accomplishments and leadership of Sen. Wayland Brooks as the head of the G. O. P. state ticket in Illinois have been major factors in infusing the winning spirit into the Republican camp in the 1st congressional district, it was declared last week by William E. King, who is the nominee against the Democrat, William L. Dawson.

"Since Sen. Brooks got into action, the Republican drive thruout the state has taken on new life," said King. "This is particularly true of the 1st district, which is about to return to Republicanism decisively after eight years of indifferent incumbency by the Democrats.

"The pace Sen. Brooks has set in both Cook county and downstate points to the election of the entire Republican ticket."

Says Racketeers Complain.

King charged that his opponent's candidacy has the support of "every evil influence in the 1st district." He declared that the heads of the various rackets which victimize colored people are complaining because they were allowed to operate while a Democratic drive for campaign funds was on in the April primary, and then were promptly closed down.

"Dawson, who until recently was nominally a Republican but is now a city hall Democrat, apparently regards politics as a medium of exchange when the exchange benefits him," King said. "He was elected to the city council as a Republican. Finding it hard going, he horned into the Kelly-Nash machine.

"The voters of the 1st district know that I have never deserted my party for falling Democratic manna, and that I will fight every influence that tends to bring discredit to my people and to my district."

Cites Poll Tax Aid.

Many colored voters who previously voted Democratic intend to vote for the entire Republican ticket this year, King said. One of the principal reasons is the amendment to the soldier vote bill, introduced in the senate and fought to passage there by Sen. Brooks. This amendment waives the payment of poll tax by men and women in the service to qualify them as voters, which hitherto had kept Negroes from voting freely in eight southern states.

GRAND CROSSING BLOCK TO HONOR MEN IN SERVICE

Residents of block 4, zone 14 of the Grand Crossing community will dedicate a block flag today at 2:30 o'clock at 7340 Cottage Grove avenue. All block captains and air raid wardens of the community will attend the ceremony to honor the community commander, Walter Feldhoff, who lives in the block.

The Grand Crossing American Legion post will post the colors. The Rev. William J. Gorman of St. Columbanus church and the Rev. C. Eric Peterson of the Swedish Mission church will speak. Music will be provided by the Woodlawn Knights Templar commandery band, and Miss Jean Halpin will sing, accompanied by Miss Harriet Fox.

A marble plaque has been provided by Robert Park, air raid warden, which bears the names of 14 men in service from the block. William A. Burns is block captain.

POST OFFICE LEGION NAMES B. E. LONGHEAD COMMANDER FOR YEAR

B. E. Longhead recently was installed commander of Van Buren post of the American Legion. Van Buren, the United States postoffice post, is the second largest in Cook county with a membership of more than 900.

Commander Longhead served overseas 28 months with the 16th infantry headquarters company during World War I. and was in five major offensives and one defense engagement. He has been awarded the Purple Heart, the silver star, and the Victory medal.

Mr. Longhead resides at 4119 Lake Park avenue.

CHESTERFIELD CLUB BOARD TO OPEN NEW YEAR

Meet Wednesday at Home of Mrs. Charles Tarbell.

The first board meeting of the 1942-'43 club year of the Chesterfield Woman's club will be held at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Charles Tarbell, 614 East 88th street. Mrs. Lester Copeland will be cohostess. A dessert luncheon will be served. The business meeting, scheduled to follow the luncheon, will be conducted by Mrs. Roy L. Anderson, club president.

The new board of directors of the club includes: Mrs. John H. Morris and Mrs. Howard D. Saager, vice presidents; Mrs. John A. Morrison, recording secretary; Mrs. Bennard J. Allard, corresponding secretary; Mrs. E. J. Richards, treasurer; Mrs. Edward W. Labus, house chairman; Mrs. L. Thane DePoy, membership chairman; Mrs. Ernest J. Sweeney, finance and revision; Mrs. Charles Tarbell, luncheon; Mrs. Frank Derby, fine arts; Mrs. Pern Ingman, home and education; Mrs. E. A. Johnson, American citizenship; Mrs. Arthur H. Gibbons, public welfare; Mrs. Richard W. Gutrich, press and publicity; Mrs. Lester W. Copeland, junior contact chairman; and Mrs. James Oldshue, parliamentarian.

Arche.

The Arché club will open its 54th year at 11 o'clock Friday at the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive. Civilian assistance to the war effort will be the principal theme of the club's work this year. The members are raising funds to purchase an ambulance. In World War I. the club sent two ambulances to France. During the summer members of the club made a quantity of bandages and clothing.

The music class will give a program "Music of Old and New Masters" to begin the fall activities. Jean Graham will be the pianist. Mrs. Charles A. Pardee, a representative of the Illinois Federation of Music clubs, will be a guest. At noon the autumn luncheon of the club will be held in the main dining room of the hotel for members and their guests. A reception in the clubrooms will follow.

The afternoon program, arranged by Mrs. George Webster Jr., program chairman, will be "The Vocal Entertainment Supreme" by the American Artists octet.

Martha Washington Club.

Members of the Martha Washington club, sponsors of the Martha Washington home for dependent crippled children, will open their 36th year at 2 o'clock Friday when they hold the formal dedication of their new home for the children, 4515 Drexel boulevard. The home has been in use since June. Dr. H. Leonard Bowman, pastor of First Presbyterian church, 64th street and Kimbark avenue, will speak. George O'Connor, tenor, will sing.

Mrs. J. Henry Schroeder, program chairman, is arranging details.

Officers of the club are: Mrs. W. Merritt Thompson, president; Mrs. J. Henry Schroeder and Mrs. Ray Schalk, vice presidents; Mrs. Harry Mohlman, recording secretary; Mrs. George Smainis, treasurer; Mrs. H. R. De Cressey, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. L. O. Tanner, press and publicity.

Second District.

Members of the war service committee of the 2d District Federation of Women's Clubs will meet at 1:30 o'clock Friday for a dessert luncheon at the home of the committee chairman, Mrs. Ivan Henderson, 7747 Constance avenue. Plans for the clubs' war service work will be discussed and a report will be made to the next district board meeting.

Order of True Sisters.

The first meeting of the club season of Johanna lodge, Order of True Sisters, will be held at 1:30 o'clock Thursday at the Emil G. Hirsch center, 4622 South Park way.

Plans Wedding in January

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Stockman of 7828 Oglesby avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Irene Elizabeth, to Dr. Augustus V. Manskey Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Manskey Sr. of Bloomington. Miss Stockman is a graduate of Loretta Woodlawn academy. Dr. Manskey attended Illinois Wesleyan university and is a graduate of the Chicago College of Osteopathy. He is now in Boulder, Colo., where they plan to make their home after their marriage in January.

BOARD OF WARREN PTA HOLDS FIRST SESSION OCT. 17

Mrs. William Marschke Is Unit President.

Mrs. William Marschke recently was named president of the Joseph Warren PTA, which will hold its first board meeting of the year Oct. 17. Other officers of the association include: Mrs. James Davey, Mrs. E. R. Burger, and Miss Marie McCahey, vice presidents; Mrs. Lloyd Anderson, secretary; Mrs. Elmer Moore, treasurer; Mrs. J. H. Ephraim, council delegate. Mrs. F. L. Mines, alternate delegate.

The theme for the monthly programs this year, announced by Mrs. Davey, who also is program chairman, is "Avenues for Happiness."

There are 15 department chairmen to assist in carrying out the general program of the association. They are: Mrs. John Siovic, budget and finance; Mrs. Ferdinand Klobucar, health; Mrs. Marie Mastic, homemaking; Mrs. Martin Bozic, hospitality; Mrs. Charles Sonderquist, juvenile protection and student aid; Mrs. Burger, membership; Mrs. C. Mrs. W. J. Farwell of 8118 Paxton avenue, recently was named president of the South Shore High school PTA.

CONCERT SEASON OF SYMPHONY OPENS TONIGHT

Orchestra of 40 Formed Thru Love of Music.

Hot summer evenings proved to be no obstacle for members of the South Side Symphony orchestra, an amateur musical group which includes housewives, stenographers, students, and clerks. Thruout the summer months they rehearsed once a month at the Hyde Park YMCA, 1400 East 53d street. They will give their first fall concert this evening at the Hyde Park Baptist church, 5600 Woodlawn avenue, for the benefit of the USO.

The orchestra, one year old, has grown from a group of 10 persons to an organization of 40, all players of stringed instruments. Leaders hope that within a few months the membership can be extended to include players of wind and percussion instruments to make a balanced group of 60 members. Auditions are being planned.

Backed by YMCA.

Bernard Nahm, 20, a music student and teacher, conceived the idea of an orchestra for the south side. He brought the idea to the Hyde Park YMCA, which agreed to assist in its organization. It now is a community sponsored group with more and more organizations giving their support.

As the group grew, the need for an experienced director became apparent. Irwin Fischer, former conductor of the NYA orchestra, was commissioned to direct and organize the orchestra. The first rehearsal under Fischer was held in June. Despite the summer heat the members each Thursday held rehearsals, which lasted from two and a half to three hours.

The members are drawn from many occupations. Joe Lorene Miller is a music teacher; Bernice Sobel, Marion Sobel, Harriet Taylor, Frances Pietch, Sydney Schoolman, Arthur Siegel, Bernadine Wade, Bob Nejedly, Geraldine Kay, and Martha Probst are students; Mrs. Ruth Hartman and Mrs. Claire Oppenheim, housewives; Mrs. Margarette Sundwick, music student; May Balai and Lenore Dumas, stenographers.

Others in Orchestra.

Libby Mazer, Lotte Motzger, George Lantz, Leo Grunwald, and Milton Waldman are clerks; Robert Sansone, Miss Ivy Ruhl, and August Quiriconi, teachers; Nathan C. Weil, insurance broker; Mrs. Lucille Forde, employé of the Rapid Transit company; Frank Adler, bookkeeper; Wardwell Montgomery, mechanical engineer; Severin Saphir, violinist; Lydia Gershman, laboratory assistant; William Schroeder, signal corps, and Ernest Goodyear, window trimmer.

There also are seven professional musicians who are members of the group and serve as instructors. They are Nathan Sherman, Perry E. Crafton, David Chausow, Kathryn Finley, Carmen Adezio, Paula Wiesenfeld, and Laura Bohle.

The orchestra's governing body is the South Side Music association, which also has other musical activities. Its board of directors is composed of representatives from south side churches, civic groups, and individuals interested in good music.

Has No President.

The association has so far elected no president. There are three vice presidents. They are: Philip Manuel, a teacher; Gavin Williamson, a teacher, and Nahm, founder of the orchestra. Other officers include Werner Brunell, recording secretary; Mrs. Frances Heidt-Levinson, corresponding secretary, and Frank Adler, treasurer.

Orchestra members also have an organization. Nahm is director, Sydney Schoolman is secretary, and Adler is treasurer. The members of the orchestra committee are Sansone, Weil, Grunwald, and Miss Schoolman.

Georgia Honeymoon

Miss Catherine McDermott, daughter of Mrs. J. P. McDermott, 7271 South Shore drive, recently was married to William Walker McLaury, son of Mrs. Walker Gailey McLaury of 5630 Woodlawn avenue. The ceremony was at St. Paul's Episcopal church. They spent their honeymoon at Sea Island, Ga. Mr. McLaury attended the University of Chicago, where he was a member of Psi Upsilon fraternity. Mrs. McLaury attended the University of Wisconsin and is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. They are making their home at 7300 South Shore drive.

NEGRO CLUB WILL HOLD RALLY FOR SENATOR BROOKS

The Commonwealth Independent Political league, with headquarters at 5617 Prairie avenue, will sponsor a Sen. Wayland Brooks testimonial meeting the night of Oct. 6 at 5757 South State street. Claudius A. Reid, insurance agent, is president of the league. Other officers of the league include Julius L. Morgan, 5848 Michigan avenue, R. A. Armstrong, 5757 South State street, and P. D. Campbell. The organization has a membership of about 250 Negroes.

Gladstone Hotel Red Cross Unit Will Exhibit Work

Members of the Red Cross unit of the Gladstone hotel, 6200 Kenwood avenue, will exhibit their work at the hotel at 7 o'clock Tuesday. There also will be community singing and unit reports. Mrs. P. A. Gray, chairman of the unit, will speak. Classes are held at the hotel every Monday and Friday from 11 o'clock to 3 o'clock. Instruction is given in knitting, machine sewing, fine needle work, and the making of surgical dressings. The unit was organized a year ago.

WAR TRANSFERS CHANGE CULVER ACADEMY STAFF

Senior Artillery Teacher Goes to Alabama.

Lieut. Col. N. C. Manley has been named senior artillery instructor at Culver Military academy, succeeding Col. I. L. Kitts, who was transferred to Alabama recently. Col. Manley comes from Fort Hayes, Ohio, where he was a member of the general staff. He has a 25 year regular army service record.

Several other new appointments also were announced as Culver opened this fall with a capacity enrollment of nearly 700 for the seventh consecutive year. Senior ROTC artillery, cavalry, and infantry units all were reported filled.

Among new appointees are: Edwin Charles, New Richmond, O.; Kenneth Hesgard, Platteville, Wis., and M. L. Staples, Evansville, Ind., in the mathematics department; George E. Luther, Ann Arbor, Mich., and J. Hobart Tucker, Clinton, Ia., in the foreign language department; Lieut. Edward Stephenson, Columbia, Mo., military instruction.

D. M. Marshall, chairman of the foreign language department and on the school staff for the last 14 years, has been commissioned in the army as instructor at West Point. Maj. H. V. Davis succeeds him. Staff Sergt. Archie Gardner, instructor since 1936, has been promoted to first lieutenant and ordered to duty at Culver.

New Home in West

Mr. and Mrs. David Simon of 7134 Euclid avenue announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Faye, to Joseph Revitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Revitz of Los Angeles, Cal. They are making their home in Los Angeles.

Form New Scout Troop at South Congregational

A new Boy Scout troop is being formed at the South Congregational church, 40th street and Drexel boulevard, under direction of Henry McGeer, 4344 Ellis avenue, scoutmaster. The committee sponsoring the troop is composed of B. J. Wilson, chairman; Dr. W. F. Slade, pastor; Clay Remington, and Carl Golden.

Guest Tonight

Hedy Lamarr of the movies will make a guest appearance on the Charlie McCarthy show at 7 o'clock this evening over WMAQ-NBC.

'Thar She Blows' Will Be First Nighter Play Tonight

An original comedy titled "Thar She Blows" written by Anthony Wayne will be the starring vehicle for Les Tremayne and Barbara Luddy on the "First Nighter" program from 7 to 7:30 tonight on W-G-N. Musical background for the drama will be supplied by Eric Sagerquist and the First Nighter orchestra. Bret Morrison will be cast as Mr. First Nighter, the host to the theater party.

Miss Claire, T. L. Thomas Operetta Stars.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

In response to appeals from thousands of listeners W-G-N will reopen its Chicago Theater of the Air, presenting operettas beloved by all America. The season will be opened next Saturday, Oct. 3, with Sigmund Romberg's popular "The New Moon" scheduled as the première production.

Miss Marion Claire again will be starred in these musical treats. For the opening show W-G-N has engaged Thomas L. Thomas, noted baritone of the Metropolitan Opera company, to sing the leading male rôle.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will continue his radio talks. The Theater of the Air productions will replace the summer concert series, America Loves a Melody. The operettas will be broadcast from 8 to 9 o'clock every Saturday over the coast to coast facilities of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Emphasis on Melodies.

A full dramatic cast of Chicago's best known actors will portray the story of the operetta. Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N producion chief, who will be in charge of the operettas, has announced that more emphasis will be laid on the music than in other seasons. In order to include all of the best songs from each operetta a narrator will be used to tell portions of the story.

The musical background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and the W-G-N chorus, directed by Robert Trendler.

"The New Moon" was selected for the opening show because of its great favor with listeners. It has been presented every year on this series. It contains several of Romberg's most popular melodies—the romantic "Lover Come Back to Me," "One Kiss," "Wanting You," and the stirring "Stout Hearted Men."

Scene Is New Orleans.

"The New Moon" was first produced at the Imperial theater in New York Sept. 19, 1928, with Evelyn Herbert as "Marianne Beaunoir," the rôle to be taken by Miss Claire, and Robert Halliday as "Robert De Misson," the part to be sung by Mr. Thomas. The scene is New Orleans in the year 1793.

Miss Claire has sung all of the leading feminine rôles in the Theater of the Air productions, now going into their fourth year. She has built up one of radio's largest and most loyal listening audiences. Many Marion Claire fan clubs have sprung up across the nation. These groups gather on Saturday night to listen to the operettas.

Miss Claire was starred also in the three prize winning works that resulted from W-G-N's nation-wide quest last season for the Great American Operetta. The grand prize winner was "America Loves a Melody," by Ross Hastings of Los Angeles. W-G-N distributed $10,500 in cash awards in this competition.

The operetta for Saturday, Oct. 10, will be "The Chocolate Soldier"; Oct. 17 will be "Rio Rita"; Oct. 24, "Robin Hood"; Oct. 31, "Naughty Marietta," and Nov. 7, "La Boheme." The leading men singers for the operettas are to be announced.

Chorus on W-G-N.

The Beaver Curtiss Propeller chorus will be heard on W-G-N and Mutual's "I Hear America Singing" program to be aired at noon Tuesday. The purpose of the broadcast will be to demonstrate how well community spirit is organized in war geared communities.

FORUM OF SINAI TEMPLE TO OPEN 29TH YEAR OCT. 19

3 Speakers to Discuss 'Dawn of Victory.'

S. D. Schwartz.

Sinai Temple forum will open its 29th season Monday, Oct. 19, with a symposium, "The Dawn of Victory." The speakers will be Prof. Frederick L. Schuman, educator and author, who will discuss the Americas; Dr. Gerhard Schacher, news analyst, historian, and author, who will speak on Europe, and Edgar A. Mowrer, foreign correspondent, on Asia. The forums are held in the temple auditorium, 4600 South Park way.

There will be 15 programs presented by the forum this year, four of them to be symposiums. The second symposium will be held Dec. 7, when Dr. William Pickens, director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and Prof. Fay Cooper Cole, University of Chicago anthropologist, discuss "America's Race Problem—What Is It?"

Home Front to Be Topic.

Labor, management, and the public will be represented at the Jan. 4 program on "We Look at the Home Front." Miss Lillian Herstein, teacher, who is a vice president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, will represent labor; H. L. Nunn, president of a shoe company, will present the management side of the home front, and the public's viewpoint will be taken by Dr. Neil H. Jacoby, secretary of the University of Chicago and a professor of finance.

The series will be closed Feb. 15 with a symposium on "How Religion Can Influence the Peace." The speakers, from three denominations, will be: Dr. Francis E. McMahon, Notre Dame university, Catholicism; Dr. Frank Kingdon, president of the Union for Democratic Action, Protestantism, and Dr. Louis L. Mann, rabbi of the Sinai congregation, Judaism.

Ilka Chase to Speak.

Other speakers on the forum program include: Ilka Chase, screen, radio, and stage star, "The Psychology of Being a Woman," Oct. 26; Maj. Alexander P. De Seversky, airplane designer and author, "Air Power Today and Tomorrow," Nov. 2; Sister Elizabeth Kenney, authority on infantile paralysis, "The Epic Story of a Sister of Mercy," Nov. 9; Franz Werfel, author, "Can We Live Without Believing in God?" Nov. 16; Dr. Krishnalal Shridharani, authority on India, "The Crisis in India—India and the Four Freedoms," Nov. 23; Upton Close, authority on Pacific affairs, "Japan, China, and the Orient—We Take the Pacific—Now What?" Nov. 30; Samuel Grafton, critic and author, "Life, Letters, and Politics—Observations," Jan. 18; Ruth Draper, actress, "Inimitable Character Sketches," Jan. 25; Dr. Solomon B. Freehof, rabbi and author, "Four Great Books of the Year," Feb. 1, and John Mason Brown, dramatic critic, "Broadway in Review, a Discussion of Current Plays," Feb. 15.

Forum Dates to 1914.

The forum was organized in 1914, after S. D. Schwartz, the director, became affiliated with the temple. He had just been graduated from the University of Chicago. The first forums drew a group of around 40 persons. World War I. increased interest in public affairs and the audiences soon began to increase. Now some of the speakers have audiences close to 3,000 persons. It is necessary to use the smaller auditorium of the temple with larger crowds. The speaker's voice is carried to this room by an amplyfying system. The regular temple auditorium seats 2,200 persons.

At first speakers were either Chicagoans or visitors to Chicago. When the forum became more than a temple activity speakers were brought from over the nation and from foreign countries.

Taft and Hoover Guests.

Former Presidents Taft and Hoover have spoken. Other prominent persons of their day who have appeared on the stage of the forum include William Jennings Bryan, Clarence Darrow, and Jane Addams.

Schwartz reports that more and more cities are becoming interested in establishing forums. Recently he has received letters from citizens in Charleston, W. Va.; Memphis, Tenn.; Paducah, Ky., and Denver, Colo., asking for information on the Sinai forum.

Tea Time in Prize Play Yard

Time out for tea. This is a scene from the play yard which won L. M. Austerdale, 8126 Bennett avenue, a prize in the annual play yard contest of the Chicago Motor club. The yard received a sandbox from the motor club.

2 SOUTH SIDERS WIN PLAY YARD CONTEST PRIZES

Portable Pool, Sandbox Given by Motor Club.

Expensive equipment is not a requirement for a successful play yard, according to the results of two south side winners in the annual play yard contest sponsored by the Chicago Motor club. The contest is a part of the organization's drive to reduce child fatalities in traffic accidents due to playing in the streets.

Ten to fifteen children use the yard located in a vacant lot adjoining the home of Daniel Ross, 8117 Kingston avenue, one of the prize winners. With the exception of a swing all the equipment is homemade. The attractions include a sandbox, horseshoe court, shuffle board, arbor playhouse, lawn chairs, tables, and table games and toys.

Wins Portable Pool.

Mr. Ross was awarded a portable pool, which will be available for the children of the neighborhood. Another attraction of the play yard is a homemade bulletin board, erected by Mr. Ross, which informs the children of activities of the week, such as home movies, beach parties, and picnics. He also designed some of the games which are used by the children.

A swimming pool made from an old tank features the yard of L. M. Austerlade, 8126 Bennett avenue, also a prize winner. Play in his yard keeps the children away from the heavy traffic of nearby South Chicago avenue. He received a sandbox for the use of the children who play in his back yard.

Variety of Equipment.

Equipment accumulated by Mr. Austerlade includes a trapeze set with swing, trapeze bar, slide, horizontal bar, and trapeze rings; swings, a hobby horse, benches, chairs, and a playhouse containing an electric stove, a child's kitchen cabinet, electric iron and board, a doll bed, chairs, and a davenport.

The children also have access to a basement play room containing a toy piano, dolls, and a variety of toys. Neighborhood children put on plays, dances, fashion parades either outdoors or inside, depending upon the weather.

First prize in the club's contest this year went to Mrs. Virginia Gates, 3908 North Kimball avenue, who received a 10 stunt gym set for the yard she converted from a vacant lot.

MAID OF AMERICA SHOW BACK TO W-G-N TUESDAY

"Maid of America," a program dedicated to the American way of life, will return to W-G-N for its second season at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

The heroic work of Mary Ann Ball Bickerdyke, Civil war nurse, will be dramatized on Tuesday's show. A native of Galesburg, Ill., Mary Bickerdyke was responsible for the formation of the first nurses corps in the northern army during the Civil war.

Bob Trendler and the W-G-N orchestra will provide music and choral background. Russ Brown will be guest singer on the initial program. Brown will sing "Daybreak" and "Smiles."

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Sept. 28.

Tender plants should be placed under the protection of cold frame or removed to the house to avoid injury from early frost. If an increased number of bedding plants is desired, stock plants should be lifted and potted, or cuttings made from firm, sturdy wood of the plants in the beds.

Cuttings of geraniums can be made of the firmest wood [or of the stems] which means that when bent the stems will snap, not bend, which indicates they are soft and not the best for cuttings. It will not injure them after cutting to let them remain exposed for a day and then placed in sandy soil.

Tuesday, Sept. 29.

The perennial borders can be remade now, and fall is a fine season to make changes that are required. Perennials delight in a deep, well enriched soil, well drained. The whole border may be replanted, but to do so that plants must all be lifted, placed to one side, or heeled in, and then soil spaded. All débris must be removed.

Wednesday, Sept. 30.

Tulips should be planted in early October. The bulbs make a fall root growth. American grown tulips are as good or better than Holland grown bulbs. A selection of tulips, using the various groups or types from the early varieties to the latest, in combination with plants in the perennial borders, will give a long period of bloom.

Thursday, Oct. 1.

If interested in hardy chrysanthemums, visit displays in local nurseries to become familiar with the best varieties. Mark those wanted and order for spring delivery because these plants should be planted in spring rather than in fall.

If they must be fall planted, be sure to give them protection after the ground freezes, or place them in a cold frame until spring. Protect the plants, for few there are that are dependably hardy. They should be divided and replanted each spring whether hardy or not.

Friday, Oct. 2.

Lift or dig all roots and bulbs that require winter protection before frost cuts them down, such as gladiola, tuberose, tuberous-rooted begonia, caladium, and canna. Plant lily bulbs as soon as they are received. Place sand under each bulb at time of planting.

Saturday, Oct. 3.

Divide and replant peonies. Do not plant too deep or they will not flower well. Lift and pot a few annuals, such as marigolds, calendulas, dwarf asters, flowering tobacco, etc., for flowering indoors. See that the yard is cleaned up for winter. Remove all accessories indoors.

Mulch lily-of-the-valley with old manure, but not too deep, to increase the vigor of the plants. The same may be done to the Spurge of Pacysandra plants. All ground cover plants are greatly benefited with a much. Mix sand with old manure or humus before spreading.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park Conservatory.

Junior Aid Dance.

The David M. Grodsky junior aid will hold its monthly Sunday afternoon dance and reception today at the Chicago Beach hotel from 3 to 6 o'clock.

95 SOUTH SIDERS SHARE IN WEEK'S TIRE RATIONING

Royal Cab Firm Allowed to Buy 30 Tubes.

Ninety-five persons and companies on the south side shared 418 tire and tube permits for passenger cars and trucks for the week ending Sept. 19, rationing board figures showed.

Thirty passenger tubes for the Royal Cab company, 335 East 29th place, was the largest single grant. Two hundred seventeen passenger permits were given for 76 tires and 141 tubes; 201 truck permits included 93 tires and 108 tubes.

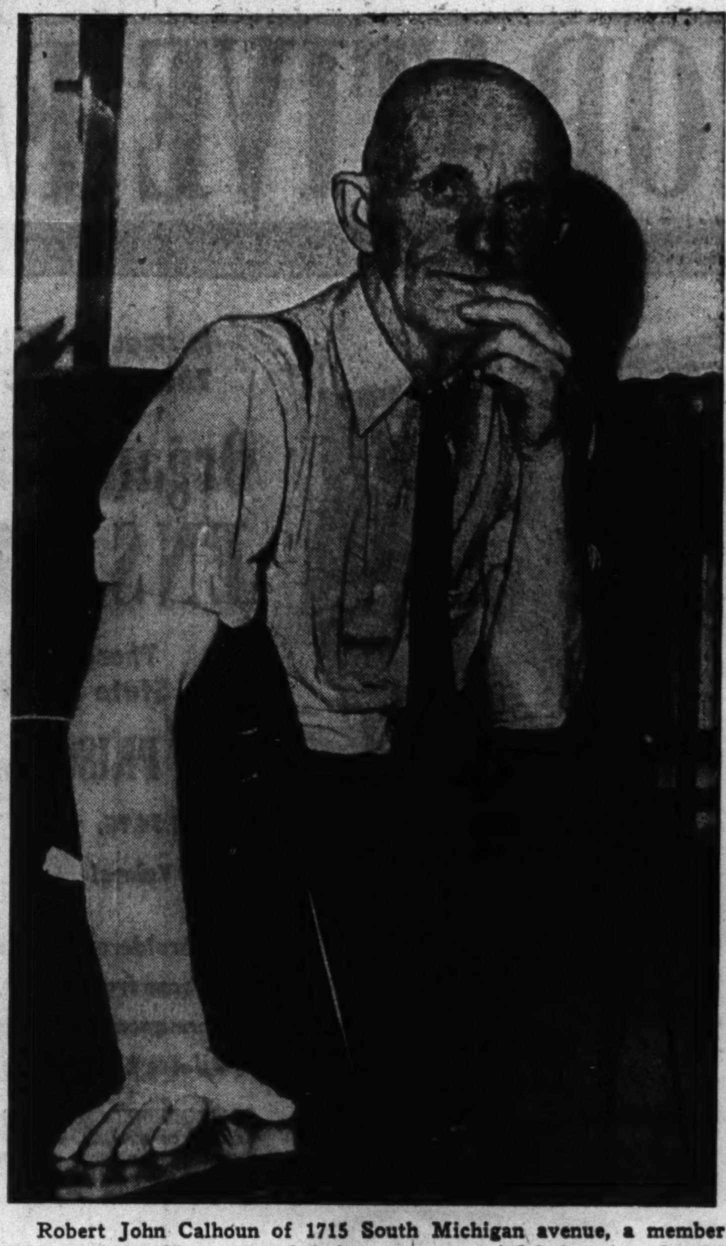
He's Loyal to Fish Fries



Robert John Calhoun of 1715 South Michigan avenue, a member of Moose lodge No. 3, attended the recent annual fish fry given by the Albany Park lodge. "I wouldn't miss a Moose fish fry," he says. "That stuff tastes better than chicken."

WAYS SUGGESTED TO STOP WASTE OF FUEL IN HOME

Few Simple Steps Can Trim Heating Bills.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

[We'll be glad to send leaflet with names of some helpful products for fuel saving this winter, as well as hints for preventing fuel waste. Please send stamped, addressed envelope with your request for leaflet to this department.]

As insurance against fuel waste this winter, there are many steps a home owner can take. Here are some:

First of all the heating plant should be checked over by an expert, cleaned and repaired, if necessary, so that it will function at maximum efficiency.

All pipes and ducts and boiler will help give you a warmer house for less money if they are insulated.

If there are leaks in any boiler or smoke pipe joints furnace cement may be the answer. If there are leaks inside a boiler there are stop-leak compounds which can be applied internally. There also are boiler-cleaning compounds to eliminate grease, dust, soot, etc.

Thermostat Is Help.

Other heating plant aids include a thermostat, placed in a proper location, clean filters in warm air furnaces [the new fiber glass filters are inexpensive and fireproof], and provision for some sort of auxilliary humidity if the heating system does not provide same. Be sure the heating plant isn't trying to heat all out of doors, as well as the rooms inside of the house.

Ceiling insulation will save a good deal of heat. Roof insulation will sometimes save as high as 30 per cent.

Weatherstripping, storm sash and storm doors also are big fuel savers. [Both weatherstripping and storm sash will pay for themselves in time, and it will not take a long time to do it, either.]

Door seals on bedroom doors will make it easier for your basement boiler or furnace to heat the house nicely and quickly in the early morning. Special door seals for outside doors also are a big help.

Use of Plastic Caulking.

If you would keep cold air from entering your house around door and window cracks, you can use plastic caulking compounds which come in different colors or which can be painted. The work is usually done with a caulking gun, and oakum can be used to pack any large openings before caulking them.

It should not be forgotten that closed Venetian blinds have a certain insulating effectiveness and the same is true of two window shades at each window.

If you are certain your house is a fuel waster you may be interested in recent estimates of possible savings thru insulation, and that, if a house is fully insulated, side walls, roof, windows, etc., you can cut your fuel bills some 50 per cent or more!

4,000 TO OPEN EVANSTON CHEST DRIVE

AGENCIES OF WAR AID WILL SHARE FUND THIS YEAR

Parade to Advertise Appeal Tuesday.

Evanston's war chest drive will begin officially Tuesday evening with a parade and rally at which 4,000 persons are expected.

Pioneer war chest community in this area, Evanston announces a 1943 goal of $300,000 to meet war appeals from both national and local agencies. Its slogan will be "Double Your Gift for Twice the Need." Officials feel that this plan, adopted by 400 communities, mostly in the east, will provide an efficient, economical clearing house for all war appeals in one intensive drive.

The war chest parade will start at 7:30 o'clock from Fountain Square, center of the city. Its line of march, north to Church street, then west to Evanston Township High school, will be lighted with colored flares.

Steel Executive to Talk.

In the school's auditorium Clarence B. Randall, vice president of the Inland Steel company, will be principal speaker, emphasizing the need for and the importance of war chests. Mr. Randall, a resident of Winnetka, recently opened the war chest rally in Boston. Final instructions will be given volunteers from the civilian defense council, who have been organized into an army pledged to solicit contributions from every family in the city.

Marchers in the parade will include uniformed sailors and marines stationed at Northwestern university. The stockyards Kiltie band of the American Legion will make the line of march gay with bagpipe music. A martial air will be furnished by the Evanston Township High school band, the Boy Scouts' Drum and Bugle corps and the Evanston American Legion Drum and Bugle corps. Each of the 13 local agencies in the war chest will be represented. The U. S. O. promises a float and a delegation of hostesses.

Boy and Girl Scouts to March.

Boy Souts and Girl Scouts will march side by side. The Evanston High school ROTC will be there. And representing civilian defense will be emergency police, auxiliary firemen and the motor corps. Evanston fire and policemen will follow in formation.

Lynn A. Williams, Chicago attorney, who first urged adoption of the war chest in greater Chicago, has been elected president of the Evanston Community War Chest.

Thomas K. Desmond, general campaign chairman, stresses that the drive will be streamlined in keeping with war tempo. "We will open the drive on schedule—Oct. 1, keep it going at high speed and reach our objective promptly," he says.

Explains New Slogan.

In explanation of the slogan, "Double Your Gift for Twice the Need," President Williams says, "This is war time. Our people realize they will be called on for sacrifices. Last year the chest raised $150,000. This year is has double duty, and we are asking every contributor to double his last year's subscription."

Every national fund raising organization was allowed the privilege of submitting an appeal. The four national war agepcies approved by the chest war appeals board are the United Service organizations, the YMCA War Prisoners' Aid committee, the YWCA War Emergency fund, and the American Social Hygiene association. British, Chinese, Dutch, Greek, Polish, and Russian war relief funds make up the remaining nonlocal agencies.

The coöperating agencies in Evanston are the Evanston Defense council, the Visiting Nurses association, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Community hospital, Council of Social Agencies, Day Nursery, Evanston-Northwestern Community clubs, Family Welfare association, Illinois Children's home, Salvation Army, Arden Shore association, and the YWCA.

Schools, churches, clubs, fraternal organizations, merchants, and civilian defense workers all have pledged their help.

Navy Wives at Great Lakes Help Maintain the Home Front for Sailors of All Ranks

Home from school! Children of the officers and enlisted men on the station are transported to and from school in neighboring suburbs by an official navy bus. Descending from the bus is little Dona Gumz, daughter of Lieut. and Mrs. Donald Gumz. She and her mother are living with Commander and Mrs. L. W. Gumz, her grandparents, while her father is a bomber pilot on Pacific sea duty. Freddie Heslar, son of Commander and Mrs. O. F. Heslar, and Charles Lash Frey, grandson of Capt. and Mrs. F. H. Lash, are already out of the bus.

Mrs. E. A. Lofquist (center), whose husband is Capt. Lofquist, chief of staff, and Mrs. F. H Schnell, wife of Commander Schnell, district communications officer, leave Mrs. W. P. Rodman's home with their supply of wool replenished. Mrs. Rodman's husband, Commander Rodman, is first lieutenant of the station, while she is in charge of distributing wool to all the women who want to knit for navy relief.

Members of the clothes committee for navy relief meet in Mrs. Cook's home in Downes acres. The women are (left to right) Mrs. Cook, chairman; Mrs. Mills, wife of Lieut. Comm. Roy D. Mills, senior member of summary court martial; Mrs. Waters, wife of Lieut. Comm. Charles Waters, a service schools officer; Mrs. Browning, whose husband is Lieut. Comm. Lee Browning, assistant to the executive officer; Mrs. T. DeWitt Carr, wife of Capt. Carr, executive officer of the station; Mrs. Schnell, and Mrs. Simmons, wife of Lieut. Comm. Simmons, ship's service officer.

Mrs. Henry L. Dollard, wife of Capt. Dollard, senior officer of the medical corps, is working with Mrs. Downes to organize all station women in a disaster emergency group. While details of the organization are still nebulous, Mrs. Dollard suggests that the most important work women could do in case of disaster would be assisting in caring for the injured.

Front entrance and rear view of the Cook house in Downes acres. All of these officers' quarters are built of tan brick with rich, deep brown trim. Featuring an abundance of windows, the duplex homes overlook great trees and heavy underbrush and seem far removed from station bustle. Each has a terrace and an upstairs porch. The houses are joined in a long row which curves with the contours of the ravine.

Wives Playing Offstage Role in Navy at War

BY ANN FORD.

Whaleboat drills, sweating gun crews, trim white barracks, khaki clad officers—that is the Great Lakes Naval Training station as Chicago knows it. But behind all this is a little known aspect of station life—the rôle of navy wives whose officer husbands train bluejackets for the nation's expanding navy.

Notables Arrive for Lunch.

As the largest naval training center in the world, Great Lakes daily is a mecca for dozens of distinguished visitors. Many come to consult with Commander Cook in his capacity of athletic officer. Combine this with traditional station hospitality and you will see Mrs. Cook, almost any day, hastily assembling a tasty guest luncheon or dinner out of her cupboards on 10 minutes' notice.

Once a week all summer long dinner has been set in the Cooks' dining room for the manager and owner of the visiting big league baseball team. A few weeks ago Connie Mack stopped by. And, of course, there are the other regular navy visitors. But this is all in a day for a navy wife, and Mrs. Cook seems to thrive on it. Like most of the women of the station, she is unable to find household help. The practice of "lending maids" in cases of emergency helps solve this problem, and if Mrs. Cook is really pressed, she can "borrow" from one of her friends.

Meal Time Is Uncertain.

Coupled with the problem of unexpected guests is the impossibility of determining in advance when officer husband will find time to come home for lunch. It may be 11 o'clock in the morning, and it may not be till 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Meanwhile, lunch must be ready at any moment.

"But we're really not tied to our kitchens all day long," Mrs. Cook remarked, laughing. "We knit for Bundles for Bluejackets and Navy Relief, do Red Cross work, save tin cans

Service Men Get Chance to Show Ability in Art

A regular weekly art class for service men interested in sketching will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock Thursday evenings on the eighth floor of the Chicago Service Men's center, 176 West Washington street. Mrs. Frances Tobias, head of the arts and crafts department of the center, says "Any man may come to these classes. Materials are free, and instruction is available on request. He can feel free to sketch the models we provide or draw whatever he wishes."

NEW TRIER YANKS TO CAST LARGE ABSENTEE VOTE

New Trier township's men and women in their nation's military and naval service will cast a large absentee vote in the Nov. 3 election, judging from the response to a campaign just completed by the New Trier Republican club. This was announced by Edmund W. Burke, a master in chancery in the Superior court, who is head of the newly organized harmony organization.

The club has sent absentee ballot applications to every person now in the service whose name it could learn, regardless of party affiliations, Burke said. The mail reply the organization has received, from the men and women themselves and from their families, indicates that for the first time in history large numbers of the township's voters in military and naval training camps will exercise their franchise.

"Many of the letters thank us for the reminder that voting by service men and women is now possible," said Arthur F. Siebel, the club secretary. "Appreciation is expressed for the club's prepared letter of application to County Clerk Michael J. Flynn, which the voters need but sign in the presence of an officer and mail in to receive a ballot."

Mathematics Club.

The Women's Mathematics club of Chicago and vicinity will hold its first meeting of the school year at 11:50 o'clock Saturday at the Georgian hotel in Evanston.

LINCOLN SQUARE LEGION WOMEN INDUCT OFFICERS

New officers of the Lincoln Square unit of the American Legion auxiliary were installed last night. They are Mrs. Florence Rowley, president; Mrs. Winifred Nelson, first vice president; Mrs. Eleanor Pearson, second vice president; Mrs. Vivian Murnane, recording secretary; Mrs. Evelyn Gentry, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Barbara Struble, treasurer; Mrs. Helen McKeown, historian; Mrs. Agatha Lund, chaplain; Mrs. Mary Erbach, sergeant at arms; Mrs. Henrietta Gableson and Mrs. Anna Smith, color bearers.

First Aid Class to Open Wednesday in Edgewater

A new class in first aid for women of the Edgewater area will open at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning at the MacDowell School of Music, 5519 Broadway. Mrs. A. B. Vynne, 5768 Ridge avenue, certified Red Cross instructor, will be in charge. Enrollments will be taken up to the opening of the class.

Ravenswood Civic League to Open Season Friday

Mrs. M. H. Lieber of Winnetka will talk on current events at the opening meeting of the Ravenswood Civic league at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in the Wilson YMCA.

YWCA GIRLS' CLUB PARLEYS BEING HELD AT CAMPS

Representatives from the YWCA industrial, business and high school girls clubs are meeting this week-end at three different places for their annual setting-up conferences. The industrial girls conference is being held at Forest Preserve lodge near Glenview under the direction of Miss Ruth Hogan of Evanston, president of the YWCA League of Industrial Girls. The business girls are meeting with Miss Marjorie Boyes, president of the city-wide council of the YWCA business girls at Sunset Service camp near Bartlett and the girl reserves are at Camp Sagaway,

YANKS TO GET BALLOT REQUEST CARDS FROM OFFICIALS AT CAMPS

The home folks don't need to help Johnny Doughboy get his ballot for the Nov. 3 election, officials of the Chicago board of election commissioners said last week. Cards for men in the armed forces to fill out to request ballots are to be made available to them by the armed services at camps and stations. When certified to by a commanding officer these cards are to be mailed to Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes in Springfield, who will forward them to local election officials who will mail the ballots.

A specific provision of the new soldier ballot law is that he is to be permitted to vote even tho not registered. This is especially important in downstate Illinois, where a permanent registration system is just being installed.

There is doubt expressed whether most overseas service men can cast their votes by mail before the polls close. Passage of the new law was delayed by the southern poll tax bloc.

DEWEY CAUTIONS VOTERS TO MAKE SURE OF BALLOT

9th District Deadline Is Oct. 5, He Warns.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Both candidates in the 9th congressional district issued earnest appeals last week to all eligible but unqualified voters to register before the Oct. 5 deadline if they intend to vote in the Nov. 3 election.

Congressman Charles S. Dewey, who was at his desk in Washington, paused long enough in his task of helping to draft a supplementary price control bill to issue this statement:

"May I emphasize to the people of this district the importance of Oct. 5, which is the last day one may register and become qualified to vote on Nov. 3.

Trying Days Ahead.

"I would appeal to every person, regardless of his political faith, not to neglect his cherished right of the ballot box—the symbol of democracy. It is for this right that hundreds of thousands of our boys are daily risking their lives in the armed forces of the United States.

"Our country faces trying and difficult days ahead. Now, as never before, it is important that the people exercise their right of the ballot. They do wisely by placing in public office men of honest purpose, experience and capacity for leadership.

"It is the duty of every American citizen to register. It is the duty of every American citizen to vote. In these anxious days a registration card is a badge of citizenship and patriotism.

"I should like to open my personal campaign by appealing to every citizen in my district to get this badge."

Dewey said he intends to be in Chicago as much as the legislative situation permits. "However," he added, "I must not neglect my legislative duties and responsibilities in order to conduct a campaign for reelection. The times are far too serious."

Rival Sends Letters.

Dewey's rival, Irwin N. Walker, a Democrat, also emphasized the importance of registering to all persons not now registered, or who have changed their addresses or their names, by marriage or otherwise.

Walker, in a letter sent to thousands of residents of the district, called upon his supporters to urge their friends to register if they have not already qualified. He asked that the names be given him so that literature and instructions concerning registration could be mailed out promptly by his campaign organization.

"Stand by our President," has been made a slogan of Walker's campaign. It appears on all his letter heads and other literature he is using in his fight to unseat Dewey.

In his appearances at public gatherings, Walker is telling voters that the best interests of the 9th district can be served by electing a congressman alive to the district's needs who because of party affiliations can command a maximum of administration coöperation.

One of the telling factors in Congressman Dewey's 1940 campaign was a promise to get Chicago its proper share of defense contracts, which would automatically help to relieve unemployment and want among his constituents. In the nearly two years he has been in Washington, Dewey has striven to keep this promise.

Newest reports issuing from the 9th indicated that the November vote will be close, with the odds slightly in favor of the Democrats, who have a well nourished organization. Dewey has supplemented his party's regular organization with an active volunteer group of his own.

Legion Post and Auxiliary to Induct New Officers

Valentine Mertens will be installed commander of Field Apartments post of the American Legion and Mrs. James C. Palmer will be installed president of the auxiliary at joint ceremonies to be held Oct. 23 at Lakeview Recreation hall, Clark street and Belmont avenue.

HALF OF VOTERS IN LAKE COUNTY ARE REGISTERED

Plan Rural Bureaus in Area This Week.

Voters have only nine more days to register for the fall elections, J. B. Morse, Lake county clerk, warned yesterday. Oct. 5 is the last day county residents may register at the clerk's office and Oct. 6 is the last precinct, registration day.

All residents of Illinois now register before they can vote. To date only about 35,000, an estimated half of Lake county's eligible voters, have registered, Morse said.

6,224 Added to Polls.

Only 6,224 registered in the first precinct registration day Sept. 19. Precinct No. 15 in Deerfield township was first with 228 registrations. Precinct No. 2 in Grant township was second with 172 and precinct No. 3 in Waukegan township was third with 139.

Rural registration bureaus will be set up again next Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday to accommodate those living in outlying communities. These rural bureaus have been set up by deputy clerks at designated places on scheduled days at least four different times in each township, Morse said.

Urge Early Registry.

Citizens who have failed to register after Oct. 6 may do so at precinct putting places. They will, however, have to step out of line and wait until the election board will have time to take care of them.

"We are urging all people to register before election day," Morse said, "as it will save a lot of time on that day."

WILMETTE SEEKS $27,650 FUND IN CHEST DRIVE

The Wilmette community chest campaign opened last Wednesday and is expected to continue for two weeks. Six hundred workers and 62 captains have volunteered their services for the $27,650 drive.

Pictorial folders explaining the benefits of the chest are being distributed by Wilmette's Boy and Girl Scouts. T. F. O'Rourke is president of the 1942 drive, the slogan of which is "Keep 'Em Smiling."

Agencies benefitting from the chest are Wilmette Boy and Girl Scouts, Arden Shore association, Infant Welfare society, Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, Wilmette Health center, Wilmette Family Welfare association, and the Salvation Army.

MASONS CONFER 33D DEGREE ON JUDGE E. A. JONAS

Judge Edgar A. Jonas, president of the board of the Illinois Masonic hospital, received word last Wednesday that he had been elevated to the 33d degree in Masonry by the North American conclave, meeting in Boston, Mass. Congratulatory telegrams poured in from all Masonic bodies in the state.

Judge Jonas, who resides at 5510 Sheridan road, has served on the board of the hospital since 1923. During these years he also has been prominent in the Masonic lodge, first as grand chaplain of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Illinois in 1931 and 1932, and then as grand orator of the Grand Lodge of Illinois in 1941. The 33d degree is conferred for outstanding service to the Masonic order.

TEA OPENS CLUB YEAR IN ROGERS PARK ON OCT. 6

Women to Receive New Members, Hear Trio.

Rogers Park Woman's club will open its club year Tuesday, Oct. 6, with a tea in the clubhouse. New members will be received by the president, Mrs. Ford Hicks, at 2 o'clock. A musical program will be presented by the fine arts trio, Herbert Silberstein, Walter Brauer, and Philip Jorgensen. Solos will be sung by Leonard Balsamo, tenor, and Clora Strickland, soprano.

The club will begin nutrition classes Oct. 15 and will continue its Red Cross work and public welfare sewing from 10 to 4 o'clock every Thursday in the clubhouse. Bonds and stamps will be sold at each meeting and the war service department will continue to help support the service men's center on Howard street.

Rogers Park Junior Woman's Club.

Annual rally night will start off the club year for members of the Rogers Park Junior Woman's club Monday, Oct. 5. Entertainment will be a home talent program starring Mrs. William J. Stellman, Mrs. Donald Kempf, Miss Natalie Powers, and Mrs. O. W. Hammond Jr., all club members. Mrs. D. V. Holman is program chairman.

A business meeting will follow the traditional event on Oct. 12. Past presidents will be guests of honor and Ann Birk Kuper, solo actress, will give the program with a recitation, "The Land Is Bright."

On Oct. 21 the junior club members will invite their husbands and friends to a service night party in Sheridan Plaza hotel. Mrs. O. S. Hammond Jr., 7445 Ridge boulevard, is in charge of arrangements which will follow a Monte Carlo theme. Proceeds from the dance will be donated to the service men's center on Howard street.

Woman's Club of Wilmette.

The annual philanthropy card party of the Woman's Club of Wilmette is set for 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the clubhouse, Mrs. Joseph G. Hamming, philanthropic chairman, and Mrs. Edward J. Matot, a party cochairman, have announced.

The party, a dessert bridge, will be the opening event of the club season. Reservations and tickets are in charge of Mrs. Thomas Hardwick. Mrs. Walter Wilson is arranging the dessert; Mrs. Clarence Baustert, prizes, and Mrs. Walter Gore Mitchell, publicity.

Proceeds from the party will be turned over to various charities for which the club sews. Philanthropic chairmen assisting in the party arrangements are Mrs. A. V. Gruhn and Mrs. C. V. Clark, Baptist Old People's home; Mrs. O. E. Thaleg, Arden Shore camp; Mrs. G. B. Knepper, Martha Washington Home for Crippled Children; Mrs. R. M. BAT A THOUSAND IN DEFENSE QUIZ AT CENTRAL 7182

50 Women Have Answer for Perplexed.

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Fifty women dressed in natty blue uniforms with shiny gold buttons answer questions all day long at 219 South La Salle street. They claim they have never been stumped on a question since their office opened in April and since people have been calling Central 7182 for information. They are volunteer members of the growing staff of the Central Information bureau of the Office of Civilian Defense dedicated to answer anybody and anything on questions and problems created by the war.

All day they tell men and women where to get allotment blanks, how to reach a soldier boy in Africa, how to erect a flag pole, how to display the flag, how to get to wear a uniform, and what a Chicagoan can do to win the war.

Some questions are vague, such as "Where can I reach a man in the United States army?"

Some Are Specific.

Some involve a specific answer such as "How many air miles are we in Chicago from Canada, the Atlantic coast, Pacific coast, and the gulf?"

The women make use of the almanac, a complete file of clippings of all Chicago newspapers, and an information file compiled with help from all bureaus of the government, army, navy, city hall, and Office of Civilian Defense.

Each volunteer on the information bureau staff must give two full days in the office. Director of all question answerers is Mrs. G. Corson Ellis and assistant in charge of public relations is Mrs. M. T. Bissell. The office manager is Miss Louise Nathan.

In addition to answering questions the bureau sends out to information people in each community of the metropolitan area a bulletin with all the latest facts and figures on defense training schools, educational events, civilian defense activities and meetings. In charge of this bulletin is Mrs. Dorothy Engert, production manager. Mail information is handled by Mrs. John Wentworth.

Mrs. Barney Lewin is the clipping editor and responsible for the complete clipping file of all news stories pertaining to life under war conditions.

Each Question Filed.

Every question that is asked by the public is saved in a box and when the day is over they are filed according to subject matter. First question asked by the women who call and who come in is "How can I get to wear a uniform?" Fifty per cent of the women who want to wear uniforms prefer blue.

Of this says Mrs. Willner, "Our question file is certainly going to be an eye opener for fashion designers. For eons women have been accused of robbing birds for plumage to please their vanity. Suddenly we discover that women want to dress alike and wear a uniform."

News columns in the daily papers cause a rush of one kind of question or another. The women at the information bureau one day were besieged with offers of blonde hair. The clipping file revealed that a picture had been in the paper showing the kind of long blonde hair needed for markers in making bomb sights. All day long the phone tinkled and an excited voice at the other end of the line would reveal, "I have blonde hair. How can I get it to the army?"

No Bleach or Dye.

Mrs. Willner says, "The army has all the blonde hair it needs. It had all its requirements in a few days after the SOS was sent out."

A great many women were discouraged when the information bureau revealed that the hair had to be 14 inches long, never bleached, never dyed and never permanented. Many blondes were discouraged to find they couldn't qualify and would have to do something else to serve their country.

The questions pour in. "How can I send $1 to San Francisco?" one man asked.

"Just a moment," soothed the question answerer at the information bureau. After a little checking it was revealed that the Kraft Cheese company was trying out its very effective siren.

The betrothal of Miss Mary Brown to Robert Antonacci, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Antonacci, 5805 South Talman avenue, was announced recently by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie A. Greenleaf of Waukegan.

GROWING SCRAP PILE ATTESTS TO COMMANDO AID

Orphan Annie Inspires Salvage Work.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S comic strip, Orphan Annie, was inspiration for 15 young Chicago boys and girls to get into the scrap gathering drive and contribute their share.

Taking their name from Orphan Annie's organization of civilian soldiers, these junior commandos in the 2300 block on Devon avenue have collected more than 1,000 pounds of scrap after school hours the last two weeks. They have gathered 34 automobile tires, 15 bicycle tires, three barrels of scrap rubber, four cardboard boxes of rubber heels, and keys, bird cages, baby carts, bed springs, linen, woolens, seven barrels of tin cans, and anything else they can find.

Can Earn Promotion.

Like Orphan Annie's junior commandos they wear armbands showing their rank, and metal helmets. They meet every night after school for military drill practice and then make their rounds for scrap in the neighborhood.

Rank promotions are given by Andrew Provol, block captain, and they depend upon the amount each has collected and his conduct. Miss Bernice Rothschild, 6309 North Oakley avenue, is salvage warden for the community and she makes routine visits to the various homes to check up on the commandos in their conduct while gathering the scrap.

All the boys and girls who range in age from 7 to 14 years start off as sergeants. Dick Nelson is captain of the commandos. He directs the scrap collecting and the military drives. His next promotion will be to a general. Promotions are in order about every 10 days, depending upon the amount of scrap they have collected.

Each Takes an Oath.

In addition to collecting scrap they assist the block messengers in delivering notices and instructions from the block captain and air raid wardens.

Each commando is sworn into the organization and must take an oath to pick up all glass and other scrap he sees on the streets and not to destroy property. Their motto is "gather in the scrap so the boys can give the Japs and Nazis a good scrap."

Junior Commando

Miss Marjorie Baum, 6341 North Claremont avenue, is one of the youngest of the Junior Commandos who range in age from 7 to 14. She is standing in the center of several of the 49 tires the commandos have collected in the two weeks they have been organized.

NAVY WIVES HELP KEEP THE FAITH AT GREAT LAKES

and fats like all wives. This summer we even had our own war gardens. The squirrels and rabbits attacked en masse, but we won out. I've just finished canning pints o. chili sauce with tomatoes from my own section."

Knitting is her principal effort now. She's hard at work making "pulse warmers"—those open fingered gloves with extra long cuffs which protect sailors' wrists from overheated guns during gunnery practice.

Singing Reveals "Boots."

Her knitting takes on a lively tempo with the sound of sailors singing in chorus, she relates, as they follow the winding path of the ravine down to the pool for lifeboat practice. From the degree of perfection of the harmony, she can tell whether the boys are "boots," new arrivals at the station, or seasoned sailors about ready to shove off. Favorite marching song of the boys is "Anchors Aweigh."

Many wives are working with Red Cross units in the nearby towns of Highland Park, Lake Forest, Deerfield, and Waukegan. Some are enrolled in the motor corps. Others instruct classes in first aid. Two officers' wives are doing stenographic work in the station hospital to help meet the acute shortage of workers.

Formal calling is out for the duration, Mrs. Cook states emphatically. Only semblance of naval social formality left at Great Lakes are the monthly open houses given by Adm. and Mrs. John Downes. And even these are simple, homely affairs. Only tea, coffee, little sandwiches and cakes are on the long, lace covered dining table.

After officers and their wives pay their respects to the host and hostess, they drift about among clusters of guests stopping to chat briefly with friends. A visit during open house is considered a call made and a call returned during these war times, Mrs. Cook explains.

Bridge Parties Curtailed.

Bridge, too, is out for the duration. Occasionally four women get together for an evening's game when their husbands are standing "night watch." At these gatherings navy rarely enters the conversation. All wives have schooled themselves not to discuss the navy, to protect both their country and their husbands. And there is a minimum of talk about "missing" friends.

Now that the children are off for school each morning mothers have more time for war work. Great Lakes buses carry station youngsters back and forth to the public schools in neighboring suburbs. Yearly cost to the parents is $2 per child.

"Ordinarily, we would be entering upon our gayest social season at this time of the year," Mrs. Cook concluded. "But you'll find no officer's wife who feels she's making a sacrifice. Each one of us wants to do as much as she can to help speed victory. And in this we are no different from the millions of wives all over the nation."

SCHOOL TO GREET JOHN E. BAGGETT ON 79TH BIRTHDAY

Lake Forest public school teachers will observe a 30 year tradition when they celebrate the birthday of John E. Baggett Wednesday afternoon in the Gorton school. He will be 79. During his 33 years as superintendent of Lake Forest schools, Mr. Baggett always made a special occasion of the birthdays of his teachers and pupils. He still follows his custom of sending each grade school child a birthday card, which means a total of about a thousand cards a year. No wonder the children and teachers remember his birthday with bouquets of flowers which transform the auditorium where the party is held into a fragrant garden.

Mr. Baggett, now superintendent emeritus, retired in 1936 after establishing a teaching record of 49 years in Lake county. He was principal of the North school in Waukegan for 16 years before becoming superintendent in Lake Forest.

The birthday parties were begun by Mr. Baggett for the teachers years ago, but were soon taken over by them. For many years, until 1939, they also honored the late Rev. Sam W. Chidester, who kept bachelor house with Mr. Baggett.

Scene of the annual reunion will be Gorton school's "John E. Baggett auditorium." Officials of the Lake Forest Teacher's council announce the party will begin promptly at 3 o'clock. Many former teachers are expected to return to wish Mr. Baggett "many happy returns."

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Cadet Parliament.

Cadet Howard E. Parliament Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Parliament, Glencoe, has just entered the Merced Army flying school's advanced course of 10 weeks, final phase of his training in the army air corps before he receives his wings and second lieutenant commission. The young flier is a graduate of New Trier High school and studied at Beloit college in Wisconsin. The school is located in California.

Recent graduates of officer candidate schools include Richard J. Glasebrook, 643 Briar place; Frederick W. Fisher, Evanston; Sidney Horn, 904 Gunnison street, and Russell J. Gooley, 3910 North Bell avenue. All men received commissions.

Edward Mendenhall.

Edward W. Mendenhall, 17 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Mendenhall, 3218 Seminary avenue, kept alive a family military tradition when he enlisted in the navy. His father, a policeman at the Chicago avenue station, was a staff sergeant in the first World war, and his grandfather, Edward H. Mendenhall, was a veteran of the Civil war.

Pvt. Eugene M. Swetin, 1044 Argyle street, has been selected on the basis of aptitude to attend a special course in the signal corps' school in Camp Murphy, Fla.

BOYS IN TROUBLE REFLECT UNREST CAUSED BY WAR

Supervision of Offenders Doubled in Year.

Boys are getting another chance in the Boys' court at 1121 South State street. Before Judge Gibson E. Goran's bench every day they come one after another—white boys—colored boys—some ragged and dejected—others sleek and defiant. It's the court's job to decide which of these deserve a "break."

The best "break" one of the young offenders can get is supervision by the Boys' Court service of the Chicago Church federation, or supervision by other private agencies working closely with the court.

Prevents Black Mark.

Supervision is not probation. It is continuance of a case for three months to a year. If the boy gets into no more trouble, he has no police record of any kind.

Louis de Boer, director of the Boys' Court service, says that approximately 90 per cent of the boys turned over to his agency go straight.

With the outbreak of war, however, the agency began to face a special problem. The number of boys needing supervision increased sharply with each succeeding month. July, 1941, saw 147 of these young men between 17 and 21 years under supervision. In July of this year, the same staff was responsible for almost double that number, or 277 boys.

De Boer attributes the increase to three basic factors. First, he points to the high salaries the boys are earning now as compared with the $15 and $17 jobs they held a year ago. With their wallets bursting with bills, they have not yet learned their responsibility to both their family and the community.

Unrest Promotes Mischief.

Second, he cites the decrease in supervised recreation in the city. A year ago each park was staffed with a large number of instructors and physical directors. This number has been sliced because of the war.

The final and perhaps the most important factor, according to De Boer, lies in the feeling of unrest, change, and instability which inevitably is a by-product of war. "There's a devil may care attitude which permeates even adult thinking," the director explains. This factor is reflected in the boys who are beginning to come into the court on charges of malicious mischief. Many of these boys come from highly privileged homes.

To meet the agency need for more supervisors to talk with the boys, visit their homes and determine the best procedure for rehabilitating them, the Chicago Church federation is approaching individuals and churches to raise funds for additional help.

Drive This Month.

Plans are being formulated for a major drive beginning this month to add to this fund. A steering committee of six is selecting 25 persons to assist.

Working with the steering committee is Charles T. Moon, 606 Provident avenue, Winnetka, acting secretary of the social service department of the church federation. Committee members are Joseph L. Moss, 1939 Orrington avenue, Evanston; the Rev. Walter K. Morley, 65 East Huron street, director of social service for the Chicago diocese of the Episcopal church; the Rev. Victor E. Marriott, Downers Grove, director of religious education of the Chicago Congregational Union; Roy R. Marquardt, 1349 Chestnut street, Wilmette; John W. Fuhrer of George Williams college, and John A. Dawson, 1108 Asbury street, Evanston.

The Catholic Order of Foresters will entertain soldiers from Fort Sheridan and sailors from Great Lakes this afternoon in St. Joseph's auditorium in Waukegan. Thomas R. Heaney, high secretary of the fraternal society, said there will be vaudeville and musical numbers, a quiz contest, and a waltz contest. Thomas H. Cannon, high chief ranger, will preside as master of ceremonies. Refreshments will be served at the end of the festivities by the Women's Catholic committees of Waukegan and Highland Park.

Officials working on arrangements for the entertainment are Phil Carey, director of the Waukegan Catholic USO center; George H. Pfaff, state chief ranger of the society, 4905 Lincoln avenue; Mr. Heaney, and Mr. Cannon. Local entertainers are Miss Nellie Voss, 3745 Lakewood avenue; Edward North, 4710 North Western avenue; Miss Ethel Hull, 6538 Newgard avenue; Ted Wolff, 1947 Grace street, and R. H. Blakesley, 6327 Kenmore avenue.

RE-ELECT CANTOR AND MUSIC HEAD AT ANSHE EMET

Both Will Start Third Year at Synagogue.

Moses J. Silverman.

Hyman N. Kohn, president of Anshe Emet synagogue, Pine Grove avenue at Grace street, announces the election for the third year of Moses J. Silverman as cantor and Max Sinzheimer as musical director of the congregation.

Cantor Silverman, son of the late Cantor Jacob Silverman, is the fourth generation of cantors in his family. He began singing in his father's choir when he was nine years old and at 12 conducted his first service. He served as cantor in Newark, N. J., and in Waterbury, Conn., before coming to Anshe Emet.

The last days of the Sukkoth holiday will be celebrated at Anshe Emet synagogue Saturday and next Sunday. The memorial prayers will be recited during the services of Shemini Azeret. The Simhat Torah celebration will take place at 7:30 o'clock next Sunday evening.

Lake View B'nai B'rith lodge will install its newly elected officers and initiate a class of new members at 8 o'clock this evening in the Covenant club ballroom, 10 North Dearborn street. Rabbi Jerome D. Folkman of Michigan will be the principal speaker. The lodge degree team will initiate its president elect, Dr. Gerson M. Goldstein, and the new vice presidents, Nissen N. Gross, Peter S. Harlib, and Sidney Mintz.

Rabbi Charles E. Shulman will conduct special Succoth services at North Shore Congregation Israel, Glencoe, at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

New officers and members of the board of B'nai Zion sisterhood will be guests at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home of Mrs. Edward P. Steinberg, 7372 North Winchester avenue. Plans for the coming year will be discussed.

New officers of the sisterhood are Mrs. Abraham Finkelstein, president; Mrs. Jack M. Cohen, Mrs. N. I. Blumenthal, and Mrs. A. H. Heyman, vice presidents; Mrs. N. L. Feinstein, recording secretary; Mrs. J. J. Rayman, financial secretary; Mrs. Daniel Dubin, treasurer, and Mrs. Myrtle Rifas, corresponding secretary.

Succoth services will be held in the main synagogue of Congregation B'nai Zion, 1447 Pratt boulevard, Saturday and next Sunday. Assistant Rabbi Jacob E. Segal will speak Saturday on "Our New Dwellers in Booths." On Sunday Dr. A. L. Lassen, rabbi, will speak on "Symbols—Foreigners of Ideas."

WILMETTE BOOK REVIEW SERIES TO OPEN FRIDAY

Pacific War Zone to Be Discussed at Church.

Under auspices of the Women's guild of the Wilmette Congregational church, Mrs. Henry G. Zander of Kenilworth will begin her 7th season of book reviews at 10 o'clock Friday morning in the church building. During this first meeting Mrs. Zander will discuss new books which deal with the Pacific war zone.

Mrs. William James Black is chairman of the committee, and committee members are Mrs. Joseph Sabin, Mrs. A. L. Grinnel, Mrs. W. G. Mitchell, Mrs. Herbert Mulford, Mrs. Bruce Owens, Mrs. C. W. Hess, Mrs. William Toppan, Mrs. John Nash, Mrs. G. S. Roberts, Mrs. Fred Jacky, Mrs. George Moyer, Mrs. William Cheyne, and Mrs. Ralph Potter.

"The God of Christian Faith" will be Dr. Ernest F. Tittle's subject this morning during the 11 o'clock worship service in the First Methodist church of Evanston. Assisting him will be the Rev. Arthur T. Clark. Dr. Emory L. Gallup, minister of music, will accompany the chancel choir on the organ. Monthly baptismal service will be at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

In the evening Dr. and Mrs. Tittle will be hosts to the Fortnightly forum. This is the first meeting of the year for the group of young married people headed by Mr. and Mrs. Clark W. Cell.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service, combining the junior guild, the service guild, and the evening guild, will hold the first of four meetings scheduled for the year on Wednesday. At noon, a communion chapel by Dr. Tittle. Luncheon at 12:45 o'clock will be followed by a brief business meeting, and an address by the minster on "Facing the Unknown." Mrs. Clifford W. Dittmar is president of the society.

Presidents of the three guilds are Miss Eula Nagler, evening guild; Mrs. Foster W. Irish, service guild, and Mrs. G. Clarence Morley, junior guild. Mrs. Lynn O. Waldorf is program chairman, and Mrs. James G. Carr is chairman of the devotions committee.

The Womens' society of the Congregational church of Rogers Park will hold its first all day meeting of the season Thursday. Members will begin the day with welfare sewing under the guidance of Mr. J. H. White, 1640 Farwell avenue. A short business meeting and luncheon will precede a talk by Dr. Clifford Manshardt, director of Bethlehem center, on "From East to West." Dr. Manshardt served as head of Nagada neighborhood house in Bombay, India, from 1925 until his return to this country last year.

'Thar She Blows' Will Be First Nighter Play Tonight

An original comedy titled "Thar She Blows" written by Anthony Wayne will be the starring vehicle for Les Tremayne and Barbara Luddy on the "First Nighter" program from 7 to 7:30 tonight on W-G-N. Musical background for the drama will be supplied by Eric Sagerquist and the First Nighter orchestra. Bret Morrison will be cast as Mr. First Nighter, the host to the theater party.

Miss Claire, T. L. Thomas Operetta Stars.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

In response to appeals from thousands of listeners W-G-N will reopen its Chicago Theater of the Air, presenting operettas beloved by all America. The season will be opened next Saturday, Oct. 3, with Sigmund Romberg's popular "The New Moon" scheduled as the première production.

Miss Marion Claire again will be starred in these musical treats. For the opening show W-G-N has engaged Thomas L. Thomas, noted baritone of the Metropolitan Opera company, to sing the leading male rôle.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will continue his radio talks. The Theater of the Air productions will replace the summer concert series, America Loves a Melody. The operettas will be broadcast from 8 to 9 o'clock every Saturday over the coast to coast facilities of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Emphasis on Melodies.

A full dramatic cast of Chicago's best known actors will portray the story of the operetta. Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N produtcion chief, who will be in charge of the operettas, has announced that more emphasis will be laid on the music than in other seasons. In order to include all of the best songs from each operetta a narrator will be used to tell portions of the story.

The musical background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and the W-G-N chorus, directed by Robert Trendler.

"The New Moon" was selected for the opening show because of its great favor with listeners. It has been presented every year on this series. It contains several of Romberg's most popular melodies—the romantic "Lover Come Back to Me," "One Kiss," "Wanting You," and the stirring "Stout Hearted Men."

Scene Is New Orleans.

"The New Moon" was first produced at the Imperial theater in New York Sept. 19, 1928, with Evelyn Herbert as "Marianne Beaunoir," the rôle to be taken by Miss Claire, and Robert Halliday as "Robert De Misson," the part to be sung by Mr. Thomas. The scene is New Orleans in the year 1793.

Miss Claire has sung all of the leading feminine rôles in the Theater of the Air productions, now going into their fourth year. She has built up one of radio's largest and most loyal listening audiences. Many Marion Claire fan clubs have sprung up across the nation. These groups gather on Saturday night to listen to the operettas.

Miss Claire was starred also in the three prize winning works that resulted from W-G-N's nation-wide quest last season for the Great American Operetta. The grand prize winner was "America Loves a Melody," by Ross Hastings of Los Angeles. W-G-N distributed $10,500 in cash awards in this competition.

The operetta for Saturday, Oct. 10, will be "The Chocolate Soldier"; Oct. 17 will be "Rio Rita"; Oct. 24, "Robin Hood"; Oct. 31, "Naughty Marietta," and Nov. 7, "La Boheme." The leading men singers for the operettas are to be announced.

James Melton Guest on Kostelanetz Hour Today

James Melton, tenor, will be guest singer on the Andre Kostelanetz-Albert Spalding concert at 3:30 p. m. today on WBBM-CBS. Melton will sing Cole Porter's "Night and Day" Silesu's "Love, Here Is My Heart." The orchestra, conducted by Kostelanetz, will present three South American tunes and the "Waltz" from Tschaikowsky's "The Sleeping Beauty."

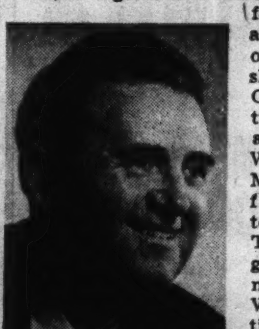
ATTILIO BAGGIORE TO CLEVELAND FOR ANNIVERSARY SHOW



Attilio Baggiore.

Attilio Baggiore W-G-N's operatic tenor, will go to Cleveland tomorrow for a guest appearance on a special show, "WHK Goes Mutual," to be aired over W-G-N and Mutual from 8:30 to 9 p. m. The program will mark WHK's full time entry into Mutual membership and the eighth anniversary of the network which now numbers 207 stations.

Representing other stations on the show will be Joe Gentile and Ralph Binge, comedians of CKLW, Detroit-Windsor, and Elvera Ruppel, soprano of WGR, Buffalo. WMK entertainers will include Marvin Arnold, Lillian Sherman, Dick O'Heren, Sheelah Carter and Willard's orchestra.

Erno Rapee will conduct the Radio City Music Hall of the Air on WCFL-Blue at 11:30 a. m. today. Soprano Selma Kaye will sing "Romance" from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" and with the glee club will be heard in Baron's "Medley of Negro Spirituals." The orchestra will play the first movement from Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony" and "Ave Maria," with Ossy Renardy, violinist, as soloist in the latter number. Other compositions will be the last movement from Tschaikowsky's Fourth Symphony, and Wieniawski's "Scherzo Tarantelle."

'Congress and the War' Topic of Round Table

"Congress and the War" will be the topic to be discussed on the University of Chicago Round Table at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC. Participating in this discussion will be Avery O. Craven, professor of American history at the University of Chicago, Carl J. Friedrich, professor of government at Harvard university, and Samuel Grafton, columnist.

New W-G-N Announcer.

Newest announcer at W-G-N is Frank Sweeney, formerly of WJJD, Chicago. He has served at WJBC, Bloomington, and WOC, Davenport, as well as in Chicago.

Desire Defauw Is Guest Conductor of Symphony

The first of a Sunday series of Summer Symphony programs will be heard at 4 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC. Desire Defauw, Belgian conductor, will direct the orchestra in "La Peri" by Dukas, Ravel's "Introduction and Allegro" for small orchestra and harp, featuring Edward Vito, harpist; Chabrier's "Espana," and "Fetes."

REPORTER FINDS OUT WHERE HE CAN GAMBLE A LITTLE

Sheridan Rd. Spot Must Be Ready to Move.

A letter signed "Businessmen and neighbors" came to THE TRIBUNE the other day.

"For three months a gambling house has been operating at 3939 Sheridan road," it read. "It nets thousands of dollars monthly — wheels, dice, and cards. We have written to authorities, but to no avail . . ."

A Tribune reporter was assigned to investigate.

The show windows at 3939 Sheridan held dusty cigarette displays—traditional equipment of gambling houses and bookie joints—but the doors were locked. Apparently those letters to the "authorities" had closed the place.

What a Bartender Knows.

The reporter wandered into a nearby bar. The bartender was affable; sure, he said, there's a gambling spot at 3939. Closed? "It was running wide open two nights ago," he said.

The reporter hurried back to the deserted spot. Still closed. Over a cup of coffee in a lunch counter next door, he asked the waiter a question or two.

"Here's the man you want to see, right here," the waiter said. "Sitting right next to you."

The man was a pale character in a cream colored gabardine jacket, who didn't look natural without a cigaret hanging from his mouth. He lit a cigaret and stepped back into character. While his sharp eyes cataloged the reporter, he asked a series of questions. Then—

Reporter Is a Bit Early.

"Guess yer o.k., pal," he said. "We gotta be careful. Since certain people have got morals we can't run wide open. Wait around, I'll show you the new joint. You're a bit early."

During the wait the reporter learned that the man's name was "Doc," that after three months of running full blast at 3939, some "crank" had written to authorities: "Two nights ago the dicks come around and tell us we better move for awhile," Doc said.

Doc finally conferred with a group of men who walked south in Sheridan road and then turned the reporter over to a red headed man with an ear phone who took him to the door at 932 West Sheridan, a rug and carpet shop.

Three slender men with hats pulled low stood inside the door. They thoroly frisked the reporter—an unproductive search, and then directed him upstairs.

Use Only Dice Table.

The second floor was a littered, barn like room remarkable only for the long dice table standing along the east wall—a far cry from the luxurious dens of not so long ago.

No poker or roulette?

"Naw," replies a guard, "just craps. One buck minimum. Buy yer chips at the table." It was explained that a dice table is easily moved and has a fast enough play to be profitable even in a hideaway joint. The roulette wheels had been left behind.

About 15 men and two women with from $50 to $300 each stacked in front of them were standing around the table. In front of the cashier was the bank—an 18 inch sheaf of $5, $10, and $20 bills.

More Customers Arrive.

The reporter bet modestly—all bets are made with the house, either for or against the player or a specific roll —but he lost $23 in about 20 minutes. During that time another 15 or 20 customers came in.

A heavy set woman with a lot of rings and a lot of chips bet $50, lost, and didn't change her expression of boredom. A man with glasses, who looked like a small business man, made six straight passes and raked in $320 on his original bet of $5.

Each player took his turn at throwing the cubes. One employé with a hooked stick would retrieve the dice and two others collected or paid off on bets.

The reporter started to leave as the gamblers stripped another table and got it ready for the gathering crowd. As he went down the stairs, he could hear the steady chant of the croupier:

"Six is his point. Getcher bets down! Here he goes. Does he make it? It's an eight—an eight the hard way, four and four. Six'll win. There it comes. It is a six! He wins. Does he seven? There it is. . . ."

Outside, the reporter met Doc still steering the cash customers to the door.

"Lost, eh?" he asked. "Yeah, but ya coulda won, bo. A guy took us for six grand last week at the other spot. But we got it back. We always take ya, sucker. See ya next pay day."

Play Yard Keeps Children Safe

Mrs. J. E. Murphy, 6729 North Artesian avenue, and three of her neighbors converted a vacant lot into a safe play yard for children in the neighborhood. A low fence keeps the children away from the nearby heavily traveled Western avenue. The Chicago Motor club, which sponsored its third annual play yard contest, awarded Mrs. Murphy a prize.

2 NORTH SIDERS WIN PLAY YARD CONTEST PRIZES

Motor Club Gives Pool and Sandbox.

Harvey Johannesen, 964 Vernon avenue, Glencoe, and Mrs. J. E. Murphy, 6729 North Artesian avenue, were north side winners in the 1942 play yard contest sponsored by the Chicago Motor club.

This was the third year for the contest, which started June 1 and ended this month. Chicago and its suburbs are divided into five sections and two winners are selected from each. Mrs. Virginia Gates, 3908 North Kimball avenue, won the grand prize.

She received a 10 stunt gymnasium set to add to the deck chairs, hobby horses, play houses, trapeze outfit, and other equipment which she has installed in her yard at the corner of Kimball avenue and Byron street.

Awarded Portable Pool.

Johannesen's prize was a portable pool to add to the equipment in his back yard which is just half a block from the heavy traffic of Green Bay road.

Ten or 12 neighborhood children, in addition to the two Johannesen children, use the five hole miniature golf course, the basketball backstop, croquet set, sandbox, the large tent and pup tent, the climbing rope, outdoor fireplace where marshmallow roasts are held and other outdoor equipment.

Indoor arrangements for rainy days have been made in the garage, where plays are given, in the playhouse built under the back porch and in the basement of the Johannesen home. An electric train layout, ping-pong table, children's desks, doll house, a phonograph and blackboard are available for the youngsters in the basement.

Sandbox Is Prize.

Mrs. Murphy received a sandbox for the vacant lot which she and three of her neighbors converted into a play yard on Artesian avenue, just one short block from dangerous Western avenue. The four neighbors divided the expense and labor in constructing the necessary equipment and starting a lawn in the lot.

Since the children using this yard are young, it is fenced in and provides safety from traffic hazards while the youngsters play with shovels, pails, and other toys.

Part of Safety Program.

The annual contest is part of the motor club's program to keep children off the streets. It stresses ingenuity and resourcefulness rather than purchase of extensive equipment, Charles M. Hayes, club president, explained.

"A homemade sandbox, a few old toys, and a set of packing boxes can form the basis of a yard so popular that all the children in the neighborhood will want to play in it," he says.

"The city has an excellent record for reduction of child fatalities in traffic accidents, but we want still more improvement. Many of the present accidents involving children are due to street playing. If the children have places to play they will keep out of the streets," he said.

Block Sets Up Permanent Headquarters in Garage

Block 6 of Community 13 has set up permanent headquarters for its semimonthly meetings in the garage in the rear of 1327 Hollywood avenue, F. A. Smith, block captain, announced this week. A special meeting will be held at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the new quarters. Latest reports indicate that the block's junior corps workers are loading the salvage depot at the rear of 5633 Glenwood avenue with all varieties of scrap.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Sept. 28.

Tender plants should be placed under the protection of cold frame or removed to the house to avoid injury from early frost. If an increased number of bedding plants is desired, stock plants should be lifted and potted, or cuttings made from firm, sturdy wood of the plants in the beds.

Cuttings of geraniums can be made of the firmest wood [or of the stems] which means that when bent the stems will snap, not bend, which indicates they are soft and not the best for cuttings. It will not injure them after cutting to let them remain exposed for a day and then placed in sandy soil.

Tuesday, Sept. 29.

The perennial borders can be remade now, and fall is a fine season to make changes that are required. Perennials delight in a deep, well enriched soil, well drained. The whole border may be replanted, but to do so that plants must all be lifted, placed to one side, or heeled in, and then soil spaded. All débris must be removed.

Wednesday, Sept. 30.

Tulips should be planted in early October. The bulbs make a fall root growth. American grown tulips are as good or better than Holland grown bulbs. A selection of tulips, using the various groups or types from the early varieties to the latest, in combination with plants in the perennial borders, will give a long period of bloom.

Thursday, Oct. 1.

If interested in hardy chrysanthemums, visit displays in local nurseries to become familiar with the best varieties. Mark those wanted and order for spring delivery because these plants should be planted in spring rather than in fall.

If they must be fall planted, be sure to give them protection after the ground freezes, or place them in a cold frame until spring. Protect the plants, for few there are that are dependably hardy. They should be divided and replanted each spring whether hardy or not.

Friday, Oct. 2.

Lift or dig all roots and bulbs that require winter protection before frost cuts them down, such as gladiola, tuberose, tuberous-rooted begonia, caladium, and canna. Plant lily bulbs as soon as they are received. Place sand under each bulb at time of planting.

Saturday, Oct. 3.

Divide and replant peonies. Do not plant too deep or they will not flower well. Lift and pot a few annuals, such as marigolds, calendulas, dwarf asters, flowering tobacco, etc., for flowering indoors. See that the yard is cleaned up for winter. Remove all accessories indoors.

Mulch lily-of-the-valley with old manure, but not too deep, to increase the vigor of the plants. The same may be done to the Spurge of Pacysandra plants. All ground cover plants are greatly benefited with a much. Mix sand with old manure or humus before spreading.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park Conservatory.

Post Kollege Klub.

56 GET PERMITS TO PURCHASE NEW TIRES OR TUBES

34 to Utilize Rubber on Passenger Cars.

Thirty-four north siders were granted permits to buy 29 passenger car tires and 44 tubes during the week ending Sept. 19. During the same period, 22 north side individuals and firms received rationing certificates permitting the purchase of 68 truck tires and 52 truck tubes.

Largest number of tires and tubes granted on the north side during the week went to four municipal branches; the water pipe extension department obtaining 7 tires and 7 tubes, the municipal court bailiff's office, 6 tires and 6 tubes, the police department, 4 tires and 1 tube, and bureau of streets, 9 tires.

North side residents and firms issued permits are:

MAID OF AMERICA SHOW BACK TO W-G-N TUESDAY

"Maid of America," a program dedicated to the American way of life, will return to W-G-N for its second season at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

The heroic work of Mary Ann Ball Bickerdyke, Civil war nurse, will be dramatized on Tuesday's show. A native of Galesburg, Ill., Mary Bickerdyke was responsible for the formation of the first nurses corps in the northern army during the Civil war.

Bob Trendler and the W-G-N orchestra will provide music and choral background. Russ Brown will be guest singer on the initial program. Brown will sing "Daybreak" and "Smiles."

The orchestra will present "This Is the Army, Mr. Jones," from Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army." As a salute to the Music Maid, Heather Tweed, mistress of ceremonies, the orchestra will play "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody." A George Gershwin medley will be included.

The program will be aired from W-G-N's main studio. It will be produced by Lou Jackobson. Scripts will be written by Jack Payne and the announcer will be Jack Brickhouse. The program will be open to the public.

To Naval Hospital

Miss Alice Marie Rothermel, formerly head nurse in surgery in Michael Reese hospital, has accepted an appointment in the naval hospital in Brooklyn, N. Y. Miss Rothermel is a graduate of St. Paul hospital in Dallas, Tex. Her mother, Mrs. Della Rothermel, 1816 North Clark street, has been connected for many years with A. G. Spalding and Brothers.

WAYS SUGGESTED TO STOP WASTE OF FUEL IN HOME

Few Simple Steps Can Trim Heating Bills.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

[We'll be glad to send leaflet with names of some helpful products for fuel saving this winter, as well as hints for preventing fuel waste. Please send stamped, addressed envelope with your request for leaflet to this department.]

As insurance against fuel waste this winter, there are many steps a home owner can take. Here are some:

First of all the heating plant should be checked over by an expert, cleaned and repaired, if necessary, so that it will function at maximum efficiency.

All pipes and ducts and boiler will help give you a warmer house for less money if they are insulated.

If there are leaks in any boiler or smoke pipe joints furnace cement may be the answer. If there are leaks inside a boiler there are stop-leak compounds which can be applied internally. There also are boiler-cleaning compounds to eliminate grease, dust, soot, etc.

Thermostat Is Help.

Other heating plant aids include a thermostat, placed in a proper location, clean filters in warm air furnaces [the new fiber glass filters are inexpensive and fireproof], and provision for some sort of auxilliary humidity if the heating system does not provide same. Be sure the heating plant isn't trying to heat all out of doors, as well as the rooms inside of the house.

Ceiling insulation will save a good deal of heat. Roof insulation will sometimes save as high as 30 per cent.

Weatherstripping, storm sash and storm doors also are big fuel savers. [Both weatherstripping and storm sash will pay for themselves in time, and it will not take a long time to do it, either.]

Door seals on bedroom doors will make it easier for your basement boiler or furnace to heat the house nicely and quickly in the early morning. Special door seals for outside doors also are a big help.

Use of Plastic Caulking.

If you would keep cold air from entering your house around door and window cracks, you can use plastic caulking compounds which come in different colors or which can be painted. The work is usually done with a caulking gun, and oakum can be used to pack any large openings before caulking them.

It should not be forgotten that closed Venetian blinds have a certain insulating effectiveness and the same is true of two window shades at each window.

If you are certain your house is a fuel waster you may be interested in recent estimates of possible savings thru insulation, and that, if a house is fully insulated, side walls, roof, windows, etc., you can cut your fuel bills some 50 per cent or more!

ASHCRAFT SEEKS SHARP TEETH FOR LAWS ON ASSAULT

Would Separate Brawls, Racket Sluggings.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Sharper teeth for the state laws dealing with assault are being prepared by Rep. Alan E. Ashcraft Jr., one of the two Republican nominees for the Illinois house of representatives in the 6th district, which includes Evanston and Rogers Park.

Ashcraft is teamed with Stanley C. Armstrong, veteran lawyer, to repeat the G. O. P. feat of 1940 in taking two house seats. For the several terms preceding, two out of three were held by the present Democratic nominees, Rep. Charles H. Weber and George H. Smith.

"It is high time that common sense be applied to the statutes penalizing assault," Rep. Ashcraft said in discussing the bills he is drawing with the legislative reference bureau at Springfield.

New Classes of Assault.

"Illinois laws on this subject do not distinguish between a brawl and a deliberate, vicious assault intended to punish or intimidate the victim. For the latter, no suitable punishment is provided to protect the community against such repeated attacks as that of Henry P. Karstens, the gunman who shot two guards before they killed him in his attempt to hold up the Continental bank in June."

Now the maximum penalty for assault and battery is a $100 fine. Assault with a deadly weapon carries possible penalties of one year in jail and $1,000 fine. Assault with intent to commit murder, rape, mayhem, robbery, larceny, or other felony, may be punished by imprisonment for as long as 14 years. Intent is difficult to prove, however.

Ashcraft's revision would stipulate that the small penalties in the first category—$3 to $100 fine—apply only to assault, or assault and battery, WITHOUT PREMEDITATED DESIGN TO INJURE ANOTHER. This would cover barroom scuffles and other impromptu fisticuffs of amateur standing.

Aimed at Trained Sluggers.

In his second category would be found such offenses as those of trained sluggers who use only their hamlike fists to pound victims into submission to demands that they buy or hire from a certain source, for example. This would provide from 1 to 14 years' imprisonment for assailants "with premeditated design to injure another."

The third class would boost the possible penalty to life imprisonment if the assailant were "armed with a dangerous weapon or if he has any confederate present so armed, to aid or abet him." This language is the same as is used now in the robbery statute.

Among offenses covered by this wording would be that where a racketeer beats his victim with his fists, while standing by is an accomplice with gun in hand to be used if the victim appears to be getting the better of it.

Also punishable with life imprisonment would be the gunmen who fire upon policemen, but because of accident do not kill them.

Cites Karstens Case.

Besides these changes, Ashcraft would amend the habitual criminal act to cover assault, with or without premeditation. Thus life imprisonment would be possible for repeaters such as Karstens.

In 1920 Karstens was convicted of robbery, but escaped from a reformatory in less than a year. A few months later he shot two policemen in Chicago and spent the next eight years behind bars. Soon after that he had another gun fight with police, during which he shot two bystanders. For that offense he served 10 years, being released in April, 1941. He was killed last June in his attempted holdup of the loop bank, but not until after he shot two guards.

"Under common sense laws Karstens would have been confined for life, but as it was he received punishment close to the maximum without preventing the inevitable successive crimes he committed," Ashcraft said. "Because his shooting victims recovered, he was subject to only 14 years' imprisonment."

In his first term, Ashcraft showed himself a persuasive, hard working newcomer by the bills he introduced and successfully guided thru the legislative processes. He is a member of one of the oldest law firms in Chicago, and in April was elected Evanston township Republican committeeman.

Armstrong Veteran Lawyer.

Armstrong's tall, Lincolnesque figure is being seen often these days as he stumps thru Evanston and the wards making up the 6th district—43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 49, and 50. A pleasant man with wavy gray hair, he has been a lawyer for more than 30 of his 54 years.

During his public life Armstrong has been an attorney in the offices of the city attorney, attorney general, sanitary district attorney, and corporation counsel. He has twice been honored as a candidate for the bench.

Armstrong and Ashcraft are having cards printed that will advertise them as the team which Gov. Green needs in Springfield if he is to retain a practical majority in the legislature.

Weber Seeks 9th Term.

On the Democratic side, Rep. Charles H. Weber is seeking his ninth term. In the AEF of World War I, he fought overseas as a captain, and he held this rank in the Illinois National Guard. Besides his legislative duties, which he performs with gusto, Weber has his political duties as 45th ward committeeman.

Weber also lists several business activities in describing himself in the Illinois Blue Book: Vice president of National Air Lines; vice president of National Amusements, Inc.; secretary and treasurer of Mark Time Parking Meter Corporation of Illinois; his own real estate business at 2924 Southport avenue, and ownership of a gasoline and oil station.

Smith usually runs well outside of Weber's ward, where he has been "murdered" several times, as the playful phrase has it. A moderate, he is a brother of Clayton F. Smith, president of the Cook county board, and is superintendent of construction for the county forest preserve district.

Smith is president of the 50th Ward Democratic organization.

Has Triple Role

Producer, director, and commentator are the three roles Miss Nancy Colver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Colver, 2225 Winnemac avenue, will play in the Amundsen High school's annual style show Thursday, Oct. 8. Sponsored by the Amundsen High school PTA, the show will be given in the school auditorium.

DRAFT TAKES 7 FIRE FIGHTERS; JOBS UNFILLED

Waukegan Fire Chief Thomas McNamara will meet with the city's mayor, Frank Wallin, this week to work out a plan for replacing men the armed forces steadily are claiming from his department of 25. McNamara reports seven of his men will have gone into the army, navy or marines by Thursday. He adds that only one of these has been replaced so far, and with the force already down to 19—six short—two more are in class 1-A and certain to be called soon.

"And we have only two men on the civil service eligible list," he continues. "The civil service law calls for men between 21 and 30. If we get such men they, too, will go one by one. The civil service commission has allowed me 60 day appointees, and they've offered to change the rules so that older men may serve."

But the chief says it's a hard job to break in men over 45 to fight fires. "So I'm sure I don't know what we're going to do," he concludes. "Maybe the mayor will have a solution."

Local Man Gets BRIGHT Idea!
BEANS

A famous Virginian once said, "When you call me that, smile!" So Mr. Thaddeus B., who lives on the other side of the tracks in Winnetka, had an artist friend of his design two grinning masks. Now, as he sits across from Mrs. B. and eats his Monday nite six-course meal, slapped together from assorted cans, he can tell her just what he thinks about it! Mrs. B., fresh from a session massaging dirty linens and heave-hoeing a hot, heavy iron, can likewise tell him where to head in! Both as mad as baited bulls with vinegar dripping from their once-honeyed lips, there they sit grinning at each other.

A very, very bright idea, Mr. B., but heed these proverbs: "He only truly lives who lives in peace" and "He that strikes with the tongue must ward with his head!" It's only a question of time and circumstances before the stage will be set for a sweet, knock-down, drag-out battle. You can't go on being two-faced! Sooner or later in the heat of verbal battle, one or the other will tear away the mask—and ZOWIE! Before this—

CZECHS HOLD GREAT RALLY TODAY

50 Women Answer Daily Questions.

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Fifty women dressed in natty blue uniforms with shiny gold buttons answer questions all day long at 219 South La Salle street. They claim they have never been stumped on a question since their office opened in April and since people have been calling Central 7182 for information. They are volunteer members of the growing staff of the Central Information bureau of the Office of Civilian Defense dedicated to answer anybody and anything on questions and problems created by the war.

All day they tell men and women where to get allotment blanks, how to reach a soldier boy in Africa, how to erect a flag pole, how to display the flag, how to get to wear a uniform, and what a Chicagoan can do to win the war.

Some questions are vague, such as "Where can I reach a man in the United States army?"

Some Are Specific.

Some involve a specific answer such as "How many air miles are we in Chicago from Canada, the Atlantic coast, Pacific coast, and the gulf?"

The women make use of the almanac, a complete file of clippings of all Chicago newspapers, and an information file compiled with help from all bureaus of the government, army, navy, city hall, and Office of Civilian Defense.

Each volunteer on the information bureau staff must give two full days in the office. Director of all question answerers is Mrs. G. Corson Ellis and assistant in charge of public relations is Mrs. M. T. Bissell. The office manager is Miss Louise Nathan.

Issues News Bulletin.

In addition to answering questions the bureau sends out to information people in each community of the metropolitan area a bulletin with all the latest facts and figures on defense training schools, educational events, civilian defense activities and meetings. In charge of this bulletin is Mrs. Dorothy Engert, production manager. Mail information is handled by Mrs. John Wentworth.

Mrs. Barney Lewin is the clipping editor and responsible for the complete clipping file of all news stories pertaining to life under war conditions.

Each Question Filed.

Every question that is asked by the public is saved in a box and when the day is over they are filed according to subject matter. First question asked by the women who call and who come in is "How can I get to wear a uniform?" Fifty per cent of the women who want to wear uniforms prefer blue.

Of this says Mrs. Willner, "Our question file is certainly going to be an eye opener for fashion designers. For eons women have been accused of robbing birds for plumage to please their vanity. Suddenly we discover that women want to dress alike and wear a uniform."

Most common question from the men is "How can I take a course training me for defense work?"

News columns in the daily papers cause a rush of one kind of question or another. The women at the information bureau one day were besieged with offers of blonde hair. The clipping file revealed that a picture had been in the paper showing the kind of long blonde hair needed for markers in making bomb sights. All day long the phone tinkled and an excited voice at the other end of the line would reveal, "I have blonde hair. How can I get it to the army?"

No Bleach or Dye.

Mrs. Willner says, "The army has all the blonde hair it needs. It had all its requirements in a few days after the SOS was sent out."

A great many women were discouraged when the information bureau revealed that the hair had to be 14 inches long, never bleached, never dyed and never permanented. Many blondes were discouraged to find they couldn't qualify and would have to do something else to serve their country.

The questions pour in. "How can I send $1 to San Francisco?" one man asked.

"Just a moment," soothed the question answerer at the information bureau. After a little checking it was revealed that the Kraft Cheese company was trying out its very effective siren.

Eager to Help.

In general the women at the information bureau have discovered that Chicagoans are panicky about probable black-outs, air raids, and sirens. They all want to help do something. Many women call the information bureau and want to help in the war effort.

Hundreds of questions pour in about nursery schools. Women with small children at home want some place to leave them so they can go

Suburban Protestant Guild to Present Style Show Wednesday

Miss Shirley Brown, 1509 Franklin avenue, River Forest, left, and Miss Bobbee Jackman, 727 Thatcher avenue, River Forest, will be among the attractive young women modeling at the fall fashion show to be given at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Morrison hotel, by the Suburban Protestant Guild of Oak Park and River Forest. Miss Brown's frock has a snug fitted, black faille bodice and a full black velveteen skirt. With it she wears a wide brimmed black hat. The short sleeves of Miss Jackman's simple Alice blue crepe dress are banded with embroidery and navy blue crepe.

The military influence is reflected in the fashions of today, and Mrs. Herbert N. McEwen Jr., 809 Washington boulevard, Oak Park, shows how. Her navy blue wool crepe is trimmed in double breasted effect with military type gold buttons. Another contemporary note is the Red Cross button Mrs. McEwen wears at her collar. She is a nurse's aid at Cook county hospital.

The contrast of velvet and crepe, popular in fall dresses, is shown in the frock modeled by Mrs. Jack O. Anderson, 1113 Holly court, Oak Park. With it she wears a simple strand of pearls and a wide brimmed black hat. Mrs. Anderson also is a nurse's aid, serving at Presbyterian hospital.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Sergt. J. Montana.

Twenty men from the west side were selected last week for aviation cadet training in the navy air force. Among the future flyers was William Clark, Jr., 619 Prospect avenue, Elmhurst. A graduate of York Community High school, where he played football and basketball, Clark was elected to the all-conference track team. He completed his education at the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Edward J. Brezina, 2235 Huron street; Robert Eder, 1713 Newcastle avenue; Robert Cole, 417 South boulevard, Oak Park; Horace Van Drew, Oak Park YMCA; Edmund J. Maddock, 1036 South Euclid avenue, Oak Park; Douglas Mikolas, 138 South Elmwood drive; Robert Holmgren, 2725 Clarence avenue, Berwyn; Albert Krump, 3810 Euclid avenue, Berwyn; Leonard Sorensen, 541 Berkley avenue, Elmhurst; Walter Walsh, 660 South Main street, Naperville, and Roy Melcher Skog, 3713 Madison street, Brookfield.

Robert M. McGraw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. McGraw, 4337 Adams street, has been sent to Foster field, Victoria, Tex., to attend the fighter pilot training school there. Eugene H. Karner, 336 Elgin avenue, Forest Park, is in the same class.

Recently reporting at the army air forces navigation school at Hondo, Tex., were several men from the west side, including Cadet Peter A. Gregorio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gregorio, 3134 Lexington street; Cadet Joel E. Grizzell, son of Dr. C. E. Grizzell, 220 South Western avenue; Cadet Frank J. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Moore, 1347 North Monitor avenue; Cadet Frank B. Machala, son of Mrs. Marie Machala, 1516 South 57th court, Cicero, and Cadet Leslie R. Coker, son of Mrs. E. M. Shaw, 554 Lathrop avenue, River Forest.

BOYS CLUB BAND HONORS ALUMNI NOW IN SERVICE

When the Chicago Boys' club band met last week, it held a ceremony honoring the former band members in the armed forces. An honor roll plaque was hung listing the names of the 21 men in service.

Corp. Norman Ritter.

Corp. Clifford Ritter.

First from the band to join the service were two brothers, Corp. Norman and Corp. Clifford Ritter, 2520 South Drake avenue.

Others now in the armed forces include George Olisar, Robert Olisar, Joseph Bejcek, Alvin Silha, George Sumka, George Mrtl, Joseph Novotny, Ralph Novitsky, Harold Giese, William Albrecht, Frank Milczeny, Robert Dvorak, Frank Novak, Elmer Kadera, Oreste Michi, James Koss, Joseph Schlehofer, George Kolodziej, Albin Citak.

It is planned to send a band news bulletin to these fighters periodically, to keep them in touch with the affairs of the band members. Both members and parents are invited to submit items of interest for inclusion in the bulletin.

YANKS TO GET BALLOT REQUEST CARDS FROM OFFICIALS AT CAMPS

The home folks don't need to help Johnny Doughboy get his ballot for the Nov. 3 election, officials of the Chicago board of election commissioners said last week. Cards for men in the armed forces to fill out to request ballots are to be made available to them by the armed services at camps and stations. When certified to by a commanding officer these cards are to be mailed to Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes in Springfield, who will forward them to local election officials who will mail the ballots.

A specific provision of the new soldier ballot law is that he is to be permitted to vote even tho not registered. This is especially important in downstate Illinois, where a permanent registration system is just being installed.

There is doubt expressed whether most overseas service men can cast their votes by mail before the polls close. Passage of the new law was delayed by the southern poll tax bloc.

TWO DAY TRAIL RIDE TO START NEXT SATURDAY

The second annual two day "go as you please" trail ride of the Town and Country Equestrian association will start at 9 o'clock next Saturday morning from the Oakbrook polo field at 26th street and York road north of Hinsdale, it was announced by John Maher, chairman. Approximately 100 riders are expected to take part. Entries will close early this week, Maher said.

The horseback riders will follow the Du Page county forest preserve trails and wide, soft road shoulders for 24 miles to Exposition park in Aurora, where a cowboy style party will be held after a charcoal cooked dinner at the race track club house. The riders will return Sunday over a shorter route.

Noonday stops each day will be made at Herrick lake at Weisbrook and Butterfield roads southwest of Wheaton. Here luncheon will be served outdoors to the riders and their friends and the horses will be watered and fed.

There will also be intermediate refreshment and watering stops each day. All important highway crossings will be guarded by forest preserve and state highway policemen.

Gene Fletcher of Naperville is cochairman. Other members of the committee are Miss Grace Merrill of North Aurora, Julian Tilton of Hinsdale, William D. Bradley of Chicago, and Walter Youngberg of Elmhurst.

SUBURBAN GUILD GIVING BENEFIT FASHION SHOW

The annual benefit party of the Suburban Protestant Guild of Oak Park and River Forest, this year a luncheon, fashion show, and program, will be held at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Morrison hotel. A group of 25 members and friends of the guild will serve as mannequins.

After the fashion show, Ann Birk Kuper will give dramatic readings of three patriotic plays, under the general title of "This Precious Freedom." The reception committee includes Mrs. L. H. Stratton, Mrs. Clarence Bridgen, Mrs. Clarence Benson, Mrs. John Higgins, Mrs. Charles H. Jackman, and John S. Redden.

Mannequins for the show will include Mrs. John Reed Adams, Mrs. Fred A. Allen, Mrs. Ira G. Barber, Mrs. William F. Brown, Mrs. James Cochran, Mrs. Ewart T. Evans, Mrs. E. J. Graham, Mrs. Lee Hackley Jr., Mrs. Virgil W. Kimball Jr., Mrs. J. K. Lund, Mrs. Herbert N. McEwen Jr., Mrs. J. G. Moe, Mrs. Lester A. Pickett, Mrs. James W. Schweizer, Mrs. W. P. Smith, Mrs. Clair R. Strain, Mrs. Norval P. Trimborn, Mrs. K. S. Van Epps, Mrs. Jack O. Anderson, Mrs. Miles Vranick, Mrs. Everett Walters, Miss Shirley Brown, Miss Peggy Close, Miss Marion Lee Schreiner, Miss Marjorie Tice, Miss Bobbee Jackman, and Miss Sarah Jane Brink.

POST OFFICE LEGION NAMES B. E. LONGHEAD COMMANDER FOR YEAR

B. E. Longhead recently was installed commander of Van Buren post of the American Legion. Van Buren, the United States postoffice post, is the second largest in Cook county with a membership of more than 900.

Garfield Park Methodist church, Walnut street and Kedzie avenue, is planning an old fashioned song service at the church at 8 o'clock next Sunday evening.

HONOR PATRON SAINT AT BIG CICERO FESTIVAL

Church Services to Be First Event.

Today, one day before the feast day of St. Wenceslaus, Catholics of Czech origin in the Chicago area will unite in a religious and civic celebration honoring their patron saint. It will be known as Czech Catholic day.

At 11 o'clock this morning, solemn high mass will be sung by Bishop W. D. O'Brien at St. Ludmilla's church which is dedicated to the grandmother of St. Wenceslaus. The church, of which the Rev. Francis J. Tony is pastor, is located at 24th street and Albany avenue.

The Rev. Dr. Ernest Zizka, O. S. B., is in charge of the program for the civic celebration to be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Cicero stadium, 19th street and 52d avenue, Cicero.

The celebration is sponsored by the Chicago District Alliance of Czech Catholics composed of the Czech courts of the Catholic Order of Foresters and the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters, First Central union, Czech Catholic union, and other Czech Catholic organizations. The Chicago alliance is a member of the National Alliance Czech Catholics.

Promotes Czech Welfare.

The object of the alliance is to promote the welfare of the Czech [Bohemian] people and to coördinate all existing Czech Catholic organizations and individuals of Czech birth or descent of the Roman Catholic faith, so that their united action may be more effective in matters of civic, social, charitable, and educational activities thruout the United States.

Parishes coöperating in the religious celebration this morning are Our Lady of Holy Mount, 24th street and 61st avenue, Cicero, the Rev. Albert J. Dedera, pastor; Blessed Agnes of Bohemia, 27th street and Central Park avenue, Msgr. Innocent Kestl, pastor; Our Lady of Good Counsel, 916 North Western avenue, the Rev. Martin A. Krizka, pastor; St. John Nepomucene, 30th street and Lowe avenue, the Rev. Francis W. Jedlicka, pastor; St. Procopius, 18th and Allport streets, the Rev. Joseph Chvatal, O. S. B., pastor.

Our Lady of Lourdes, 15th street and Keeler avenue, the Rev. Alois Mergl, pastor; Sts. Cyril and Methodius, 50th street and Hermitage avenue, Msgr. Thomas J. Bobal, pastor; St. Mary Celle, 16th street and Euclid avenue, Berwyn, the Rev. Robert Mastny, pastor; St. Vitus, 18th place and Paulina street, the Rev. Bartholomew Kvitek, O. S. B., pastor, and St. Wenceslaus, 632 West De Koven street, the Rev. Thomas M. Sampolinski, pastor.

Story of Wenceslaus.

Wenceslaus was the son of a Christian duke of Bohemia, but his mother was a pagan. Thru the care of his holy grandmother, Ludmilla, herself a martyr, Wenceslaus was educated in her faith. On the death of his father, his mother, Drahomira, usurped the government and passed a series of persecuting laws. In the interests of the faith, Wenceslaus claimed and obtained, thru the support of the people, a large portion of the country as his own kingdom. His mother secured the apostasy and alliance of her second son, Boleslav, who became henceforth her ally against the Christians.

Wenceslaus, meanwhile, ruled as a brave and pious king and provided for the needs of his people. With his own hands he planted wheat and grapes for the holy mass, at which he never failed daily to assist. His piety was the occasion of his death. After a banquet at his brother's palace, to which he had been treacherously invited, he went to pray before the tabernacle. There, at midnight, on the Feast of the Angels, he received the crown of martyrdom, his brother dealing him the death blow. His fame was known in all of the civilized world of his day, the 10th century.

Program Has Patriotic Note.

The program for the civic celebration this afternoon will open with the pledge of allegiance to the flag and patriotic songs. Invocation will be by the Rt. Rev. Procopius Neuzil, O. S. B. Joseph F. Novak, chairman of the Czech Catholic day committee, will give the address of welcome.

The Czech address of welcome will be made by Joseph Frolik, president of the Chicago District Alliance of Czech Catholics. Guests will be introduced by the Rev. Dr. Ernest Zizka, O. S. B., chairman of the program committee.

Czech national dances will be presented by boys and girls of the parochial schools under direction of Mrs. Marie Prusa. Prof. Stephen A. Erst, organist at St. Ignatius church, will direct the combined choirs of the Czech Catholic churches of Chicagoland. The accompanist will be Mrs. Victoria Voller, organist at Mary Queen of Heaven church.

There will be a Czech address by Prof. Jaroslav Zurhal, and an address by the Rev. Edward V. Dailey, M. A., editor of The New World.

Czech Regiment to Get Banner.

A feature of the program will be the presentation of the regimental banner, a gift of Czech Americans, to the 2d regiment of the Czecho-Slovak army. The gift will be accepted by the military attaché of the Czecho-

DEMOCRATS SEEK ALL 3 SEATS IN ASSEMBLY RACE

But G. O. P. in 27th Hopes Win with Rep. Dukes.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Republicans of the 27th senatorial district last week were in fighting mood as they watched Democrats preparing to sweep away all three state representative seats in the Nov. 3 election. The G. O. P. has been kicked around before in this territory, but this is the first time such injurious insult was offered.

Illinois' cumulative voting system for its house of representatives is unique among the states. Designed to give the minority party in any district a voice in government, it provides that a voter may "plump" three votes for a single house candidate or divide them between two or three candidates.

"Shut Out" Rarely Happens.

The result is that it is next to impossible to score a "shut out" for house seats when the two parties battle it out. The attempt is seldom made and is rarely successful. The 27th district [parts of wards 26, 27, 32, and 33] is the only one where the stunt is being tried this year. Two years ago the Republicans tried it in the 14th [Aurora-Elgin] district and failed.

"Cumulative voting," says the Illinois Guide prepared by the Federal Writers project, "was incorporated in the constitution as a result of the intense partisan spirit that prevailed in post-Civil war years.

"At that time delegations from southern Illinois were wholly Democratic, those from northern Illinois solidly Republican Cumulative voting was adopted to provide representation for the minority in each section.

Majority Often Helpless.

"It sometimes results, however, in a legislature so evenly balanced that neither party has the working majority required to accomplish its program."

The latter condition is a feature of the present legislature, and it is not to the liking of Gov. Green. But he will be worse off if the slender G. O. P. lead of 79 to 74 melts away even to the extent of three seats. Two south side G. O. P. seats are seriously threatened.

Rep. Eugene P. Dukes is now the lone Republican house member in the 27th district. In his first term he improved upon the record of the former allegedly Republican member for this district who was not noted for party loyalty. Dukes is in the florist business with a brother.

Dukes Will Win—Gorny.

"This has been a setup district in past elections but this time we'll put on a fight, and Dukes will go back to Springfield," said Casimir J. Gorny, G. O. P. 32d ward committeeman.

"Sentiment is not so terrible this year, and if there is no double cross, I've got a feeling we'll put it over. Dukes has a wonderful record. He went all the way with Gov. Green on everything."

Democratic house members now are Reps. A. L. Auth and John Kuklinski. "Abe" Auth is a union printer who is completing his seventh term and has won commendation of the Legislative Voters league, nonpartisan organization which said he gave useful service. During the last session Auth introduced bills seeking to protect children from the harmful effects of divorce. He is sponsored by Ward Committeeman John Touhy of the 27th ward.

Rostenkowski Is Power.

The new face in the lineup is that of Anthony C. Prusinski, 1924 Armitage avenue, chief deputy coroner, who also happens to have brothers well located in various district neighborhoods and is regarded as a strong runner.

One hope of the Republicans is that the Democrat trio will get to wondering which will be low man and each one may pass the word along to a wide circle of friends to "plump" for him. If this process gets well started, one may do so good a job that Dukes also will win.

Mondala Up for Full Term.

State Sen. Stanley J. Mondala, elected by the Democrats to fill a death vacancy in 1940, is the nominee to retain his seat. He is a civil engineer for a steel company.

The honor of Republican nomination to the senate was given to John Turchany, 1510 Thomas street. He is not awed by the odds confronting him, and has started his campaign with early printed matter and a balloonlike sign on his automobile.

VIRTUALLY ELECTED

Frederick A. Virkus, president of the Illinois division of the National Small Business Men's association, on Thursday night virtually became a state representative by action of the Republican senatorial committee for this district, which includes most country townships of Cook county.

The committee appointed Virkus to the vacancy on the G. O. P. ticket caused by the withdrawal of Rep. Arthur W. Sprague of La Grange, who during his second term accepted a navy lieutenancy and is now at Quonset Point, R. I. Virkus became the teammate of Rep. Bernice Van der Vries of Winnetka, new chairman of the women's division of the county G. O. P. committee. Rep. Emmett McGrath is the Democratic nominee for the house.

Because there are only three nominees for three house seats in this "setup" district, the Nov. 3 election is regarded as a mere formality for these candidates.

Virkus is 63 years old and has resided in La Grange for 40 years. He is president of the Virkus company, publishers of historic-genealogical reference books. In 1938 he was Republican nominee for congressman at large and in 1936 was 6th district G. O. P. candidate for congress.

Miss Marguerite E. Schuler, new dean at Frances Shimer college, Mount Carroll, will be one of the youngest members on the college staff for the coming year. Miss Schuler's home is in Oak Park.

The new dean completed her undergraduate college work at the University of Wisconsin, with a major in psychology, and completed M. A. requirements at Columbia university in 1938. She has been on the staff of the University High school at the University of Chicago, as English teacher and critic.

Miss Sybil Huntington Bower is the new teacher of speech and drama at Frances Shimer. Only 25 years old, she is the youngest member of the college staff. Miss Bower is a graduate of Wells college and Northwestern university. She received her M. A. from the university this summer. During the last few years she has played many rôles in productions at Northwestern.

OIL CITY MACHINE TO PUT O'BRIEN INTO CONGRESS

G.O.P. Hopes Improve in 6th District Race.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

The 6th congressional district continued last week to furnish the chief interest in the congressional election campaigns in the western Chicago area. Things were comparatively quiet in the 4th, 5th, 7th, 8th, and 11th districts, which also include parts of the western area.

In the 6th district camp of Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien, former congressman who is the Democratic nominee for the seat from which Congressman A. F. Maciejewski is retiring to run for sanitary district trustee, activities were confined almost wholly to the strengthening of weak spot have developed in the city hall machine that has delivered the district uninterruptedly since 1926.

Politicians Get Defense Jobs.

These weaknesses are a direct result of the war program. In many localities political organizations of the Democrats have been seriously disrupted by the desertion of ward and precinct workers who used to labor hard in election campaigns to retain patronage jobs. Now many of these workers have well paid defense jobs and have withdrawn from active participation in politics.

This situation has strengthened Republican prospects in the district. Thru the lean years the Republicans have depended almost entirely on volunteers for their organization effort, which has always been strong in the western suburbs, but lagged in the Chicago portion of the district.

Leaders report that there has been a noticeable gain in G. O. P. enthusiasm in the city's part of the 6th, which has been fanned by increasing anxiety over the war's conduct, and by fears of householders and workers that their fast growing tax contributions are not being used to maximum advantage in the conflict.

G. O. P. Gets New Workers.

As a consequence, the ranks of the G. O. P. campaign workers are being swelled by new arrivals even while Democratic help is falling away, which will help increase the indicated large G. O. P. gain in November.

Raymond E. Trafelet of Berwyn, the Republican nominee in the 6th, is continuing to hammer away against the confusion and wasteful spending in Washington.

"New Deal followers seek to cure all administration mistakes with the enactment of more laws to add to our overabundance," Trafelet said. "I propose, when I enter congress, to cut thru the existing red tape, confusion and doubt by abolishing the overlapping Washington bureaus and establishing definite purposes for the remaining bureaus.

State's Rights Involved.

"The continued concentration of power by a central government and the reduction of state rights was never intended by the founding fathers of America.

"We have witnessed a continual increase of national powers extending back long before the war. This centralization of control, to achieve victory only, must be maintained for the duration and then ended. We should immediately cleanse away the barnacles now attached to Washington bureaus and agencies."

West Side Groups Unite to Sell $100,000 War Bonds

Garfield Park Business Men's association and the Garfield Park Lions club are joining in an effort to sell $100,000 in war bonds during September. Included in those endeavoring to sell $5,000 bonds apiece are Wallace MacClay, Thomas J. Connery, W. H. Doherty, Dr. Joy H. Everett, A. F. Figatner, Russell Jones, J. D. Madigan, Emmett O'Donnell, George Romaine, A. R. Sansone, Joseph Willens, Fred Duvon, Walter H. Buescher, Francis P. Boland, Harry Simon, Archie Marschak, Harvey W. Johnsen, Ald. Joseph Gillespie, O. Plan Community Worship Service for Oak Park

Dr. Henry Smith Leiper, American secretary of the World Council of Churches, will speak at a community-wide service of worship next Sunday, at the First United Presbyterian church of Oak Park, Oak Park avenue and Jackson boulevard. This will be one of a series of such meeting held under direction of a committee of which Dr. Emory Lucöek, Evanston, is chairman.

Betrothal

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Nathanson, 911 Ainslie street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Irene, to Seymour Wolf, 940 Winona street. Mr. Wolf is employed in The Tribune color studio, and is expected to depart soon for service with the United States navy.

VOTE REGISTRY NOW 60 PER CENT IN FIVE COUNTIES

Clerks Predict Rush on Oct. 6.

A total of 117,292 voters registered, with approximately 74,000 still unqualified to vote—these were the figures for five counties comprising the west suburban area after a compilation of registration statistics following the first general precinct registration.

Clerks in the five counties, Du Page, Kendall, Kane, Wills and De Kalb, reported big turnouts for registration on Sept. 19 and predicted a general rush on the last day, Oct. 6, when precinct polling places again will be open.

46,203 in Du Page.

In Du Page county, Clerk Clarence Wagemann said 39,813 registered up to Sept. 19 and on that date, 6,390 registered, bringing the total to 46,203. Based on figures of the last Presidential election, the balance of unregistered voters then numbered 14,564.

Martin P. Mortensen, clerk of Kendall county reported that up to Sept. 19 his number of properly registered voters was 2,500. On that date, there was a registration of 1,800, bringing the total to 4,300. The balance unregistered was estimated at 1,900.

Kane county registrations up to Sept. 19 were 16,000, according to Clerk Charles Lowry. On that date, 6,500 registered, bringing the total to 22,500, and leaving a balance not to exceed 15,000. During the last week, deputies registered workers at the Elgin watch factory and persons attending the Big Rock plowing match.

9,000 to Go in De Kalb.

Figures from E. W. Joiner, clerk of De Kalb county reveal that 5,300 registered up to Sept. 19, and 6,350 registered on that date, bringing the total to 11,650. The balance of unregistered voters in the county was 9,000.

The Will county clerk's office in Joliet will be open until 9 o'clock each evening, including Saturday, in an attempt to register the still unregistered half of the county's voting population. To date a total of 33,000 of a possible 65,000 or 75,000 voters are registered to vote in the Nov. 3 election.

Of the total number registered, 18,000 registered in the county's precinct polling places on the first general registration day Saturday, Sept. 19. Previous to that 15,200 registered at the clerk's office and the few traveling branches established by the county clerk, Joseph H. Hartley.

BOYS IN TROUBLE REFLECT UNREST CAUSED BY WAR

Supervision of Offenders Doubled in Year.

Boys are getting another chance in the Boys' court at 1121 South State street. Before Judge Gibson E. Goran's bench every day they come one after another—white boys—colored boys—some ragged and dejected—others sleek and defiant. It's the court's job to decide which of these deserve a "break."

The best "break" one of the young offenders can get is supervision by the Boys' Court service of the Chicago Church federation, or supervision by other private agencies working closely with the court.

Prevents Black Mark.

Supervision is not probation. It is continuance of a case for three months to a year. If the boy gets into no more trouble, he has no police record of any kind.

Louis de Boer, director of the Boys' Court service, says that approximately 90 per cent of the boys turned over to his agency go straight.

With the outbreak of war, however, the agency began to face a special problem. The number of boys needing supervision increased sharply with each succeeding month. July, 1941, saw 147 of these young men between 17 and 21 years under supervision. In July of this year, the same staff was responsible for almost double that number, or 277 boys.

De Boer attributes the increase to three basic factors. First, he points to the high salaries the boys are earning now as compared with the $15 and $17 jobs they held a year ago. With their wallets bursting with bills, they have not yet learned their responsibility to both their family and the community.

Unrest Promotes Mischief.

Second, he cites the decrease in supervised recreation in the city. A year ago each park was staffed with a large number of instructors and physical directors. This number has been sliced because of the war.

The final and perhaps the most important factor, according to De Boer, lies in the feeling of unrest, change, and instability which inevitably is a by-product of war. "There's a devil may care attitude which permeates even adult thinking," the director explains. This factor is reflected in the boys who are beginning to come into the court on charges of malicious mischief. Many of these boys come from highly privileged homes.

To meet the agency need for more supervisors to talk with the boys, visit their homes and determine the best procedure for rehabilitating them, the Chicago Church federation is approaching individuals and churches to raise funds for additional help.

Drive This Month.

Plans are being formulated for a major drive beginning this month to add to this fund. A steering committee of six is selecting 25 persons to assist.

Working with the steering committee is Charles T. Moon, 606 Provident avenue, Winnetka, acting secretary of the social service department of the church federation. Committee members are Joseph L. Moss, 1939 Orrington avenue, Evanston; the Rev. Walter K. Morley, 65 East Huron street, director of social service for the Chicago diocese of the Episcopal church; the Rev. Victor E. Marriott, Downers Grove, director of religious education of the Chicago Congregational Union; Roy R. Marquardt, 1349 Chestnut street, Wilmette; John W. Fuhrer of George Williams college, and John A. Dawson, 1108 Asbury street, Evanston.

STAFF SELECTED FOR MANLEY HIGH STUDENT PAPER

The staff of the Manlegram, official student publication of Manley High school, 2935 Polk street, has been selected for the coming semester. Helen Cleven and Erving Lichtenstein are to be editors in chief, Sidney Edelstein and Raymond Tiersky, managing editors, and Sylvia Sagalow and Evalynne Retsky feature editors.

Assisting them on the staff will be Marvin Garfield as boys' sports editor; Anne Kopp as girls' sports editor; Mary Bartosik as literary editor; Bernard Friedman as business manager, and Rochelle Kaplan as student publicity manager.

Columnists for the paper will be Yetta Beron, Lillon Goldstein, Toby Schwartz, Eunice Aptill, Faye Brandzel, Carmella Manders, Sonny Cotell, and Beverly Shaffner. Reports will include Adele Feld, Blossom Blinder, Grace Casa DiBare, Vera Kuchma, Frances Millman, Lawrence Montrose, Shirley Pinchuk, Anthony Rodia, Beverly Sutker, Esther Snitovsky, and Geraldine Weiner.

20 NURSES' AIDS RECEIVE CAPS IN OAK PARK RITES

Assign Volunteers to Hospital Duty.

All those graduating took their 40 hours of classroom work and 45 hours of practical work in the hospital wards at West Suburban hospital. They will now be assigned to hospitals near their own communities, where they will be expected to give 12 hours of volunteer service a week for the duration of the war.

On Call for Emergency Duty.

Nurses' aids also are available for emergency service in OCD casualty stations, base hospitals, first aid posts, and with OCD medical rescue units in event of enemy action or disaster.

A drive to recruit more than 3,000 nurses' aids is underway in the Chicago area, so that the shortage of graduate nurses in hospitals may be relieved.

List of Graduates.

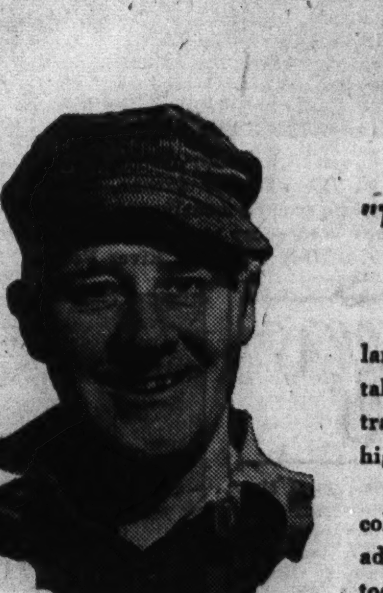
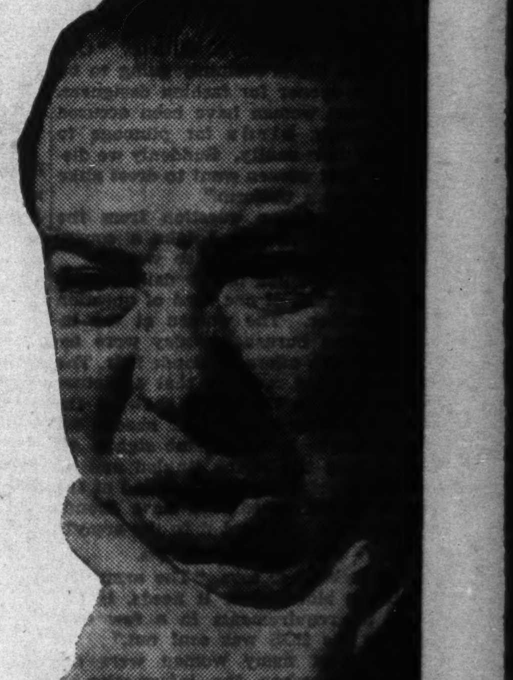
"WHAT WE NEED IS ANOTHER PARTNER"
"Let's look at the Tribune, That's how you and I got together."

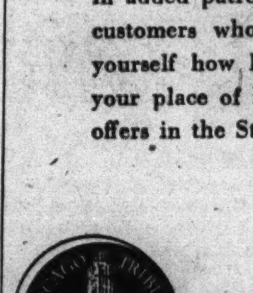
Do you need extra capital or skill to expand your business and take advantage of today's opportunities?
You may find the solution to your problem by consulting the Partnerships and Investments column in the Tribune want ad section. Capable men and women with experience in many lines of endeavor regularly seek partnership connections thru these offers. It will pay you to follow this column because so many successful enterprises are started in just this way. Have you checked today's column? Review it now.



"I'VE HAD TWO RAISES ALREADY"
"That training course I took is paying dividends every week"
How would you like to add 10, 15, 20 dollars or more extra to your pay check? It may take you less time than you think to get the training needed to qualify for one of today's high pay jobs.
Consult the Instruction and Trade Schools columns in the Tribune want ad section. These advertisers can help you get set to cash in on today's increasing opportunities for ambitious men and women with specialized training. Every day you delay may be costing you the chance for a better job, so review these offerings in the want ad section now.



"IF JONES CAN DO IT, I CERTAINLY CAN"
"I'll bet he's doubled his business since he remodeled"
Modern displays, a good looking store front, better lighting and interior arrangement—these improvements have put many a business on the road to greater profits.
If you are losing trade you should be getting, why not look into the possibilities of remodeling now? In the Store and Bar Fixtures column in the Tribune want ad section you will find an attractive selection of remodeling needs to carry out your plan. Counters, refrigerators, floor coverings, display cases—these are just some of the items you will find described and offered at money-saving prices in this helpful column.
Money spent this way has a way of coming back in added patronage and renewed contacts with old customers who have drifted away. Find out for yourself how little it would cost you to remodel your place of business by taking advantage of the offers in the Store and Bar Fixtures column.



Because they get better results, want ad users place more total want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

MILLARD AVENUE CLUB USHERS IN SEASON FRIDAY

Women Plan 2 Sessions at Shedd Park.

After a summer of activity in war work, gardening groups, and committee meetings, the Millard Avenue Woman's club will open its fall and winter series of meetings Friday at Shedd Park community house, 23d street and Lawndale avenue.

There will be a two part morning session, beginning at 10:30 o'clock, under the direction of Mrs. Leroy Johnson, public welfare chairman. Miss Genevieve Teuton will talk on "Public Relations and the Red Cross," and Miss Aneita Tidball will speak on "The Travelers' Aid Society in a War Period."

The main club program will open at 1:30 o'clock with Mrs. Rowland Morrison, newly elected president, in charge of the business meeting. Mrs. Andrew Aegler, American citizenship department chairman, will present the program. Mrs. Alonzo Newton Benn will speak on the history of America in flags. Music will be furnished by the Millard Avenue Women's Club chorus under direction of Mrs. Forrest Rountry.

Officers for the new season are: Mrs. Morrison, president; Mrs. George A. Basta, and Mrs. Henry J. Paulua, vice presidents; Mrs. Elmer Bauer, Mrs. Henry Haase, and Mrs. Edward Kvidera, secretaries; Mrs. Kenneth L. English, treasurer; Mrs. Andrew Aegler, Mrs. Otto Profant, Mrs. Robert Kozelka, Mrs. Richard R. Mladic, Mrs. George Turner, and Mrs. Robert S. Melichar, department chairmen.

Naperville Woman's Club.

The 45th year of its activities will be opened at 1:30 o'clock Wedesday by the Naperville Woman's club, with a dessert luncheon in the parlors of Grace Evangelical church. Gladys Berger Daniels, reader, will present her new program. A two piano ensemble composed of Mrs. Milton Stauffer, Mrs. Paul Eller, Mrs. Silas Richards, and Mrs. Merrill Gates, will play. The committee in charge will include Mrs. H. H. Horman, Mrs. E. M. Sohy, Mrs. R. I. Manning, Mrs. R. A. Biddle, and Mrs. E. M. Stauffer.

The meeting will be presided over by Mrs. Walter Fredenhagen, beginning her second year as president. Other officers for 1942-43 include Mrs. Edward E. Domm, vice president; Mrs. Lester Broeker, recording secretary; Mrs. Melvin Abrahamson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Earl L. Koehler, treasurer; and Mrs. Paul Watson and Mrs. Albert Grove, new department chairmen.

Associates of Warrenville Club.

Following the summer recess, the Associates of the Warrenville Woman's club will reconvene this afternoon for an opening tea from 3 to 5 o'clock in the garden of the Conklin home on Williams road.

Riverside Woman's Club.

The first meeting of the year for the Riverside Woman's club will be held at 2 o'clock Thursday in Riverside Town hall. Mrs. John P. Mack is the president. Speaker will be Capt. Michael Fielding, radio commentator, who will speak on "Uncensored News."

West End Woman's Club.

The West End Woman's club will commence its 50th year with a reception at 1:30 o'clock Friday, at the clubhouse, 37 South Ashland boulevard. There will be a musical program beginning at 2 o'clock.

Berwyn Woman's Club.

Following a custom of several years, the Berwyn Woman's club will entertain the Grandmothers' circle at its opening meeting Friday afternoon. The president, Mrs. George A. Parker, will have charge of the meeting and Mrs. J. R. Morison, chairman of Indian welfare, will present Ataloa, who will talk of her people as "Indians of Today," and illustrate the dance of hope. George Bull, Jr., of Berwyn, will describe his collection of Indian mementos.

Austin Evening Auxiliary.

The auxiliary will meet at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Washington Pine West Apartment hotel, 5511 Washington boulevard. Miss Maurine Daly, CHICAGO TRIBUNE writer, will speak on "Writing Can Happen to Any One." Hugh Ewart, violinist with the North Side Symphony orchestra, and assistant concert master of the Zion Symphony orchestra, will furnish the music.

Mrs. Esther Jorgensen, 1114 North Lorel avenue, is program chairman, with Mrs. Harold V. Dettman, Miss Dorothea Drake, Mrs. J. Marshall Hicks, Mrs. Ernest L. Irish, and Miss Janet McGill as her committee.

B'nai B'rith Bowling.

The Garfield Park B'nai B'rith will start its bowling season today, with 10 teams participating. Harry Meisler is the new president of the group.

'Thar She Blows' Will Be First Nighter Play Tonight

An original comedy titled "Thar She Blows" written by Anthony Wayne will be the starring vehicle for Les Tremayne and Barbara Luddy on the "First Nighter" program from 7 to 7:30 tonight on W-G-N. Musical background for the drama will be supplied by Eric Sagerquist and the First Nighter orchestra. Bret Morrison will be cast as Mr. First Nighter, the host to the theater party.

Miss Claire, T. L. Thomas Operetta Stars.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

In response to appeals from thousands of listeners W-G-N will reopen its Chicago Theater of the Air, presenting operettas beloved by all America. The season will be opened next Saturday, Oct. 3, with Sigmund Romberg's popular "The New Moon" scheduled as the première production.

Miss Marion Claire again will be starred in these musical treats. For the opening show W-G-N has engaged Thomas L. Thomas, noted baritone of the Metropolitan Opera company, to sing the leading male rôle.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will continue his radio talks. The Theater of the Air productions will replace the summer concert series, America Loves a Melody. The operettas will be broadcast from 8 to 9 o'clock every Saturday over the coast to coast facilities of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Emphasis on Melodies.

A full dramatic cast of Chicago's best known actors will portray the story of the operetta. Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N produtcion chief, who will be in charge of the operettas, has announced that more emphasis will be laid on the music than in other seasons. In order to include all of the best songs from each operetta a narrator will be used to tell portions of the story.

The musical background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and the W-G-N chorus, directed by Robert Trendler.

"The New Moon" was selected for the opening show because of its great favor with listeners. It has been presented every year on this series. It contains several of Romberg's most popular melodies—the romantic "Lover Come Back to Me," "One Kiss," "Wanting You," and the stirring "Stout Hearted Men."

Scene Is New Orleans.

"The New Moon" was first produced at the Imperial theater in New York Sept. 19, 1928, with Evelyn Herbert as "Marianne Beaunoir," the rôle to be taken by Miss Claire, and Robert Halliday as "Robert De Misson," the part to be sung by Mr. Thomas. The scene is New Orleans in the year 1793.

Miss Claire has sung all of the leading feminine rôles in the Theater of the Air productions, now going into their fourth year. She has built up one of radio's largest and most loyal listening audiences. Many Marion Claire fan clubs have sprung up across the nation. These groups gather on Saturday night to listen to the operettas.

Miss Claire was starred also in the three prize winning works that resulted from W-G-N's nation-wide quest last season for the Great American Operetta. The grand prize winner was "America Loves a Melody," by Ross Hastings of Los Angeles. W-G-N distributed $10,500 in cash awards in this competition.

The operetta for Saturday, Oct. 10, will be "The Chocolate Soldier"; Oct. 17 will be "Rio Rita"; Oct. 24, "Robin Hood"; Oct. 31, "Naughty Marietta," and Nov. 7, "La Boheme." The leading men singers for the operettas are to be announced.

CEN. 7182 BATS 1.000 IN DEFENSE PROBLEM QUIZ

to work in defense factories. The bureau has a file of nursery schools located in every section of the city.

Now and then a patriot gets discouraged. One man complained, "I want to make a fancy V for Victory on our street corner. I went out and bought black dirt, clam shells, and a flag. Now some one tells me I will not be allowed to go on with this project."

Once in a while a man discovers enemies at home are at him. One called in, "I am a building owner. Where can I report some children who are trying to set fire to my building?"

The bureau was called on to help a woman who asked, "How can I send peanuts to my son in Dutch Harbor?"

The bureau started in April with no furniture. Information was filed on the floor. Today it uses the entire lobby of the La Salle street building, uses old WPA furniture. Demands have made it necessary to keep the office open on Saturdays and the women expect that they will have to stay down evenings to answer the questions. Many people aren't satisfied with a phone call and make appointments to come in to talk their problems over in person.

"Our job," explains Mrs. Willner, "is to answer, suggest, and soothe. It's really very interesting. We meet all kinds of people."

Fibber McGee and Molly to Return Tuesday Night

Fibber McGee and Molly and the other assorted characters of Wistful Vista will be back on the air at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday on NBC after a three month vacation. Returning with Jim and Marian Jordan will be Isabel Randolph as Mrs. Uppington, Gale Gordon as Mayor La Trivia, Bill Thompson as the Old Timer, and Wallace Wimple, Harlow Wilcox as announcer and Billy Mills' orchestra. Don Quinn writes the series.

New W-G-N Announcer.

Newest announcer at W-G-N is Frank Sweeney, formerly of WJJD, Chicago. He has served at WJBC, Bloomington, and WOC, Davenport, as well as in Chicago.

ATTILIO BAGGIORE TO CLEVELAND FOR ANNIVERSARY SHOW

Attilio Baggiore.

Attilio Baggiore W-G-N's operatic tenor, will go to Cleveland tomorrow for a guest appearance on a special show, "WHK Goes Mutual," to be aired over W-G-N and Mutual from 8:30 to 9 p. m. The program will mark WHK's full time entry into Mutual membership and the eighth anniversary of the network which now numbers 207 stations.

Representing other stations on the show will be Joe Gentile and Ralph Binge, comedians of CKLW, Detroit-Windsor, and Elvera Ruppel, soprano of WGR, Buffalo. WMK entertainers will include Marvin Arnold, Lillian Sherman, Dick O'Heren, Sheelah Carter and Willard's orchestra.

MAID OF AMERICA SHOW BACK TO W-G-N TUESDAY

Salute Heroic Figures on Program.

"Maid of America," a program dedicated to the American way of life, will return to W-G-N for its second season at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Highlighting the program this year will be dramatic sketches of little known facts in the lines of great men and women in American history. Guest stars of stage, screen and radio will participate in the program each week.

The heroic work of Mary Ann Ball Bickerdyke, Civil war nurse, will be dramatized on Tuesday's show. A native of Galesburg, Ill., Mary Bickerdyke was responsible for the formation of the first nurses corps in the northern army during the Civil war. Bob Trendler and the W-G-N orchestra will provide music and choral background. Russ Brown will be guest singer on the initial program. Brown will sing "Daybreak" and "Smiles."

The orchestra will present "This Is the Army, Mr. Jones," from Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army." As a salute to the Music Maid, Heather Tweed, mistress of ceremonies, the orchestra will play "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody." A George Gershwin medley will be included.

The program will be aired from W-G-N's main studio. It will be produced by Lou Jackobson. Scripts will be written by Jack Payne and the announcer will be Jack Brickhouse. The program will be open to the public.

Desire Defauw Is Guest Conductor of Symphony

The first of a Sunday series of Summer Symphony programs will be heard at 4 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC. Desire Defauw, Belgian conductor, will direct the orchestra in "La Peri" by Dukas, Ravel's "Introduction and Allegro" for small orchestra and harp, featuring Edward Vito, harpist; Chabrier's "Espana," and "Fetes."

Les Spears Enlists.

Les Spears, well known Chicago actor, who has appeared on many W-G-N programs, has enlisted in the army and been assigned to the 108th general hospital unit.

YARD PRIZE GOES TO GRANDMOTHER OF 10 IN MAYWOOD

Equipment Helps Keep Children Safe.

Sand box, teeter-totter, swings, and hobby horses all may have a part in making Mrs. A. F. Vlach of Maywood one of the winners in the 1942 play yard contest sponsored by the Chicago Motor club. Yet an intangible element of atmosphere too must have had something to do with her success.

Mrs. Albert F. Vlach.

Ten of Mrs. Vlach's grandchildren enjoyed the play place in the rear of the Vlach home, 17 North 8th avenue, along with boys and girls of the neighborhood. They were the children of children who began playing in the yard soon after the Vlach family rented the house 27 years ago. Now that summer is over, the echo of youthful voices is to be heard only after school hours. Grandmother Vlach, 50, thinks now she prefers commotion in the backyard to the autumn stillness.

Wins Portable Pool.

And so Mrs. Vlach was glad to receive as a prize from the Motor club a portable pool that will be added to the equipment next year. Last year her award of $10 went toward picnic tables that were placed under the poplar tree.

Awards for her endeavors as an amateur supervisor of recreation are new to Mrs. Vlach. The playground in her back yard that frequently overflows into the house is an institution she has long accepted as a part of complete living. As a matter of fact, she has never done any supervising.

Starting early in the morning, the children themselves have decided on the games and have followed their individual bent until nightfall. So it has been thru the decades, with the neighbors, whose own children are patrons of the informal center, apparently giving full approval to the program.

Her Ten Grandchildren.

As for the nucleus of 10 grand children, there are Theresa, 6; Frankie, 4, and Sandra Lee, 2, children of a son, Harold Vlach, who resides upstairs in the house on 8th avenue. Roy, 15, Betty Lou, 12, and Philip, 3, are the children of a daughter, Mrs. Hannah Doll, and Dahna May, 2, is the daughter of a daughter, Mrs. Mildred Dubs. The Doll and Dubs families reside in the same block as Mrs. Vlach.

Then there are Michael, 10; Albert, 8, and Charles, not quite 2, sons of a daughter, Mrs. Marie Porcellino, 4311 Maypole avenue. As soon as school is out in the spring, the Porcellinos go to spend the summer with grandma. Mrs. Vlach also raised two stepchildren, and from time to time their children enjoy the play place.

Betty Lou Doll is the dramatic coach for the group. She makes up the plays. On rainy days, "hide and seek" provides a popular pastime in the house. Baseball is said to be the only game on the grounds that ever causes any arguments, and these are settled simply by turning to some other sport.

Sand Thrower Repents.

Only once in the history of the Vlach playground is a neighbor said to have been told to go and "play in his own back yard." That was when he threw sand. He came back repentant the next day.

In one corner of the grass trampled back yard is a chicken coop where the denizens do double duty as a zoo. From sun-up to sundown, during the summer weeks, an American flag floats from the fence corner. Harold Vlach made the sand box and the frame for the awning above it. Mr. Dubs built the open air fireplace.

All in all, the Vlach playground, just one-half block from the heavy traffic of Lake street, has suited itself to the Chicago Motor club's campaign to provide safe playgrounds and prevent accidents.

Pool with Shower.

Another west side winner in the contest was Joseph J. Dobes Jr. 6621 Pershing avenue, Berwyn, who was given a sand box for his yard which faces Pershing road in the suburb. The leading attraction in his yard is a large portable swimming pool, 8 by 10 feet. It has a slide at one side and a shower in one corner.

The Dobes' son and eight or ten neighborhood children play in the pool and use the archery set, swing and trapeze, croquet set, teeter-totter, chairs, benches, and the space set aside for softball games. All of the equipment is home made.

"The city and suburbs have an excellent record for reduction of child fatalities in traffic accidents," according to Charles M. Hayes, president of the Motor club, "but we want still more improvement. Many of the present accidents involving children are due to street playing. If the children have places to play, they will keep out of the streets."

Willow Springs Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. William Rose celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sept. 19 with a reception at their home in Willow Springs. Among the 25 guests were their three children, Mrs. Lillian Levan, Mrs. Evelyn Rooney, and Harry Rose; their grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. The anniversary was Thursday.

134 West Siders Get Permits to Purchase 518 Tires or Tubes

The Chicago Surface Lines and Superior Milk Products company, 2502 West Superior street, received top allotments of tires and tubes on the west side for the week ending Sept. 19, rationing office figures show. The Surface Lines were allowed 12 truck tires and 18 tubes and the milk company 14 tires and tubes each.

In all, 134 persons and companies were given permits to purchase 518 tires and tubes. Of these, 298 were for trucks, 161 tires and 137 tubes, and 194 were for passenger cars, 77 tires and 117 tubes.

3,500 WORKERS READY TO START OAK PARK DRIVE

Goal of $108,866 Is Set in Charity Campaign.

The 3,500 residents of Oak Park and River Forest who have worked year after year for the Community Chest will meet at the high school at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow evening to get their orders for this year's campaign.

The goal has been fixed at $108,866, slightly lower than last year, since the Chest's governors called upon the 10 local agencies which it supports to pare their budgets.

2,000 Fewer Contributors.

There are probably 2,000 fewer contributors in the twin villages this year. These are the young men and women serving with the armed forces. However, Charles Ward Seabury, chairman of the Chest's board of governors, expresses confidence that the villages' record of always pledging more than the goal again will prevail.

Mr. Seabury will preside at tomorrow's "kickoff" of the residence division, which will call on more than 20,000 homes. George E. Barnes, campaign chairman, will issue the orders of the day to the workers, and will introduce Arthur M. Houser Jr., chairman of the residence division, and Area Commanders E. J. Faltysek, C. C. Reichert, Charles Allen Grier, C. A. Steele, W. Leonard Read, and Robert Gardner.

3 Divisions Already on Job.

Three divisions already have their drives underway. Division A is under the chairmanship of Herbert A. Knight, the business division is under leadership of Franklin A. Gilmore, the employés section is under Lester R. Walker, the classified section is under C. Axel Christenson, the special gifts section is headed by Ellis A. Denney, and the schools and clubs division is led by Mrs. Allin K. Ingalls. Larry Aplin is chairman of the solicitation of firms by geographical areas.

WESTERN SPRINGS

Thru a series of preliminary meetings, Western Springs Community Chest, Inc., has arranged its budget for 1943 and prepared for a drive that will start in the middle of October. Usually, the village completes its fund raising campaign in three days. The goal this year is $7,400 as compared to $8,000 a year ago.

The budget adopted at a citizens' meeting is detailed as follows: Family welfare, $2,600; community health, $1,000; Boy Scouts, $1,500; local boys activities, $150; Girl Scouts, $1,100; operating and emergency, $1,050.

Red Cross Has Own Drive.

As the Red Cross will conduct its own drive this year, $400 was thus eliminated from previous budgets. The Girl Scout item was increased $100. The family welfare was decreased $100, and community health was decreased $200. While the number of welfare cases are fewer than a year ago, the higher cost of living has been an offsetting factor. The chest contributes $950 toward the salary of the community nurses employed by the Chicago Tuberculosis institute.

List of Officers.

Officers of the community chest are George LeMonnier, president; Rex Hieronymus, Mrs. Malcolm Little, John Rowe, Mrs. Albert March, Paul McKown, Mrs. James Davis, Thomas Mellors, Arthur Lomas, and H. E. Collom, secretary. Miss Bernice Loughlin, community nurse, sits in at board meetings.

Members of the advisory council who will appoint a campaign manager and a colonel who will in turn select majors, captains, and workers for the drive are John Laidlaw, Werner Griese, Allan Dewey, Hugh Moore, D. W. Elliott, Harold Warner, Mrs. J. B. Elliott, Mrs. Milton Guy, Mrs. E. C. Patterson, and Mrs. Harry Raymond.

MISSION FIESTA TO BE STAGED ON WEST SIDE TODAY

The atmosphere of Mexico will prevail at 1206 Newberry avenue this afternoon and evening, when the Friends of St. Francis present their fifth annual fiesta. The affair will benefit the Claritian Missionary Fathers in charge of St. Francis Mission church, and the free parochial school taught by the Franciscan nuns.

Dinner will be served from 4:30 until 8 o'clock. There will be Mexican and American dishes served, under supervision of Miss Anita Warnesson.

Miss Irene Holden is general chairman of the fiesta, Miss Victoria Warnesson has charge of the reception committee, and others on the committee will include Mrs. Winfield H. Wendell, Miss Mary Kelly, Miss Margaret Finch, Miss Mary Weibler, Mrs. Margaret Cummings, Mrs. Florence McLean, and Mrs. Rosemarie Stille.

CZECH CATHOLIC FETE TO HONOR ST. WENCESLAUS

Slovak government, Washington, D. C.

Supper will be served in the Blue room of the Cicero stadium. There will be dancing during the evening.

Executive officers of Czech Catholic day are Joseph F. Novak, chairman; Mrs. Marie L. Kral, vice chairman; Miss Ann Charvat, secretary, and John Stava, treasurer.

Members of other committees are the Rev. William Plachetka, religious; the Rev. Dr. Ernest J. Zizka, O. S. B., program; Mrs. Victoria Voller, choirs; Mrs. Marie Prusa, children's dances; John J. Kucera, finance; Joseph C. Kolar, publicity; Joseph F. Kral, stadium; Erwin Bicek, booths; Miss Helen Placek, patrons; Jerry Holecek, refreshments; Mrs. Bessie Hipsman, confections; Miss Florence Jana, dance and ushers; Joseph Hamer, supplies, and Mrs. Josephine Cadek, waitresses.

Home Mechanics Class.

"Home mechanics for men and women" is the course being offered at Austin evening school, 231 North Pine avenue. Both beginning and advanced classes will be taught this year.

Coincidence Still Reigns

Identical twins, leading almost identical lives, are Maurice and Dave Pollyea, who, residing in widely separated sections of the city, were appointed block captains almost simultaneously.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Sept. 28.

Tender plants should be placed under the protection of cold frame or removed to the house to avoid injury from early frost. If an increased number of bedding plants is desired, stock plants should be lifted and potted, or cuttings made from firm, sturdy wood of the plants in the beds.

Cuttings of geraniums can be made of the firmest wood [or of the stems] which means that when bent the stems will snap, not bend, which indicates they are soft and not the best for cuttings. It will not injure them after cutting to let them remain exposed for a day and then placed in sandy soil.

Tuesday, Sept. 29.

The perennial borders can be remade now, and fall is a fine season to make changes that are required. Perennials delight in a deep, well enriched soil, well drained. The whole border may be replanted, but to do so that plants must all be lifted, placed to one side, or heeled in, and then soil spaded. All débris must be removed.

Incorporate a good spread of decayed manure in the soil. In lieu of manure, an application of commercial fertilizer will tone up the soil and enable the reset plants to get a good root growth before freezing weather.

It is not wise to use too many kinds, but rather to select the choice kinds and repeat them at intervals. To prolong the period bloom in the border, study catalog lists. The newly made perennial garden, as with all fall planted stock, should be mulched after the ground freezes.

Wednesday, Sept. 30.

Tulips should be planted in early October. The bulbs make a fall root growth. American grown tulips are as good or better than Holland grown bulbs. A selection of tulips, using the various groups or types from the early varieties to the latest, in combination with plants in the perennial borders, will give a long period of bloom.

Thursday, Oct. 1.

If interested in hardy chrysanthemums, visit displays in local nurseries to become familiar with the best varieties. Mark those wanted and order for spring delivery because these plants should be planted in spring rather than in fall.

If they must be fall planted, be sure to give them protection after the ground freezes, or place them in a cold frame until spring. Protect the plants, for few there are that are dependably hardy. They should be divided and replanted each spring whether hardy or not.

Friday, Oct. 2.

Lift or dig all roots and bulbs that require winter protection before frost cuts them down, such as gladiola, tuberose, tuberous-rooted begonia, caladium, and canna. Plant lily bulbs as soon as they are received. Place sand under each bulb at time of planting.

Store dahlia tubers upside down in a dry cellar. If kept near the furnace, place the tubers in boxes of sand or peat moss with a moist covering of newspaper.

Saturday, Oct. 3.

Divide and replant peonies. Do not plant too deep or they will not flower well. Lift and pot a few annuals, such as marigolds, calendulas, dwarf asters, flowering tobacco, etc., for flowering indoors. See that the yard is cleaned up for winter. Remove all accessories indoors.

Mulch lily-of-the-valley with old manure, but not too deep, to increase the vigor of the plants. The same may be done to the Spurge of Pacysandra plants. All ground cover plants are greatly benefited with a much. Mix sand with old manure or humus before spreading.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park Conservatory.

POLLYEA TWINS TAKE PARALLEL CAREERS TO OCD

Become BlockCaptains the Same Week.

There is an hour difference in their ages. They were married the same year, now have the same number of children, identical jobs and incomes. Even their mother can't tell them apart. And when civilian defense came along, both were appointed block captains, almost simultaneously.

These twin brothers, the only twin block captains in the city, are Dave M. Pollyea, 4015 15th street, and Maurice Pollyea, 5511 Ingleside avenue. Their appointment within the same week was coincidental—neither community commander realized the other twin had been named.

The Pollyea twins were born in Kiev, Russia, April 23, 1900, the sons of Rabbi and Mrs. Mandel F. Pollyea. In 1906 the family came to the United States, and a home was established on the south side. There were five other children beside the twins—three sisters and two brothers.

Work at Packing Plants.

When they were boys, Maurice worked for Swift and company, and Dave for Armour. They both served as scoutmasters at their respective plants. Their wedding days were only a month apart, and each now has two children. Maurice has one married daughter, Ruth, 19, and a daughter, June, 13. Dve's eldest is Gertrude, 16, and he has a son, Robert, 11.

The brothers now work for the same company, as salesmen, and are known as the "Case-Moody Twins," even to having that embroidered on the back of their work shirts. The cashiers at the plant have difficulty in telling which is which, and the brothers now make it a point to speak whenever spoken to—for many times Dave's [or Maurice's] friends hail Maurice [or Dave].

Their careers in civilian defense work have paralleled, just as did their careers in the years before OCD. Their blocks are similar in population, each with a row of business buildings, a few two-flats, and a number of cottages.

Sworn in by Mayor Kelly.

Both men were sworn in as auxiliary police officers for the OCD by Mayor Kelly a few months ago, Dave for the Fillmore station in the 25th ward, under Col. A. L. Brodie, and Maurice for the Hyde Park station in the 6th ward, under Capt. Ed Quinn. Even their dedication of service flags was held at approximately the same time, and with 20 stars in each flag.

The brothers have been co-treasurers in the Zephyr Twin club for a number of years. Dave is a teacher of the Talmud Torah at Palae Zedek congregation, 1333 South Harding avenue. He has also been a deputy sheriff of Cook county for the past eight years.

There is only one point on which the brothers differ. That is politics. Dave serves as Republican precinct committeeman under William Lass, committeeman of the 23d ward, and Maurice is Democratic assistant precinct committeeman under Dave Eichner, committeeman of the 6th ward.

North Lawndale OCD Plans Picnic, Street Dance Today

North Lawndale community OCD will hold a street dance and community picnic on Kolin avenue between Roosevelt road and 13th street from 10 o'clock this morning until midnight. Irving Holtz is block captain, and Mitchell Bernstein, assistant air raid warden, is chairman.

WAYS SUGGESTED TO STOP WASTE OF FUEL IN HOME

Few Simple Repairs Can Reduce Heating Bills.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

[We'll be glad to send leaflet with names of some helpful products for fuel saving this winter, as well as hints for preventing fuel waste. Please send stamped, addressed envelope with your request for leaflet to this department.]

As insurance against fuel waste this winter, there are many steps a home owner can take. Here are some:

First of all the heating plant should be checked over by an expert, cleaned and repaired, if necessary, so that it will function at maximum efficiency.

All pipes and ducts and boiler will help give you a warmer house for less money if they are insulated.

If there are leaks in any boiler or smoke pipe joints furnace cement may be the answer. If there are leaks inside a boiler there are stop-leak compounds which can be applied internally. There also are boiler-cleaning compounds to eliminate grease, dust, soot, etc.

Thermostat Is Help.

Other heating plant aids include a thermostat, placed in a proper location, clean filters in warm air furnaces [the new fiber glass filters are inexpensive and fireproof], and provision for some sort of auxilliary humidity if the heating system does not provide same. Be sure the heating plant isn't trying to heat all out of doors, as well as the rooms inside of the house.

Ceiling insulation will save a good deal of heat. Roof insulation will sometimes save as high as 30 per cent.

Weatherstripping, storm sash and storm doors also are big fuel savers. [Both weatherstripping and storm sash will pay for themselves in time, and it will not take a long time to do it, either.]

Door seals on bedroom doors will make it easier for your basement boiler or furnace to heat the house nicely and quickly in the early morning. Special door seals for outside doors also are a big help.

Use of Plastic Caulking.

If you would keep cold air from entering your house around door and window cracks, you can use plastic caulking compounds which come in different colors or which can be painted. The work is usually done with a caulking gun, and oakum can be used to pack any large openings before caulking them.

It should not be forgotten that closed Venetian blinds have a certain insulating effectiveness and the same is true of two window shades at each window.

If you are certain your house is a fuel waster you may be interested in recent estimates of possible savings thru insulation, and that, if a house is fully insulated, side walls, roof, windows, etc., you can cut your fuel bills some 50 per cent or more!

Type of Coal Important.

If one has a coal burning furnace or boiler fuel can always be saved by buying the correct type of fuel for the particular heating system.

Booster fans will increase the heat from warm air furnaces, and save fuel. The lagging circulation of old hot water systems can likewise be speeded up.

One very simple leak to watch this coming winter is the leak of heat from living rooms and hall, if you don't keep the fireplace damper closed when the fireplace isn't in use.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS TO BE PLACED AT GRAND, AUSTIN

The state highway department has approved the erection of stop and go lights at the dangerous intersection of Grand and Austin avenues. Placing of the lights has been a project of the Chicago Motor club's West Area council. Joseph J. Butler, superintendent of streets, explained that erection of the traffic signals will be delayed temporarily until the city secures a priority rating on the necessary cable. Meanwhile the street department will erect two additional stop signs, and will make the intersection a four way stop.

Future Lawmaker?

This is Thomas Henry Reed, son of Congressman and Mrs. Chauncey W. Reed, 241 East Washington street, West Chicago. The picture was taken a few hours after he was born Sept. 13. The Reeds have two other children, Barbara Ann, 9, and James William Reed, 4. Congressman Reed, a Republican, represents the 11th Illinois district of Kane, McHenry, Du Page, and Will counties.

NAVY PIER BAND TO HELP DU PAGE HONOR ITS YANKS

Marine Squad Also at Glen Ellyn Today.

The Navy Pier band of 40 pieces and a drill team composed of a squad of United States marines stationed at Navy pier are announced as added attractions at the Du Page War Service day program today at Glen Ellyn.

The celebration will be held under auspices of the Du Page County Republican Central committee and will honor 4,000 Du Page men now serving in the nation's armed forces. Probate Clerk Bernard M. Long of Downers Grove is general chairman. Proceeds of the day will be turned over to the USO.

Honor Soldier Dead.

The Du Page County American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars will present a special memorial service honoring those from the county who already have made the supreme sacrifice in the present war. Gov. Dwight Green is scheduled to speak.

A big turnout is expected at the celebration to be held at the northeast corner of Roosevelt road and Park boulevard, Glen Ellyn.

Plan Model Plane Contest.

As an inspiration to youth, a model airplane contest will be staged thruout the day under direction of Loren Thompson. The Du Page Mounted troop will be present under supervision of Sheriff Elmer Hoffman, chairman of the grounds committee.

All war bond and stamp organizations in the county have been invited to set up booths for sales to the public. They will be assisted in the sales by speakers from the army and navy. A musical program will be presented during the afternoon by the USO center in Chicago.

NEW THOMISTIC GROUP TO HOLD FIRST MEETING

The eighth unit of the Thomistic association is being organized in Chicago, with the approval of Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch and under the personal supervision of the Rev. Timothy M. Sparks, O. P., S. T. L., Ph. D.

The initial meeting of the group will be held next Sunday, Oct. 4, at the Convent of the Helpers of the Holy Souls, 1300 South St. Louis avenue. Mass for the group will be celebrated at 9 o'clock, and will be followed by breakfast and a lecture.

The Thomistic association is an organization designed to further the study of the teachings of St. Thomas Aquinas and their application to modern problems.

Prof. C. W. G. Eifrig Retires from Post at Concordia

Prof. C. W. G. Eifrig, 1029 Monroe street, Oak Park, who has been teaching at Concordia Teachers' college for the last 33 years, has resigned and is retiring from active work. Mr. and Mrs. Eifrig expect to take up residence in Florida next month.

REPORT REVOLT IN LABOR VOTE OF 8TH DISTRICT

Workers Are Losing Faith in New Deal.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Growing revolt against city hall Democrats in particular and administration policies in general portends big Republican gains in the 8th congressional district in the Nov. 3 election, leaders reported last week.

The 8th, which borders on the west bank of the Chicago river from Roosevelt road northward to Fullerton avenue, one of the smallest congressional districts in the state, is made up principally of labor elements. The Democratic congressman, Leo Kocialkowski, has been replaced on the city hall slate by City Treasurer Thomas S. Gordon. The Republican nominee is Mrs. Rena E. Pikiel, who was the nominee in 1938.

Report G. O. P. Gains.

Leaders in the Pikiel camp declare that their ranks have been joined in recent weeks by many voters who were Democrats, but who have lost faith in administration's assurances, and who have announced their intention to vote straight G. O. P. tickets in protest on Nov. 3.

The home owning labor group is resentful, these leaders report, because of such recent measures as ceilings on rent, which prevent the readjustment of rentals that were unreasonably low until prices rose generally, and the numerous restrictions and tax increases that bar the rehabilitation of badly run down properties.

Labor elements as a whole are voicing cirticism of the restrictions on credit buying whereby they find it impossible to replenish old household furnishings and equipment now that they have steady incomes, according to G. O. P. spokesmen.

Oppose All Dictatorships.

"Make no mistake, these people are good Americans," one of the district leaders said. "They are willing to do their full share in any way toward the winning of the war, for they believe intensely in the American way of life, and want no such dictatorships such as their forebears in Europe now are dying under.

"They feel that their tax money is being spent for purposes that do not contribute to the war effort, but merely make jobs for the politically faithful. They want to see a more vigorous prosecution of the war and they say they are looking in vain for burocrats to make the sacrifices they are demanding loudly of the people.

"They cite as one evidence of administration mismanagement the numerous instances in the 6th district in which all the wage earners in a family are inducted into the service, leaving their dependents as virtual public charges.

"They feel that it is time to make a decisive change in the personnel in the nation's capital, and they are going to start their part in accomplishing the chance by voting Republican in November."

Cite Mrs. Pikiel's Record.

Mrs. Pikiel's supporters point to her long activity in behalf of labor.

Lately there has been an increase in expressions of resentment over the city hall's unceremonious dumping of Congressman Kocialkowski, who in the main has voted according to the desires of his labor constituents.

There were reports that Kocialkowski, who refused a city hall job offer if he would withdraw voluntarily, and ran independently in the primary, polling 6,718 votes, has lately agreed to stop bucking Gordon in return for a patronage spot when he leaves congress, but the reports could not be verified.

ARMY TO SUPPLY BALLOT REQUESTS TO ALL SOLDIERS

The home folks don't need to help Johnny Doughboy get his ballot for the Nov. 3 election, officials of the Chicago board of election commissioners said last week. Cards for men in the armed forces to fill out to request ballots are to be made available to them by the armed services at camps and stations. When certified to by a commanding officer these cards are to be mailed to Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes in Springfield, who will forward them to local election officials who will mail the ballots.

A specific provision of the new soldier ballot law is that he is to be permitted to vote even tho not registered. This is especially important in downstate Illinois, where a permanent registration system is just being installed.

There is doubt expressed whether most overseas service men can cast their votes by mail before the polls close. Passage of the new law was delayed by the southern poll tax bloc.

Lake Zurich Doctor to Talk at Quincy Medical Parley

Cares Forgotten as Albany Park Moose Hold Annual Fish Fry

A man forgets his cares when he goes over to a fish fry of the Albany Park lodge of the Loyal Order of Moose. Here he gets a dainty dish that has been set before Moose members for 20 years. Here in good fellowship a man can relax knowing that whatever befalls him there are benefits for him in the treasury and the 40 million dollar Mooseheart home to take care of dependent children. Relaxing are Alex Trostrud, at the piano, and, left to right, Martin J. Zamecnik, A. E. Schlueter, Al Selonke, Charles Ahrens, Louis Grimshaw, all singing "Sweet Adeline."

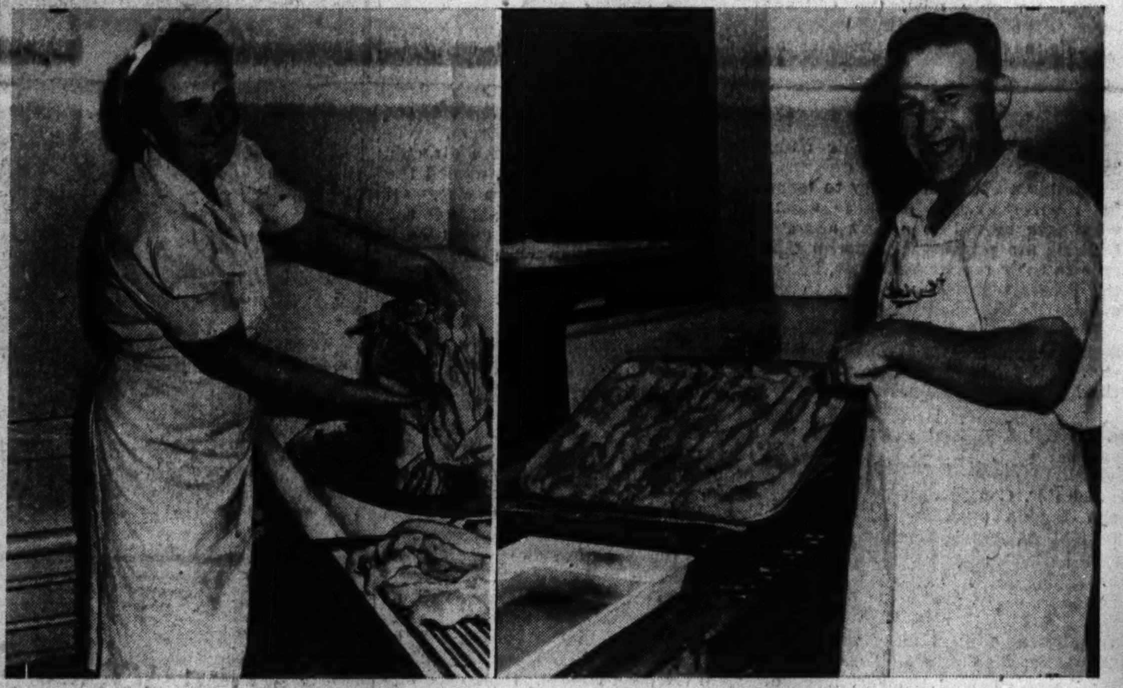
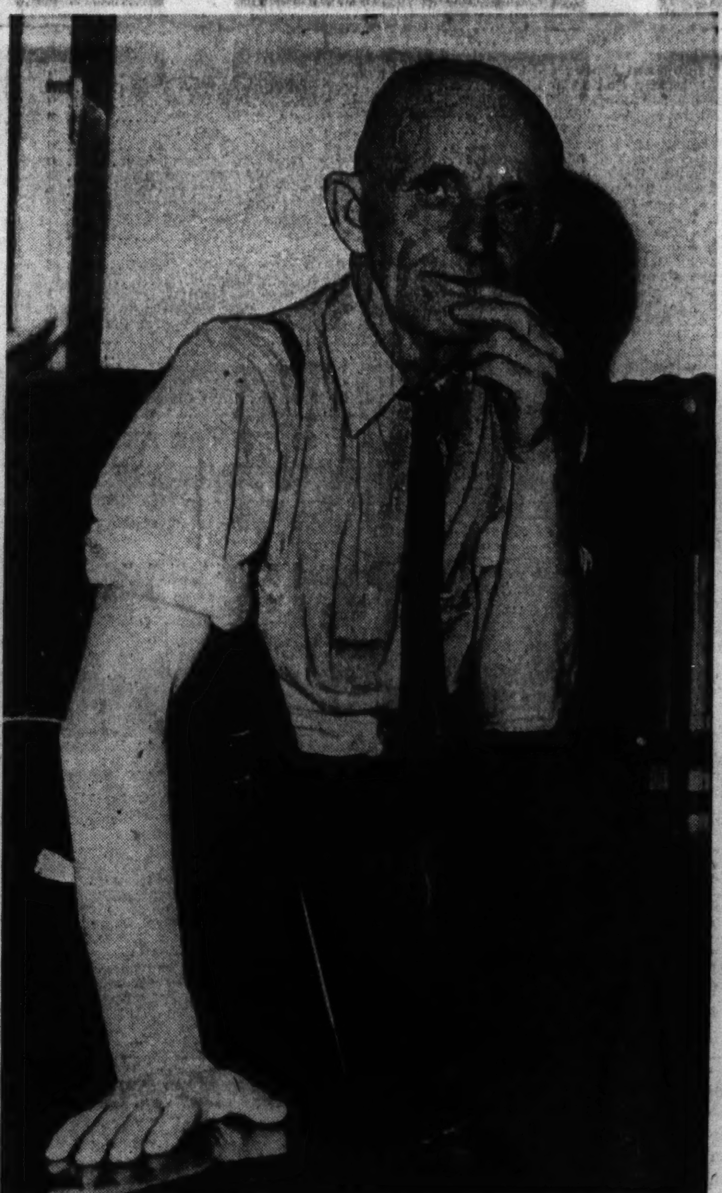
Part of every fish fry is a slice of tomato for every plate. Bringing in the basket is Moose Member Guy Kridler and his boys, Duke, 9 years old, and Russ, 5 years old, protected by dad's membership in the lodge.



The success of Albany Park lodge's fish fries is laid right to the kitchen door, where preside Mr. and Mrs. Anton Nielsen. Mr. Nielsen, a postman at the Ravenswood office, has made a hobby of frying fish. At one of the fries 25 women begged him for his recipe. Mr. Nielsen told it at the silver anniversary fish fry of the lodge.

Making sweet music for the dance is Ray Krelle, saxophone player, who also gets time out for a bite of fillet of perch fried in the Moose kitchen.

The family group includes Daughter Eunice Thorpe and her dad and mother, Mr. and Mrs. George Thorpe.



Thinking it over is Robert John Calhoun, a visiting Moose from lodge No. 3 on the south side. "I wouldn't miss a Moose fish fry," says Calhoun. "That stuff tastes better than chicken."

Two sidelines scenes at the fish fry show Mr. and Mrs. William Wolff and Charlie Ritchey talking things over and having a cigar.

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Fifty women dressed in natty blue uniforms with shiny gold buttons answer questions all day long at 219 South La Salle street. They claim they have never been stumped on a question since their office opened in April and since people have been calling Central 7182 for information. They are volunteer members of the growing staff of the Central Information bureau of the Office of Civilian Defense dedicated to answer anybody and anything on questions and problems created by the war.

All day they tell men and women where to get allotment blanks, how to reach a soldier boy in Africa, how to erect a flag pole, how to display the flag, how to get to wear a uniform, and what a Chicagoan can do to win the war.

Some questions are vague, such as "Where can I reach a man in the United States army?"

Some Are Specific.

Some involve a specific answer such as "How many air miles are we in Chicago from Canada, the Atlantic coast, Pacific coast, and the gulf?"

The women make use of the almanac, a complete file of clippings of all Chicago newspapers, and an information file compiled with help from all bureaus of the government, army, navy, city hall, and Office of Civilian Defense.

Each volunteer on the information bureau staff must give two full days in the office. Director of all question answerers is Mrs. G. Corson Ellis and assistant in charge of public relations is Mrs. M. T. Bissell. The office manager is Miss Louise Nathan.

Issues News Bulletin.

In addition to answering questions the bureau sends out to information people in each community of the metropolitan area a bulletin with all the latest facts and figures on defense training schools, educational events, civilian defense activities and meetings. In charge of this bulletin is Mrs. Dorothy Engert, production manager. Mail information is handled by Mrs. John Wentworth.

Mrs. Barney Lewin is the clipping editor and responsible for the complete clipping file of all news stories pertaining to life under war conditions.

Each Question Filed.

Every question that is asked by the public is saved in a box and when the day is over they are filed according to subject matter. First question asked by the women who call and who come in is "How can I get to wear a uniform?" Fifty per cent of the women who want to wear uniforms prefer blue.

Of this says Mrs. Willner, "Our question file is certainly going to be an eye opener for fashion designers. For eons women have been accused of robbing birds for plumage to please thei- vanity. Suddenly we dis-

Moose Junior Drum Corps to Help Church Sell Bonds

Albany Park Moose Junior Drum and Bugle corps will play for St. Cyril Methodius parish of the Polish National Catholic church, 2235 North Major avenue, at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon to assist the church in selling war bonds and stamps. The program will be presented in Reeves park.

SALE OF SCRAP SERVES DOUBLE PATRIOTIC DUTY

There is a story behind the cigarets and other gifts that 14 service men from block 5, zone 15, community 10, of division 5, will receive this fall.

Mrs. William N. Moreth, 3733 Addison street, had an empty garage. Her three sons, Raymond, 20; George, 15, and Ralph, 13, combed the neighborhood for scrap, paper, and rubber. Frank Playzk Jr., 16, of 3748 Eddy street, block messenger, and Richard Betcher, 12, of 3705 Addison street, helped. Neighbors contributed "tons of paper," Mrs. Moreth reported, "metal scrap, 200 pounds of rags and rugs, a gas mask from World War I., and aluminum-lead decorations once used by a loop store." Their sale netted a profit of $27.55.

Next Sunday afternoon, following a flag dedication at Lawndale avenue and Addison street, block residents will dance under gay lights in the alley behind the Moreth garage until late in the evening. Refreshments, purchased with the scrap fund, will be sold, and will bring in more money, it is hoped. Later in the week the block families will gather to tie up the gift packages.

Thailand Mission Worker to Talk Sunday at Olivet

The Rev. James E. Boren, a former pastor of Olivet Presbyterian church, 1441 North Cleveland avenue, who returned from missionary service in Thailand recently in an exchange of nationals of different countries, will speak at the church's communion service next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Evangelical churches thruout the world are observing the communion service on Oct. 4. While in Siam, the Rev. Mr. Boren and Mrs. Boren served in a Japanese concentration camp.

MOCK RAID WILL SHOW CIVILIAN CORPS AT WORK

War Aid Prominent Among Exhibits.

A nation at war will be reflected this year when the annual Des Plaines Community fair opens Wednesday night in Rand park in the suburb for four days of exhibits, demonstrations, and entertainment.

Vegetable displays, always a feature of the fair, take on new significance this year as neighbor vies with neighbor in the produce of back yard or vacant lot war gardens. Handicraft exhibits will have to compete with displays of home defense paraphernalia. Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Red Cross, safety council all will color their displays with what they are contributing to the war effort.

Business Men in Charge.

Back of all this planning are hard working committees, the Des Plaines Business Men's association, which directs the fair, and the civilian defense corps committee. W. J. Ladendorf is chairman of the civic committee and is assisted by Joseph Feulner, Gus Stellmack, Stuart Biery, Roy Collignon, Henry Wiese, and Murray S. Smith. The civilian defense committee includes Frank Opèka, chairman, Arthur Mueller, and W. A. Townsend.

Theme of the seventh annual Community fair to be held in Rand park is Americanism and patriotism. Proceeds will be divided among Des Plaines men now in service. The business men's group has been listing the men's names for the last month.

Hold Mock Air Raid.

A mock air raid will be a new feature of the fair. It will start with the warning siren and go thru the procedure accompanying a raid to the all-clear signal. Civilian defense workers, auxiliary police and firemen, and Red Cross nurses will enact their rôles.

The Great Lakes naval band, Maine Township High school band and choir, and St. Mary's training school band, will play at the fair.

Saturday night has been designated as Treasury night. Celebrities will appear to stimulate sales in a windup of the war bond drive. Arthur L. Webster is chairman of the war bond and stamp committee.

Movie of Des Plaines Events.

Ald. Walter Dophiede's popular colored movie, "March of Des Plaines," will remind townsfolk of Santa Claus last winter, the Memorial day parade, and men leaving for military service, among other community events.

Roy Collignon and Mrs. John Raymond, handicraft exhibit committee, announce numerous entries of canned goods and sewing. C. B. May and Elmer Steil have charge of the war garden display. Many civic groups will have displays.

Leaders in Plans.

Dr. C. J. Hill is coördinator of civilian defense in Des Plaines. His executive assistant is James F. Weldon. Ald. Dophiede is the community commander. He will direct all civilian defense workers who participate in the mock air raid tableau.

Other civilian defense personnel includes Police Chief Howard Becker, who has charge of the auxiliary policemen; Adolph Esser, utility repair squadron; Mrs. Elizabeth Willer, emergency medical aid unit; Ray Kolze, auxiliary fireman; C. H. Anderson, chief air raid warden.

WALTHER LEAGUE TO STAGE FALL SESSION TODAY

The Rev. Robert G. Lange.

The fall rally of the Portage zone of the Walther league will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at Jehovah Lutheran church, Belden and Ridgeway avenues. Nineteen youth groups representing nine Lutheran congregations on the northwest side are members of the Portage zone.

Principal speaker will be the zone's spiritual adviser, the Rev. Robert G. Lange, associate pastor of Jehovah church. After the supper there will be an entertainment program by the society. Afternoon business sessions will be in charge of George R. Planert.

These societies are affiliated with the International Walther league whose new headquarters building at 875 North Dearborn parkway was dedicated last Sunday. Churches represented in the Portage zone are Bethel, Springfield and Hirsch streets; Christ, Richmond street and McLean avenue; Grace, Parker and Laramie avenues; Jehovah, Belden and Ridgeway avenues; Messiah, Patterson and Melvina avenues; Mount Olive, Byron and Tripp avenues; Our Savior, Neva and Cornelia avenues; St. John, Montrose and Lavergne avenues, and Tabor at Drake and Sunnyside avenues.

Succoth Celebration.

Rabbi David Graubart will preach on the topic "The Lesson of Unity" at 10:30 o'clock this morning, the second day of the Jewish Succoth celebration, at Congregation B'nai Shalom, 3245 Ainslie street.

DEMOCRATS SEEK ALL 3 SEATS IN ASSEMBLY RACE

But G. O. P. in 27th Hopes Win with Rep. Dukes.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Republicans of the 27th senatorial district last week were in fighting mood as they watched Democrats preparing to sweep away all three state representative seats in the Nov. 3 election. The G. O. P. has been kicked around before in this territory, but this is the first time such injurious insult was offered.

Illinois' cumulative voting system for its house of representatives is unique among the states. Designed to give the minority party in any district a voice in government, it provides that a voter may "plump" three votes for a single house candidate or divide them between two or three candidates.

"Shut Out" Rarely Happens.

The result is that it is next to impossible to score a "shut out" for house seats when the two parties battle it out. The attempt is seldom made and is rarely successful. The 27th district [parts of wards 26, 27, 32, and 33] is the only one where the stunt is being tried this year. Two years ago the Republicans tried it in the 14th [Aurora-Elgin] district and failed.

"Cumulative voting," says the Illinois Guide prepared by the Federal Writers project, "was incorporated in the constitution as a result of the intense partisan spirit that prevailed in post-Civil war years.

"At that time delegations from southern Illinois were wholly Democratic, those from northern Illinois solidly Republican. Cumulative voting was adopted to provide representation for the minority in each section.

Majority Often Helpless.

"It sometimes results, however, in a legislature so evenly balanced that neither party has the working majority required to accomplish its program."

The latter condition is a feature of the present legislature, and it is not to the liking of Gov. Green. But he will be worse off if the slender G.O.P. lead of 79 to 74 melts away even to the extent of three seats. Two south side G. O. P. seats are seriously threatened.

Rep. Eugene P. Dukes is now the lone Republican house member in the 27th district. In his first term he improved upon the record of the former allegedly Republican member for this district who was not noted for party loyalty. Dukes is in the florist business with a brother.

Dukes Will Win—Gorny.

"This has been a setup district in past elections but this time we'll put on a fight, and Dukes will go back to Springfield," said Casimir J. Gorny, G. O. P. 32d ward committeeman.

"Sentiment is not so terrible this year, and if there is no double cross, I've got a feeling we'll put it over. Dukes has a wonderful record. He went all the way with Gov. Green on everything."

Democratic house members now are Reps. A. L. Auth and John Kuklinski. "Abe" Auth is a union printer who is completing his seventh term and has won commendation of the Legislative Voters league, nonpartisan organization which said he gave useful service. During the last session Auth introduced bills seeking to protect children from the harmful effects of divorce. He is sponsored by Ward Committeeman John Touhy of the 27th ward.

Rostenkoswi Is Power.

The new face in the lineup is that of Anthony C. Prusinski, 1924 Armitage avenue, chief deputy coroner, who also happens to have brothers well located in various district neighborhoods and is regarded as a strong runner.

One hope of the Republicans is that the Democrat trio will get to wondering which will be low man and each one may pass the word along to a wide circle of friends to "plump" for him. If this process gets well started, one may do so good a job that Dukes also will win.

Large Democratic Vote.

In the 1940 election, had there been three Democratic house nominees dividing the vote equally, each would have received 17,000 votes against 11,000 for the lone G. O. P. entry. In 1938 the Democrats could have made a clean sweep, giving each man 15,000 to 11,000 for the Republican. In 1936 they would have won, 15,000 to 9,000, and in 1934, by 14,000 to 7,000.

Improvement is in the wind, the question being—will it be a breeze or a gale by Nov. 3? In the April primary the Democrats in this district piled up about six times as many votes as the Republicans but in 1938 the ratio was about 8 to 1.

Mondala Up for Full Term.

State Sen. Stanley J. Mondala, elected by the Democrats to fill a death vacancy in 1940, is the nominee to retain his seat. He is a civil engineer for a steel company, a former professional football player, and in his first session sponsored a law requiring agreements by local governments with housing authorities to specify the location of projects on which taxes are waived.

The honor of Republican nomination to the senate was given to John Turchany, 1510 Thomas street. He is not awed by the odds confronting him, and has started his campaign with early printed matter and a balloonlike sign on his automobile.

VIRTUALLY ELECTED

Frederick A. Virkus, president of the Illinois division of the National Small Business Men's association, on Thursday night virtually became a state representative by action of the Republican senatorial committee for this district, which includes most country townships of Cook county.

The committee appointed Virkus to the vacancy on the G. O. P. ticket caused by the withdrawal of Rep. Arthur W. Sprague of La Grange, who during his second term accepted a navy lieutenancy and is now at Quonset Point, R. I. Virkus became the teammate of Rep. Bernice Van der Vries of Winnetka, new chairman of the women's division of the county G. O. P. committee. Rep. Emmett McGrath is the Democratic nominee for the house.

Because there are only three nominees for three house seats in this "setup" district, the Nov. 3 election is regarded as a mere formality for these candidates.

Virkus is 63 years old and has resided in La Grange for 40 years. He is president of the Virkus company, publishers of historic-genealogical reference books. In 1938 he was Republican nominee for congressman at large and in 1936 was 6th district G. O. P. candidate for congress.

Signal Corps Lieutenant and Bride

Miss Evelyn Jean Copley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Copley, 4214 North Albany avenue, became the bride of Lieut. Ray Jay Colin II. recently in Boston, Mass. Lieut. Colin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jay Colin, 44 East Walton street. He is in the signal corps of the United States army.

513 Tires or Tubes Rationed to 144 on Northwest Side

Five hundred thirteen tires and tubes for passenger cars and trucks were rationed to 144 individuals and firms on the northwest side in the week ending Sept. 19, ration office figures show. This is nearly 100 more than the 417 of the previous week.

Permits were given to 89 for passenger tires and to 55 for truck tires. The grants were for purchase of 109 passenger tires and 134 passenger tubes, 147 truck tires and 123 truck tubes.

The American Coach company, 3917 North Kedzie avenue, received the largest ration of 13 truck tires and tubes each. Poray, Inc., 3403 Grand avenue, was allowed 10 truck tires and tubes each.

Father Inducts Coast Guardsmen Into VFW

Coxswain Charles F. Wetter Jr., a member of the coast guard for the last three years, was inducted into the Emmett P. O'Connell post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Thursday night at the Austin town hall, Central avenue and Lake street. The ceremony was conducted by his father, Charles F. Wetter Sr., machinist mate, 1st class, United States navy, who before his discharge in 1919, served in the Caribbean and in the troop convoy and mine sweepers service of World War I.

CHILDREN'S HOME FESTIVAL TODAY HONORS FIGHTERS

The Norwegian Lutheran Children's home will hold its annual fall festival this afternoon at the home, 6000 Canfield road. The Rev. O. J. C. Norem, director of the Lutheran Service center, Waukegan, will be the speaker.

A chorus from the United Lutheran church of Oak Park directed by Prof. Arnold Schultz will sing and Mrs. Thelma Michaelsen will play the organ. A service flag will be dedicated in tribute to the 25 boys who once resided at the home now serving in the United States armed forces. The Edison Park American Legion rifle squad and color guard will take part in the ceremony.

Dr. Martin O. Juel, president of the home, will be master of ceremonies and A. Gordon Nasby will read the invocation and benediction. Proceeds from the festival will be added to the maintenance fund of the home where 148 boys and girls are cared for.

Anxious Anglers Install New Corps of Officers

Charles B. Johnson, Elmwood park, was installed president of the Leyden Township Fishing club, known as the Anxious Anglers, last week. Other officers are Alvin A. Eckardt, vice president; Louis J. Georgen, secretary; William Friend, treasurer, and Joseph Pauwels, sergeant at arms.

M'HENRY COUNTY VOTER REGISTRY NOW 64 PER CENT

6,000 Still to Qualify Before Election.

Out of an estimated total election vote of 22,000 in McHenry county, County Clerk Raymond D. Woods has announced that more than 14,000 voters have registered, making 64 per cent of the largest general election vote in the county now qualified to cast their ballots in the Nov. 3 election. The last registration date in County Clerk Woods' office will be Oct. 5. Precinct registration will be carried out on the following day.

On Saturday, Sept. 19 the first regular registration thruout the county's 32 precincts totaled 2,670, with an additional 324 registrations in the clerk's office or by deputized clerks in the county. The total registration for that day was 2,994. Woods estimated that the county's total registration would be 17,500.

Marengo Township Leads.

Leading the county's registration is Marengo township with an estimated 1,600 voters. The township now has 1,400 registered. Richmond is second with 800 voters and 600 registered.

J. B. Morse, Lake county clerk, warned voters that they have only nine more days to register for the fall elections. To date only about 35,000, an estimated half of the county's eligible voters have registered, Morse said. A total of 6,224 registered in the first precinct registration day, Sept. 19. Precinct No. 15 in Deerfield township was first with 228 registrations. Precinct No. 2 in Grant township was second with 172, and precinct No. 3 in Waukegan township was third with 139.

Plan Rural Bureaus.

Rural registration bureaus in Lake county will be set up again Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday to accommodate those living in outlying communities. These rural bureaus have been set up by deputy clerks at designated places on scheduled days at least four different times in each township.

Citizens who have failed to register after Oct. 6 may do so at the polling precinct on election day. They will have to step out of line and wait until the election board has time to register them.

DRIVE IN CHICAGO

Altho Cook county has had permanent registration for six years while downstate generally is setting the system up only now, the Chicago board of election commissioners is starting a campaign to register all persons eligible to vote who:

1. Have never registered.
2. Will become 21 years old on or before Nov. 3.
3. Who have changed their name by marriage or otherwise.

In addition it is necessary to transfer the registration of those voters who have moved to a new address. Officials are warning citizens to take care of their registration now, before the greatest rush, by coming to the election board offices in the city hall.

Fire houses thruout the city will be used for registration from Sept. 26 to Oct. 5, excepting Sundays, between the hours of 1 and 9 p. m.

Conley Legion Auxiliary Installs New Officers

John F. Conley unit of the American Legion auxiliary held installation of officers last night at Craftsmen hall, Le Moyne and Harding avenues. Members inducted were: Mrs. Harriet Conley, president; Mrs. Kathryn Doucet, and Mrs. Esther Jansen, vice presidents; Mrs. Edith Dryz, treasurer; Mrs. Jessie Graham, chaplain; Mrs. Frances Krieger, sergeant-at-arms, and Miss Margaret Morris, historian.

To Wed in January

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rümmelhoff, 1837 North New England avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Irene, to David J. Quill, son of the Rev. and Mrs. M. B. Quill of Ridgeway, Ia. Mr. Quill, who started his internship at United Lutheran Church of Oak Park last September, will return to the Lutheran Theological seminary, St. Paul, Minn., this fall to complete his final year of study before entering the ministry. The wedding will take place next January.

DRIVE FOR SCRAP IS RENEWED ON NORTHWEST SIDE

Unused Buildings May Furnish Steel.

Northwest side neighbors who have emptied their own basements and attics of scrap have been instructed to make an immediate survey in their blocks and to report to their commanders the location of any abandoned building or other steel bearing structure that is not now in use. Also on the may-go-into-the-scrap-heap list are cannon, war relics, metal statues, and abandoned vehicles.

Block captains and salvage wardens are asked to set up scrap depots in each block where citizens can take their metal. A barrel or box painted red, white, and blue with instructions about scrap is the suggested receptacle.

Director Sounds Warning.

"Blast furnaces of America must not be allowed to become cool because of lack of scrap metal," says Dr. Louis Diamond, salvage director of the Albany Park Civilian Defense organization.

Recently zone 13 in Albany Park under direction of Capt. John Groot held a sidewalk salvage drive. William L. McFetridge, salvage director for the metropolitan area, named the drive a test for the entire city. All salvage was put in front of the homes where everybody could compare his scrap heap with his neighbors to see if he was keeping up with the Joneses when it came to helping his country.

Dedicate Office Today.

Dedication of the Hanson Park Civilian Defense headquarters, 5959 Grand avenue, will take place at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. The program is in charge of Dennis J. Sherwin, community commander. At the same time American flags in seven zones extending two miles will be dedicated along Grand and Fullerton avenues. After the program the participants will parade to Riis park, where another flag raising ceremony will be held along Fullerton avenue.

Taking part in the events will be 26 zone captains, 200 block captains, 2,000 wardens wearing their caps and helmets, auxiliary policemen and firemen, and 1,000 bicyclists.

BUSINESS GIRLS OF YWCA HOLD 3 CONFERENCES

Inspiration for a busy year for business girls is expected thru the three annual setting up conferences being held this week-end at three YWCA lodges and camps. Industrial girls will confer at Forest Preserve lodge near Glenview. Conference chairman is Miss Ruth Hogan, new president of the YWCA league of industrial girls. Business girls led by Miss Marjorie Boyes, president of the City wide council of YWCA business girls will meet at Sunset Service camp at Bartlett.

Youngest of the girls holding week-end conferences are the high school age girls of the YWCA Reserve clubs meeting at Camp Sagawau near Lemont. Their theme is "Forward Today with the Future." Among the projects will be the preparation of knapsack libraries, first aid classes, hospital aid classes, cookie making for the USO, and training in child care.

Gertrude Daube, 4219 Kamerling avenue, will direct the recreation between meetings of the industrial girls. Reports of the nation-wide YWCA business girls groups will be made by Margaret Fox, 4035 North Kedvale avenue.

FISH DISAPPEAR FAST WHEN CHEF ANTON FRIES 'EM

Albany Park Moose Give Him a Reputation.

Albany Park lodge of the Royal Order of Moose celebrated its 25th anniversary with a fish fry. It's an old Moose custom. Fish frys have scented the lodge hall, 4350 North Pulaski road, for 20 years.

The fish frys in taste are like the social gatherings in the south. Moose use frying pans, however, instead of deep fat kettles and "Sweet Adeline" is sung instead of the husky "Old Folks at Home." The success of the most recent fish fry was due to the cooking hobby of Anton Nielsen, for 16 years a letter carrier at the Ravenswood postoffice and for 13 years a Moose. Every year Mr. and Mrs. Nielsen take a fishing trip to northern Minnesota. Just back from one with 30 walleyes to his credit, Mr. Nielsen was in the proper mood for this year's fry.

75 Pounds of Perch.

For several years now Mr. Nielsen has presided over the kitchen at Moose ham and egg breakfasts, evening snacks plus beer and fish frys. "I just like to do it," he said over his steaming fry pan.

At 6 o'clock the night of the fry 75 pounds of frozen perch fillets were delivered into Mr. Nielsen's hands. The white meat lay cradled in ice while the cooking pots were prepared. A table was covered with cracker crumbs properly peppered and dusted with salt. Then the fish was put to soak in salt water. As the guests began to assemble Fish Fryer Nielsen plopped the tender fillets coated with crumbs two by two into the hot grease.

Professionally each fillet was turned, browned and then placed on a paper plate. Potato chips were mounded around the hot fillet and a slice of ripe red tomato added a colorful companion piece.

Al Selonke, secretary of the Illinois Moose association, won't miss a fish fry. The moment he sinks his teeth into the crispy covered hot perch and lingers over the succulent bite, he knows what is meant by Moose' reputation for fellowship.

Visitor Now a Fan.

Robert John Calhoun visiting from Lodge No. 3 on the south side had a smile on his face and browned fish fillets on his plate all evening. "Better than chicken," he said between bites.

But fish frys are not the sole purpose of the Albany Park Moose lodge recently recovered from a week's silver jubilee.

The lodge, one of 1,700 Moose units scattered thru the English speaking countries, takes away two deep rooted fears in a man's life—what would become of his children if he should die, and what is he to do when he gets too old to work?

The answer to his first problem lies in Mooseheart, home for children on the banks of the Fox river near Aurora. Here is a home and school for dependent children of deceased members where every child is given a high school education and is taught a useful trade. The widowed mother may accompany her children and is given remunerative employment. Second at Moosehaven in Florida a man and wife in dependent old age may live together among friends. The member of the Loyal Order of Moose gets these assurances in addition to social fellowship and sick and accident benefits.

300 Attend Fish Fry.

The 25 year old Albany Park lodge was organized on Sept. 17, 1915, at Lawrence and Kedzie avenues. Chief Justice Harry Olson was its first governor. Here was the origin of the lodge's famous fish frys attended by some 300 men and their families.

Present officers of the Albany Park unit are Richard Vanselow, governor; Adolph Stoffran, junior governor; Walter Bieze, prelate; Charles Ritchie, sergeant at arms; Omar Dennis, assistant secretary of arms; Ingolf P. Petersen, secretary, and Guy Kridler, treasurer.

Clarice Jaffe Betrothed

The engagement of Miss Clarice Jaffe to Sergt. Herman Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cooper, 4253 North Sawyer avenue, is announced by Miss Jaffe's aunt, Mrs. Mary Hulman, 2638 Haddon avenue. No date has been set for the wedding. [Walinger Photo.]

TWO DAY TRAIL RIDE TO START NEXT SATURDAY

Horsemen Plan 26 Mile Trek to Aurora.

The second annual two day "go as you please" trail ride of the Town and Country Equestrian association will start at 9 o'clock next Saturday morning from the Oakbrook polo field at 26th street and York road north of Hinsdale, it was announced by John Maher, chairman. Approximately 100 riders are expected to take part. Entries will close early this week, Maher said.

The horseback riders will follow the Du Page county forest preserve trails and wide, soft road shoulders for 24 miles to Exposition park in Aurora, where a cowboy style party will be held after a charcoal cooked dinner at the race track club house. The riders will return Sunday over a shorter route.

Noonday stops each day will be made at Herrick lake at Weisbrook and Butterfield roads southwest of Wheaton. Here luncheon will be served outdoors to the riders and their friends and the horses will be watered and fed.

Expect 200 at Party.

There will also be intermediate refreshment and watering stops each day. All important highway crossings will be guarded by forest preserve and state highway policemen.

More than 200 persons, including the riders and their guests, will attend the party in the fair grounds club house. As soon as the riders have cared for their mounts, the dinner and refreshments will be served on the club house veranda.

Music for the western style dancing to follow will be furnished by a local orchestra. There will also be a campfire near the club house, at which the merrymakers will be led in the singing of cowboy songs. A midnight lunch will be served.

The riders will stay in furnished apartments on the fair grounds. They will start their return trip about 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning, arriving back at the starting point in the late afternoon.

Supplants 100 Mile Ride.

W. Earle Butler, president of the association, declared that everything possible is being done to make the ride even more complete than that of last year, which took the place of the 100 mile trail rides that had been held in the three previous years.

"There is unusual interest in this year's ride because uncertainty caused by the war indicates it may be the last for the duration," Butler said. "We have received entries from all parts of Chicagoland and several from neighboring states. The entrants range from 16 years old to the very high age bracket. The distance has been shortened so that no extensive hardening in of either horse or rider is necessary."

7 BLOCKS JOIN IN HOME DEFENSE ASSEMBLY TODAY

'Thar She Blows' Will Be First Nighter Play Tonight

An original comedy titled "Thar She Blows" written by Anthony Wayne will be the starring vehicle for Les Tremayne and Barbara Luddy on the "First Nighter" program from 7 to 7:30 tonight on W-G-N. Musical background for the drama will be supplied by Eric Sagerquist and the First Nighter orchestra. Bret Morrison will be cast as Mr. First Nighter, the host to the theater party.

Miss Claire, T. L. Thomas Operetta Stars.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

In response to appeals from thousands of listeners W-G-N will reopen its Chicago Theater of the Air, presenting operettas beloved by all America. The season will be opened next Saturday, Oct. 3, with Sigmund Romberg's popular "The New Moon" scheduled as the première production.

Miss Marion Claire again will be starred in these musical treats. For the opening show W-G-N has engaged Thomas L. Thomas, noted baritone of the Metropolitan Opera company, to sing the leading male rôle.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will continue his radio talks. The Theater of the Air productions will replace the summer concert series, America Loves a Melody. The operettas will be broadcast from 8 to 9 o'clock every Saturday over the coast to coast facilities of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Emphasis on Melodies.

A full dramatic cast of Chicago's best known actors will portray the story of the operetta. Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N produtcion chief, who will be in charge of the operettas, has announced that more emphasis will be laid on the music than in other seasons. In order to include all of the best songs from each operetta a narrator will be used to tell portions of the story.

The musical background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and the W-G-N chorus, directed by Robert Trendler.

"The New Moon" was selected for the opening show because of its great favor with listeners. It has been presented every year on this series. It contains several of Romberg's most popular melodies—the romantic "Lover Come Back to Me," "One Kiss," "Wanting You," and the stirring "Stout Hearted Men."

Scene Is New Orleans.

"The New Moon" was first produced at the Imperial theater in New York Sept. 19, 1928, with Evelyn Herbert as "Marianne Beaunoir," the rôle to be taken by Miss Claire, and Robert Halliday as "Robert De Misson," the part to be sung by Mr. Thomas. The scene is New Orleans in the year 1793.

Miss Claire has sung all of the leading feminine rôles in the Theater of the Air productions, now going into their fourth year. She has built up one of radio's largest and most loyal listening audiences. Many Marion Claire fan clubs have sprung up across the nation. These groups gather on Saturday night to listen to the operettas.

Miss Claire was starred also in the three prize winning works that resulted from W-G-N's nation-wide quest last season for the Great American Operetta. The grand prize winner was "America Loves a Melody," by Ross Hastings of Los Angeles. W-G-N distributed $10,500 in cash awards in this competition.

The operetta for Saturday, Oct. 10, will be "The Chocolate Soldier"; Oct. 17 will be "Rio Rita"; Oct. 24, "Robin Hood"; Oct. 31, "Naughty Marietta," and Nov. 7, "La Boheme." The leading men singers for the operettas are to be announced.

Les Spears Enlists.

Les Spears, well known Chicago actor, who has appeared on many W-G-N programs, has enlisted in the army and been assigned to the 108th general hospital unit.

ATTILIO BAGGIORE TO CLEVELAND FOR ANNIVERSARY SHOW

Attilio Baggiore.

Attilio Baggiore W-G-N's operatic tenor, will go to Cleveland tomorrow for a guest appearance on a special show, "WHK Goes Mutual," to be aired over W-G-N and Mutual from 8:30 to 9 p. m. The program will mark WHK's full time entry into Mutual membership and the eighth anniversary of the network which now numbers 207 stations.

Representing other stations on the show will be Joe Gentile and Ralph Binge, comedians of CKLW, Detroit-Windsor, and Elvera Ruppel, soprano of WGR, Buffalo. WMK entertainers will include Marvin Arnold, Lillian Sherman, Dick O'Heren, Sheelah Carter and Willard's orchestra.

MAID OF AMERICA SHOW BACK TO W-G-N TUESDAY

Salute Heroic Figures on Program.

"Maid of America," a program dedicated to the American way of life, will return to W-G-N for its second season at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Highlighting the program this year will be dramatic sketches of little known facts in the lines of great men and women in American history. Guest stars of stage, screen and radio will participate in the program each week.

The heroic work of Mary Ann Ball Bickerdyke, Civil war nurse, will be dramatized on Tuesday's show. A native of Galesburg, Ill., Mary Bickerdyke was responsible for the formation of the first nurses corps in the northern army during the Civil war. Bob Trendler and the W-G-N orchestra will provide music and choral background. Russ Brown will be guest singer on the initial program. Brown will sing "Daybreak" and "Smiles."

The orchestra will present "This Is the Army, Mr. Jones," from Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army." As a salute to the Music Maid, Heather Tweed, mistress of ceremonies, the orchestra will play "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody." A George Gershwin medley will be included.

The program will be aired from W-G-N's main studio. It will be produced by Lou Jackobson. Scripts will be written by Jack Payne and the announcer will be Jack Brickhouse. The program will be open to the public.

Fibber McGee and Molly to Return Tuesday Night

Fibber McGee and Molly and the other assorted characters of Wistful Vista will be back on the air at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday on NBC after a three month vacation. Returning with Jim and Marian Jordan will be Isabel Randolph as Mrs. Uppington, Gale Gordon as Mayor La Trivia, Bill Thompson as the Old Timer, and Wallace Wimple, Harlow Wilcox as announcer and Billy Mills' orchestra. Don Quinn writes the series.

New W-G-N Announcer.

Newest announcer at W-G-N is Frank Sweeney, formerly of WJJD, Chicago. He has served at WJBC, Bloomington, and WOC, Davenport, as well as in Chicago.

BOYS IN TROUBLE REFLECT UNREST CAUSED BY WAR

Supervision of Offenders Doubled in Year.

Boys are getting another chance in the Boys' court at 1121 South State street. Before Judge Gibson E. Gor[illegible]'s bench every day they come one after another—white boys—colored boys—some ragged and dejected—others sleek and defiant. It's the court's job to decide which of these deserve a "break."

The best "break" one of the young offenders can get is supervision by the Boys' Court service of the Chicago Church federation, or supervision by other private agencies working closely with the court.

Prevents Black Mark.

Supervision is not probation. It is continuance of a case for three months to a year. If the boy gets into no more trouble, he has no police record of any kind.

Louis de Boer, director of the Boys' Court service, says that approximately 90 per cent of the boys turned over to his agency go straight.

With the outbreak of war, however, the agency began to face a special problem. The number of boys needing supervision increased sharply with each succeeding month. July, 1941, saw 147 of these young men between 17 and 21 years under supervision. In July of this year, the same staff was responsible for almost double that number, or 277 boys.

De Boer attributes the increase to three basic factors. First, he points to the high salaries the boys are earning now as compared with the $15 and $17 jobs they held a year ago. With their wallets bursting with bills, they have not yet learned their responsibility to both their family and the community.

Unrest Promotes Mischief.

Second, he cites the decrease in supervised recreation in the city. A year ago each park was staffed with a large number of instructors and physical directors. This number has been sliced because of the war.

The final and perhaps the most important factor, according to De Boer, lies in the feeling of unrest, change, and instability which inevitably is a by-product of war. "There's a devil may care attitude which permeates even adult thinking," the director explains. This factor is reflected in the boys who are beginning to come into the court on charges of malicious mischief. Many of these boys come from highly privileged homes.

To meet the agency need for more supervisors to talk with the boys, visit their homes and determine the best procedure for rehabilitating them, the Chicago Church federation is approaching individuals and churches to raise funds for additional help.

Drive This Month.

Plans are being formulated for a major drive beginning this month to add to this fund. A steering committee of six is selecting 25 persons to assist.

Working with the steering committee is Charles T. Moon, 606 Provident avenue, Winnetka, acting secretary of the social service department of the church federation. Committee members are Joseph L. Moss, 1939 Orrington avenue, Evanston; the Rev. Walter K. Morley, 65 East Huron street, director of social service for the Chicago diocese of the Episcopal church; the Rev. Victor E. Marriott, Downers Grove, director of religious education of the Chicago Congregational Union; Roy R. Marquardt, 1349 Chestnut street, Wilmette; John W. Fuhrer of George Williams college, and John A. Dawson, 1108 Asbury street, Evanston.

Review Stand to Weigh 'How to Pay for War'

"How To Pay For The War" will be the subject for discussion on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand program on W-G-N and the Mutual network at 10 a. m. today. Guest speakers on the program will be John Cowdin, chairman of the government finance committee of the National Association of Manufacturers, Howard Berolzheimer, professor of finance, School of Commerce, Northwestern, and Royal F. Munger, and Phil S. Hanna, newspapermen.

James Melton Guest on Kostelanetz Hour Today

James Melton, tenor, will be guest singer on the Andre Kostelanetz-Albert Spalding concert at 3:30 p. m. today on WBBM-CBS. Melton will sing Cole Porter's "Night and Day" Silesu's "Love, Here Is My Heart." The orchestra, conducted by Kostelanetz, will present three South American tunes and the "Waltz" from Tschaikowsky's "The Sleeping Beauty." Violinist Albert Spalding will play Chopin's Nocturne in D-flat.

Grand Prize Play Yard a Popular Place

White picket fence, picnic table and benches, tent, play house, and trapeze equipment made the playground of Mrs. Virginia Gates, 3908 North Kimball avenue, the grand prize winner in this year's play yard contest of the Chicago Motor club.

WAYS SUGGESTED TO STOP WASTE OF FUEL IN HOME

Few Simple Steps Can Trim Heating Bills.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

[We'll be glad to send leaflet with names of some helpful products for fuel saving this winter, as well as hints for preventing fuel waste. Please send stamped, addressed envelope with your request for leaflet to this department.]

As insurance against fuel waste this winter, there are many steps a home owner can take. Here are some:

First of all the heating plant should be checked over by an expert, cleaned and repaired, if necessary, so that it will function at maximum efficiency.

All pipes and ducts and boiler will help give you a warmer house for less money if they are insulated.

If there are leaks in any boiler or smoke pipe joints furnace cement may be the answer. If there are leaks inside a boiler there are stop-leak compounds which can be applied internally. There also are boiler-cleaning compounds to eliminate grease, dust, soot, etc.

Thermostat Is Help.

Other heating plant aids include a thermostat, placed in a proper location, clean filters in warm air furnaces [the new fiber glass filters are inexpensive and fireproof], and provision for some sort of auxiliary humidity if the heating system does not provide same. Be sure the heating plant isn't trying to heat all out of doors, as well as the rooms inside of the house.

Ceiling insulation will save a good deal of heat. Roof insulation will sometimes save as high as 30 per cent.

Weatherstripping, storm sash and storm doors also are big fuel savers. [Both weatherstripping and storm sash will pay for themselves in time, and it will not take a long time to do it, either.]

Door seals on bedroom doors will make it easier for your basement boiler or furnace to heat the house nicely and quickly in the early morning. Special door seals for outside doors also are a big help.

Use of Plastic Caulking.

If you would keep cold air from entering your house around door and window cracks, you can use plastic caulking compounds which come in different colors or which can be painted. The work is usually done with a caulking gun, and oakum can be used to pack any large openings before caulking them.

It should not be forgotten that closed Venetian blinds have a certain insulating effectiveness and the same is true of two window shades at each window.

If you are certain your house is a fuel waster you may be interested in recent estimates of possible savings thru insulation, and that, if a house is fully insulated, side walls, roof, windows, etc., you can cut your fuel bills some 50 per cent or more!

Type of Coal Important.

If one has a coal burning furnace or boiler fuel can always be saved by buying the correct type of fuel for the particular heating system.

Booster fans will increase the heat from warm air furnaces, and save fuel. The lagging circulation of old hot water systems can likewise be speeded up.

Desire Defauw Is Guest Conductor of Symphony

The first of a Sunday series of Summer Symphony programs will be heard at 4 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC. Desire Defauw, Belgian conductor, will direct the orchestra in "La Peri" by Dukas, Ravel's "Introduction and Allegro" for small orchestra and harp, featuring Edward Vito, harpist; Chabrier's "Espana," and "Fetes."

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Sept. 28.

Tender plants should be placed under the protection of cold frame or removed to the house to avoid injury from early frost. If an increased number of bedding plants is desired, stock plants should be lifted and potted, or cuttings made from firm, sturdy wood of the plants in the beds.

Cuttings of geraniums can be made of the firmest wood [or of the stems] which means that when bent the stems will snap, not bend, which indicates they are soft and not the best for cuttings. It will not injure them after cutting to let them remain exposed for a day and then placed in sandy soil.

Tuesday, Sept. 29.

The perennial borders can be remade now, and fall is a fine season to make changes that are required. Perennials delight in a deep, well enriched soil, well drained. The whole border may be replanted, but to do so that plants must all be lifted, placed to one side, or heeled in, and then soil spaded. All débris must be removed.

Incorporate a good spread of decayed manure in the soil. In lieu of manure, an application of commercial fertilizer will tone up the soil and enable the reset plants to get a good root growth before freezing weather.

Wednesday, Sept. 30.

Tulips should be planted in early October. The bulbs make a fall root growth. American grown tulips are as good or better than Holland grown bulbs. A selection of tulips, using the various groups or types from the early varieties to the latest, in combination with plants in the perennial borders, will give a long period of bloom.

Thursday, Oct. 1.

If interested in hardy chrysanthemums, visit displays in local nurseries to become familiar with the best varieties. Mark those wanted and order for spring delivery because these plants should be planted in spring rather than in fall.

If they must be fall planted, be sure to give them protection after the ground freezes, or place them in a cold frame until spring. Protect the plants, for few there are that are dependably hardy. They should be divided and replanted each spring whether hardy or not.

Friday, Oct. 2.

Lift or dig all roots and bulbs that require winter protection before frost cuts them down, such as gladiola, tuberose, tuberous-rooted begonia, caladium, and canna. Plant lily bulbs as soon as they are received. Place sand under each bulb at time of planting.

Store dahlia tubers upside down in a dry cellar. If kept near the furnace, place the tubers in boxes of sand or peat moss with a moist covering of newspaper.

Saturday, Oct. 3.

Divide and replant peonies. Do not plant too deep or they will not flower well. Lift and pot a few annuals, such as marigolds, calendulas, dwarf asters, flowering tobacco, etc., for flowering indoors. See that the yard is cleaned up for winter. Remove all accessories indoors.

Mulch lily-of-the-valley with old manure, but not too deep, to increase the vigor of the plants. The same may be done to the Spurge of Pacysandra plants. All ground cover plants are greatly benefited with a much. Mix sand with old manure or humus before spreading.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park Conservatory.

3 ON N. W. SIDE WIN PLAY YARD CONTEST AWARDS

MotorClubGivesGrand Prize of Gym Set.

Three northwest siders who have expressed their liking for children in a particularly tangible way are winners of this year's play yard contest sponsored by the Chicago Motor club. The contest was designed to aid the movement to keep children off the streets.

Mrs. Virginia Gates, 3908 North Kimball avenue, was the grand prize winner, and received a 10 stunt gym set to make her play yard even more attractive to neighborhood children. Others winners were Mrs. Grace Leineweber, 6342 Roscoe street, who was awarded a portable pool, and Albert A. Pioch, 1822 North Natoma avenue, a sandbox.

Did Most of Work Herself.

Several loads of earth were needed to fill in and level the vacant space at Kimball avenue and Byron street used by Mrs. Gates for a playground. Mrs. Gates did most of the work herself, even to cutting tiny pickets for a picket fence. She purchased a trapeze outfit with swing, rings, horizonal bar, and a teeter-totter. Homemade equipment includes a canopied sandbox, deck chairs, a rocker, hobby horse, toys, and bird houses.

A playhouse at one end of the yard has tables, chairs, toys. A tent, permanently erected on a wooden frame, is in another section of the yard.

Indoor Playground, Too.

Rainy day fun is provided by an indoor playroom in the Gates home. An electric train layout, ping pong table, blackboard, victrola, and toys keep the children amused. They can produre playlets, if they like, and roller skate.

Mrs. Leineweber, with the help of her own and neighborhood children, make most of the equipment for her play yard, located a half block from Narraganett avenue. The children picked cherries this summer to earn money to buy paint for the equipment. Mrs. Leineweber has provided a basement playroom for poor weather. A movie projector is the attraction of the playroom.

Children may play in the Pioch basement on rainy days, but their outdoor play yard has such fascinating equipment as a wading tank with overhead shower, a second tank for floating boats, slide, swings, tents, and a hut. Mr. Pioch was his own manufacturer for most of these items.

DEDICATE FLAG AND HONOR ROLL OF 14 IN BLOCK

Dedication services were held last Sunday for a service flag and honor roll erected at Grace and Lamon streets by division 5, community 16, zone 16, block 7 of the Office of Civilian defense. Charles Knoblock is block captain.

Beth Israel Men's Clubs.

The first reunion smoker of the men's clubs of Temple Beth Israel will be held at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow evening at 4850 North Bernard street.

BAT A THOUSAND IN DEFENSE QUIZ AT CENTRAL 7182

50 Women Have Answer for Perplexed.

Most common question from the men is "How can I take a course training me for defense work?"

News columns in the daily papers cause a rush of one kind of question or another. The women at the information bureau one day were besieged with offers of blonde hair. The clipping file revealed that a picture had been in the paper showing the kind of long blonde hair needed for markers in making bomb sights. All day long the phone tinkled and an excited voice at the other end of the line would reveal, "I have blonde hair. How can I get it to the army?"

No Bleach or Dye.

Mrs. Willner says, "The army has all the blonde hair it needs. It had all its requirements in a few days after the SOS was sent out."

A great many women were discouraged when the information bureau revealed that the hair had to be 14 inches long, never bleached, never dyed and never permanented. Many blondes were discouraged to find they couldn't qualify and would have to do something else to serve their country.

The questions pour in. "How can I send $1 to San Francisco?" one man asked.

"Just a moment," soothed the question answerer at the information bureau. After a little checking it was revealed that the Kraft Cheese company was trying out its very effective siren.

Eager to Help.

In general the women at the information bureau have discovered that Chicagoans are panicky about probable black-outs, air raids, and sirens. They all want to help do something. Many women call the information bureau and want to help in the war effort.

Hundreds of questions pour in about nursery schools. Women with small children at home want some place to leave them so they can go to work in defense factories. The bureau has a file of nursery schools located in every section of the city.

Now and then a patriot gets discouraged. One man complained, "I want to make a fancy V for Victory on our street corner. I went out and bought black dirt, clam shells, and a flag. Now some one tells me I will not be allowed to go on with this project."

Enemies at Home.

Once in a while a man discovers enemies at home are at him. One called in, "I am a building owner. Where can I report some children who are trying to set fire to my building?"

The bureau was called on to help a woman who asked, "How can I send peanuts to my son in Dutch Harbor?"

The bureau started in April with no furniture. Information was filed on the floor. Today it uses the entire lobby of the La Salle street building, uses old WPA furniture. Demands have made it necessary to keep the office open on Saturdays and the women expect that they will have to stay down evenings to answer the questions. Many people aren't satisfied with a phone call and make appointments to come in to talk their problems over in person.

"Our job," explains Mrs. Willner, "is to answer, suggest, and soothe. It's really very interesting. We meet all kinds of people."

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Corp. Bauer.

Corp. Fred A. Bauer was recognized immediately by his parents and friends in a recent TRIBUNE photo of soldiers in the Pacific area. Phone calls flooded their home when the picture appeared, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bauer, 311 Grand avenue, Park Ridge, said.

Fred is a graduate of Maine Township High school and North Park college. He enlisted in the National Guard and had been stationed at Camp Forrest, Tennessee, before leaving the country.

Ensign Munsch.

Winner of his navy wings of gold and the commission of ensign in the navy is John P. Munsch, son of Mrs. John Munsch, 3407 Armitage avenue, who completed his flight training at the United States naval air station, Pensacola, Fla., this month. Before his assignment to a combat zone, he will go on active duty at one of the navy's air operational training centers. Ensign Munsch's preliminary training was obtained at the Glenview base. He attended the Missouri College of Mines for two years.

Among graduates of the course in gunnery at Fort Knox, Ky., are the following: Joseph C. Branka, 3111 Wellington avenue; Leo M. Chudy, 3310 Le Moyne street; John F. Dodd, Shady Hill, Barrington; Ronald B. Rae, 1055 North Mozart street, and Ralph William Roesner, McHenry. The gunners worked with the Thompson submarine gun, large caliber cannon, and during the final two weeks of their course they fired at both stationary and moving targets from tanks.

Lieut. Dalton.

He's a full-fledged navigator now. Douglas T. Dalton, 27, son of Mrs. Josephine Dalton, 1039 Warwick avenue, received his commission as second lieutenant this month at the army air forces navigation school, Hondo, Tex. Lieut. Dalton holds a bachelor's degree from Carroll college, Waukesha, Wis., and was employed as a business manager before joining the army air forces.

William Davidson, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hersh, 3730 North Central Park avenue, received his commission as a second lieutenant in field artillery this month at Fort Sill, Okla. Bill's new post is Camp Breckenridge, Kentucky. A 1939 graduate of Schurz High school, he was a member of the National Guard.

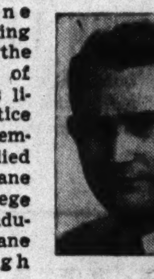
Cadet Hagenback.

Cadet James J. Hagenback, 23, graduate of Maine Township High school and later a student at Northwestern university, has completed his basic training at the Mercer, Cal., army flying school. He now has entered a 10 week advanced course leading to a commission in the army air forces reserve. Cadet Hagenback was a credit investigator in civilian life. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hagenback, 6807 Osceola avenue.

George Gounaris, 3218 North Albany avenue; Stanley Markschaler, 3819 Montrose street, and B. Payette Jr., 1519 North Long avenue, are enrolled at the medical replacement center, Camp Pickett, Virginia. The three northwest side men will go thru maneuvers simulating medical and evacuation problems encountered on the battlefield.

OUR TOWN

ADMITTED to the Illinois bar this month was Anton A. Smigiel, a lifelong resident of the northwest side, who resides with his wife and daughter at 4034 Marmora avenue. Smigiel received his law degree in June from the evening school of the Kent College of Law, and was licensed to practice law in September. He studied prelaw at Crane Junior college and was graduated from Lane Technical High school.



Anton A. Smigiel.

MR. AND MRS. RUBIN KOZNER'S tiny daughter, Deborah, who is 3 months old and boasts two teeth, had her first tooth when she was 2½ months old. Deborah weighs 12½ pounds and is an alert baby. She is pretty, too, with blue eyes and black hair.

Her older brother, Barry, 20 months old, had his first tooth when he was four months old. Deborah's father works in a defense plant. The family resides at 3155 Augusta boulevard.

Friends and relatives of Miss Marie E. Ehrman, formerly of 4733 North Laramie avenue, will go to Springfield next Sunday to witness the ceremony in which Miss Ehrman will receive the white veil of a novice in the Community of Hospital Sisters of St. Francis at the motherhouse. Bishop James A. Griffin, of Springfield, will officiate and will celebrate the pontifical mass.

The young novitiate entered the order on Feb. 2. She received her education at Josephinum academy.

Their 60th wedding anniversary was celebrated recently by Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Seidel, 5819 Berenice avenue. Their son, C. Walter Seidel, held a family dinner for the couple, their four other children and eight grandchildren, at his home, 3122 Sheridan road. Henry Seidel, 84 years old, is a retired carpenter. Mrs. Seidel is 82.

The August Braun family, 3644 North Kimball avenue, held a happy reunion Sunday. Two sons, Elmer and Herbert, who are in the services, were at home on furlough. Second Lieut. Elmer has been stationed at Camp Davis, North Carolina, and Sergt. Herbert at Camp Campbell, Kentucky. They were letter men at Schurz High school.

Erno Rapee will conduct the Radio City Music Hall of the Air on WCFL-Blue at 11:30 a. m. today. Soprano Selma Kaye will sing "Romance" from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" and with the glee club will be heard in Baron's "Medley of Negro Spirituals." The orchestra will play the first movement from Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony" and "Ave Maria," with Ossy Renardy, violinist, as soloist in the latter number. Other compositions will be the last movement from Tschaikowsky's Fourth Symphony, and Wieniawski's "Scherzo Tarantelle."

Alec Templeton Presents Own Work at 2 P. M. Today

Alec Templeton, blind pianist and composer, will be guest on the Symphony concert over WBBM-CBS at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Templeton accompanied by the orchestra, under the direction of Bernard Herrmann, will present the world première of his "Concertino Lirico." The program also includes Eric Fenby's "Rossini on Ilkla Moor," Sibelius' Sixth Symphony, and a suite from Rimsky-Korsakoff's opera, "Le Coq d'Or" played by the orchestra. Sir Arthur Salter of the British Petroleum Mission will be the intermission speaker.

Chicago Symphony Orchestra Season to Begin Oct. 15

By Claudia Cassidy

Two weeks from Thursday night the Chicago Symphony orchestra begins its 52nd season on schedule, and the most remarkable thing about that fact is that it surprises no one. Thru war, depression, panic, and the threat of public inertia, the Chicago Symphony orchestra has remained the one stable factor Chicago audiences can count on. Resident opera has been as mercurial, and as fascinating, as Chicago weather, while theater, ballet, and concerts have blown hot and cold at the whim of public demand. But the orchestra has been there, year in and year out, for those who would have to remake their personal worlds if they lost it.

Not many people have much idea of the scope of the orchestra's activities. A lot of them drop in at Orchestra Hall occasionally of a Thursday night, and sometimes they see empty seats on the main floor. So they jump at the conclusion that the Chicago Symphony orchestra appeals to the few, and they register, without practical suggestions for improvement, the vague plaint that it is neglected.

Well, there are a few empty seats on the main floor some Thursday nights, and the management would like very much to fill them up. The Thursday night bogey is a real one in Chicago, explained by everything from maid's night out to the middle of the week slump when people are resting up from one week-end to make ready for the next. But that Thursday night series of concerts is only one of seven series presented by the Chicago Symphony orchestra in the course of a Chicago season. Perhaps you would like to investigate the seven, with an eye—and I hope a slightly surprised eye—to just how many Chicagoans find the orchestra indispensable to their way of life.

The midweek, or Thursday night-Friday afternoon pair of concerts, consist of 28 performances each. The Thursday series, opening Oct. 15, sells about 1,600 season tickets. The Friday series, opening Oct. 16, averages about 1,900 season tickets. The Tuesday afternoon series of 12 concerts, opening Oct. 27, sells about 1,800 season tickets. None of these figures counts the gallery, because gallery seats are not sold on subscription, but held for single sale.

These 68 concerts are reasonably well known about town, but they represent only a part of the orchestra's home activity. In addition, there are two series of concerts for children, and two series of popular concerts. The reason for two series is the best reason in the world: There isn't any other way to meet the

'New Hellzapoppin' Opens at Erlanger Theater Tomorrow

By Cecil Smith

The Messrs. Ole Olsen and Chic Johnson, who have done more than any other two men in this generation to restore the belly laugh to the $3.30 box office category, have now brought forth another corn-filled entertainment to feed the thousands of theater goers whose appetites were conditioned by "Hellzapoppin." With bold novelty, the show is entitled "New 1943 Hellzapoppin," and it takes over the Erlanger theater tomorrow evening for as long as Chicago will tolerate its presence.

To Chicago, Olsen and Johnson have long since become the little men—or, more accurately, the fairly big men—who weren't there. After years of regular visits to our vaudeville stages, the two funnymen became preoccupied with New York's lust for two successive attractions, the original "Hellzapoppin" and the current "Sons o' Fun." They are still busy in the latter show at the Winter Garden in New York.

This means, of course, that the constant references to O. and J. in "New 1943 Hellzapoppin" advertising and publicity matter must not be inadvertently misconstrued by playgoers. The show opening tomorrow night is the product of their unique and uninhibited genius, put together under their watchful scrutiny, and financed partly by their money and partly by the Shuberts'. But they are not actually in it; the comic badinage and the gun-shooting are carried on by Jackie Gleason and Lew Parker, who bear the same relationship to this year's show as Billy House and Eddie Garr to last year's "Hellzapoppin."

Any one who saw the earlier edition of the madhouse, slapstick entertainment will understand that it would be unsafe to venture any predictions about the material in the forthcoming "Hellzapoppin." It remains to be seen, for instance, whether it will be snakes or spiders which allegedly attack the feet and legs of the audience in a moment of pitch darkness. It is impossible to know what new madness will supplant the famous running gags of the earlier show—the woman vainly calling for "Oscar" all evening, and the plant which grew, during the course of the evening, into a tree of exceptionally extensive exfoliation.

Jackie Gleason, who is described as "rotund and goggle-eyed," is a Brooklyn-born comedian who first broke into public notice in the Club 18, the famous New York night club organized and kept loud and lively by the late Jack White. After a Broadway engagement in the flop musical, "Keep Off the Grass," Gleason was snapped up by Hollywood, where he

This singing duo includes Bing Crosby and Virginia Dale. They, along with Marjorie Reynolds and Fred Astaire, are starred in "Holiday Inn," which is held over for another week at the Garrick.

Below: Mary Astor and Humphrey Bogart, who co-starred in "The Maltese Falcon," are reunited in the exciting drama "Across the Pacific," now showing at the Chicago theater.

Below: The lovely lady being glared at so intently by Robert Cummings is Diana Barrymore. These two play important rôles in "Between Us Girls" at the Woods theater.

"Somewhere I'll Find You" is still holding forth at the State-Lake theater. Here we have Clark Gable and Lana Turner, who play starring rôles in this production. Robert Sterling and Patricia Dane also are featured.

Griff Williams Setting New Records in Empire Room

Zany Dancing of Hartmans Livens Revue

By Will Davidson.

The big Griff in life is back in the Empire room.

Naturally, that is tantamount to saying that another all-time record in receipts has already been set in the Palmer House's big and beautiful café. At this writing I'm not in possession of the exact totals of Griff Williams' first Saturday night in the Empire room this fall—a week ago last night—but I am assured by Accurate Al Fuller that it surpassed even Griff's own record breaking night of 1941. So much so that they've named the show the "Griff Williams' Revue."

And, altho Griff is nowhere around, I feel him nudging me to say that a very great contribution toward that record breaking evening was made by Grace and Paul Hartman, those completely nutty dancers. Merriel Abbott, too, had a hand in it.

If I were asked to name the King of Swing I wouldn't even put Griff in the first 10. But if I were asked to name the band to which I most preferred to dance and listen, he'd be alone at the top. Griff has a concept of music that is deep and understanding, and wise. He's a showman and an artist. As a piano soloist he is superb; as a director he is keen and vitally entertaining. And his men are, to a man, genuine, friendly, and extremely capable. The lilt of Griff's music is irresistible, and its projection is so perfect that there need be no reliance on lung power to make it understood. You can dine and converse comfortably with a delightful background of music that never intrudes, but never is completely lost.

In his Little Show, Griff demonstrates his knack of ensemble work to great advantage. The boys get together on an excellent choral number, "Your Eyes Have Told Me So," featuring Bob Kirk's superb voice, and then do an instrumental show piece, "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," that is made even more effective by the clever use of lights.

In this show Griff introduces his new girl singer, cute and potential Freddie Terry, a little Texas gal who is soon going to be one of the better known band vocalists.

Grace and Paul Hartman are a story in themsleves. And, yet, what can you say about them that hasn't already been repeated many times? Comedy dancers come a dime a dozen, except in the case of these two zanies. Theirs is the delightful art of satire, deftly combining the elements of slapstick and subtlety. As a magician and his helper, they are deft. As an addled pair of dancing school instructors they are hilarious. As an arty dance team they are devastating. As an embryo team they are pathetically sublime. As Grace and Paul Hartman, they are grand people.

Merriel Abbott, with the considerable assistance of the now departed Dick Barstow, has evolved one of the most effective ballet numbers of her splendid career in the "Purple and Black" routine. I leave it to students of the ballet to assess authoritatively the technique and skill displayed, but there is no need of artistic training to know that this is a superb number. The clever "Picture Puzzle" opener is one of those delightful novelties for which Miss Abbott's shows are inevitably known.

The rest of the show is very strong, too. Walter Long, tall, dark, and handsome dancer, is a master of clean cut taps. So precise is his talent that he needs no borrowed ballet pretensions to mark him as an artist. Parker and Porthole, ventriloquist and dummy, bill themselves as the world's most unusual act, and, by golly, they aren't far from wrong. Starting out as a none too original ventriloquist turn, this act develops into an amazing amalgamation of mechanical trickery and deft showmanship.

Tall and popular Carlyn Truax, one of the Abbott girls, makes her Chicago solo debut in the Little Show—a lively tap and acrobatic routine to which the gay cowgirl costume contributes more than the slightly stale tune of "Jingle, Jangle, Jingle."

In the lapses when Griff Williams is not on the stand Nick Brodeur, the boogie woogie man of Empire room fame, and his new unit play exceedingly danceable music. Nick is a show in himself.

Not always have I been as considerate as I should of those who contribute so much to the Empire room shows, so I hastily and sincerely bow low to Ralph Moni, wardrobe designer; Miss Hessie Smith, musical arranger, and Sig Chakow, electrical genius.

Boswelling the Bistros!

The Callahan sisters, perennial favorites at the Chez Paree, are due back there late in October. . . . Lew Diamond, who does such good work playing off-nights at the Palmer House on Monday, the Blackstone on Tuesday, and the Chez on Wednesday, has added a war stamp stunt to his Saturday afternoon tea-dances in the Panther room of the Hotel Sherman.

I'm still giggling at Sammy Walsh's mute mimicry of Ted Lewis at the Chez. . . . The Latin Quarter's new show stars little Jackie Heller, and includes Anita Alvarez, dancer; the Modelaires, Ross and West, and the Cheena De Simone dancers, holdovers. Vince Bragale's and Eddie Fripps' bands carry on. . . . Don Di Flavio, who made such a hit singing and playing in the Continental room, is in Cleveland, headed for New York. . . . Sorry, but Gracie Fields has to leave the Chez Oct. 7. No successor named as yet. . . . Freddy Nagle returns to the Aragon Friday, to follow Art Kassel, who goes into the Bismarck hotel that night.

'Hellzapoppin' (1943 Version) Here Tomorrow

has been making pictures for the last two years.

Brooklyn also produced Lew Parker, whom Press Agent Joe Flynn characterizes as "of pleasing mold." At 32 he sounds pretty young to be moldy, but I suppose Joe knows what he is writing about. His past accomplishments, too, sound far from moldy. Trained as a singer, he played rôles at the St. Louis Municipal opera for two seasons. His first musical comedy appearance in Chicago was in "Red, Hot, and Blue," in which he served as "straight man" for the beschnozzled Jimmy Durante. His sleek gift of gab has won him many engagements as a master of ceremonies, especially in connection with personal appearance tours of Hollywood celebrities. He claims to have visited more army camps in the last year than any other actor in America, Al Jolson not excepted.

Lew Parker.

Detailed identifications of other members of the large cast of "New 1943 Hellzapoppin" must wait for further allotments of space. Among those present will be Barto and Mann, the celebrated vaudeville team which trades upon the enormously disparate sizes of the performers; Theo Hardeen, a magician with an act which has been suitably hooked up; Steve and J. C. Olsen, respectively, the younger brother and the son of Ole Olsen; Happy Moore, 6 feet tall and 460 pounds heavy, and Stormy Bergy, 31 inches short and 60 pounds light; Dippy Dyers, an old-time knockabout clown; the Kim Loo sisters, three singing and dancing Chinese girls last seen here in George White's last "Scandals"; Harry Reso, eccentric dancer and pantomimist; Charles Withers, the vaudevillian whose "Op'ry House" act has been famous for a quarter of a century, and the singers known as the Radio Rogues.

Edward Duryea Dowling, who began using his middle name to avoid confusion with the actor Eddie Dowling, undertook the stage direction of "New 1943 Hellzapoppin." For the Shuberts he has served in a similar capacity in connection with "Streets of Paris" and "Sons o' Fun," as well as with the original "Hellzapoppin." When he took over the direction of the last named show, he signed a contract on a royalty basis, with the result that he became quite rich. But Lee Shubert does not like to make the same mistake twice, and this time Mr. Dowling receives a lump sum.

"Maid in the Ozarks," which has been giving the Great Northern theater an uneasy lease on life for the last fortnight, is as shocking a play as I can remember seeing. I was disgusted, rather than shocked, by the spectacle of Gram Calhoun picking lice out of the imbecile Mohawk's hair; and I was bored, rather than shocked, by the crude attempts to woo laughs by the arbitrary device of introducing backhouse references in as many explicit forms as possible.

What shocked me about "Maid in the Ozarks" was the discovery that a couple of hundred people, and possibly more, were willing to pay money for an alleged entertainment which has neither shape nor continuity, and in which there is not a moment of honest or even capable acting, except perhaps by Valeria Fisher as the pipe smoking old granny. The story is so poorly and incoherently told that neither motivations nor incidents can be understood in relation to one another. When I left the theater, having conscientiously remained until the final curtain, my undernourished brain had virtually shriveled away, and all I had left was a feeling of dull but persistent nausea.

I am told that critical notices which object to a play on grounds of lewdness provide an invaluable stimulus at the boxoffice. I should like to be quite clear about "Maid in the Ozarks," therefore. It is not particularly salacious. As fodder for a dirty mind it is not to be compared to "Good Night, Ladies," to which I do not mind awarding a backhanded notice, since it is both funny and expertly acted. "Maid in the Ozarks" is merely dull, squalid, hideously directed, and monumentally incompetent in presentation. I make no bones about my hope that it will close soon, for there is a theater shortage in Chicago, and the Great Northern now has a real chance—for the first time in a decade or more—to reinstate itself as the home of self-respecting attractions.

Turning to more pleasing matters, I should like to set forth a couple of observations about "Best Foot Forward," the George Abbott musical comedy, which moves its successful company from the Erlanger to the Studebaker theater tonight. This youthful and spirited piece gives the lie to the commonly accepted notion that Broadway musicals are always faded and jaded by the time they reach Chicago, after a year of routine in New York.

"Best Foot Forward" is now a better show than it was at the time of its eastern opening a year ago. At that time the principals were really too young. Some of the time they had no more projection out into the audience than an average high school dramatic group. In spite of Hugh Martin's and Ralph Blane's good score, the performance suffered from a lack of wallop. Now, however, the youngsters are a year older and a year wiser in show business; and without losing a vestige of the impression of extreme youth "Best Foot Forward" now has much more force and a much more professional air than it originally had.

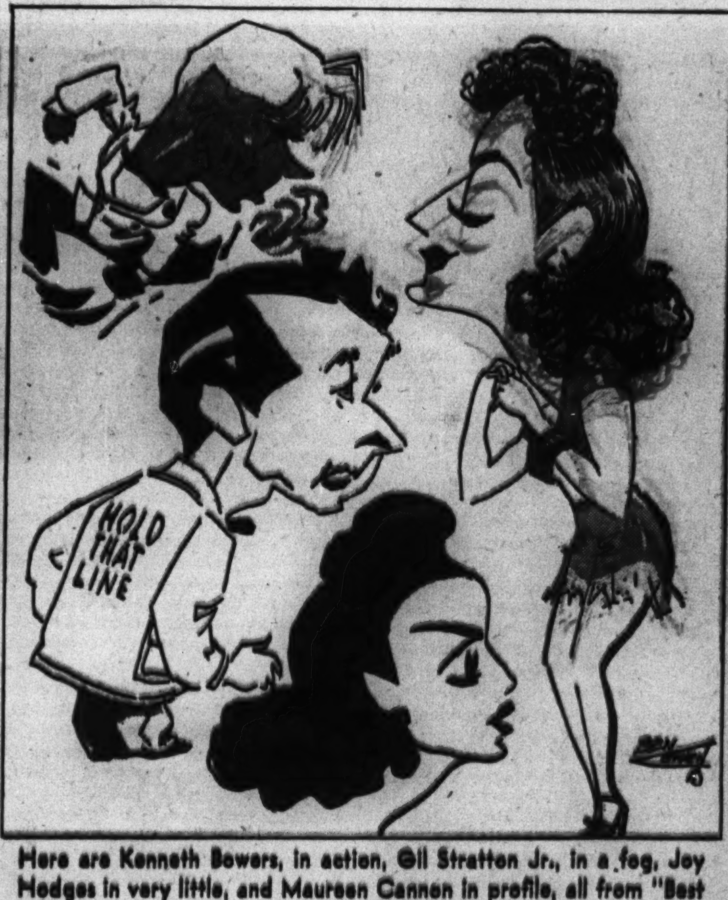
Then, too, the acquisition of Joy Hodges is a decided asset. Rosemary Lane, as the original delineator of the movie siren who interrupts the peace and quiet of a Winsocki prom, had certain decorative assets and a decided money value at the till. But she never made a believable character of the glamorous Gale Joy.

Miss Hodges, who need bow to no other actress in the matter of personal attractiveness, knows how to act. Because the character she portrays is central to plot and action, her presence gives a good focus to the story and lifts it nicely above the level of conventionality on which Miss Lane was content to let it rest. She also can sing effectively and turn off a few neat dancing steps. You will enjoy making her acquaintance.

I hope "Best Foot Forward" will prosper for a long time. No other musical comedy is in sight before the holidays. ["Porgy and Bess" and "New 1943 Hellzapoppin" do not fall into the musical comedy category.] If we don't hang on to "Best Foot Forward," there will be a long and doleful gap before the next comers, "Lady in the Dark" and "Let's Face It," arrive in town.

IN "BEST FOOT FORWARD"



Here are Kenneth Bowers, in action, Gil Stratton Jr., in a fog, Joy Hodges in very little, and Maureen Cannon in profile, all from "Best Foot Forward," which moves to the Studebaker tonight to continue its successful stay in Chicago.

"Arsenic and Old Lace" Passes 700 Performance Mark

"Arsenic and Old Lace" has now passed the 700 performance mark at the Fulton theater in New York. The current cast includes Erich von Stroheim and Laura Hope Crews, both of whom were seen in the grisly comedy in Chicago in the spring of 1941. A return engagement of "Arsenic and Old Lace" is projected for Chicago in the course of the winter, with Boris Karloff playing the part originally taken here by Mr. Von Stroheim.

Chemists from DePauw U. Aid in War Effort

By the Rev. John Evans.

A major contribution to the war effort in the field of chemistry is being made by DePauw university chemistry majors who have been graduated during the last four decades. Clyde E. Wildman, president of the Greencastle, Ind., institution, pointed out that 85 per cent of the 238 chemistry graduates at DePauw have made the field their life work, and at present are teachers of chemistry in our universities, chemists in our war industries, or servants of medicine in military or civilian capacities.

A distinguished record of scholarship in graduate schools thruout the country has been achieved by DePauw chemistry graduates, 64 per cent of whom have done graduate work. Fifty-one of the majors now hold doctor of philosophy degrees, 40 hold doctor degrees in medicine, 30 others have earned master's degrees in chemistry, and 31 at present are working toward doctor of philosophy degrees in the subject.

• • •

Among educational institutions with DePauw trained chemists as professors are the University of Illinois, City College of New York, the University of Wisconsin, Pennsylvania State college, Purdue university, Cornell university, and the University of Washington. Included in industrial concerns retaining DePauw chemists are Dow Chemicals, Eastman Kodak, Swift & Co., Aluminum Company of America, the Ohio Oil company, Western Electric, Procter & Gamble, Standard Oil, International Nickel, and United States Rubber company.

DePauw university has provided premedical training for leading physicians in such cities as Duluth, Minn.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Washington, D. C.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Bridgeport, Conn.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Boston, Mass.; Los Angeles, Cal., and Seattle, Wash.

Among distinguished professors contributing to the field of chemistry are Dr. Ross Allen Baker, City College of New York; Dr. Herbert E. Landes, Loyola Medical school; Dr. William A. Manuel, Ohio Wesleyan university, and George Tang, Fuh Tan university, Shanghai, China.

A military law and defense legislation course will be introduced this year in the college of law at the University of Cincinnati, following a recent announcement by Merton L. Ferson, dean of the college. The law college will open its 110th year on Oct. 5.

"The course will familiarize the student with military law and aspects of defense legislation affecting the rights, duties, and privileges of the individual, all to the end that he may more efficiently serve his country during the emergency," Alfred A. Morrison, assistant professor of law, who will give the course, explained.

The six major topics covered in the course will be: Constitutional extent of military power; organization of the army of the United States, including conscription laws; military law proper, listing its sources; military and civil jurisdiction, courts martial and their procedures, and offenses; articles of war; the selective training and service act of 1940, and soldiers' and sailors' civil rights and the civil relief act of 1940.

Vaudeville

Oriental theater. Shep Fields, the exponent of "rippling rhythm," has his band on the Oriental stage this week. According to Mr. Fields' description of his form of art, it "bridges the gap between the extremes of sweet and swing, yet is definitely not a hybrid." Dolly Kay, Chicago singer, appears with the band as a featured performer. The supporting stage bill includes Ralph Young, baritone; Jimmy Rae, "Society's favorite comedian," and Ross and Bennett, who perform an act entitled "No Sense and Nonsense."

Chicago theater. Eddy Howard, singer and popular composer, appears at the head of his own orchestra. He sings a medley of his own compositions, as well as the novelty song, "Conchita Marquita Lopez." Others in the show are Virginia Austin and her puppet clown Clippo, the dance team of Dick and Dot Remy, and the Chicago theater ballet.

Helsing's Vodvil Lounge. Frank Payne, impressionist, and John Tio, "the Ripley Wonder Bird," head the new bill. They are assisted by Dorothy Davis, singer; the Duffield sisters, rhythm singers; the Four New Yorkers, and Chet Roble, pianist.

Rialto theater. The chestnut hair and bright blue eyes of Marion Morgan are the focus of interest in a show which also brings forward Dusty Fletcher, Sammy Gardner, Susan Brown, Hap Hyatt, and a host of other entertainers.

Regal theater. Two blues and swing orchestras are featured in a double header program—Louis Jordan and his Timpani Five, and Benny Carter and his 15 piece orchestra. Also in the show are the 10 Dancing Sirens.

Movies Purchase Screen Rights to "High Kickers"

Screen rights to "High Kickers," the musical comedy in which George Jessel and Sophie Tucker appeared at the Erlanger theater last spring, have been sold to M-G-M for $27,500. Mr. Jessel is currently appearing in New York in "Show Time," a new and successful variety show.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

Many of the finest squeeze plays succeed only because a defender does not appreciate the potential importance of low cards. In the following hand, for example, declarer handled his resources brilliantly, and by that token deserved his success, but, nevertheless, he could not have achieved that success against farsighted defense.

North, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	1 diamond	2 spades	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	6 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's second bid, three no trump, was incredibly stretched and resulted in a slam contract that had considerably less than an even chance for success.

West opened the diamond ten to his partner's bid. Dummy covered, East won with the ace, and not knowing that the diamond nine was now blank in the declarer's hand, made the apparently safe shift to the heart queen. Declarer won with the ace and then carefully considered his problem. West's diamond bid, even tho not vulnerable, strongly indicated that the king of clubs was offside. After all, East had had nothing in spades, was only queen-high in hearts, had lacked the Q-10-9 of diamonds, and therefore his bid could scarcely have been very sound without the king of clubs. Hence declarer determined to do his utmost to avoid the club finesse. To that end, he drew two rounds of trumps, led the club three to the ace, then continued to run off trumps. The situation developed exactly in line with his hopes. One of West's discards was the "insignificant" three of diamonds. When declarer finally reduced all hands to four cards, the situation was as follows: Declarer had one trump, a low heart, the diamond nine, and the club jack. West had three hearts and one diamond. Dummy held the K-5 of hearts and the K-4 of diamonds. East, having observed that his partner was holding hearts, unguarded that suit to hold only one heart, the J-8 of diamonds, and the club king.

Declarer now led his heart to the king and returned the heart five. On this trick East was unmercifully squeezed. If he let go a diamond, declarer, after ruffing the heart, would be able to cash both of dummy's diamonds; if he let go the club king, declarer would, of course, be able to cash the club jack. Thus, at this stage, no defense could avail and the highly optimistic contract was brought home.

Now, let us observe the result of a slight change in the defense. Suppose that West had been more acute in visualizing the likely end position. One thing was certain: The only chance to defeat the contract was that East had the club king. But if he had that card he would have to hold it down to the very end. If he also had to guard the diamond suit, he would find himself in great difficulties. True, declarer's distribution might be seven spades, three hearts, two diamonds, and only one club, but his method of play made such a holding virtually out of the question. Had that been the case, he would have attempted to establish dummy's club queen by a couple of ruffs. Thus, declarer's actual distribution was not hard to read, and West should have based his defense on that reading. In short, West should have indicated clearly by his discards of hearts and clubs that he intended to guard the diamond suit, thus tacitly advising East to hold hearts and the club king. West's 5-3 of diamonds were scarcely impressive cards, but the contract could not have been made if West had held on to them.

Spades are trump. South leads and North-South must win all the tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads spade king. North overtakes with ace and cashes spade queen, South discarding the club queen. North then leads the heart deuce to South's ace. If either East or West has discarded two diamonds, South can now establish a diamond trick by leading the king or jack, as the case may be, and ruffing in the North hand. If East and West have each discarded two clubs, the club ace is now cashed and North ruffs a diamond in order to cash the good club three.

Shostakovich's 7th Symphony to Be Repeated Here

Dr. Stock Will Conduct Work Oct. 27, 29, 30

By Cecil Smith.

A repetition of the seventh symphony by Dimitri Shostakovich will be one of the early features of the Chicago Symphony orchestra's season of subscription concerts in Orchestra hall. When Frederick Stock conducted the 75-minute symphony at Ravinia park on Aug. 22 the public's response was so tremendous that he determined at that time to include the work in the Orchestra hall series at the earliest possible date. It will be presented at the Tuesday matinée on Oct. 27, and in the Thursday-Friday concert pair on Oct. 29-30.

No symphony in modern times—and perhaps no symphony in musical history—has ever been prepared for by such a barrage of publicity.

Long before Arturo Toscanini brought the music to its first hearing on a radio broadcast in July, millions of Americans had heard the story of its conception. With mixed patriotism and romanticism they were able to picture Shostakovich snatching precious minutes away from wartime duties as a fire warden in order to set down, a few at a time, the thousands of notes that comprise the mammoth score. They had heard and read of Shostakovich's intention to make the symphony both a memorial to Russian heroes of the bitter conflict and an inspirational prognosis of the ultimate triumph of freedom.

• • •

Against so powerfully emotionalized a background, the first reactions of American listeners to the symphony were naturally anything but detached. During the radio broadcast and in later concert performances in the Berkshires and at Ravinia the audiences were swept away by the lofty intentions of the work, and anything like dispassionate criticism was the exception rather than the rule.

Up to now much of what has been said about Shostakovich's seventh symphony has veered toward one extreme or another. Those who, by the thousands, were willing to accept the intention for the fact were left speechless with patriotic enthusiasm. On the other hand, some critics, especially in New York and London, endeavored to create a balanced public opinion by leaning over backward to point out some of the technical deficiencies of the symphony, and to label much of its material ephemeral and substandard in actual musical content.

The forthcoming performances will be exceptionally valuable, for they will enable listeners generally to assess the worth of the music with calmer realism than the first hearing permitted. I suspect, if my own memories of the Ravinia première are trustworthy, that extremists with conflicting attitudes will find themselves drawn toward a mutual middle ground, and that nobody will continue to call the Shostakovich seventh either the greatest or the worst large musical composition of our time.

Certainly the music is characterized by genuine nobility of purpose. The plan of the symphony is spacious; not only the length but the orchestral grandeur of the work give it a feeling of importance. This feeling is enhanced by the urgency of some of the themes—notably the opening introductory theme of the first movement and the hymnlike tune which brings the finale to its peroration. In several of the more comtemplative themes a considerable quality of introspective beauty is attained. If some of the thematic material may be accused of a lack of inspiration, at least the charge is not generally applicable, for the symphony is built, in the main, out of well conceived and often stirring germinal materials.

The single great deficiency of the symphony lies in the composer's inability to develop his materials with the architectural bigness implied by a 75-minute symphony. One mannerism becomes a cliche by the time it has been employed in several different places—the mannerism of repeating a short idea over and over and over. In the first movement the climactic section which has often been likened to Ravel's "Bolero" continues the monotonous repetition of a brief folklike idea for 12 minutes, with constantly increasing orchestration, but with a law of diminishing returns as the interest of the theme itself becomes rapidly exhausted. Not content with this one primitive climax, Shostakovich employs precisely the same device, tho not for quite so long a time, in crucial passages in two other movements. The final climax seems rather redundant because it arises from this elementary technical procedure, which had pretty much exhausted its possibilities for surprise and suspense three movements earlier.

While I confess that the music seemed less sprawling and formless in actual performance than it had looked in advance study of the printed score, I still found nothing to warrant comparison with the structural mastery of the great 19th century symphonists. From the constructional point of view it cannot be mentioned in the same breath with even so underprivileged and maligned a composer as Anton Bruckner, and to suggest that it belongs in the great symphonic line instituted by Haydn and Beethoven is purest tommyrot.

Like all of Shostakovich's earlier symphonies, the seventh is an odd and personal mixture of genuineness with the baldest opportunism, and of honorable workmanship with superficially clever evasion of compositional difficulties.

Mr. Stock admits that his blue pencil fingers itch to delete some passages which add mere length without increasing the cogency of the music. But his restraint is admirable in the matter. He recognizes that the symphony must be heard fully, not once but several times, in its complete form in order that fair judgments may be made. Accordingly, when he presents the music again in October, it will once more constitute an entire program by itself, and the empty measures will still be there along with the full ones, so that you and I can hear it all again without editorial deletions.

I am willing to hazard the guess, however, that if Mr. Stock conducts the symphony again in 1944 at least 15 minutes of its running time will have been lopped off. For in the long distant future, when the program of the music has lost its immediate application, any 75-minute work becomes a drug on the market. For now, however, it should remain as it is, and it will remain so.

TO PLAY WITH ORCHESTRA

Making her debut with the Chicago Symphony orchestra during the season opening Oct. 15 is the Viennese pianist, Hilde Somer. Miss Somer will appear at the Tuesday afternoon concert on Jan. 26.

Classical Recordings

By Claudia Cassidy.

Three favorite singers recently added new albums to the record shelves—Alexander Kipnis with a group of Russian folk songs [Victor M-917], Grace Moore with a program of French songs and arias [Victor M-918] and Lily Pons with a set of Mozart arias conducted by Bruno Walter [Columbia M-518].

The Kipnis songs might serve as belated encores to his concert last season with the Woman's Symphony orchestra—that memorable night when no encores had been prepared and the audience refused to take no for an answer. Here, with the twanging accompaniment of the Tartar guitar known as the balalaika, Mr. Kipnis sings 10 songs deeply rooted in the Russian temperament, and sings them richly with the plushy nap that smooths the robust edges of a great voice.

Back of these songs lies the curious melancholy of the Slav, which savors sorrow to the enjoyable hilt, and thru them run threads of his unpredictable tenacity, his flair for ironic understatement. For instance, the Lullaby, which looks so innocent and sounds so gentle, is for no drowsy child, but for a condemned man to be hanged at dawn.

Mr. Kipnis sings in his native Russian, but good English texts are printed in the accompanying leaflet. Many of the songs are familiar to concert audiences, and several have been arranged for Mr. Kipnis by his relative by marriage, Hans L. Heniot. The recording is full of vitality.

• • •

The amorous opulence which is the best of Grace Moore's singing has a field day in two songs of her Gallic choice. In the dusky warmth of Paladilhe's "Psyche" [which could be sung by Charpentier's Louise without a shift of emotional gear] and in Hahn's soaring "Si mes vers avaient des ailes," she sings with a lush intensity that fills the listening air with life.

Not quite so much Miss Moore's song, but done with restraint if not with insight, is Duparc's frail and tenuous pastoral, "Phylide." Wilfred Pelletier's orchestral accompaniment to this is remarkably sensitive, and the general effect holds up, particularly on second hearing.

The album also holds three Massenet arias, the Gavotte and farewell to the table from "Manon," and the familiar "Il est doux, il est bon," from "Herodiade." These are typical of Miss Moore's Massenet, often beautiful in tone, but flawed by faulty intonation and a clash of personal temperament which puts broad shoulders on heroines who should be fragile.

• • •

The best of Miss Pons' Mozart is the engaging "Voi che sapete" of Cherubino, that irresistibly beguiling melody from "The Marriage of Figaro." It bolsters my private conviction that Miss Pons may yet sing Melisande and possibly even the Juggler, which no one since Mary Garden has dared to tackle.

Otherwise, the album is in florid style more typical of the little coloratura, with the staccato indignation of the Queen of the Night elbowing arias of Blondine and Constanze from "The Abduction from the Harem" and winding up with the liquid "Alleluja," which would sound better if you did not remember Maria Kurenko's magical performance toward the end of the Grant Park season.

Sibelius: Symphony No. 5, in E flat, played by the Cleveland orchestra under the direction of Artur Rodzinski [Columbia M-514]. Maybe five is the Polish conductor's lucky number. He scored his major Ravinia success last summer with the Shostakovich Fifth and now he turns out one of his finest recordings in the Sibelius Fifth. I never understand why this oddly economical work, so swayed by rustlings, pluckings, and sighings, should be described as genial, a favorite, if incomprehensible, tag. But any ear will understand that this crackling performance is a superb job of orchestral direction and definition.

• • •

Gypsy Melodies: Played by Joseph Szigeti, violinist, with Andor Foldes at the piano [Columbia M-513]. Already on the best seller list, this small album holds the gypsy secrets of the bold stroke and warm, almost liquid, pungency of tone. It offers not only the usual Slavonic Dances of Dvorak, arranged by Kreisler, and the inevitable Brahms in the Joachim transcription, but also Hubay's brilliant Hungarian Rhapsody from "Scenes de la Csarda," and Szigeti's own arrangement of an intermezzo from Kodaly's "Hary Janos."

Symphony Will Begin Season on October 15

demand for tickets, which has increased each season.

The Young People's concerts consist of six concerts each, all played on Wednesday afternoons, starting at 3:45, or after school. Series A, opening Nov. 4, is sold out, and as this subscription sale includes the gallery, it accounts for 2,582 season tickets. Series B, opening Nov. 18, is not quite sold out, but probably will be before the concerts open. These performances are designed for children, and talented children appear as soloists. They are worth wangling your way in to hear, if you can capture a child to get you past the door.

The popular concerts are divided into two series of 11 concerts each, starting Oct. 17 and Oct. 31, respectively. These are not open to season subscription. Tickets—and there never are enough to fill the demand—are sold thru agencies established in mercantile, industrial, and welfare centers thruout the city. Thru these agencies, tickets are available at discounts of from 20 to 30 per cent. If you want to establish such an agency, the orchestral management is willing to discuss the idea.

With the exception of four of the Saturday nights "Pops," the Chicago Symphony orchestra plays all of these 102 concerts, plus its annual 10 performances at the Pabst theater in Milwaukee. Its four vacation nights on the home front are filled in by the Civic orchestra, its training school and particular pride.

This same Civic orchestra, which in its 23 years of existence has furnished hundreds of symphonic players to orchestras over the country, is now worth its weight, not in gold, but in something far more important, to its big brother, the Chicago symphony. It represents a reserve of highly trained men who will replace symphony players taken into the armed services.

Just how many Chicago symphony men will be called into service, the management does not yet know. So far, its losses have been negligible by comparison with the orchestras of Indianapolis and Pittsburgh, shorn of about 40 players each.

The fact that the Chicago symphony possess such a reserve is typical of the meticulous solidity of the organization. In its long history, the orchestra has had two conductors, two homes, and two general managers, a record so nearly unique as to cause respectful pause for consideration.

Frederick Stock is starting his 48th season with the orchestra, his 38th as conductor. Concerts continue at Orchestra hall, where they have been played since they moved from the Auditorium in 1904. Henry E. Voegeli became assistant manager in 1900, and succeeded Frederick J. Wessels as manager in 1927. Hans Lange, Mr. Stock's associate conductor, is starting his seventh season.

Yet to pin down responsibility for success is no easy matter, because credit has a way of passing from conductor to orchestra to manager to the board of directors, each claiming the other deserves the laurels. But a typical reason for success is the diligence of Mr. Voegeli, who is in his office by day and at the concerts by night.

By this time, most people believe Mr. Voegeli was born at Orchestra hall, wearing a dinner coat and a diplomatic smile. But once upon a time he was secretary of the Chicago Banker, and as such, covered many a banquet which lasted half the night, then wrote his story, turned it in, and snatched an hour or so of sleep before reporting for work at 9 in the morning. It seemed to him in those busy days that there must be an easier way to make a living. So he joined the Chicago Symphony orchestra and has worked day and night, quite happily, ever since.

A sensitive indicator of orchestral auguries, Mr. Voegeli believes this will be a good season. Deliveries of season tickets to date amount to more than $104,000 as against $108,000 at this time a year ago. Last year's total sales amounted to $196,000. Mr. Voegeli expects a lively single ticket sale to bolster the box office.

Early in the year a good deal of pressure was brought on the orchestra to raise its prices to meet mounting costs. The management refused to do this, and it also refused to cut the quality of the concerts. Horowitz is missing from the list of pianists, but that list holds Rachmaninoff, Rubinstein, Schnabel and Arrau. Milstein is missing from the list of violinists, but that list holds Heifetz, Elman, Kreisler and Francescatti. Carroll Glenn, who had spectacular success last season, is returning.

Seven new pianists, no less, are on the list. Luboschutz and Nemenoff are a well known piano team, new only to Chicago Symphony concerts. Leonard Pennario is a young American, a protége of both Rachmaninoff and Horowitz. Hilde Somer is a Viennese who studied with Rudolf Serkin, Arnold Estrella is the Brazilian winner of the Guiomar Novaes contest sponsored by Columbia concerts. All three are making Chicago debuts. Sidney Foster, who has won a trail of prizes since leaving his native South Carolina, appeared last season with the Illinois Symphony orchestra, playing Beethoven's C Minor Concerto. Eugenia Buxton, of Memphis, Tenn., has appeared with the Civic orchestra, and in recital at Orchestra hall.

Altogether, it looks like a typical season with an extra accent on young American talent. If the orchestra chose, it might make some fancy phrases out of "business as usual" in the midst of world-wide havoc and spreading desolation. Instead, it prefers to go steadily about its job of sustaining on the home front the kind of life America believes to be worth fighting for.

Cromwell Will Produce New Play in November

A new play is in the offing. John Cromwell is in New York from Hollywood to produce the work, which, temporarily entitled "I Was There," is, he says, "different from the other plays of that class, in that it has a new angle, not yet touched upon." Altho the script is not yet finished, the production is planned for November.

Current Music News

Edna Phillips.

Edna Phillips has returned to her old post as first harpist of the Philadelphia orchestra, according to Eugene Ormandy, music director and conductor, and will appear at the opening of the Philadelphia season next Friday night, Oct. 2. Miss Phillips was the first woman member of the orchestra when she was engaged by Leopold Stokowski 12 years ago. She resigned in the spring of 1941 to devote herself to solo appearances and chamber music, and returned by special invitation when her successor, Lynne Wainwright, also resigned.

Dimitri Shostakovich, famous Russian composer, has been invited to appear as guest conductor of the New York Philharmonic symphony orchestra for the first two weeks in November. The invitation was sent by Arturo Toscanini at the request of the orchestra's board of directors, and bolstered by a request asking the aid of Ambassador Maxim Litvinov as "a music lover and a diplomat." The composer was told he could conduct any of his own compositions or anything he chose to select from the works of other soviet composers.

Belen Ortega, a young Mexican girl, draws the honor of opening the music season of 1942-'43 with a costume recital of Spanish and Mexican music at Kimball hall Thursday night at 8:30. Formerly an employé of the Mexican government, Miss Ortega took a leave of absence when she won first prize in a series of auditions. She appeared in a New York night club, got her leave extended, spent four months making radio and concert appearances in Puerto Rico, and got her leave extended again. With true Latin courtesy, the Mexican government has met the emergency. Having resigned itself to the loss of her secretarial services, her former department periodically mails her a blank upon which she can make formal request for another extension. Miss Ortega's first Chicago concert appearance will offer a group of songs by Manuel de Falla, an aria from Puccini's "La Bohème" and numerous Spanish and Mexican songs by Granados, Nin, Cardenas, Ponce, and others. Robert MacDonald is the accompanist.

Something new in pools for conservation of resources is announced by Kansas City and Wichita, which will share an orchestra under the direction of Karl Krueger. The players will be known in Kansas City as the Kansas City Philharmonic and in Wichita as the Wichita symphony. For coördination of regional planning, a board known as the Orchestral Society of the Midlands has been formed, to serve in purely advisory capacity. Functioning as a kind of split musical personality, the orchestra will operate as a separate corporation in each city.

The Oak Park-River Forest Symphony Orchestra association announces four concerts for its 11th season, opening Nov. 17 at the Oak Park club when Harold Bauer, pianist, is soloist under the direction of Gladys Welge. Subsequent performances take place on Jan. 12, featuring the winner of a contest for stringed instruments; on March 9, featuring members of the orchestra, and on April 27, when the soloist is Licia Albanese, soprano of the Chicago and Metropolitan companies.

The newly organized Youth Piano Symphony orchestra, which plans to present its first concert at Orchestra hall March 15, has six places to be filled in its personnel of 22 children at 12 pianos. Talented children between the ages of 12 and 16 are requested to apply for audition at Wurlitzer hall, 111 South Wabash avenue. Auditions begin Sept. 28 and continue thru Oct. 15. The young orchestra's debut will feature the first movement of Mozart's concerto in D minor, with 12 year old Irene Marilynn Eckert as soloist. Irene won the piano contest of the Society of American Musicians two years in succession, in 1941 and 1942.

The Russian Trio, made up of Nina Mesirow Minchin, pianist, Ennio Bolognini, cellist, and Michael Wilkomirski, violinist, will open its ninth season of chamber music concerts at the Arts club, 400 North Michigan avenue, Tuesday, Nov. 3, at 11:30 a. m. Subsequent concerts will be played Dec. 1, Jan. 5, Feb. 2, March 2, and April 6, all at the same hour. They are sponsored by the Chicago Chamber Music society. The Russian trio will appear with the Woman's Symphony orchestra at its opening concert of the Orchestra hall season Oct. 21, playing Beethoven's triple concerto.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Marguerite Chapman and William Wright, those two young people who did such outstanding work in "Parachute Nurse," are co-featured again in "A Man's World." And again distinguish themselves pleasantly.

A long time ago Mary Mannering starred in a play called "A Man's World" and I wondered if, by any chance, this picture could be a screen adaptation. . . . It isn't.

• • •

The latter is a racketeer-war melodrama that starts in a big city hospital with a murder and ends far from there in a small chromium producing locality that also serves as a backwater, secretly harboring people whom one Bugsy Nelson thinks should be kept out of circulation.

Here is Blossom Donovan, Bugsy's one time sweetheart, running a dance and drink "Palace." Here comes Mona Jackson, a nurse, who had been on the floor at the time two men had turned off the oxygen in a certain tank and had seen their faces clearly . . . So clearly that—"I could identify them anywhere." . . . Which is why Bugsy's cohorts pick her up and Bugsy dispatches her to this place without a name. . . . He is sure of her silence—for he has threatened the safety of a beloved young brother in military school should she give out any information. . . .

So Mona finds herself in good hearted Blossom's house. Here she meets the O'Driscoll brothers. . . . Dan is in charge of the government's chromium activities. . . . Chic falls in love with her.

• • •

This fact brings Dan down around her ears like a hurricane. . . . You see he thinks she's like the other girls who live at Blossom's. . . . But he learns—AND LOVES—and whom do you think Mona marries?

Sabotage and melodrama have their innings in this tale, which isn't in any way remarkable. The picture's pull is purely thru cast personalities—Miss Chapman, Mr. Wright, Larry Parks, Wynne Gibson—all delight—and minor rôles are neatly played.

See you tomorrow.

"LOVES OF EDGAR A. POE"

Tour Company of 'The Moon Is Down' Quits in Detroit

The touring company of John Steinbeck's "The Moon Is Down," which has been mentioned as a probable fall attraction in Chicago, has disbanded at Detroit, because Conrad Nagle, who played the chief Nazi, has gone into the army. The circumstance is unfortunate, because the Actors' Company of Chicago had the sad experience of losing the performing rights abruptly, on the pretext that the touring company would soon arrive in the city. While no presentation of the play is contemplated here now, a new company will be formed to tour California and the west coast.

May Pass Up Part.

After several months' earnest consideration, Ruth Chatterton has seemingly given up her plan to appear in "The Incredible Woodhull," a play about the American woman's rights leader who ran for President in the 1870's.

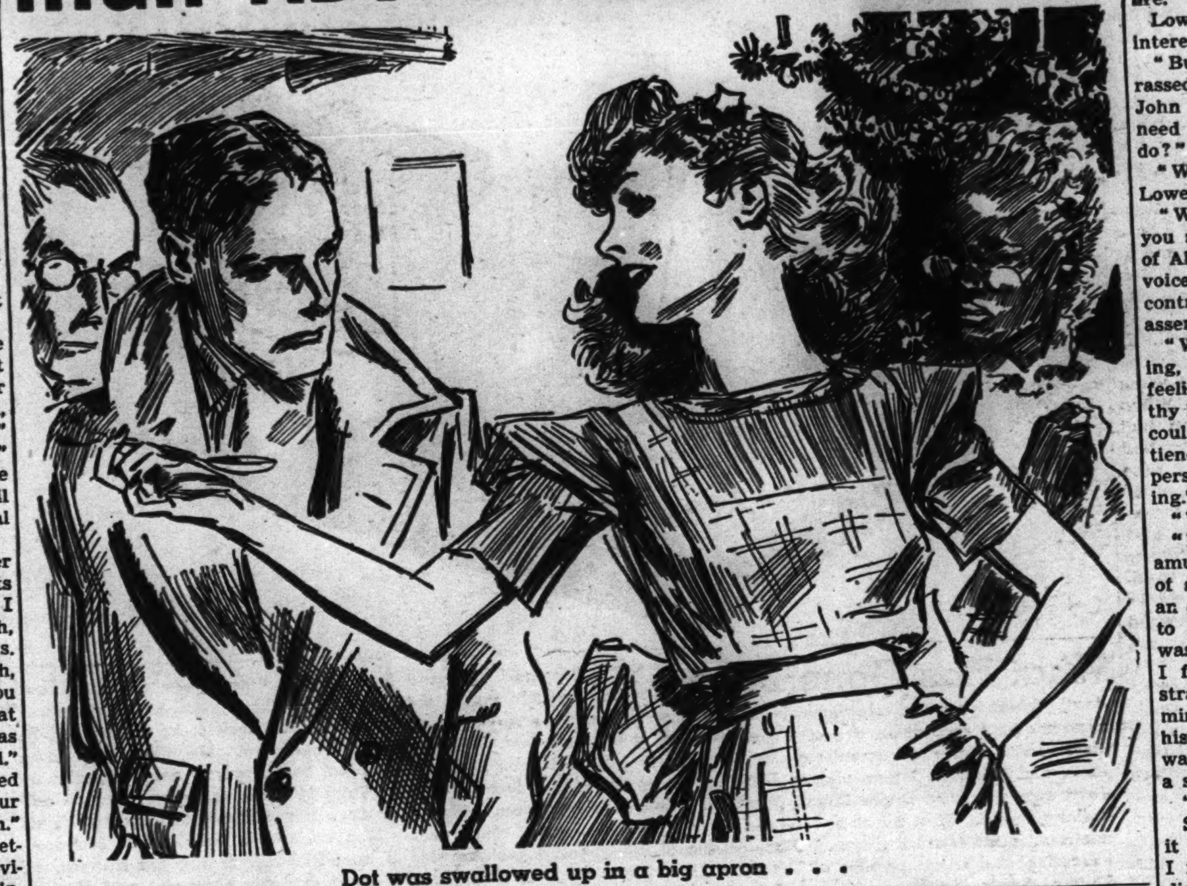
HIGH ADVENTURE

By FIELDING JAMES

(Copyright: 1942: News Syndicate Co., Inc.)



Dot was swallowed up in a big apron . . .

OUTSIDE one could hear the shouts and laughter of children playing in the snow, and churchbells ringing in the distance. Inside were two deadly sober men. The judge was standing at the window. Light flurries of snow blew in his face, but he did not seem to notice it.

He was staring into space, seeing things which made the veins stand out on his forehead and his mouth set in a thin, hard line.

"Tell me one thing, Craig," he growled. "If Towne were a suicide, and we agree that he was, why does that girl keep saying that she killed her husband?"

Craig made no reply. He knew that the question was purely rhetorical.

"It certainly gums things up," the judge went on. "If Dot says it often enough, we may believe it after awhile. If she says it often enough, she will begin to believe it herself."

"If she says it often enough," Craig said drily, "she will have the police on her trail, and you will all be plunged into a highly sensational murder trial."

"Exactly. With my own son under suspicion, and the other two suspects the daughters of the best friend I ever had." He sighed, a heavy sigh, of which he was quite unconscious. "Maybe you begin to see, Randolph, why I did not jump for joy when you breezed in this morning and said that you had come to spend Christmas with me. I'm not up to it, that's all."

"Sit down, John," Craig suggested mildly. "Sorry you do not see your blessings just now. I'm one of them."

He stretched his long legs and settled back in his chair with every evidence of intending to stay there indefinitely. The judge surveyed him critically. Randolph Craig was a man in the late thirties, slim-waisted, broad-shouldered, with a trim, hard body and a lean, tanned face. The face was unsmiling, but redeemed from severity by friendly, attentive eyes, singularly kind.

"You're a swell friend, Rannie," the judge admitted. "You always were, and I can't see you've changed much in 15 years. But today I'm poor company. I know it and it makes me uncomfortable. Just how do you figure that you are a blessing? What good are you to me just now?"

"Plenty," Craig drawled good-humoredly. "As soon as I finish this cigar, I'm going up to that big house on the hill. You will give me some sort of introduction and a star that I can flash if I need it, and I will find out for you every thing you want to know."

The judge gasped slightly, then his face lightened with hope. "By heck," he began, "if you're serious——"

"Must I be serious?"

"Why didn't I remember that this is right up your alley," the judge exclaimed, his eyes eager. Then he slumped again. "Look here, Rannie, I can't let you do this. You can't spend Christmas this way. A busman's holiday!"

"Sit down, John. Sit down and relax."

For several minutes the two men smoked in a friendly silence. But the judge grew restless and returned to the painful subject.

"Did you ever meet Towne, Rannie?" he asked.

"O, yes. He was ubiquitous, you know. I met him and I met his wife."

"You met our Dorothy?"

"No. It was some other wife."

"You've got the wrong man——"

"I met Alan Towne, your ace lecturer, your brilliant fellow townsman, your indefatigable traveler and gentleman adventurer, who was fond of referring to himself as a citizen of the world."

The judge squirmed at the gentle, mocking voice.

"That's he," he admitted. "But you're wrong about the wife."

"My mistake. I had only his word for it."

"Aw, Rannie, you're all wet," Bradley said hotly. "I tell you Towne was not a married man when you met him. He had been engaged to Lowell Preston, Amos Preston's older daughter, for years. About two years ago Lowell broke it off, and Towne asked for an indefinite leave of absence from his college duties and went away. He returned this fall.

"When he lost the older girl, the younger one caught him on the rebound. Is that it?" Craig asked. "Tell me, are the two sisters alike?"

"No." It was an emphatic monosyllable. The judge fairly shouted the little word.

"Do they get on well, these so different sisters?"

"You don't get the picture, Rannie," the judge said, with a touch of irritation. "Dorothy—Dot, we call her—is Lowell's little sister, her baby sister. The girls' mother died when Lowell was 16 and Dot a child of six. The girls' father was the president of our little college. Lowell assumed charge of his house and brought up the kid. Of course Dot is spoiled. She is too pretty for her own good. But I will say one thing for her. She thinks Lowell is just about perfect."

"How do you feel toward this older woman?"

"O, Lowell is a wonderful woman. She's mothered the whole town, including me. She's been like a good daughter to me since my wife died. I can't forget what she did for my boy. He was a wild, unhappy sort of lad. When the rest of the world was riding him hard, she got hold of him, and he has come thru whole and sane. She pulls the foolish girl students thru their scraps—does a better job than the dean. And now! Her own sister elopes with a man 20 years older than she is, goes on a honeymoon to Panama, beats it home in two weeks, throws her arms around my son in the pleasant privacy of a station platform jammed with friends and proceeds to have hysterics, then prances off home with her husband as if the world were her oyster."

"That was yesterday?" Craig asked.

"Was it only yesterday! As soon as she got home, Dot called up here as natural as you please to commandeer Marvin. He was to come right over and help her hang presents on the tree. She said that her husband, bless his heart, was too clumsy for words; that his education had been neglected in his youth. I told Marvin not to go a step. I was upset over the boy. He was looking white and sober and grownup. Marvin said that he thought he'd better go; that he thought there was a job for him over there. 'I think you don't quite understand, father,' he said, 'how fond I have been of Dorothy'."

The judge took off his glasses and polished them.

"I'm telling you this, Rannie," he apologized, "because you're entitled to know. If you're going to mix in this, you are entitled to know."

"So Marvin went?"

"Yes, I tagged along. I felt like a fool, but I tagged along. You see Marvin and Towne had had words before. Marvin thought that Towne made himself too much at home at the Prestons. He thought he was too fatherly with Dot. Once Towne went too far—or Marvin thought he did—and Marvin told him he was a dirty skunk and ordered him out of the house—"

"The Preston house?" Craig asked, eyebrows slightly lifted.

"Sure. And Towne came right back at him and ordered Marvin out of the house——"

"The Preston house?"

"Sure. Then Dorothy stormed at both, and ordered them both out of the house. It's not Dorothy's house either. It's Lowell's. But that's neither here nor there. The point is, Marvin left pronto and Towne stayed. Towne had the better technique. Two days later he and Dot eloped. Went to Cleveland and were married and went off to Panama for a honeymoon."

"Why Panama?"

The judge frowned slightly at the apparent irrelevance.

"Why not?" he grumbled. "Any place does for a honeymoon."

"So you went with Marvin to the Prestons," Craig prompted him.

"Yes, and I was glad I did. I felt a lot better. The scene at the railway station seemed just a bad dream. The house was beautiful. Holly everywhere, and mistletoe, and a strong sweet smell of freshly cut pine boughs. In the hall was a tall tree, the sort that the girls' grandfather had in mind when he ordered that hall built two stories high. He always said he did it to accommodate a proper Christmas tree.

The Judge Tells of Hearing News

"Dot was swallowed up in a big white apron, looking like a sweet angel and acting like a little devil. She was mixing punch and tasting it and smacking her lips and warning Aunt Sally not to let her boy Tom get a whiff of that good punch. Aunt Sally is the old colored mammy. She was putting on her usual Christmas face, calling up her old friends, the police, and demanding that they go right over to that low-down tavern and pull her boy Tom out and cart him home to help her mop up."

"It doesn't suggest tragedy," Craig commented. "But where was Towne? And where was Lowell?"

"They were in the library. Towne was holding forth, as usual, and Lowell was tying up presents and being a good listener. I went home in high good humor. I got out some little gifts I had bought, and tried writing verses for them. The verses didn't track, but I was feeling gay when the telephone rang. I thought I was going to be asked to supper. It was Lowell, to tell me that Towne was dead."

"Potassium cyanide, you say?"

"Yes, enough to kill a dozen men."

"It wasn't such a bad idea," Craig said mildly, "but he might have waited until after Christmas. Do your telephoning now, John. Pave the way for me and I'll run along."

"Sure you won't be sorry?" Bradley said uncomfortably.

"Quite sure. By the way, I saw Towne only yesterday."

"Now, Rannie!" the judge said.

"Yes, I did. It was in Chicago, at the railway station. I thought it was he at the time, and bowed, but he turned away abruptly and left me standing there, half way thru my bow."

"You don't say!" the judge said politely. Plainly he had more serious matters on his mind. "Look here, Rannie, there's one thing I forgot to tell you."

"Yes?"

"We haven't any turkey."

Craig shook with laughter. "O, try the neighbors," he urged. "Borrow a drumstick for me. Don't let me down like that."

As Craig made his way across the pleasant rolling campus, he found himself in an unusual mood. There was a pleasant sting in the air. The world about him looked bright and clean. It was all so decent, the comfortable homes, the friendly neighbors, the laughing greetings, the frolicking children, the atmosphere of good will. He should have been soothed and refreshed, but he found himself filled with a vague unrest, something akin to pain in his heart. What had he to do with these primitive satisfactions? A man with such an exacting profession as his.

Yet, as he approached the white house on the hill, he caught himself humming an old carol, and, in spite of his grim errand, he felt a stir of interest as he lifted the old knocker on the door.

Lowell met him at the door. He was not prepared for Lowell. He had had a vague image in his mind. She was the patient older sister, the good neighbor, the lone woman who comforted herself by mothering youngsters. She was the old maid who had fallen for Alan Towne and let him philander along year after year, and wind up by stealing the old girl's one precious lamb from under her very nose. An admirable woman, no doubt, but not exactly intriguing.

He was not prepared for Lowell. She was straight and slim, as soldierly in her bearing as was he himself. She had a beautiful low, broad forehead, eyes wide apart and soft and brown. She met his gaze frankly and fearlessly. She walked easily and unconsciously, therefore with perfect grace. Decidedly, Lowell was a surprise.

Her face was a little white, and there were dark circles under her eyes, but she met him with a friendly smile, and led him into the library. They sat down in front of a bright little fire.

"Trim it all you like," the girl suggested. "Some people are piggish about their fires, but ours like to receive attention from callers."

"Fine!" Craig said heartily. "They relieve one of embarrassment. When at a loss what to say next, poke the fire."

Lowell looked at him with quick interest.

"But you must not feel embarrassed," she said earnestly. "Uncle John said you wanted to help us. We need it. What would you like me to do?"

"What help can you give me, Miss Lowell?"

"Would you care to have me tell you something of the last half hour of Alan's life?" she said slowly. Her voice was now even, and carefully controled. She waited for his nod of assent, then began.

"We sat here in the library talking, just as you and I are. I was feeling friendly toward Alan. Dorothy had been very trying but nothing could break down his tact and patience. With me he was carefully impersonal, and his stories were amusing."

"Were you amused?"

"No," she admitted, "I was not amused. I had heard the same sort of stories so many times, and I had an odd sensation that I was listening to somebody play an old record. It was really painful, the more so that I felt sure that Alan was under a strain. He did not stop talking one minute. His face was a mask, all but his eyes. They were alert, almost wary. The man I was looking at was a stranger, and he was afraid."

"Afraid of what?"

She shrugged. "You may expunge it from the record, but I did feel it. I felt it so strongly that I tried to distract him. I talked to him of Dorothy; how sure I was that if he loved her enough he could break down her apparently irreconcilable attitude toward him."

"Was he responsive?"

"No. He said indifferently that I was mistaken, but in any case he would not make the effort. The marriage, he said, had been a mistake; that he was not cut out for domesticity, but rather for high adventure."

Craig turned away to hide his mounting anger with the man. As he did so, something arrested his attention.

"What are you looking at, Mr. Craig?" Lowell asked.

"At the wall."

Lowell waited.

"What pictures have been removed, Miss Preston?" Craig asked bluntly.

"Three photographs which Alan sent me a few months ago. They were some which he had taken, and he was much pleased with them. I do not know why. They were not nearly so pretty as others he had taken. He said they were more interesting."

"More difficult to get, no doubt," Craig said pleasantly. "Did he want them back?"

"Yes, he did. He took them down yesterday."

"Thank you. Are you going to finish what you were telling me?"

Lowell went on, rather wearily.

"When Alan had so firmly declared his marriage a failure, I seemed to have nothing more to say. Nor had he. He sat slumped in his chair, staring fixedly out of the window. Suddenly he got to his feet, said abruptly, that he was going across the hall to get him a whisky and soda, and left the room. I sat there watching a little stick burn out, five minutes, possibly ten. Then Aunt Sally screamed. She had found Alan."

After a decent interval Craig spoke.

"Alan received no message while he was sitting here, no message at all? Nobody came to speak to him?"

"No."

Craig looked at her coolly.

"Quite all right," he said laconically. "Lie, if you must."

The girl went white. "Why didn't you just pretend you believed me?" she cried. "You had been so kind."

Craig chewed his underlip savagely.

"I know," Lowell said, with quick generosity. "You come here to help us, and then we hold out on you. We make it hard for you. I'll tell you now."

Craig rose hastily, in protest.

"Sit down," the girl ordered. The man obeyed. "Three minutes before Alan left the room, my sister Dorothy had called him to the door. She told me apologetically that she want-

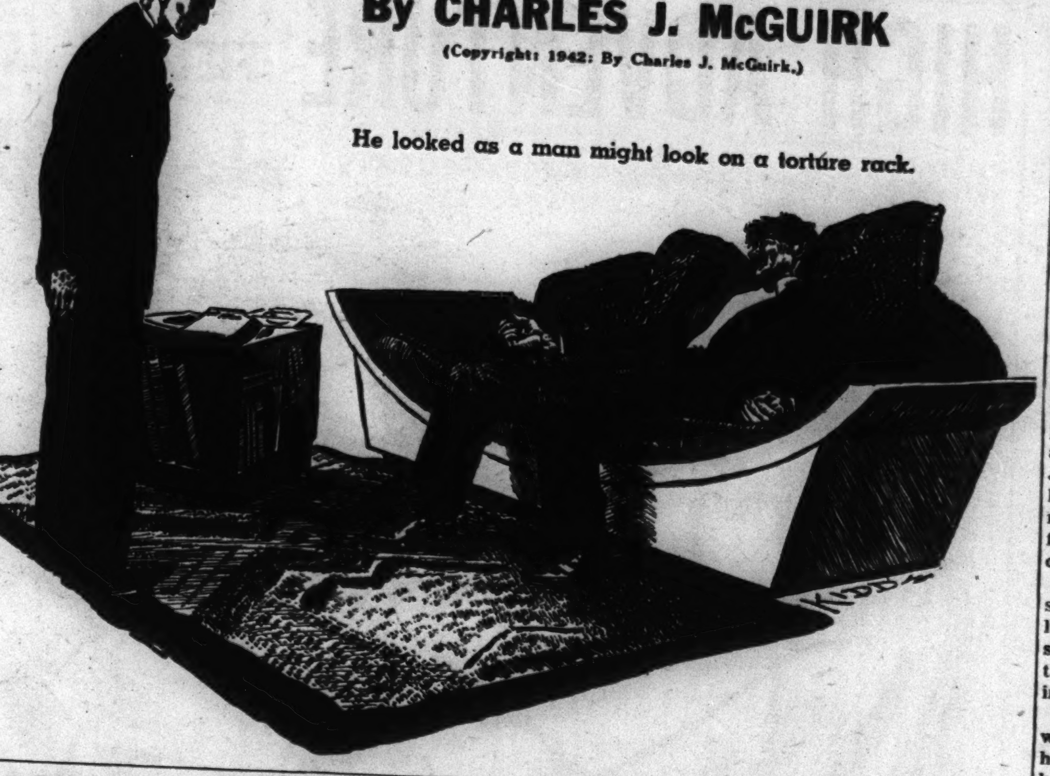
NEXT SUNDAY—"THE FIRST DAY," A SHORT STORY BY ETHEL LINA WHITE

SOMEBODY WHISPERED

By CHARLES J. McGUIRK

(Copyright: 1942: By Charles J. McGuirk.)



He looked as a man might look on a torture rack.

What Has Gone Before

Miles Barcland, Chicago financier who has risen to power and riches thru blackmail, extortion, and bribery, receives a whispered death threat over the telephone in his hideout. Unable to recognize the voice or the sex of the Whisperer, he searches thru records in a secret compartment of his bedroom, hoping to get some clew. He chooses the four most incriminating documents: a death-threatening letter to him by Duke Herndon, bootlegger; a death-threatening letter and two love letters signed "Elfreda;" a record of murders ordered by Tony Monoco, racketeer; and an affidavit swearing that Drake Royal, gambler, killed a certain man. Miles turns over this evidence to Paul Brand, his lifelong friend. That night he attends the opening of a night club run by Monoco, where Lucille Day, Monoco's mistress, is the feature singer. Other guests at the opening include: Miles' son, Richard; Brand, Jim Hallard, oil executive and silent partner of Detective Dan O'Malley; Ann Marshall, Hallard's fiancee; Margaret and Herbert Severn, Ann's flirtatious sister and jealous brother-in-law; Duke Herndon; and Drake Royal. Miles is blackmailing Ann into breaking her engagement to Jim and promising to marry Richard by threatening to show Herbert letters Margaret wrote a gigolo. With Miles looking on, Ann gives Jim back his ring. Lights suddenly go out in the night club and some one shoots at Miles but misses. Shortly after 3 o'clock the next morning Jim is awakened by what he thinks is his telephone ringing, but when he answers it, the line is clear. He decides to go to Miles' hideout and demand Margaret's letters. When he reaches there, he finds Richard drunk in the living room, and Miles murdered in the bedroom. As he is picking up a brooch he thinks is Ann's, police step out of hiding and demand it. Richard remembers having seen two different women come and go from his father's apartment that night and later having been struck by some one. But he was too drunk to remember the women or his assailant. Miles left a note to Brand asking him to find the murderer. Brand gets O'Malley to work on the case and turns over the four documents Miles gave him to Jim. Jim telephones Herndon, Royal, and Monoco, telling them that he has the documents, then tapes the documents to the body of Nick, his valet. Jim has Ann hide in an unoccupied apartment of Nick's sister, to keep police from questioning her, but Richard learns about the hideout, gets drunk and tells many others. The Whisperer telephones Jim, then Ann, threatening death if they don't stop trying to find the murderer. Jim, accompanied by police, goes to Ann's hideout but finds Brand there. Brand says the Whisperer telephoned him, threatening Ann. Ann denies owning the brooch police question her about, and shows them one she has like it. She tells Jim, Margaret admitting having been in Miles' apartment the night of the murder and having lost her brooch, but denied killing Miles. Both Tony and Richard arrive at Ann's hideout while police are there. Afterward, Tony sends for Jim and O'Malley, and his men search them in vain for Tony's record book. Royal tells Jim that "Elfreda" is Lucille Day. Ann psychoanalyses Richard and he remembers that Margaret and Lucille were the two women he met in his father's apartment the night of the murder. Lucille calls on Jim and pretends that "Elfreda" is a friend of hers and is anxious to get the letters she wrote Miles. When she learns Jim knows she is "Elfreda" she threatens him with a revolver. Later, Jim gets a telephone call from Richard, who tells him that Ann has been kidnaped. He orders Richard to go to his own apartment while he rushes to Ann's.

INSTALMENT XII.

ANN'S studio looked normal except for two or three little details. All the lights were on. The place seemed full of policemen and detectives. And Helga, Ann's maid, sat on the couch, weeping. The first thing Jim Hallard and Dan O'Malley noticed, when they were finally admitted, was that nothing had been disturbed.

That meant that Ann had put up no struggle. And that, in turn, meant that, at least, she hadn't been hurt—yet. The fact and its implication slipped thru the thick aura of fear and gloom that surrounded Jim. It made him thankful.

Besides him and Dan, there were three uniformed policemen and four plain-clothes men in the studio. Jim turned his attention to the group around the couch.

Capt. Mercer was leaning toward the hysterical maid. He spoke in a low voice. The big tough copper was as gentle as an old priest. Under his insistent prodding, she told her story.

She did not have much to tell. It was a little after dark. She had been preparing dinner in the kitchen when a soft knock came on the door. When she opened it, a masked man had sprung at her and clapped his hand over her mouth. She had just time to see there were two or three other masked men behind him. The second one had held her while the first pushed a soft handkerchief into her mouth and wrapped another handkerchief around her head to hold in the gag. The other two had stepped past them and gone toward the studio.

The two men who held her had tied her hands and feet with those small ropes on the table. They had pulled that light bag over her head and tied it around her neck, knotting it behind. Then they had lifted and carried her into her own bedroom and laid her on the bed. She had begun to struggle there, but one of the men slapped her hard.

After that, she had lain quiet and listened. She had heard nothing for a while. Then footsteps had come from the studio. They went thru the kitchen and out the back door. No, she didn't know how many. She had tried to count them, but she couldn't.

The two men in the bedroom with her had waited about five minutes. One of them had stepped over to the bed and tested the ropes on her wrists and ankles. He had felt thru the bag to be sure that the gag would stay in place and he tested the fastening at her neck. Then the two had left the room. She had heard them hurry thru the kitchen and out the kitchen door, which they closed behind them, and down the back stairs. She had twisted and turned.

Jim stopped listening to her because he knew she had nothing more important to tell. But Dick Barcland had. He had known about the kidnaping almost as soon as it had happened. Maybe he had known of it before. But how? Had the kidnapers taken him into their confidence? If they had, why should they? There was one obvious and unpleasant answer to that one. He could have engineered it. He could have seen that it was carried out and then have stepped away from it, either because of his drink jangled nerves or because "discovering" it might divert suspicion from him.

All at once, it was clear to Jim that Dick was not only the best kidnaper, but was also the best suspect in his father's murder. He had been responsible for discovering the kidnaping. He had been in his father's apartment when Miles Barcland was murdered. And he very easily could be the Whisperer, who had first told Miles he was going to be killed and then warned both him, Jim Hallard, and Ann to get off the case. Suddenly, Jim wanted very much to talk to Dick Barcland.

"Dan," he said to Dan O'Malley, "I'm going home. Get in touch with me there, will you?"

He walked into his own living room about 20 minutes later to find Nick Serento, in a white house coat, pretending not to watch Dick Barcland, who sat in a chair with his head between his hands. Dick looked up at Jim's entrance and he leaped to his feet and almost ran toward him. The welt on his face was livid. His eyes were wild and bloodshot. His face was haggard with anxiety.

"Any word?" he croaked and when Jim shook his head, "O, God!" Dick groaned. "They'll kill her, Jim. And I'll be her murderer as surely as if I'd shot her myself. If I had kept my mouth shut, maybe this never would have happened. But I didn't. I had to get drunk last night and spread it all over a barroom about my having remembered two of the women I met in the Rush street apartment the night my father was killed and about almost remembering who killed him." He turned away and walked across the floor, beating his hand with his fist. He turned again and confronted Jim. "You know why they kidnaped her, don't you? Because she was helping me remember my father's killer."

"How do you know that?" Jim demanded.

"They told me, when they told me she had been kidnaped," Dick explained. "That's why I had to see you. I had to tell you about the whisper."

Nick had taken Jim's hat and coat. As he left the room to put them away, Jim sat down.

"Sit down, Dick," he suggested calmly, "and tell me from the beginning. I don't know what you're talking about."

Barcland Tells of Call from Whisperer

"I got the call in the Celtic Bar," Dick sat down in the same chair, but he kept beating his hand with his fist. "The bartender handed me the telephone and somebody began to whisper. I was about half drunk. I couldn't understand them and I told them to speak louder. But they went on whispering and I concentrated.

"And they said something like this: 'I kidnaped Ann Marshall because she was trying to help you remember who killed your filthy father. Tell Jim Hallard I will kill her unless he gets out of this investigation. And I'll kill you, too, if you ever remember me.' I said, 'Quit trying to kid me.' But they whispered, 'Go out to her studio. You'll see,' and then they disconnected. I knew it was true. But I had to prove it. I rushed out of the bar and into a taxicab. When I got to Ann's I rang the bell again and again. Of course, there was no answer. So I called the janitor. He opened the door with his master key. You know what we found. Helga bound and gagged. Ann gone."

Nick came back to the hallway and stood there, listening.

"That was the first I knew about the detective," Dick went on. "He came into the studio past me and telephoned Capt. Mercer. I listened. And then I recognized him. I had been seeing him everywhere I went since the police questioned. Now I knew he had been following me all the time. I didn't wait. I ran out of there and called you."

It was at that moment that Jim realized Dick couldn't have engineered Ann's kidnaping. He had been under too close surveillance. The detective would have reported every one he had met, especially if he had met the type of men who had taken Ann. Dick was speaking again.

"Jim, do you think Ann is all right?" he asked. "Do you think we'll ever see her again?"

"I know we will," Jim told him.

"Listen, Jim," Dick said solemnly. "This is a promise. If anything happens to Ann, I'll kill myself. I'll execute myself for her murder, because I will have committed it. I wouldn't want anything like me to say alive when a woman as wonderful as she had been hurt or destroyed." He began to cry. Great, hard sobs shook his body. He leaned over in his chair. "Ann!" he whispered, "Ann!"

The night wore on. Dick was quiet now, lying on the couch. His nerves were jumping, but he refused to take a drink. "There are better things to do," he said. "Remembering the devil who killed my father, for one thing."

"Can you remember whether it was a man of woman?" Jim suggested. "That would help. Or if you could remember where your father was putting those papers when you walked into his bedroom that night. Something that would uncover the killer might be in there."

"I know," Dick said trembling. "If I knew whether it was a man or a woman who hit me with that pistol, I'd recognize the murderer. I will remember, tho, Ann says, because I've remembered a detail, that I was struck with a pistol. She says I have a part of the picture. The rest will come in time. I'm trying." He put his arms over his eyes.

He stood there, his narrow head thrust forward, his mouth a hard, thin line, his gray eyes glaring out over the city. Somewhere out there, Ann was being held prisoner. Maybe she was being tortured. There was a chance she might be dead. The possibility made his mind and body cringe. But he faced it and cold rage shook him. If she were dead, whoever killed her would pay for it. Not by the slow, stately processes of the law but by death as painful and violent as he could make it. But that was the worst possibility. The chances were that Ann was only being held a prisoner. She might be rescued if he knew only where to look for her. He turned from the window.

"Nick," he asked his impassive other self, "who do you think snatched Miss Marshall?"

"Nobody in the rackets," Nick declared promptly, "unless the take was a million or better. And it ain't. I figure they must be amateurs."

Jim stood there, thinking it out. He decided Nick was wrong. The men who did that job were no amateurs. They'd worked it out too smoothly. According to Helga, not a word had been spoken nor a sound made. And they must have handled Ann as efficiently as they had Helga. That was proved by the absence of any signs of violence. The snatchers then were professional criminals, probably carrying out a paid job. Who paid them? Miles Barcland's killer. Why? To keep Ann from helping Dick remember him or her.

He had that much from Dick's story of the Whisperer's conversation with him over the telephone. It was a fact, whether Dick was lying or not. For, if he were lying, then he was the killer, himself.

If it weren't Dick, it must be some one who knew of Ann's activitiy in the case. That could be either some one who had heard Dick's drunken boastings the night before or had had them reported to them. But it also could be some one who had learned of it from some other source. It could be Lucille Day, for one, because he, himself, had informed her of Ann's efforts only last night.

Lucille really opened up possibilities. She had a stake in preventing Ann from helping Dick remember his father's killers because she might be the killer. If she weren't, she could have got the news to Drake Royal, the gambler, an old sweetheart and another suspect. But she could have told Tony Monoco, her current lover, directly. And Tony loomed as a kidnaper. He had the stake, as a suspect in the Barcland murder and as a user of Ann as a pawn to force him, Jim Hallard, to return to him the little black book. He also had the ruthlessness and the organization. In fact, he was the only one who had the organization to his hand.

The telephone rang. Dick shot straight up from his prone position like a jack in the box, but Jim signaled to Nick that he would take the call in the bedroom and hurried into it.

It was Dan and his opening remark was, "What have you got?" Jim gave him a terse version of the way Dick had learned of Ann's kidnaping.

"You got something," Dan pronounced. "Barcland's killer was responsible for the snatch. I figured they were. So did Ed Mercer. He thinks the killer will contact you with terms for turning Miss Marshall loose. He's willing to let you handle it. There's nobody watching you. If you get a hand dealt, play it. The police haven't got anything. It don't look like they're going to get anything. You'd better stick around and watch young Barcland. If the killer finds out he's there with you, they may come after him. He's next on the list. While he's around, the killer ain't safe. He may remember him any minute. I'll get up there as soon as I can."

"All right," Jim agreed. "We'll leave it that way. I'll stay here unless I have a reason for going out. If I do and Nick goes with me, Dick will have to take his chances. I'll leave a key with the clerk downstairs. You come in and wait for us."

Dick Expresses Fear Ann Has Been Killed

Dick was standing at the couch, staring at him.

"Who was it?" he demanded. "Is there any news of Ann?"

"It was Dan O'Malley," Jim told him. "There's no news. The police are waiting."

"O, my God!" Dick Barcland prayed. "What are they waiting for? For the kidnaper to kill Ann? Aren't they even looking for her?"

"Where would they look, Dick!" Jim asked reasonably. "They haven't any idea who kidnaped her. They're waiting to hear from whoever did. They believe they will get in touch with me because the kidnaper told you that her kidnaping is the result of our part in the investigation of your father's murder. The kidnaper's next move is to contact me. Unless—"

"Unless," Dick finished bitterly, "they've already killed her. It would be the simplest thing for them to do." He began to pound his hand with his fist again as he paced the floor.

"I don't believe they'd do that," Jim declared, as much to reassure himself as Dick. "If they killed any one, it would be you. At any moment, you might remember who killed your father. Dan thinks you are the next logical victim."

"That's stupid," Dick spurned the idea. "If they had wanted to kill me, I'd be dead by now."

"You forget about the detective who was guarding you," Jim pointed out. "You were hardly ever out of his sight from the time you left the homicide bureau after Mercer first questioned you. And even when you were, you were either in a crowd or with Paul Brand or Ann or me. The killer didn't have a chance to get at you without being discovered. I agree with Dan and the police. If they'd had the chance, they'd at least tried to kill you before this. Now, your detective guard is gone. You got away from him. You'll have to be careful."

"It might be better if they had killed me," Dick said impersonally.

"Well, you're not dead," Jim reminded him shortly, "and you're still our best bet to save Ann. If you could only remember who came out of your father's bedroom that night and hit you with a pistol, you'd have Ann's kidnaper. They're the same person. Then we could move fast."

"Yes," Dick agreed, "that's true." He groaned as he sat down on the couch again and put his face in his hands. He took his hands away and glared up at Jim. "I'll try to remember," he promised savagely.

"Fine, Dick," Jim praised. "It might be a good idea to leave you alone for a little while. Nick," he called, "how about some black coffee?"

"O. K., boss," Nick answered and started for the kitchen with Jim following at his heels.

Dick rubbed his hands across the long, livid welt on his cheek and thought irrelevantly that it didn't pain any more. The swelling was going down. He stood up and looked toward the door thru which Jim and Nick had disappeared. It might be a good idea to join them out there. He needed company. He didn't want to be alone.

But, he told himself, he had to be alone. He had to remember what happened in the apartment the night his father was killed. He owed it to Ann to identify her kidnaper, who had also been his father's killer. If he had any will power left at all, he had to exert it now.

He sat down and cunningly mapped out his plan. He would start with the first time he found himself in his father's apartment. He'd just sit back and watch himself. As tho he were watching a play or a moving pitcure. He lay back against the cushions, relaxed, in spite of the protests of his tortured nerves. He shut his eyes and waited.

In the kitchen Nick reached up into the cupboard and took down two cups and saucers and a sugar bowl. From the refrigerator he brought a pitcher of cream. He set them on the kitchen table. Jim, moodily smoking a cigaret, said:

"Black coffee, Nick. I don't want cream or sugar."

"O. K., boss," Nick agreed, and nodded toward the door, "but what about him?"

"Maybe he won't want any coffee at all."

He got up and walked thru the door into the dining room. He saw Dick sprawled on the couch, his heels against the floor to brace his body, his head thrown back against the cushions. Quick anger swept over Jim. Why, the cowardly weakling was asleep!

He started into the living room to tell him what he thought of any one who could sleep at a time like this. But as he neared the couch he saw that Dick was not asleep. His body was stiff and he was trembling. He was soaked with sweat. The livid welt stood out on his cheek. His mouth was twisted. His eyes were half closed. He looked as a man might look on a torture wrack.

"Dick?" Jim said softly.

The eyes flew open. But they were vacant. They focused slowly on Jim.

"What do you want?" he growled.

"Would you like a cup of coffee?" Jim asked.

"No. Go away. I'm trying to think. Go on, Jim, please."

Jim turned and walked softly back into the kitchen. Just before the door closed, he looked back. Dick had not changed his position. He was stretched stiffly against the couch. A faint hope began to stir in Jim. If Dick could only remember——

"How's he doin', boss?" Nick asked. "Does he want the java?"

"I don't know how he's doing," Jim answered. "But I'm hoping. He's in there trying. He doesn't want any coffee."

Dick Barcland waited, sprawled there on the couch. At first no picture came. There was just a gray, swirling fog. It billowed out and filled the world. It got heavier and darker. The man on the couch sighed and waited, watching the curtain thru half closed eyes. The stiffness slowly went out of him. He began to breathe evenly. There was silence in the room.

The fog curtain began to lift. A picture flowed slowly into focus. It was of a portion of a hall at the head of a flight of stairs. He saw a man in evening clothes under his overcoat stagger up the stairs and stand on the landing as he stared at the door before him. On the door was the figure 3A. The man's clothes were in disarray. The white tie was still tied, but it had crawled from the center and rested now on the right side. His small mustache dropped at one end, stood up straight at the other. The man was himself, Dick Barcland, and he was very drunk.

Now the man on the couch was no longer a watcher. He had merged into the picture which had enfocused before him. He had become one with the drunken man, swaying there in the hallway. And the first thing of which he became conscious was the howling of the wind outside. Its impact shook the building, and even in the windowless hallway he could hear the hail and the sleet smashing into tiny bits of ice against the building's sides. In fact, he couldn't hear anything else. Inside here all was silent.

Dimly, he remembered that he had come in from that storm. He had had difficulty walking along the slippery sidewalks. He remembered falling and having a hard time finding his feet again. He looked sideways at his coat. It was wet. He put his hand up to the shoulder and found there a film of ice that ran along to the collar. He shook himself impatiently—and almost fell down. He caught himself with outraged dignity and tried to remember why he was here. O, yes. He had come to see his father, to expostu—postu—to protest against his action in warning the taverns against serving him, Dick, with anything to drink.

It wasn't fair. Besides, it took away from his dignity to have a bartender shake his head and say regretfully: "Sorry, Mr. Barcland. I can't let you have a drink. Orders."

Leaning against the door to keep himself erect, he focused his eyes on the little mother of pearl button. He brought his hand to it and pressed it. He could hear it ringing somewhere deep in the apartment. But he heard nothing else. Only the roar of the storm. He waited. Nothing happened. He pressed the bell again. And again. And again. He thought of kicking the door. He had raised his foot when the door opened suddenly, almost precipitating him on his face. He recovered himself and looked at the woman who was facing him.

"Mar'get Severn!" he said. "Wha' you doing here?"

Margaret did not answer him. She stood aside and waited. She was beautiful. Almost as beautiful as Ann, her sister. Too bad she was married. He dropped the thought and staggered past her into the little hall. He saw his father standing in the living room. He held some papers in his hand. Margaret Severn said from behind him.

"Won't you please give me my letters, Mr. Barcland?"

"No," Miles Barcland said. "Dick, get the hell out of here. I'm busy."

"Now, you listen, Dad," Dick said. "You can't talk to me that way. If those letters are Margaret's you return them. You haven't any business——"

Picture Dissolves as Dick Tries to Remember

His father had turned his back to him and was walking into the bedroom. Dick followed and stood in the doorway. His father had his hands above his head. The picture dissolved. The man on the couch stirred and cursed. His father's hands were up and he was putting the letters some place. But where? Where was he standing?

He tried to pierce the swirling fog. He waited for it to lift. He couldn't pierce it, but suddenly it lifted. "I told you to get out of here." Miles growled and grasped Dick by the shoulder and propelled him to the door. Holding Dick, he opened the door and thrust him into the hall. Dick caught the newel post and so didn't fall down the stairs.

Easing himself gently down, he sat upon the top step with his chin in his hands and listened to the storm and waited. In a minute he would get up and go into the apartment again. His father couldn't treat him this way. Too high handed. He wasn't a kid.

The door behind him opened and Margaret Severn was standing at his shoulder. "Excuse me, Dick," she said in a low voice. "Let me pass, please." He looked up. Tears were in her eyes. Her face was pale and set. He grabbed the stair post and pulled himself to it. Margaret brushed past him. "Mar'get," he called. "Wai' a minute." But she kept on down the stairs. Staring after her, Dick saw the little man with the mustaches. He glanced at Margaret as she passed him and then lifted his eyes to Dick. He kept them there and Dick hauled himself up by the post and started down the stairs toward him, moving slowly to keep from falling.

The swirling curtain closed in, blotting out the picture. Straightening himself on the couch, Dick went back over what he had just seen. The picture played itself again in slow motion because he had seen it before Ann Marshall's soothing voice had sent him burrowing into his memory. And it remained clear up to the moment when he stood in the doorway and watched his father put Margaret Severn's letters some place.

Where? Where was he standing? At the desk? At the dresser? Near the bed? In the middle of the room? That was it! He was standing in the middle of the room. But that couldn't be. For, if he were standing there, he couldn't put the letters anywhere. He was too far away from the walls and the furniture. The fog curtain closed down again.

Dick punched his temples to jar the fog away. A new picture formed. He was in the apartment again. It was later. He was drunker. This time the woman who had let him in was Lucille Day, beautiful and scornful. She stared at him and laughed and turned her head to look over her shoulder at Miles, his father, who stood glowering in the bedroom doorway. He had on his pajamas and bathrobe.

"Your son is here," she announced. "And isn't he something to be proud of!"

Dick lunged at her. "Get out of here, you, you——" He could think of no word and he snatched at her shoulder. Something cold and damp stayed in his hand as Lucille, still laughing, went out the door, closing it behind her. He looked at his hand. It held an orchid. The curtain closed in again.

He had never been so tired. He felt as if a vampire bat had sucked the blood out of him. He was weak. The bones of his body ached far down beneath his flesh. He opened his eyes and caught movement. Opening them wider, he saw Dick standing in the dining room watching him. He turned as Dick watched and went back into the kitchen. The curtain lifted again.

He was on the couch in his father's apartment. Something had awakened him. A thud. A shot! He rolled off the couch and staggered toward the bedroom. A misty shape barred his way. It raised a pistol in its hand and pain blasted his face. He fell down. The curtain swept over the picture. The fog was dense and black. His head began to ache.

Dick thought "perhaps if I went to the apartment and recalled all this the picture would stay clear. I would remember where Dad put Margaret's letters and that is where they would be now. And I would remember that shapeless thing that struck me."

He straightened up. He thought, "I'll have to move quickly. If Jim and Nick knew, they wouldn't let me go. They are afraid Dad's murderer is waiting somewhere for me." He got up from the couch and took his coat and hat from the table on which Nick had thrown them. Opening the door softly, he let himself out, closing the door behind him.

The first taxicab in the line drew up at his approach and the driver swung the door open. Dick got in.

"Drive me to 36 Rush street," he ordered.

"Yes, sir," the hackie said and closed the door.

The cab moved away, going east. As it did so, a long black limousine nosed out from the curb across the street from Jim's apartment and followed it. It had been parked in that spot for a long time, ever since another cab had deposited Dick in front of Jim's apartment building earlier in the evening. Now its long vigil was over. As Dick's taxi turned north, the limousine swung in behind it at a distance of about half a block. It held that position during all the short journey. . .

High Adventure

ed to talk secrets, and pulled him out into the hall. I don't know what she told him. She had been making his life miserable all afternoon, and he looked no happier when he came back. But Alan is not the type of man who would kill himself because a naughty girl got on his nerves——"

"Not Alan," Craig agreed. "Have you any theory as to why he did it?"

"I have told you all I know. Across the hall there is a distracted boy waiting for a chance to talk with you. Do you mind?"

"Marvin? I should like to talk with Marvin."

"I'll send him in," she said. But she hesitated, as if she had something she must say. "Mr. Craig—"

"Yes?" His tone was kindness itself. So were his eyes.

"You know about Dorothy? You know what she keeps saying? Why does she keep saying that she killed Alan? O—" her voice broke. She spoke with an effort now. "Can you find out what is the matter with my little sister?"

"I can try."

His tone steadied her. She braced up at once.

"I'll send Marvin," she said.

Craig watched her go, strangely moved by the woman. "Captain of her soul," he muttered, and sat down to stare into the fire. His face, habitually impassive, wore a faint smile not quite in harmony with the difficult task he had set himself. He had drifted so far away that he started slightly when he looked up and saw Marvin Bradley standing before him.

Craig rose, and the two stood facing each other squarely. Each was deliberately sizing up the other. Neither made any effort to conceal the fact. After a rather long pause, Craig stretched out his hand cordially and Marvin took it in a strong grasp. No word had passed between them, but each had accepted the other.

It was several hours before Craig returned to the library. He went in rather eagerly, but the room was empty. After a moment's hesitation, he rang for the maid.

"Tell Miss Preston, please, that Craig is waiting to speak to her before he goes," he ordered.

When Lowell appeared, he looked at her with quick interest, then hastily resumed his official manner.

"I thought you might like me to report," he said. "Have you time to listen? Do you care to?"

Slight Color Rises to Lowell's Cheeks

Lowell nodded. A slight color had risen to her cheeks. She had not missed that first eager, friendly glance.

"Marvin proved helpful," Craig said warmly. "He got me the pictures, the photographs which Towne saw fit to retrieve. They were stowed away in a suitcase in the hall. Towne was evidently a bit vain over these pictures. He was probably the only man alive who had penetrated, with a camera, into that forbidden area of the Canal Zone. The pictures established, beyond reasonable doubt, that Towne was the man we've been looking for."

"Looking for?" Lowell said, eyes wide with anxiety. "What do you mean? What had Alan Towne done that you, or any one, should be looking for him?"

He did not answer her question. Instead he said: "You never had any doubts regarding Towne?"

Her answer was direct and frank.

"Yes, many doubts. That was why I broke our engagement two years ago. He had changed. He was restless, distraught, consumed with a desire to travel—anywhere, so long as he could keep moving. He went to England, to the continent. Then he went to South America, and when he returned from there the last vestige of the old Alan was gone. There was no ground on which this new Alan and I could even meet. He was drinking heavily. But his charm remained and there was Dot." She stopped short, and said abruptly: "Tell me, please, what Alan had done. I must know, because of my sister."

"He had sold himself to a loosely organized band of international spies with headquarters in South America. Recently he had been trying to get photographs of important Canal works. Our Panama canal has heavily armed terminals and the secrets of its defense are jealously guarded and there are nations vitally interested in getting information. This last trip of his, I take it, was rather of an exploratory nature. It was cut short by the fact that two friends of his were arrested near Fort Randolph in the Canal Zone.

"They had managed to get close to the post restaurant with cameras hidden on them. When Towne heard of it, he took the first plane back to the States. I caught sight of him a moment in Chicago, at the railway station, but the man who was trailing him lost him. He must have known that his time was nearly up. He evidently did not wish to be taken alive."

"You are quite sure that Alan is the man for whom you were looking?"

"I have checked on it carefully. I even asked to see Towne once more, and Marvin very kindly arranged it for me. When I was quite sure, I had a little talk with the local authorities and the coroner. The verdict will be, 'killed himself in a fit of depression.' He had learned that he had not long to live. There need be no publicity."

Lowell was listening almost absently. She now moved restlessly.

"Why does my sister still insist that she killed him?" she asked.

"I doubt if she is saying that any more," Craig said reassuringly. "I sent Marvin to talk Dutch to her. She will get over this in a few days. A few weeks, at the most. Long before the rest of you do."

"But why did she ever say such a thing?"

"Women are the very deuce," Craig grumbled, tho he was looking down into her eyes with gentle pity. "They are not satisfied until they have dissected the case. They will hold postmortems. Since I have been sent here by my friend, the judge, to put your mind at rest. I shall have to rehash the business, I suppose.

"Dorothy had an unpleasant honeymoon, Marvin tells me. Either Marvin thought that I was just too nice a man to corrupt with the details of the unpleasantness, or he had a rare good taste and self-control. He told me merely that it had been an unpleasant honeymoon. In revenge, he said, Dorothy did her bit. She used her idle hours and her idle wits nursing her wrath and planning every possible way to devil her husband. Fate put a weapon in her hands."

He took from a billfold a little note.

"Greetings, baby-face," the note read. "How do you like being used as a blind? Hold up your chin. When you begin to look wan and hunted and like a woman with a past, you're done for. Your pretty husband will toss you aside as he would an empty beer can. If you get a chance, ditch him. They are hot on his trail."

Lowell stared hard at the paper, trying to crowd back her rising tears.

"Were they?" she stammered. "Were they—hot on his trail?"

"He was at the end of his rope. He was the last of that particular gang that worked with cameras and peddled their wares where they could. We took the others alive."

There was no triumph in his tone. He looked gray and worn.

"Forgive me, Mr. Craig," Lowell said, "but I do not yet see what use my sister made of this letter."

"Towne never saw it. He had no idea what she knew. But whenever he displeased her, she would say: Sit up, Alan, and be a nice gentleman. It's a good disguise, and they are hot on your trail." He looked at Lowell soberly. "It is God's own mercy that he did not kill her."

"I don't know yet why she says she killed him," Lowell reiterated.

"You said she came to him with a secret. What she told him was that there was a car in the drive and that some men were asking for Alan. Marvin says that Alan had good nerve. He just laughed and told her that she was a naughty child, and that when he had time he would have to spank her. But when he returned to the library he saw, in the driveway, the police car which had just delivered to Aunt Sally her befuddled boy.

"Marvin thinks that was the last straw. If it were," he said slowly, "it was because Towne's alarm had a reasonable foundation which Dorothy knew nothing of. Towne had seen, in the railway station in Chicago, a little advertised but tenacious member of the intelligence corps. Towne knew him as a fellow who always gets his man. I think that that is the person who must bear the onus of this suicide."

Lowell gave him a quick glance, then a rather tremulous smile of thanks. They sat in silence for several minutes. Very reluctantly, Craig rose.

"Miss Preston," he said with a touch of sternness, "there has been no real tragedy for you in all this. A kind providence has watched over you. Deep gratitude is all that you should be feeling tonight."

"I do, thank you, Mr. Craig," the girl began, but the man started as if stung.

"Not to me, please," he exclaimed. He stalked over and picked up his coat. "Mind if I make one suggestion?" he asked. "Across the campus is a friend of yours, feeling old and lonely. Send for him. Give him a Christmas dinner. And remember that at this dinner you should feel only peace. Good-by, my dear."

"You're not going back to the Bradleys'?" Lowell cried. "Not finishing your visit?"

"How could I?" he said, his face a little drawn. "I used the judge. I was there on false pretenses. The judge assumed that I was there to see him, not to get useful information in regard to a man I was tracking down." He turned away. "The least I can do is to relieve you all of my presence. Be good. Good-by."

"It won't relieve me at all," the girl said vehemently. "It will make us all feel bad. Maybe," she said shyly, "you will stay here with my sister and me. Maybe you will stay at my house. Please come with me to get Uncle John."

Craig looked down at a lovely appealing face. Slowly his grim face softened. A mischievous light shone in his eyes. He gave a quick glance at a sprig of mistletoe which hung from the chandelier over her head, drew her to him and kissed her.

"High adventure," he murmured. "Thank you, my dear."

'The Morning Star' Tells Story of London Air Blitz

Play Has Been Running for Nearly a Year

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK. — [Special.] — "The Morning Star" has been playing for nearly a year in London. It was written by the Emlyn Williams whose "The Corn Is Green," starring Ethel Barrymore, was last season's dramatic success. It is a realistic story of the Hitler attempt to crush not only the buildings of London, but the spirit of the English people as well, in the fall of 1940.

Wendy Barrie.

Considering these facts, we must conclude that "The Morning Star" does represent truthfully the sources of its inspiration. The characters employed in relating its story and their adventures must be not only recognizable but acceptable to the survivors of the London blitz.

In this sense this is a remarkable drama. It reveals not only the fortitude of the bombed and the brave, but their humor as well. That amazing pride of race and caste that has kept an empire united for hundreds of years plays upon incidents in the drama as darts of lightning against a black and ominous sky.

• • •

But, as its critics have discovered, "The Morning Star" is also a very theatrical drama. Situations in it are plainly introduced because they are effective theater and for no better reason. It is difficult to believe many of the situations Mr. Williams has selected to serve as supporting pillars of his play's framework.

The hero, for example, is Cliff Parrilow, a young medic who was about to get his degree and prove his thesis, which covered a new and exciting reform in surgery, when the second World war broke. The authorities put Cliff back doing menial work in the hospital. This so discouraged him that he went temporarily off his head.

This being the theater, Cliff's first violent reaction tossed him into the arms of a blonde trollop. Gentlemen, it appears, invariably prefer blondes in domestic crises. The trollop proceeded to take Cliff away from his worthy and trusting wife and also to make rather a brassy boast of her triumph.

But comes the blitz, and we find young Parrilow remembering his Hippocratic oath and returning to his business as a surgeon. As the crisis develops and the family drawing room is turned into a dormitory to minimize the danger of incendiary bombs, Cliff gets a still stronger hold on his emotions. His Wanda takes shelter with the family, but finds herself no match at all for the capable young wife under the circumstances. It is still a tortured household in the end, but at least a new kind of domestic harmony prevails and the worst of the bombing is over.

• • •

Thru this theatrical story Mr. Williams has woven interesting characters and, as noted, effective scenes. Mrs. Parrilow, the widowed mother of Cliff, is stalwart and fine in the best British tradition. Gladys Cooper plays her beautifully. Mrs. Lane, the charwoman, is comic and serious by turns. As a typical incident, she comes to work one morning to report that her home had been bombed. Only a part of one wall was left standing. "And there was my wall paper for strangers to stare at," reports Mrs. Lane dolefully. "I didn't like that."

The loss of her home was something she had to take as a part of the war tragedy. But that strangers were staring at her smudgy wallpaper, that 'urt. It is a nice part for Brenda Forbes.

There is a querulous oldster who is Mrs. Parrilow's paying guest, who helps to keep the family going and to get young Parrilow back on his job. This would be Cecil Humphreys. Wendy Barrie of the screen plays the trollop, a little too extravagantly, perhaps, but quite as she is written, I have no doubt.

Gregory Peck is the young doctor, and a fine actor, too. Jill Esmond is the young wife, and Rhys Williams a Welsh servant to Mr. Humphreys. Guthrie McClintic produced "The Morning Star" and did the directing. Audiences have approved both.

• • •

Whether or not vaudeville can stay back, now that it has come back, will depend greatly upon the kind of vaudeville its hopeful promoters can stir up. This week we have had two visitations from rival producing camps.

First there was a second "Priorities" to take the place of the one that has been sent touring with Lou Holtz, Willie Howard, and Paul Draper. Second, there was a new group put together on the coast by Fred Finklehoff, who helped John Monks Jr. write "Brother Rat." This one carries "Show Time" as a title.

Willie Howard.

"Priorities" is the rougher of the two. It depends, as did the first of its title, on smudgy sex jokes and on a line of showgirls who sing physical songs and know their way about the burlesque routines in the dance.

As a proper climax to this kind of an evening a very pretty and shapely young person, Dorothy Parkington by name, is introduced by Harry Richman, the off-key troubadour. Dorothy is wearing rosettes of war stamps disposed variously about her otherwise quite generously undraped person, and holds a large corsage bouquet discreetly before her. She will, Mr. Richman announces, dispose of her war stamp treasures to the highest bidders.

Some excitement was aroused the opening night when, after the shoulder straps and other units had been sold for $1, $2, $5, $10, and so on in stamps, the corsage was, as you might say, put upon the block.

Tommy Manville, of the asbestos Manvilles, started the bidding at $100, explaining later that he thought Mr. Richman was selling "blondes," not "bonds." Jules Brulatour, of the Kodak Brulatours, raised the bid little by little to $1,000, then to $2,000, and later to $10,000. At this point Mr. Brulatour was blushing with excitement and his wife, the beautiful Hope Hampton, was smiling with pride.

Then a soft voiced party at the other side of the theater was heard to offer $12,000, then $15,000, and finally $25,000—whereupon the audience broke into excited applause and Mr. Richman broke out with a kind of feverish rash. Miss Parkington, however, still held tightly and wisely to the corsage.

The new bidder was quickly identified as Louis Marx, whose toy manufacturing business has recently been turned to war work. Mr. Richman took the corsage from Miss Parkington, disclosing an adhesive underpinning labeled "Buy Bonds," and the show quickly moved to its conclusion.

Bert Wheeler is the chief, and best, comedian of "Priorities," working in his old routine of gossip about the other actors in the bill with as much success as tho it were brand new. Henny Youngman and Johnny Burke are additional monologists, Carol Bruce sings, and Harrison and Fisher dance successfully.

• • •

The following night "Show Time" was revealed with George Jessel and Jack Haley acting as its masters of ceremony. Of the two vaudeville bills it is much the cleaner and classier exhibit. Mr. Jessel and Mr. Haley, it is true, are also depending upon old material. But it is good old material. You may recall how easy it is for Mr. Jessel to pick up a property phone and talk to "Mom" about a variety of family contretemps. And how natural it is for Mr. Haley to swing his not unpleasant baritone to burlesqued passages from a variety of operas. Working with their own material, or material of their own selection, it is being frequently remarked that they are ever so much better than they have been of late years trying to bring life and humor to the soggy material musical comedy librettists have furnished them.

Mr. Jessel seemed in particularly good form, holding the stage for long stretches by his wit rather than by the parceling out of jokes. Occasionally Jessel and Haley worked together, and that was an amusing combination which kept the audience snorting happily.

A very blonde soprano, Lucille Norman, from the coast, is their prima donna. Very nice, too. The Demarcos are their topflight dancers, and are always great favorites in this section. Con Colleano, an amazing wire dancer; Olsen and Shirley, contortionistic dancers, and Bob Williams introducing a collapsible chow are features of the "Show Time" bill. Probably too respectable for Broadway, but away to a good start at least.

DEBUT AS SOLO DANCER

Eight Plays to Be Sent to U. S. Army Camps This Fall

USO-Camp Shows will send eight plays out to the various army camps this fall and winter. Altho the plays have been tentatively chosen by the committee headed by Bert Lytell, none of the titles has been made public except that of "Junior Miss," which was one of the two legitimate plays sent out to the camps last season. Mr. Lytell will act as "producer" of one of the plays. Others selected to function in this capacity are Alfred Bloomingdale and Luther Greene. Nancy Stern has charge of the "Junior Miss" company. Six of the plays will be sent out from New York and two from Hollywood.

RAINBOW GARDENS DANCER

One of the many beautiful show girls and dancers taking part in the big production numbers at the Rainbow Gardens is Paula Smith. Dean Murphy is the star of the show.

Notes of the Theater

The new Milwaukee series of four plays sponsored by the theater committee of the Society of Allied Arts, opens in the Pabst theater Tuesday evening. Ferenc Molnar's "The Play's the Thing" will be the first attraction, to continue thru next Sunday evening. Francis Lederer, the Czech-American star, and Tamara, the exotic Russian who sang "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" in "Roberta," will play the featured rôles. The entire series, presenting a weekly change of bills beginning every Tuesday for four weeks, is directed by Arthur Sircom, well known in the east as stage director of the Cape playhouse at Dennis, Mass.

Tamara.

The second play, opening Tuesday, Oct. 6, will be Somerset Maugham's "Our Betters," with Constance Collier and Violet Heming. On Tuesday, Oct. 13, the first midwestern production will be staged of Helen Jerome's "Charlotte Corday," a new play previously tried out three years ago at the Mohawk Drama festival in Schenectady, N. Y. The fourth and final play, beginning Oct. 20, has not been definitely decided upon; it may be a new play, on it may be Bernard Shaw's "You Never Can Tell."

Milwaukee's novel and praiseworthy venture in local play production has been made possible by a public spirited committee of which Dr. Edward A. Fitzpatrick is chairman and Margaret Rice, for many years manager of the Pabst theater, is secretary-treasurer. All four plays will be given in the historic Pabst theater.

"Best Foot Forward" has prospered so continuously and well in Chicago that the musical comedy will continue in the city for considerably longer than the originally allotted three weeks, which ended last night. Because "New 1943 Hellzapoppin" had already booked the Erlanger theater, beginning tomorrow, "Best Foot Forward" moves to the Studebaker theater tonight, to continue its engagement indefinitely there. With the Grand Opera House closed and about to sell its soul to daily grind movies, the Studebaker will become one of the city's major playhouses again this year. There is always the possibility, too, that the Great Northern may finally have its chance to become a big time house again. If this happens, the principal Chicago theaters will be fairly evenly divided between the north and south ends of the loop district; the Blackstone, down on 7th street, has proved with "Life with Father" and "Good Night, Ladies" successively that a southerly location is no deterrent to trade, if the play on display is worth seeing.

"Junior Miss," which opened at the Harris theater last Monday, will not be made into a movie until after the end of its stage career, according to Max Gordon, the producer, who ought to know. Mr. Gordon kept the movie of "My Sister Eileen" out of circulation for two years, and is now regretting that he did not protect himself even more fully, for when the film is released about Jan. 1 it will undoubtedly tread on the toes of the two touring companies of the comedy, and may even force the New York company to close its infinitely prosperous run. Accordingly, the producer has determined to keep "Junior Miss" out of the hands of the movies until it has run its long, long course on the legitimate stage.

Four companies of "Junior Miss" will be at work this season. Three of these stem from Max Gordon's office—the original company in New York, the company currently at the Harris here, and a new company getting ready for a Boston season. The fourth touring unit falls under the aegis of USO-Camp Shows, Inc., and will be formed to provide entertainment in army camps thruout the country. Last year "Junior Miss" was one of two plays authorized to visit the camps; the other was "Out of the Frying Pan."

The Military players, a composite group of soldier-actors from Fort Sheridan and civilian actresses from the north shore, will present "The Family Upstairs" on Friday evening at the Highland Park High school auditorium. The entire proceeds will be turned over to the USO. Pvt. Bob Umans of New York, who has acted the rôle on the professional stage, will play the leading male comedy part. Tickets may be obtained from the USO, 428 Railway avenue, Highwood, Ill.

The Actors Company of Chicago celebrates the beginning of its second decade of activity with the opening performance of "Heaven Can Wait," a play based on the moving picture "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," on Oct. 7. The company, located at 218 South Wabash avenue, has made an enviable record for itself, under the direction of Minnie Galatzer, with performances of "The Moon Is Down," "Letters to Lucerne," "The Children's Hour," "The World We Make," and other distinctive plays which otherwise would not have had adequate representation in Chicago.

Maxwell Anderson's newest play, "The Eve of St. Mark," will receive its first midwestern representations Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings at the hands of the Fort Wayne, Ind., Civic theater. Altho the production had originally been announced as a world première, it will not be one, for the Playwrights' company's own professional company presented the play for the first time anywhere at the Wilbur theater in Boston last Thursday. Some 75 little theater groups, members of the National Theater conference, will be allowed to produce the Anderson play this season if they choose to.

In "Spring Again," the comedy which relights the Selwyn theater on Oct. 12, Grace George, the celebrated comedienne, will appear on a Chicago stage for the first time since "The First Mrs. Fraser" a decade ago. Unfortunately she did not tour in her outstanding success of a few years ago, "Kind Lady." As Miss George's vis-à-vis in "Spring Again," C. Aubrey Smith returns to the stage after 11 years and countless rôles in the movies. The comedy, by Isabel Leighton and Bertram Bloch, was produced and directed by Guthrie McClintic, Katharine Cornell's husband. The cast includes most of those who played in "Spring Again" all last season in New York—Ann Andrews, Richard Stevenson, and Jayne Cotter among them. Donald Oenslager designed the setting. The play will be the second subscription item in the American Theater society and Theater guild series. "Junior Miss" is the first.

POPULAR RECORDINGS

A nasal and delicious harkback to the days not too long ago when a curly haired crooner was being a sensation is offered in Victor's new album "Heigh-Ho, Everybody!" Right. It's a Rudy Valle anthology, and all the old favorites are there, from the "Stein Song" thru the "Whiffenpoof Song" [which Yale alums will love], to "I'm Just a Vagabond Lover." It is a must for all with a touch of nostalgia for the crazy, but peaceful past.

Dinah Shore's current contribution is a climactic presentation of the much played "Dearly Beloved." As a captivating backer-up, she sings "Why Don't You Fall in Love?"

• • •

Give Columbia credit for two neat ones—Harry James' "Manhattan Serenade" and "Daybreak," and Count Basie's "Ride On" and "It's Sand, Man!" James unites his superb trumpet with beautiful string arrangements in "Serenade," and the Basie pair is strictly for cats, who like to jump.

Cash Prizes Offered to Soldier Playwrights

Announcement is made of a soldiers' playwright contest as a means of discovering one act plays suitable for presentation in army camps, posts and stations, with cash sums, guaranteed production and publication in book form as the prizes. The contest, which originated with John Golden, Broadway theatrical producer, is open to all enlisted men and noncommissioned officers of the army. The prize money will be as follows: First prize play, $100; 2d, $80; 3d, $60; 4th, $40; 5th, $20. Authors of prize-winning plays are promised royalties from performance by Little Theater groups and other civilian organizations and royalties from publication, but it is stipulated that performance of the works in army camps and posts shall always be free of royalty.

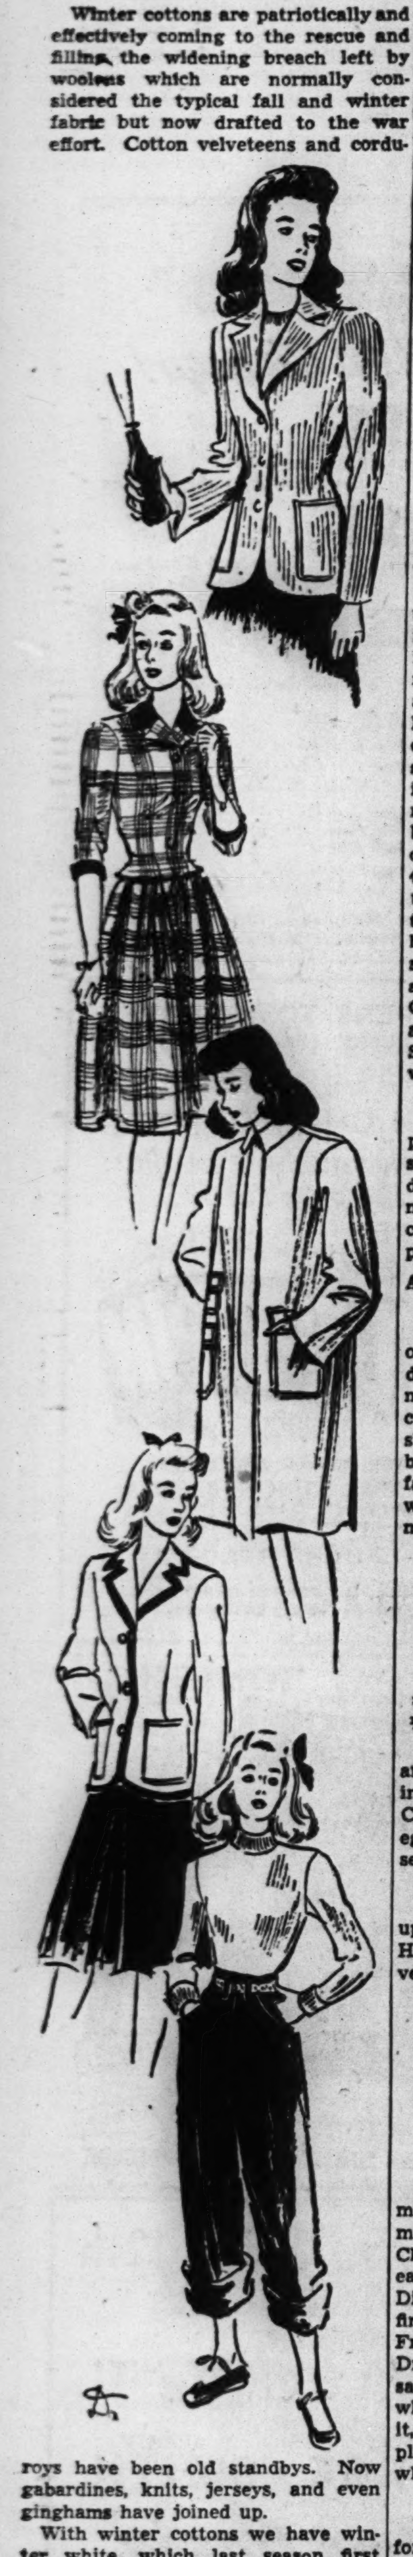
Meat Filled Rolls Make a Delightful Economy Dish

Fashions . . .

By Angela

Winter cottons are patriotically and effectively coming to the rescue and filling the widening breach left by woolens which are normally considered the typical fall and winter fabric but now drafted to the war effort. Cotton velveteens and corduroys have been old standbys. Now gabardines, knits, jerseys, and even ginghams have joined up.



With winter cottons we have winter white, which last season first showed prominence as a fashion color. The jacket at the top of the column is a wide waled white corduroy. It would be particularly effective worn with a black and white checked skirt, or a Stuart dress plaid which combines red, black, and green on a white background.

Next, cotton gingham in a red and black or blue and green plaid assumes a fall attitude by the addition of velveteen trimming the collar and cuffs. The short bodice can be worn outside or tucked under the waistband of the skirt. Unpressed plaits make the skirt fulness. Under $7.

The trench coat of natural colored water repellent cotton gabardine will make the rainy days fun. It is unlined and light weight. Consequently it can be worn over a heavy suit or top coat when the temperature necessitates it.

Corduroy is a member of the winter cotton tribe—one of the charter members. In the fourth sketch it lends its charms to the suit—navy blue skirt with red jacket bound in blue; or the same style in a forest green with beige.

College tomboys find blue denim jeans their favorite costume for after class hours—they're tough and take the hard wear of picknicking, bicycling, hiking, and general outdoor wear. Lots of girls wear them for lounging in the dormitory. Brass rivets trim and reinforce the seams.

A cotton jersey turtleneck pull-over has a natural affinity for these denim jeans. It comes in gray, yellow, navy, or red. Under $2.

Family Will Applaud When You Serve 'Em

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

A different and delightful way of economizing on meat or serving meat leftovers is to make meat filled rolls. Yeast rolls are better, but if you're shy on time, make them with baking powder biscuit dough. And serve them fresh from the oven, with gravy. The family will be shrieking for more.

FILLED MEAT ROLLS.

2 cups raised yeast dough or
1 recipe baking powder biscuits
1 cup chopped, seasoned meat
2 tablespoons gravy or broth
1 tablespoon minced onion

Leftover potroast or roast of beef, lamb, chicken, pork or veal may be used. Fresh ground beef, browned in butter, then seasoned, may be used, too. Pork sausage requires no seasoning, but it should be well cooked before being used. Finely diced bacon makes fine rolls, too. Use yeast dough after it has risen the second time. Divide dough into six parts and roll out thin on a floured board. Place a spoonful of moist, well seasoned meat in the center, fold the edges in and roll in the hands to make a round bun. Place in greased muffin pans, or in greased baking pans. Bake at 400 degrees until brown, about 15 minutes for yeast dough, slightly less time for baking powder dough, perhaps. Serve hot with gravy. White sauce, tomato sauce, mushroom sauce are possibilities, if you have no gravy. Or serve the rolls without sauce of any kind, and eat them with butter. Some families will prefer them this way.

• • •

Bacon has been scarce and high in price, but the outlook is for large supplies of all kinds of pork, so bacon dishes aren't out of the question for meat saving meals. This bacon "special" is grand for luncheon, late supper or late breakfast.

APPLESAUCE TOAST AND BACON.

Broil or fry ½ pound bacon. Drain on soft paper and use part of the drippings to fry French toast. To make the toast, beat an egg, add ½ cup milk and a little salt. Dip four slices of bread in this mixture and brown on both sides in the bacon fat. Place on hot plates and cover with applesauce. Sprinkle with nutmeg and garnish with bacon.

SCRAMBLED EGGS, RICE AND BACON.

6 slices bacon, cooked and crumbled
2 cups cooked rice
4 eggs, beaten slightly
2 tablespoons top milk
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Remove cooked bacon from skillet and crumble. Combine rice and other ingredients and add to hot bacon fat. Cook and stir over low heat until eggs have coagulated. Add bacon and serve hot.

• • •

Croquettes are a good way to use up almost any kind of leftover meat. Ham croquettes with celery sauce are very good.

HAM CROQUETTES.

[Serves four.]

2 cups ground cooked ham
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 teaspoon horseradish
1 cup milk

Melt butter and blend in flour. Add milk and cook to a thick sauce. Add mustard, onion, horseradish and ham. Chill so that the mixture will shape easily. Shape into cones or cylinders. Dip in slightly beaten egg, then into fine, rolled toast or cracker crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat at 385 degrees. Drain and serve hot with celery sauce. Make the sauce like medium white sauce, adding cooked celery to it, and using the cooking water in place of part of the milk in your white sauce recipe.

• • •

Here's a different kind of "hash" for making use of leftover roast meat. It's a nutritious and filling dish.

CASSEROLE HASH.

[Serves four.]

2 cups cooked macaroni
1½ cups coarsely diced meat
Salt, pepper
Tomato sauce
½ cup grated or chopped cheese

Place macaroni around sides and over bottom of casserole and fill this nest with the well-seasoned meat. Pour tomato sauce over the mixture and sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 350 degrees until hot, about 20 minutes. Leftover vegetables may be added to this dish. Grated onion helps season it.

BAKED MEAT STUFFED PEPPERS.

6 large green peppers
2 cups cooked, chopped meat
½ cup bread crumbs or cooked rice
½ cup milk or meat stock
½ teaspoon salt
1 small onion, chopped
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Tomato sauce

Wash peppers, cut off tops and remove seeds. Parboil for 5 minutes, then stuff with mixture of meat, crumbs, stock and seasonings, except tomato sauce. Top with buttered crumbs and place in a baking pan with about a quarter of an inch of water in the bottom. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes. Serve with tomato sauce.

TOMATO SAUCE.

3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups strained tomatoes

Blend butter and flour over low heat. Add other ingredients and stir until thickened and smooth.

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

The women who guide the destinies of the St. Luke's fashion show—planned for Oct. 28 at the Civic Opera house this year—are clothes conscious most of the year around, and make pretty good reporting for this column any time. The dress that Mrs. John C. Pitcher wore to the first committee meeting this fall, for instance, was as smart and unusual as could be. It was of white crêpe, printed all over in black coolies, the inspiration of the famed designer, Molyneux. With the dress Mrs. Pitcher wore pearls, and a black visored hat trimmed with white grosgrain ribbon bows. . . . Mrs. Seymour Wheeler's hat of delicate yellow, magenta and blue feathers was a dream. Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins looked exceedingly fashionable in a black silk frock splashed with yellow flowers, and a hat that was one big, round chou of yellow fronds, just like a giant chrysanthemum. Mrs. John L. Cochran was wearing a sophisticated light brown coat-dress with a fold of material at the bodice to simulate wide reveres. Mrs. Frank Hixon's dress was of black and green print, and black and green feather wings decorated her small black hat.

What to wear to rushing parties is an engrossing matter to thousands of freshmen at dozens of universities all over the country. No two pretty young rushees ever looked prettier, however, than Miss Judy Gillfillan and Miss Patty Pulfer, who entered Northwestern university this fall. Dashing here and there one day Miss Pulfer was wearing a sporty ensemble consisting of a tan gabardine shirtwaist dress with a red alligator belt and a black and red blackamoor pin fastened to one pocket. Her hat was brown; her shoes and bag of brown alligator. Miss Gillfillan chose a trim little black wool suit with well tailored lines, simple, but chic. On a more formal occasion Miss Pulfer dressed up in a black wool and faille frock. The main body of the dress was of the wool. An eight inch band of faille edged the bottom, and a narrower band ran straight up the front. Her cunning hat looked as if it had been made of ruffles sewn together, and was trimmed with a little veil.

The sudden cold spell last week made the opening night of "Junior Miss" a definitely fur wrap occasion. Silver foxes, kolinsky's, caraculs, and blue foxes were out in full force, but nowhere in the theater was there another ermine jacket like the one the youthful star of the show, Judy [Lenore Thomas], wore in the closing moments as she went off to her first dancing party. A prettier party frock than her blue net bouffant one with its little bows of pink scattered here and there couldn't be imagined. Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, sitting in one of the first rows, added a silver fox jacket over a distinguished dinner dress of black, which was enlivened by the flash of sequin embroidery here and there. Mrs. Welch Dickinson wore a kolinsky cape over a black dress. Mrs. Edward B. Blair wore a street length frock of light blue silk, a lovely color with her white hair and fair complexion, and a three-quarters length cape of gleaming black caracul. . . . Mrs. E. Cummings Parker, also in a street length frock, kept warm in a jacket of mink, hip length. Her stunning veiled bonnet was of pheasant breast feathers; and her black dress was spiced with cinnamon. Mrs. Charles F. Cutter was wearing a most attractive little hat that resembled slightly the plumed headdress of circus horses. It was a frothy little chou of seafoam and tangerine feathery fronds, held to her head by a skeleton calot of long, black feathers, and the whole was soft and delicate looking. . . . Mrs. Kenath Sponsel was wearing a good looking coat and hat in wood violet color, with shocking pink suede gloves. Her hat was a simple little pancake, edged underneath with a ruffle of the violet and trimmed with a tiny veil. Mrs. William Deknatel was wearing one of the enormous new tams in a brilliant green color.

Saying farewell to their Chicago friends at a tea at Mrs. Norman B. Johnson's Evanston home were her daughter, Mrs. William M. Pearce, and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Norman Johnson, who were bound for La Jolla, Cal., where young Mr. Johnson now is situated. Mrs. Pearce looked stunning in a gray and red print, most becoming to her black hair and olive skin. Young Mrs. Johnson was in the sort of frock she will wear often in the mild California climate, a gay, bright blue pongee dress trimmed with rickrack. . . . Mrs. Clarence Boyd Jones, who also is leaving Chicago came to the tea in a stunning black and white polka dotted dress and one of the little flowered hats she wears more than any other kind. Her new home is to be in Salt Lake City. Mrs. Stuart Sherman welcomed the fall season in a smart new outfit, a simple black crêpe dress, and a hat that was a pancake of black, turned up at one side and faced in russet suede, and fastened to her head by yards and yards of black yelling. . . . Another smart fall dress was seen at the Glen View club one night, the black and yellow frock worn by Mrs. Daniel Boone. It buttoned down the front with black jet buttons. The dress was of silk, its trimming of yellow wool, and a yellow wool tassel finished the belt. Mrs. R. Douglas Cooper Jr., was wearing a black dress with a tri-color bodice of tomato, gold, and sand at the club one night. The colors were fitted together in a zigzag pattern. Mrs. Richard T. Cragg, back from a visit with her navy husband, carried out the navy motif in a trim dark blue suit and a little matching hat trimmed with anchors. Her blouse was of white silk piped in narrow red braid.

Bright, clear colors are popular this fall. Mrs. Winfield T. Durbin II. was wearing a blouse of pure gold with a green plaid skirt at a recent outdoor event. . . . The West sisters, Sylvia and Ruth, sometimes dress alike, but in different color combinations. Recently they were seen together, Ruth in a purple hat, and a white dress printed with purple flowers. She is the dark haired one of the two. Sylvia was wearing the twin of her sister's brimmed felt hat, but hers was in cerise, and her yellow silk dress was printed in cerise figures. . . . Mrs. Alonzo C. Goodrich arrived at a horse show recently in a stunning gray and yellow print dress. Her hat was a large rosette of the same material, perched well forward on her short white locks. Miss Caryl Casselberry attended the show in a crisp blue and white striped washable dress and a double strand of gold beads about her neck. Her head dress was a double bouquet of savings stamps. Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr., often wears all white. One of her early fall costumes was a white dress, an elongated white wool jacket, cut like a man's, and a little Dutch bonnet on the back of her head.

Chicago Woman's Ideal Club Opens Season Thursday

The fall season will open for the Chicago Woman's Ideal club Thursday in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel with the group's 20th annual "greeting day" luncheon. Mrs. John P. Gately, the president, will be assisted in receiving by her staff. Among the special guests will be Mrs. Preston L. Wettaw, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Thomas Clyne, 1st district president; Mrs. Frank M. Fulton, founder president of the Ideal club; and Mrs. Arthur Nelson and Mrs. Frederic Wellman, former presidents.

Mrs. Earl E. Clark has arranged a gala program for the occasion, featuring Eloise Moore and José Castro, dancers, with Fran Harris, reader, and Yvonne Angarola, pianist, assisting.

Subsequent program planned by Mrs. Clark will bring before the club this season Florence Burke Ellis, in a series of book review hours; Betty Browning Marshall, with color films and a talk on Guatemala; Neysa Smith, astrologist; Lynne Lee Shew, Chinese lecturer; Ann Burk Kuper, dramatic reader; Dr. Preston Bradley, and several Red Cross and military speakers. Wednesday, Nov. 18, is set for the large annual philanthropic card party, which is to be held in the Morrison hotel.

Programs and social events are to be only secondary this season to an extensive schedule of war service which will engage all members. The club will continue its annual scholarship grants to the University of Chicago, Northwestern university, and the Art institute.

In lieu of talk of cosmetic shortages, of drastically reduced incomes, of cold weather soon setting in, we think the subject of the voice a timely one. Why not give study periods to the cultivation of the modulated voice that carries excellently over the telephone wires or carries well under any auditory circumstances?

It's a lovely asset in a woman, as you have been told countless times. It serves her better in charm [yes, and beauty] rating them a face expertly made up, a beautiful coiffure, or even a divinely slender figure. It's a pretty old bromide to resurrect, you'll agree, that "everything is spoiled when she opens her mouth," yet it is one of those axioms so true that age and usage cannot wither its power.

Autumn Paints Berkshires in Vivid Colors

With the arrival of October in the Berkshires nature's skill with the paint brush is revealed on every hand. It is the season of harvest festivals, husking bees, sweet cider and doughnuts, raccoon and game bird hunting.

The Berkshire Garden center at Stockbridge, of which Mrs. William Felton Barrett [Margery Barker] is president, will hold its annual festival next Saturday and it will be one of the gala events of the autumn. The white painted former farmhouse, built before 1800, will be richly decorated. One will come under the spell of wood smoke from an outdoor fireplace, the crunching of a hand cider press, the glamor of the colorful gardens and wide spreading lawns under century-old maples, a riot of red and yellow. Mrs. W. Rockwood Gibbs is to have charge of the tea tables and among those assisting will be Mrs. Harry C. Holloway of Glencoe, Mrs. Brace W. Paddock and Mrs. Lucy Wadhams Dodge. Mrs. Gibbs was recently reëlected president for the 27th year of the Richmond Garden club, which she founded and of which she has been the only president.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Herndon and Mr. and Mrs. George Allen Holloway of New York were the honored guests this week at luncheons given by Mrs. Harry C. Holloway at Tamarack Tyringham and by Mrs. James Lawson Karrick of Washington, D. C., at Southmayd, Stockbridge.

Mrs. David Shields Cook of the Drake hotel, who passed most of the summer with her sister, Mrs. James Ransom Walker, at Fair Acres, Stockbridge, is now at Red Lion inn until she returns to Chicago with Mrs. Walker the middle of October.

Mrs. Donald F. McPherson has closed Court hill, Pittsfield, and has opened her new apartment at 1430 Lake Shore drive. She expects to return to Pittsfield for a few days during the peak of the foliage display around Columbus day.

• • •

Mrs. Warren M. Salisbury has left Tor court, Pittsfield, for two weeks' visit with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wilder Kimball, at Rumford, Me., who have been her guests at Pittsfield. Mrs. Salisbury expects to open her home at 1100 Lake Shore drive soon after Oct. 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Watkins and Edward H. Watkins, Evanston, have been spending a few days at Red Lion inn, Stockbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Wait Talcott have closed their house at Rollaway hill, North Egremont, and are at Rockford for the winter.

Mrs. Aubrey T. Barnes is to be in charge of the program, "Information, Please," at the annual meeting tomorrow of Great Barrington Garden club with Mrs. Frank D. Denton, hostess.

Annual meeting of Berkshire Music festival is to be held tomorrow afternoon at the Dugway, Stockbridge summer home of Mrs. Charles Robinson Smith, mother of Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, who will be reëlected president. The Koussevitzky Foundation is to have its music school at Tanglewood next summer according to present plans.

State Historical Society to Meet in Jacksonville

Memories of Abraham Lincoln will be revived by the Illinois State Historical society next Friday and Saturday in Jacksonville, when that group gathers for its 43d annual meeting and dinner. Dr. Avery O. Craven of the University of Chicago will be the Lincoln speaker; he will discuss "Southern Attitudes" toward the Civil war President.

The society will hear talks by President H. Gary Hudson of Illinois college and President Clarence P. McClelland of MacMurray college on "History in Wartime." Other sessions of the convention will be addressed by Rodney H. Brandon, state director of public welfare, who is to speak on "Dorothea Lynde Dix, Redemptress of the World's Insane," and Mr. Carl E. Black, who will talk on "Jacksonville State Institutions."

John H. Hauberg of Rock Island is president of the society. Dr. James A. James and Dr. Dwight H. Clark of Evanston, Herman D. Smith of Lake Forest, and Dr. James G. Randall of Urbana are directors completing their terms this season. Willard R. Matheny of Chicago has resigned as a director upon being called into army service.

Cook County Federation to Hear Mrs. Elmer Jones

The Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs will present Mrs. Elmer B. Jones in a review of Elizabeth Pickett Chevalier's "Drivin' Woman," post-Civil war story of the tobacco industry in Kentucky, at a dessert luncheon and literary hour at noon tomorrow in the home of Mrs. Charles J. LaHodney, 19 West 111th place. Mrs. Charles J. Bednor, chairman of fine arts for the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, is to attend as special guest.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

This cover from APO 937 is shown thru the kindness of Ben Reeves of Chicago. The censor at this overseas location evidently has not been furnished with a handstamp but found time to hand letter a device with his number.

In a recent issue of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE the Stamp Collector gave the story of slogan postmarks from their inception down to 1914. For those readers who did not see the previous article it may be explained that slogan postmarks are those which contain some advertising matter in the killer portion of the postmark, or between the killer and the town mark. A station name in the killer does not qualify the postmark for inclusion in the slogan list.

In addition to the slogans previously listed San Diego, Cal., in 1913 began to advertise the Panama California exposition scheduled to be held in that city in 1915. These slogans were continued during the following two years and during 1916 were changed so that the exposition date would read "1916" instead of "1915" in the slogan. At this latter date San Diego was joined in the advertising by about 18 other California cities in spreading the news. Several of these cities continued to use this slogan well into 1917 altho the slogan itself continued to advertise an event of 1916.

Other slogans used in 1915 include those for the conventions of the Southern Commercial congresses at Muskogee, Okla., in April and at Charleston, S. C., in December, and an International Dry Farming congress in Denver. In 1916 similar slogans were used for the Dry Farming congress in El Paso, and for the Southern Commercial congress at Norfolk, Va. This year also brought forth slogans for city anniversaries with one to commemorate the 250th anniversary of Newark, N. J., and another for the centenary of Southbridge, Mass. The year also was responsible for the first slogan advertising the national parks. This was used in Denver to mark the opening of the Rocky Mountain National park.

The following year is much more important to the collector, for now it is found that the government has at last become aware of the importance of the slogan in calling attention to various things. The slogans for the original Liberty loan bonds and for the second Liberty loan were placed on some of the canceling machines during the year while others handled the various advices to save food. In addition to these official slogans, local groups were able to obtain slogans for a large variety of events. These included a G. A. R. encampment at Boston, a Confederate veterans' reunion at Washington, a national memorial reunion at Vicksburg, a meeting of young men's business clubs at Lamar, Colo., a dry farming congress at Peoria, the Kansas state fair at Hutchinson, an outdoor sports carnival at St. Paul, the Mississippi State Centennial exposition at Gulfport, preliminary advertising for the Illinois centennial of 1918, and announcement for the opening of Rainier National park.

Apparently the government was well pleased with its use of slogans, for no new authorization for local events was made in 1918. The Illinois centennial slogan continued in use and the opening date for Rainier National park was announced by nearby cities as the season approached. All other slogans during this year were admonitions to buy Liberty bonds and to save food.

The end of the World war saw an end to the two slogans last mentioned and the government at once provided other slogans to prevent forest fires, with one issued to Salt Lake City for fire prevention week. This year saw the start of the Christmas seal campaign, then in connection with the National Red Cross association, but the use was limited to a few cities. The national parks put out a general slogan to visit the parks or the national forests, with special slogans for Yellowstone, Glacier, and Rainier parks. Apparently only one slogan was approved for a local event, this being the homecoming at Boise, Idaho. There was in addition a slogan to call attention to a meeting of the Roosevelt Memorial association in New York in October.

In 1920 the postoffice department began to use slogans for its own purposes, starting with the various phrases requesting patrons to address mail to street and number, and late in the year advising them to mail early for Christmas. There was an extensive use of this medium to obtain enlistments in the army and the navy with a continuation thruout the country of the cautions about the prevention of forest fires and the conservation of wild life. Late in the year there was a repetition of the 1919 Christmas seal campaign. The parks were advertised to a much larger extent than before with slogans for the Black Hills, Pisgah, and the Oregon National forests, and for Crater Lake, Mesa Verde, Zion, Yellowstone, and Glacier National parks. One local event was worthy of a slogan, this being a military carnival at El Paso.

The first instalment of this article omits the first slogan used in this country. It was for the Universal Postal congress in Washington in 1897 and is scarce. Nearly all the slogans listed in this instalment are easy to obtain. Those which are scarcer than normal are the ones used in connection with the military carnival at El Paso, the Mississippi Centennial exposition, the reunion at Vicksburg, and the young men's business clubs' meeting at Lamar. One variety of the Roosevelt Memorial slogan with a missing letter is scarce and so are one or two obscure varieties of the third Liberty loan and food slogans.

The continuation of this slogan list will be found in an early issue of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Some months ago when the question of changing the metal in 5 cent pieces was under discussion this department made the statement that nickels coined in an alloy consisting of half silver and half copper would be more than twice as valuable intrinsically as standard dollars. It was stated also that they would be melted down for the bullion if silver should advance to 62.2 cents per ounce.

This department does not claim to have made any discovery in this matter, but it is worthy of mention that the alloy proposed was never used for the coins. Recently it has been announced that inasmuch as jewelers are paying up to 72 cents per ounce for fine silver it has been found necessary to reduce the amount of silver in the proposed coinage to the point where it will not pay to melt the coins for sale as bullion. The new alloy, it is stated, will consist of 35 parts of silver, 56 parts of copper, and 9 parts of manganese.

Coinage in the new metal should begin at once as nickels have not been minted since March and the stock held in mints is practically exhausted.

A nation-wide appeal to stamp collectors for the donation of stamps, albums, catalogs, and philatelic accessories is being made by the USO thru a special "Stamps for Servicemen" campaign which is intended to furnish men in the armed forces with the materials necessary for forming a stamp collection.

This decision follows a partial examination of replies received in answer to a questionnaire sent out to 850 USO clubs. Two thirds of the replies received at the time this appeal was released show a definite interest in stamps and more than 200 clubs have asked for stamps, albums, catalogs and accessories, as well as philatelic literature. Donations of all kinds should be sent to the USO "Stamps for Servicemen," Empire State building, New York, N. Y. All contributions will be acknowledged.

You Can Bleach Your Skin to a Lighter, Prettier Hue with Mercolized Wax Cream

FASHION indicates the return to favor of fairer, softer skin. Ever in stride with the latest mode, Mercolized Wax Cream lends its subtle bleaching and beautifying action to help you win a fashionable, lighter, lovelier complexion. Mercolized Wax Cream hastens the natural shedding of the dull, surface skin and uncovers the fairer, softer, smoother underskin. The action takes place so gradually that the actual flaking process is not visible. But soon you become aware of the improved appearance of your complexion. Start bleaching your skin tonight using Mercolized Wax Cream according to directions and you will be pleased.

REMOVE FACIAL HAIR with PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Phelactine not only takes off the surface hair, but actually extracts the portion embedded under the skin, leaving no fuzz or stubble. It can be applied quickly and easily in a few seconds. Not a cream or powder. Has no obnoxious odor. You will like Phelactine.

TRY SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT, the DELIGHTFUL SKIN FRESHENER. It is a quick acting, refreshing aid for daily care of the skin. Saxolite reduces excess oil on the surface skin; and its contracting action temporarily tightens the skin tissue. Simply dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat this lotion briskly on the skin several times daily.

Set Plan Aids Morning School Rush of Children

Sure Way to Curb Tempers in Early Hours

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Every fall and every midyear I have reports from mothers about certain effects, upon their younger children, of school life and of the rush of getting them there on time. Their appetites for breakfast are affected and frequently active nausea is brought about, which does not appear on Saturdays and Sundays. In addition, many parents bemoan the short tempers and irritability that sprout in the morning rush.

Well, I wouldn't say that being systematic and methodical were outstanding qualities in our family, but we do learn some things by experience and thru our mistakes, so let me give you a few suggestions, for who hasn't groaned over getting her children to school on time?

• • •

One would have to be a perfect mother with perfect children never to have experienced any morning off to school troubles, or otherwise be such a martinet as to get action thru fear. Let's see what we can suggest. There are several things we have to cope with on school mornings.

One of the first obstacles to remove from the morning routine is fatigue. The child who has to be awakened out of sleep can't get herself together as well, and go thru the motions of getting off in the morning, as the rested child.

• • •

So one way to help avoid early morning scrambles is to get the children to bed early enough. In the case of a child who has to make an early start, a short rest in the afternoon, when she comes home from school, would be advisable. Then she will later get the most good from her afternoon play outdoors.

But that isn't enough. Being rested doesn't prevent children from lingering in the mornings over all the things that have to be done before they are ready to leave.

There are three things in regard to time and children that we have to consider. First, children have a slow or deliberate tempo as a rule. Second, they are usually quite lacking in a sense of time. In a natural state, life is eternity to them. And third, they not only lack a sense of time, but they lack that urge to keep moving uniformly or pushing steadily until they've gone thru all their "stunts." They'll wash all right enough, then stop, or dawdle, as we grownups call it.

They'll eat, and stop to dream or do something quite unbusinesslike for this time of day, which, we call lingering. They don't keep plugging unless they're trained to it. This has been my experience, especially when children are quite young.

So, because of these three tendencies, children have to be stage managed, at least for a while, in order to smooth the early part of school days. One very good way to do this is to apportion their time. For instance, suppose they must leave for school by 8:40. They may wake up much earlier than they need to and, perhaps, in warm slippers and bathrobe frisk or fool around the house. But when 7:30 comes, you say, "time to start dressing."

If you see things are going too slowly, give them a warning. "It's five minutes to eight. Breakfast soon." Because they know that sitting down at eight is a fixed plan, they learn to speed up.

Finished eating at 8:25, they then have 15 minutes in which to get their coats, handkerchiefs, and books together, go to the bathroom, and depart. This is merely a suggested schedule. An entirely different system may fit your case if you are having morning struggles, but some system does help.

Some such mapping out of the children's time yourself, and keeping to it, is of practical value in getting away from the nagging and scolding method, and even an unmethodical person can do this much systemizing. Mapping out their morning time with the children, if they are old enough, is much more impressive to them, and soon they get to the point of watching the time themselves. Get pencil and paper and let them draw up a trial plan, which you can afterward discuss together.

The important thing is to instill enough sense of time to get them off in the morning without rushing, friction and nagging. You can explain it to them, since this is not in the least beyond their comprehension. You might say, "It's not pleasant for me to have to talk and talk and push and prod you in the morning so you'll be on time. I don't like it and you don't like it. Let's get along without so much conversation. We'll plan the morning in sections. We'll allow plenty of time for you to do everything and to have some time left over for the unexpected.

"Sometimes you break a shoelace, or lose your cap, or forget where you put your homework, or cut your finger and have to have it bandaged. Well, we'll allow time for little emergencies such as that. Then, if you get thru early, you may do what you like with that time." The children can understand this, and appreciate the difference it will make in the morning atmosphere.

So divide the morning into three or four parts, to avoid prodding and expecting the children to "step on it" all along the line without breathing space. Also see that they get up in the morning with all the verve and good nature that a long night of peaceful sleep should mean to any healthy child.

Thru the Looking Glass

A good hand cream, used after every hand washing and invariably at night before you tumble into bed, will keep the skin soft and smooth all winter. Consistency in applying softeners and protecting the skin as much as possible will prevent the usual cold weather ravages of roughness and redness.

Waiting until your hands give you the distress signals is waiting just too long to begin your fall and winter schedule of assiduous hand care. Why don't you try prevention for its proverbial worth this year? You'll find it ever so much easier to prevent hand damage than to repair it.

Under the head of prevention, of course, we would list the necessity to use bland soaps. If you do housework your contact with harsher cleansers will be inevitable, tho. Use rubber gloves whenever feasible and hand softener before and after every household chore. Remember, especially if you're a housewife, that the old habit of stepping outdoors, even if for a moment, with your hands wet from dishwater, will do more than anything else to redden and roughen your hand skin.

Perhaps the most important of all these precautions is the one about the use of a good hand softener. It would be impossible to overdo on this score. Slather cream or lotion into the skin after every washing, without fail. And, if you can possibly work it into your schedule, massage a heavy, richer kind of cream in at night, leaving it on as long as you can.

One hand cream for which we have a great fondness is pure white, thin in texture, that can be used either for the quick treatment after each hand washing or, in far more generous quantities, for the leisurely, businesslike session of hand massage before you tumble into bed. A thin film of it does a good job for you half a dozen times a day and its presence on the skin doesn't slow you up a bit, since it vanishes almost instantly. You're not conscious of its presence at all, but that quick application does wonders in soothing and lubricating the skin.

• • •

At night it can be used in greater quantity and more time taken to work it in well. The more you apply and the more time you give it, the better. It won't make the linen greasy if you work it in well, and its healing powers are excellent. Your work worn—or just winter worn—hands will look smoother in the morning.

A Century of Progress Group to Hold Reunion

Thursday will find the Association of Chicago's 1933 A Century of Progress Horticultural exhibition at its fall breakfast reunion in the Graemere hotel, Washington boulevard and Homan avenue. A talk on women's place in the world conflict and a new commentary are scheduled on the program. After the breakfast, which is set for 12:30 o'clock, the group will visit the Garfield Park conservatory nearby. Mrs. Wallace B. Combs is president of the association. Mrs. James Oliver, 1024 North Austin boulevard, Oak Park, has charge of reservations.

Lady of the House

New Slate.

Passing the window of a stationer's shop the other day my eye was caught by some little slates with plain wooden frames.

Thus vividly reminded, I harked back to my own first school days in the dim past, and the little girls who sat across the aisle from me. Not only did I envy her brown curls—my own hair being painfully straight and a bit reddish—but still more, the big double slate all bound with dark red felt laced on with black shoestring. My own was just a single one, the felt a yellowish red, and the lacing spaced more economically.

But it did have a small sponge tied to one corner by a string; and another little girl shared with me the nice pink, soapy water she brought in a fancy bottle. So I was comforted until I, too, by putting out what I thought to be carefully calculated hints at home, acquired a big double slate and a new slate pencil all wrapped about with red and white striped paper, with white stars on a blue band near the top.

By that time I had discovered its advantages. You could write something to be easily read over your shoulder, or draw a funny picture of Johnny or Mary—or even teacher, if you were bold enough—then fold over the leaf or obliterate the writing with one sweep of the sponge and be intent on your work in subtraction if teacher came down the aisle. The before school chore was to clean up the slate and have it ready for lessons, and gradually it seeped into our souls that starting a day, or a job, with a clean slate was the thing to do.

September.

I see after silver rain
In the shadows golden grain,
Breezes crisp on autumn days,
On the earth a mellow haze,
Mornings cool and whispering
That so much resemble spring.

I see children off to school
Ling'ring at the swimming pool;
Once the leaves were only green;
Reds and yellows now are seen;
Fireplaces warm and bright
Beckon on a frosty night.

I see toward the south birds fly
In a row across the sky;
Goldenrod, chrysanthemums
Blooming when the autumn comes;
We, in spring and summer, roam,
But September guides us home.

—Lillian Oswald.

Love's Summer.
(A Spenserian sonnet to my husband.)

Come, let us gather in the golden sheaves
Of happiness before the summer sun
Sinks low, and time blows years like autumn leaves
From the tree of life, and our sand's brief course is run.
Shared pleasures in our springtime we had none—
Our paths wound far apart, in devious ways—
No burgeonings were ours, but we have won
The flower and fruit of love . . . rich summer days
To hold against the heart in autumn's haze
And winter's white insensitivity.
And in the darkness when war's lightning plays
Out above us its deadly destiny.
Tho greed and hate, and war and death ne'er cease,
Your hand in mine, we know but love and peace.

—Catherine W. Davis.

Fairy Family.
(For the children.)

Did you ever see the fairy
In our morning glory vine?
She's a very busy Mother Sprite
With elfin children nine.

The seven youngsters go to school
Each morning just at eight;
For they would surely be chagrined
If ever they were late.

They bathe their faces carefully
With shining drops of dew,
And always wash behind their ears!
[Tho no one tells them to.)

Big Sister stays at home all day;
With dignity and poise
She knits with silver spider webs
For pixie soldier boys.

Big Brother has his work to do—
He paints the hollyhocks,
And winds the tiny watches of
The blossom four-o'clocks;

He rings the canterbury bells
For church on Sunday morn;
And in the pixie orchestra
He blows an elfin horn.

Now Mother Fairy bakes and sews,
'N' sweeps 'n' scrubs 'n' scours,
And makes a "Home, Sweet Home" for them
In morning glory flowers.

—Dorene Tanner Oehler.

[Mrs. Oehler wonders if there aren't a good many children who know fairies they would like to have poems written about. If there are, let us hear from you.]

Two Daughters of the H. H. Schoenlanks Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Schoenlank of 1447 Birchwood avenue are announcing the marriages of their two daughters. Miss Jean Lee Schoenlank and Gilbert Addis, son of Benjamin Addis, were married on Aug. 29 in Los Angeles, Cal. The marriage of Miss Betty Ann Schoenlank to Alfred Colitz, son of Louis Colitz, took place on Sept. 16 in Las Vegas, Nev.

Bettina Bedwell Says:

It's going to be quite all right, in the eyes of the strictest dishers-out of clothes etiquet, for women and girls to wear warm tweed dresses and suits with gleaming details, sparkling buttons, for trimming, at any time of the day they feel like doing it. Warm, and even gaudy, colors for the woolen dresses we wear still are plentiful, and rich greens, reds, oranges, blues, and violets can be had this winter, altho there is a hint that this state of color opulence won't last the next six months.

The idea of "tweed and tinsel" for a successful merger of practical warmth and sparkling beauty rolled into one, comes from Joset Walker, who is one of the brightest stars among the designers of readymade clothes in this country. Miss Walker is responsible also for the streamlined 1942 dirndl skirt, which has no bulky gathers, but gets that way by a series of seams in skirts. And a lot of other ideas from her pretty head are making fashions in the best shops over the country.

Patterns by Clotilde

Busy women's wardrobes simply cry for softly tailored designs these days. There's something about the times which makes excessively decorated frocks in poor taste, so smart women are clamoring for things which are feminine without being overdone. These three designs are just what they want, we know.

At the left, a distinguished frock with no trimming except tiny fabric covered buttons. The design is patriotic because it uses the minimum of material, keeping to slender lines. Many types of material will make up well.

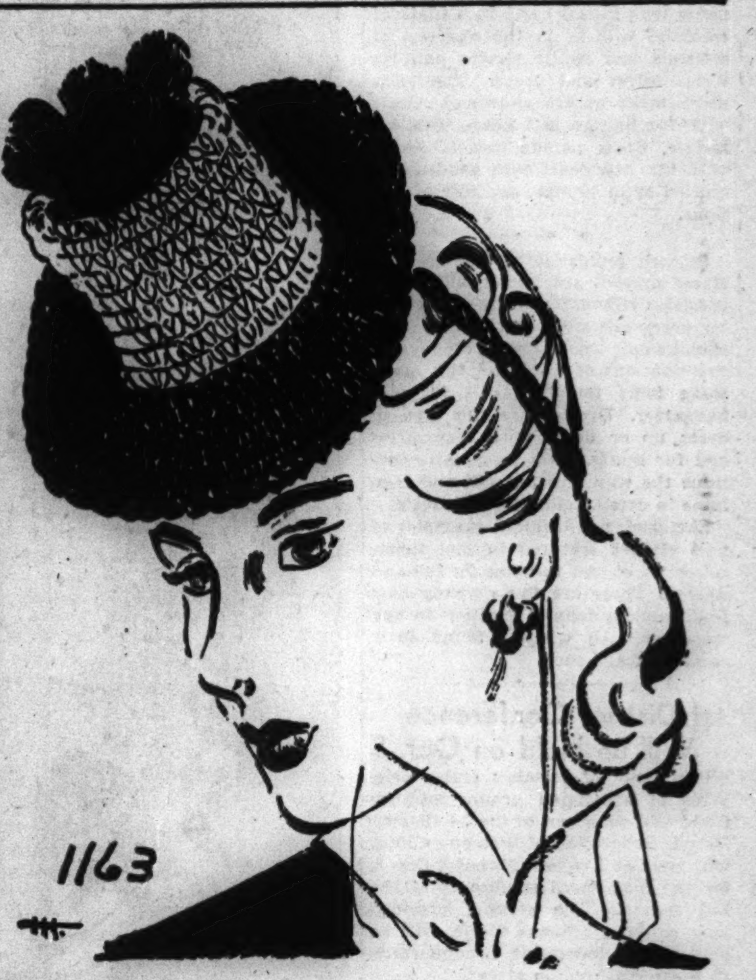
Stovepipe Sailor



By Ellen Bruce.

If you want to toss a smart crocheted "quickie" together, why not make this stovepipe sailor? High crowns are the rage this fall. It requires less than a day's time to create and uses only two balls of four ply cotton and a few feathers. The cost is well under a dollar, and it is ideal when you can't find just what you want at your favorite milliner's.

For instructions in crocheting the stovepipe sailor hat, No. 1163, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Soakers for the Baby

Soakers, used instead of rubber pants, are becoming very popular. Not airtight, they minimize scalding and, when made of cotton, may be sterilized by boiling as required by modern practice. Knit several Soakers and use them daily. Since they can be knitted so quickly of Enterprise Cotton Yarn (4 to 5 hours working time), Soakers make lovely inexpensive shower gifts.

Instructions for the two styles pictured are included in "Wings to Your Crochet Needle," a new book of instructions for more than 30 things to crochet and knit—for gifts, bazaars, or personal use. "Wings to Your Crochet Needle" sent for 10c in coin or stamps, address Needlework Dept., 506 South Wells St., Chicago.

Fall Fashions Are Chic and Colorful Despite War

Styles for '42 Easy on Eyes, Easy to Wear

By Rea Seeger.

While new fall and winter collections always impress, there are in each showing, a few exciting creations that promise drama, glamor and distinction because they are highlights of the show. Sometimes it's a dashing brilliant color, sometimes it's a new dusky tone like cinnamon or burnt sienna or copper, featured not only in coats and suits but in dresses. Other times it's a new fabric, a brand new synthetic of these wartimes, or a silhouette or a streamline or the intricate draping of a new skirt. And many's the time it's been dramatizing accents in trimmings.

This season leaves nothing to be desired in this respect. There are all kinds of good looking, even beautiful clothes despite dismal croakings about rationing, priorities, frozen silhouettes, and all the rest of the wartime restrictions. And another cheer for the unflagging enthusiasms of the designers, obviously not a bit hampered by the rules and regulations. Fashions of fall and winter, 1942, are exceedingly easy on the eyes, as easy to wear, and just as exciting as in any previous season. There is gallant color, there is flattery of streamline, there are contrast, effective accent details, and all the typical American swank and snap to every piece in every collection. We've managed extremely well without the inspiration of Paris. All we've got to do now is appreciate and encourage our own unmistakably gifted designers by buying what is out on display for us to buy.

Wearing becoming, beautifully designed clothes is a way of sustaining morale. No man in uniform wants to come back on leave or furlough and find his heart's desire in a uniform, so select your winter wardrobe gratefully and with appreciation, choosing this time as never before the clothes that will work for you.

All the new collections have been or are being launched. There are daily fashion parades in nearly every shop and store in town. Dresses, suits, coats, the newest ideas in war time costume accessories and dramatic long gloves come in a blaze of color, as well as in the smartest of neutrals and subtle shades both in wool, velvet and crepe. The suits alone make superb showings. Coats with fur linings, soft fleecy wool exteriors, dress parade models lavish with fur, new coats with padded and quilted satin linings, are star attractions.

Smooth sophisticated daytime and street dresses are legion, all cut in precision silhouette, models that flatter every one who wears them. Soft rabbit's hair wool, jerseys, crêpes and combinations of wool and silk make these finds tempting bait for any budgeteer. Dresses are the type to dress up or down with accessories and fur scarfs. Two piece suits continue the way of being soft and feminine in detail, color and silhouette.

Sketched, five brilliant examples of new clothes featured in one super-collection of new fashions for fall and winter. These are five exciting new finds, each a definite addition to any wardrobe. All will be found in a smart Chicago shop.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt.

There's a water mixed paint for interior use which is of special interest at this time since it is especially adapted to redecorating purposes. . . . It is a paint which can be washed with soap and water and yet its fine colors have no gloss or glare, shine or sheen. It dries in less than an hour and will cover even a patterned wall paper. It needs no primer and yet can be applied over painted or unpainted masonry, wall board or plaster, and considering the need to save in every way these days, its extra light-reflective assets make for lighter rooms, where maximum light is needed.

Timely, likewise, is a phosphorescent paint which is of use during the lights-out signals. . . . This paint is visible in total blackness, and you can use it to coat your door knobs, your stairs, your light switches, drawer pulls, etc. . . . Any strategic points, in brief, which would be a comfort if visible in a blackout room or house.

There's a factory-built duct on the market that is made entirely of asbestos and has several worthwhile assets worth considering at the present time. . . . It eliminates metallic "cracking," conserves sheet metal and combines both duct and insulation. In addition this factory-built duct is a natural sound absorber and a nonconductor of sound, and reduces outside noise at the same time that it hushes fan noise. . . . The units are fireproof.

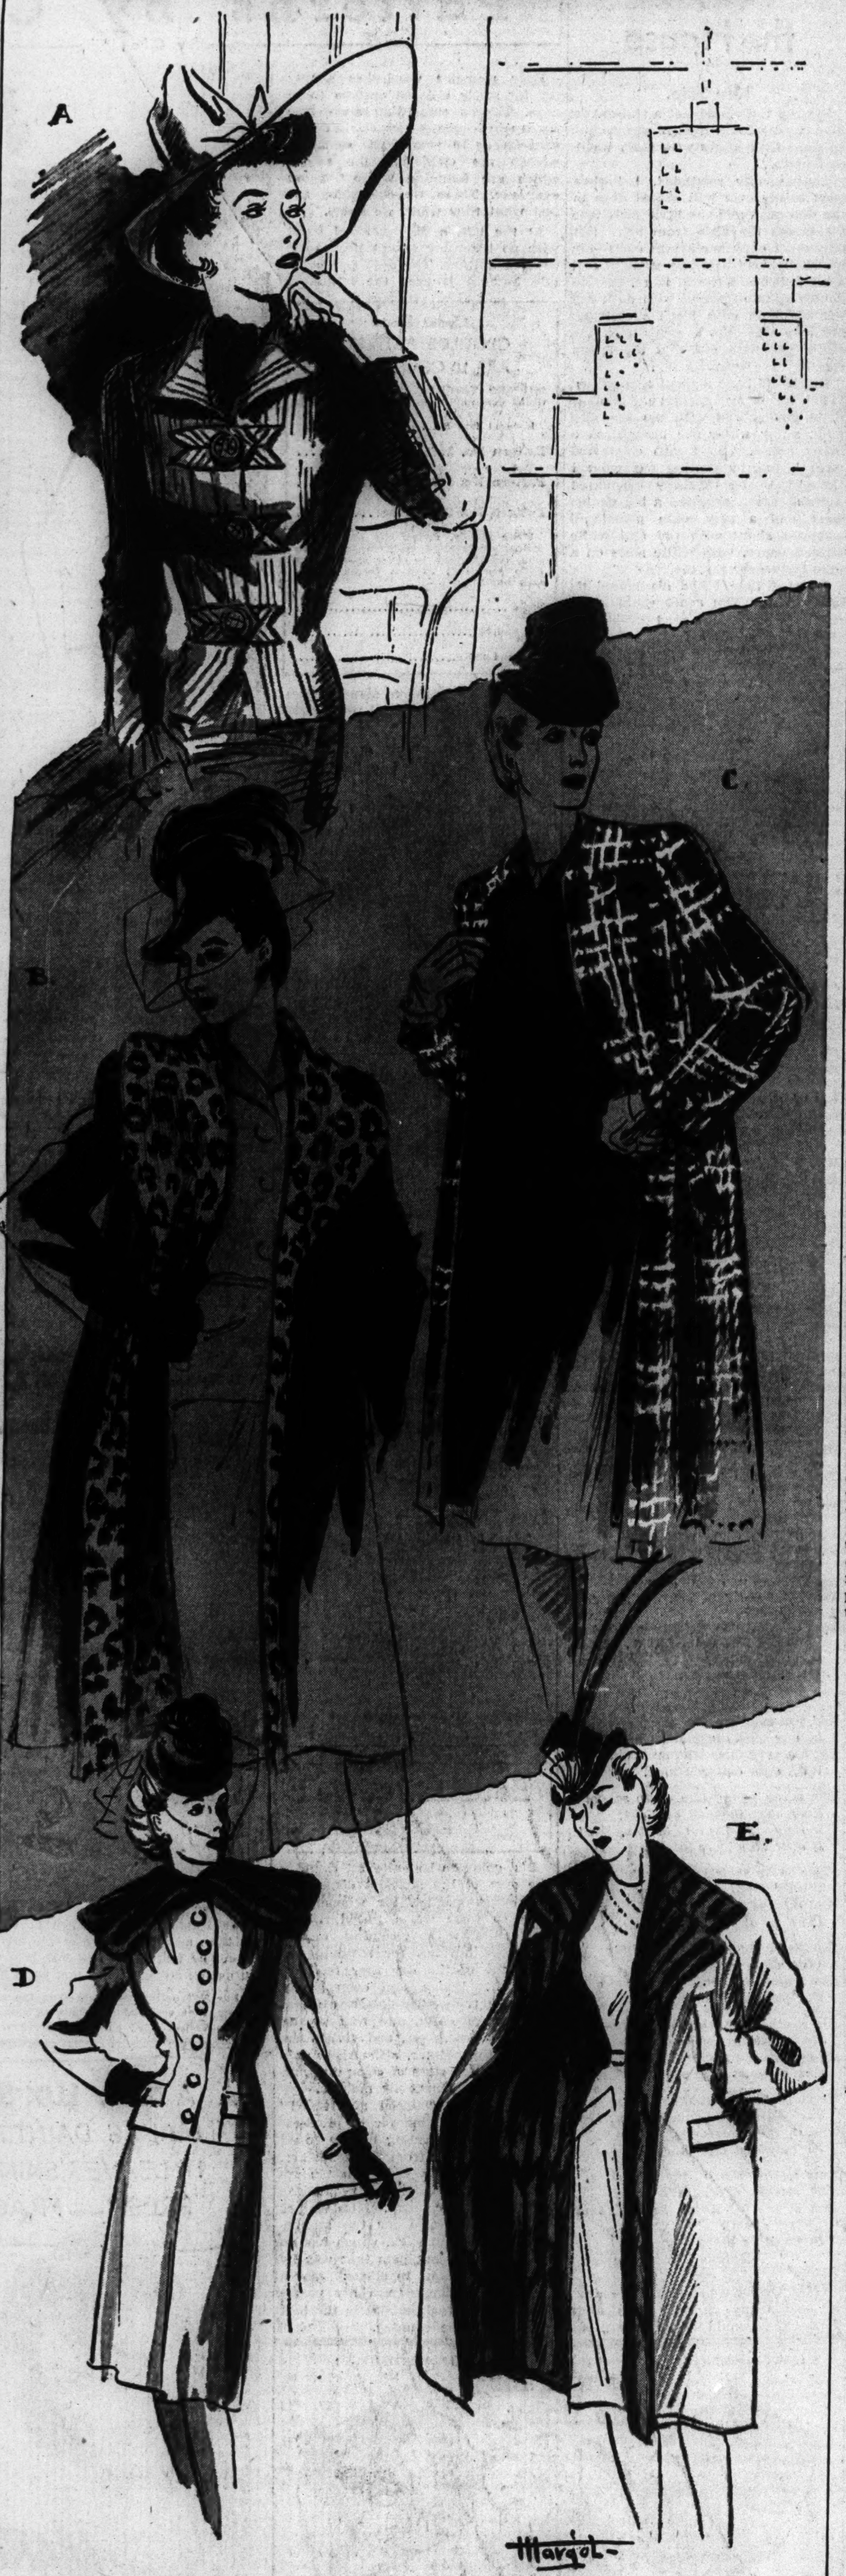
WIDE CHOICE AMONG SMART DESIGNS



• A. One of the most unusual of two piece corduroy suits. The pattern of the corduroy is different and the ribs are used for the accent trim in the frogs on the jacket. • B. Stunning bright red wool to be worn as an all purpose winter coat. The material is soft and fleecy, the lining is of stenciled leopard print on honey beige lapin. • C. The all-time classic ensemble of companion two piece suit with a top coat. The suit is of fine soft plum color wool. • D. Dress parade suit of smooth wool trimmed with cinnamon brown mink skins. • E. The best buys of the season are the varied models of wool coats lined with silver muskrat. Such a coat assures swank and warmth for the coldest weather.

Beauty, Thrift in Decoration of New Rooms

By Edith Weigle.

"Beauty and economy" is the theme song of a newly decorated model house. The charming effects of each room are gained thru skill and contrivance rather than by the outlay of large sums of money.

In the living room, for example, an inexpensive, sturdy, and artistic flax-loom rug takes the place of the usual wool broadloom. In the dining room, too, an innovation is the gray sisal floor covering, 12 by 12. And in the bedroom the smart scatter rugs are as practical as they are pretty, for they wear like iron, can be laundered, and are made of twisted cotton. There's a nice color range in these rugs, too.

Another economical trick in the living room is the window treatment. The handsome, floral printed draperies are ready made, and tho they look expensive they are a thrifty buy. The design, called "Potpourri," shows masses of dull yellow roses with blue-green foliage against a white background.

• • •

A wallpaper which is an almost exact match is used to cover twin chests of drawers, which are placed against one wall, and which are most decorative. These chests are available unfinished and so can be given coverings of any paper you choose, or of paint, if you prefer.

The color scheme of this living room is yellow, white, and green. The walls are painted a light yellow-green, and a small bay-windowed alcove is done in pure white. The flax-loom rug is a gray mixture. A pair of matching couches, facing each other in front of the fireplace, are upholstered in plain, deep green, and two comfortable arm chairs [one a barrel back] are in a light yellow novelty weave. Lamps repeat the yellow note.

• • •

A touch of scarlet is introduced in the quilted chintz covering of two graceful little French chairs, the frames of which are painted white. They are placed in front of long book cases which cover an end wall of the room.

A row of green potted plants in the mantel decoration—simple, inexpensive, and effective. Small glass shelves in the windows hold more plants and a collection of pieces of colored glass.

The dining room is carried out in crimson, white, and gray. Walls are white, while the ceiling is papered in a marble like design of the three colors. The furniture is dark mahogany.

For window draperies yards and yards of floral striped crimson and white chintz are festooned over white brackets. Just one length of the material does this, and you can imagine how easy it is to take down and launder. Under curtains are of fine white net.

A drapery fabric of pink clovers on a white ground inspires the bedroom color scheme. Three walls are painted white while the fourth, against which the dark mahogany beds are placed, is papered in the same clover pattern. The bedspreads are of the drapery material, made with white ruffles, and more of it is used in the pretty little pleated lamp shades on the dressing table lamps.

This is a glimpse of the living room in a newly furnished house that stresses economy, and proves charm and beauty are not necessarily expensive.

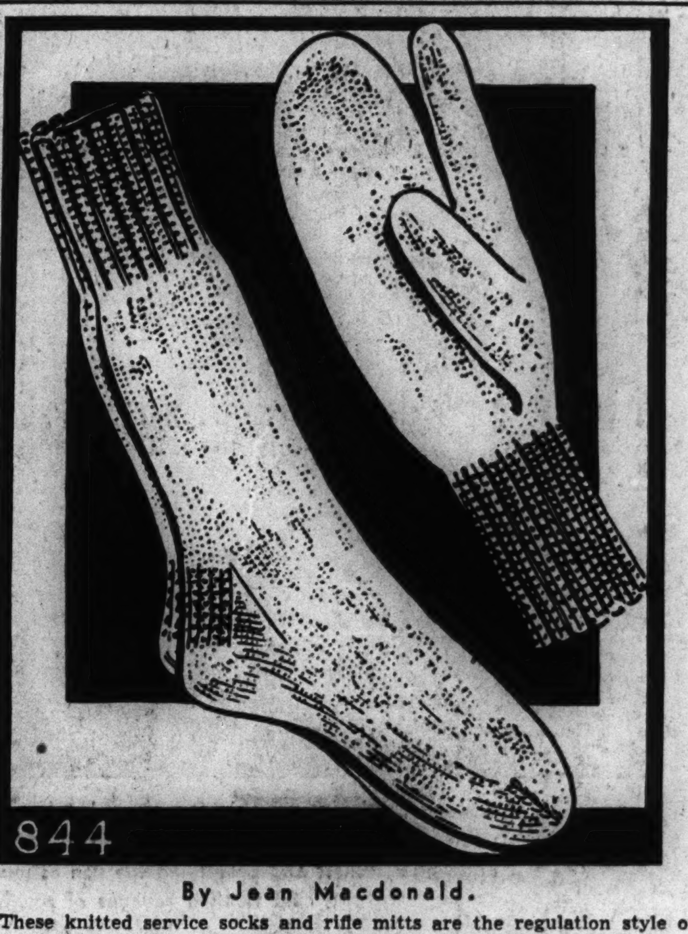
Service Socks and Mitts



By Jean Macdonald.

These knitted service socks and rifle mitts are the regulation style of heavy duty garments used in active service. The socks have double heels and are indorsed for those who demand comfort and durability. The rifle mitts may do active duty in civilian life when knitted of yellow or gray wool. The socks and mitts are available in sizes 10½, 11, and 11½.

For instructions in crocheting the socks and rifle mitts, No. 844, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Mrs. Ted S., Chicago—I try to be careful in laundering of our woolen garments, but if I get a slight scorch on any of them, when pressing, I immediately rub scorch with glycerine. In two hours I rub off with warm water, and after drying, I cover with damp cloth and press again.

* *

Sarah G., Milwaukee, Wis.—We have had trouble with silver fish in our summer cottage. This year I am placing traps around house in all dark spots. Have been told that these fish like white flour so I am putting teaspoon of white flour in bottom of empty cold cream jars. I wrap these around with rough tape to make a surface silver fish can cling to, and leave inside smooth and slick so they'll be trapped, once they've got into jars.

* *

Elinor Smith, Chicago—Why not go old-fashioned and place on the market a socket attachment for bicycle saddles which will hold umbrellas—on the order of our old buggy whip holders?

* *

Mrs. Freda S., Des Moines, Ia.—I've been successful making cut flowers live longer by the following method. As soon as I get them I hold the lower stalk ends under water in bowl or vase. Then I cut those ends and this eliminates that part of the stalks into which air bubbles entered when flowers were clipped. Once rid of these bubbles the water resumes its upward movement. I'm convinced this helps.

Mrs. George J., Chicago—Here's what I did last winter to keep my garage doors from freezing shut after melted snow had trickled between frame and door. I used old crankcase oil and a paint brush and kept frame and door edges nicely oiled when the weather was freezing or below.

* *

Mrs. Jack B., Springfield, Ill.—My husband has been using a tip he read about some time ago and it certainly works. When he's doing paint jobs around house, and using brushes of different colored paints, he keeps these brushes in good condition overnight by slipping the bristles of each brush into a paper bag, tightly tied at handle. Then he puts all the brushes into a can of linseed oil, and there's no running of colors. Nor are the brushes all dried out in the morning.

Harriet M., Chicago—I keep a moist sponge in lid of our family paste jar. It keeps paste from drying and hardening when we are not using it.

Old Capital Homes Turned Over to U. S.

By Cousin Eve.

WASHINGTON, D. C. A novel feature of Washington is the great houses turned over to the United States government. They stand behind high grilles, silent and unoccupied, in an aura of vanished pomp and pageantry. Among these palaces, abandoned because of supertaxes, are the Lars Anderson house in Massachusetts avenue, the Leiter mansion at Dupont circle, the Henderson house perched on a sort of knoll, and the enormous Townsend residence owned by Mrs. Sumner Welles, a beauty who was formerly Matilde Townsend.

Then there is the vast Thomas F. Walsh house, from whose front door the Walsh widow refused to pass after her husband's death. However, she used the side entrance, which looks quite as handy, and her daughter, Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, abandoned the big pile of brick and moved over to Georgetown just lately. Mrs. McLean bought Alexander Kirk's white elephant in that suburb, an abode which occupies a whole block and has much charm. It has stood idle for years for two reasons, the principal being an annual rental of $40,000. The second item was that several of the state apartments of the house were decorated in black thruout. This interior black-out was depressing to house hunters and the big house became a pain in the neck to its owner, who is now American minister to Egypt.

Mrs. McLean, however, liked the gardens, the old boxwood, which is said to have cost a fortune in six figures, and the enchanting pool. Alex Kirk had added a splendid ballroom and a terrace, all of which admit of wholesale entertaining by the new chatelaine who thinks nothing of having 150 guests to Sunday night supper.

Mrs. McLean has a big list and Washington people are delighted to find themselves on it, as she gives the most elaborate parties in the town. She continues to be vividly pretty, with a halo of white hair, violet eyes, and usually wears the great Hope diamond on a platinum chain round her neck. This stone, once a conversation piece, is now an everyday matter in a world of large, flamboyant jewels. It is a blue diamond with far more quality, but looking like an aquamarine. Mrs. McLean's guests are usually from both political camps and society as well. A charming Republican friend of mine found herself lately dining with Sen. Joseph F. Guffey on one side and Judge Samuel I. Rosenman, the celebrated New Deal ghost writer, on the other.

The lesser great houses have been bought and occupied by embassies. As one moves out Massachusetts avenue and 16th street there are lines of these houses on foreign soil. The old red brick German embassy is now owned and used by the British; the beautiful pale pink Japanese embassy stands shuttered and empty on its terraces over Rock Creek park, in the care of Spain. But the most admired of all these miniature palaces is the white marble, one story, rambling house of Venezuela. It is really beautiful. South Africa has bought a fine place for a legation to house the Hon. Ralph Close. New Zealand has a new legation, and the Greeks have blown themselves to a large corner mansion downtown.

The Hon. Patrick Hurley, first American envoy to New Zealand, is home from the antipodes with his handsome head all bandaged up—he got hit, it seems, by a Nip shell. Ruth Hurley, always beautiful and serene, remained in Washington while her husband was away, and rented the farm at Leesburg to President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines. She has several daughters to run around in society and had an eye on the lovely stone house near the Misses Patten's, which was suddenly bought last week by Luxemburg's grand duchess.

On the way out to the Washington cathedral one day with Mrs. Charles Dewey, we set out to find the Children's museum, a new idea in museums which seems to have had wide vogue.

There are 40 children's museums covering the world, 20 in the United States. The Washington museum is installed in a fine old house called Villa Rosa which had been unoccupied for many years. It was supposed to be haunted. Whoever leased Villa Rosa never stayed long, until finally the grand mansion got a bad name.

I had never been to the Washington cathedral nor had I even seen it from afar, so it was exciting enough to enter the great Gothic church, so near completion on the inside but far from finished as to the outer shell. It was just like any European cathedral of the first class, with magnificent rose windows over the altar, rush bottom chairs, carved stalls for the clergy, and many beautiful side chapels. All it really needed to give it the feel of an old French or Spanish cathedral was the passage of time. It even had flying buttresses on the outside, comparable with those of Chartres, and as to crypts and underground chapels we had to have a lady guide to find them all and hear their names and history.

There is a society of pious Washington women who act as guides free of charge. Our guide was a soulful blonde in smart azure costume who lectured with a soft southern accent. Under her aegis we admired the lovely children's chapel where little children are supposed to pray, and the magnificent chapel of St. Mary of Nazareth and the rich chapel of St. Joseph, where is Lars Anderson's tomb. We also passed the tombs of Frederick H. Prince Jr., who died in the last war, President Woodrow Wilson, Gen. Nelson Miles, and Adm. Dewey, whose tomb is in the chapel of Bethlehem. It was in this chapel that A. Peter Dewey, Mrs. Dewey's younger son, was married to Nancy Welles early in August of this year, the admiral being a relative of the young bridegroom. The wedding, a hurriedly arranged ceremony done to fit in a week-end leave, was carried on without benefit of bridesmaids, but with 17 ushers to usher guests in the small chapel.

Coming away from the cathedral we passed a row of the duckiest little white houses, about five of them with a tiny garage, each with black iron grilles and black doors. It was in fashionable 16th street, and each of these little dwellings houses a millionaire who presumably lives there from preference.

* The finest house with large grounds in Washington is Langley park in the suburb of Silver Springs. It is owned by Leander McCormick-Goodhart and he continues to live there, having recently resigned as commercial counsellor of the British embassy. Mr. McCormick-Goodhart's father was British and his mother was Henrietta McCormick, only sister of the late R. Hall and Hamilton McCormick of Chicago.

Leander and Janet Goodhart keep up a big establishment after the English manner and all spring have had baseball and tennis Saturday and Sunday afternoons followed by a big tea for all and sundry at Langley park. The guests are apt to be largely British.

When I was in Washington, however, and expecting to drive out on Sunday, the family was still staying on at Martha's Vineyard, where they have a cottage. Then along came an invitation to journey out to Col. Robert Guggenheim's estate with some people who were going for a swim and had their bathing suits along. They were the kind of suits, by the way, in which you don't go near the water—but sit looking very divine on dry land.

Twice before I had been to Col. Guggenheim's parties, once aboard his yacht in the Potomac and again at his stables. His former wife was a great horsewoman, I seem to remember. The present chatelaine, Polly, is a most lovely blonde from Norfolk, a great belle in Washington, with wide set eyes blue as larkspur. The Tudor house, curved like a half moon, lies way off in the country, northeast, I believe, and hidden in deep woods and groves of magnificent trees.

You never know in Washington where you go—you are merely taken somewhere for a ride. Sitting on the terrace we looked off and down on rolling country, and across the blue depths of the swimming pool half hidden in a fringe of young trees. It was a hot afternoon, and so gay the chat and so good the limeades that we never swam at all, just revelled in well being. Our hostess, however, wore a novel bath frock made of ciré chintz, pink and pale blue, that covered her swimming bras and knickers. The interior of the Guggenheim house is handsome, and as Polly doesn't like Gothic furniture she is having fun doing it over to suit her husband's famous Holbeins.

One of the great novelties of the Washington season was the Water Gate opera given in a sort of open stadium on the Potomac. Everybody patronized the opera and it was a great artistic success.

Our own Chicago opera director, Fortune Gallo, who took his small San Carlo company to the Water Gate stadium, thought it should have been named the Flood Gate opera, for the first 10 nights he was in Washington with his flock of songbirds it poured and only the last evening was pleasant. On this occasion, tho, there was a black-out, so no opera could be given that night.

In the diplomatic world the great excitement of the month was the replacement of the Chinese ambassador, Dr. Hu, with a former mayor of Nanking, Dr. Wei. Dr. Hu, who is a man of great erudition and culture, has been a popular ambassador and made many friends for China thruout the United States. In the past 18 months he has had over a dozen degrees bestowed upon him by our nation's colleges.

Since then Gen. Chiang's banker brother-in-law, T. V. Soong, has taken up his abode in Washington and, according to capital chatter, gave unofficial orders to Dr. Hu, who forthwith resigned. Mr. Soong is a brother of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, the redoubtable first lady of China, expected soon in this country. Mme. Wei, wife of the new ambassador, is an old and intimate friend of Mme. Chiang, and was in her very young days at seventeen or so a revolutionary little miss who wanted to agitate. Dr. Hu represented the pure democratic ideal for China of Sun Yat Sen; whereas the present Soong regime seems to be becoming somewhat capitalistic. The Weis happened to be living in Washington, and so are former Ambassador Alfred Sze and his charming wife, Mme. Alice Sze, who had for long years the Chinese embassy at London and were close friends of George V.

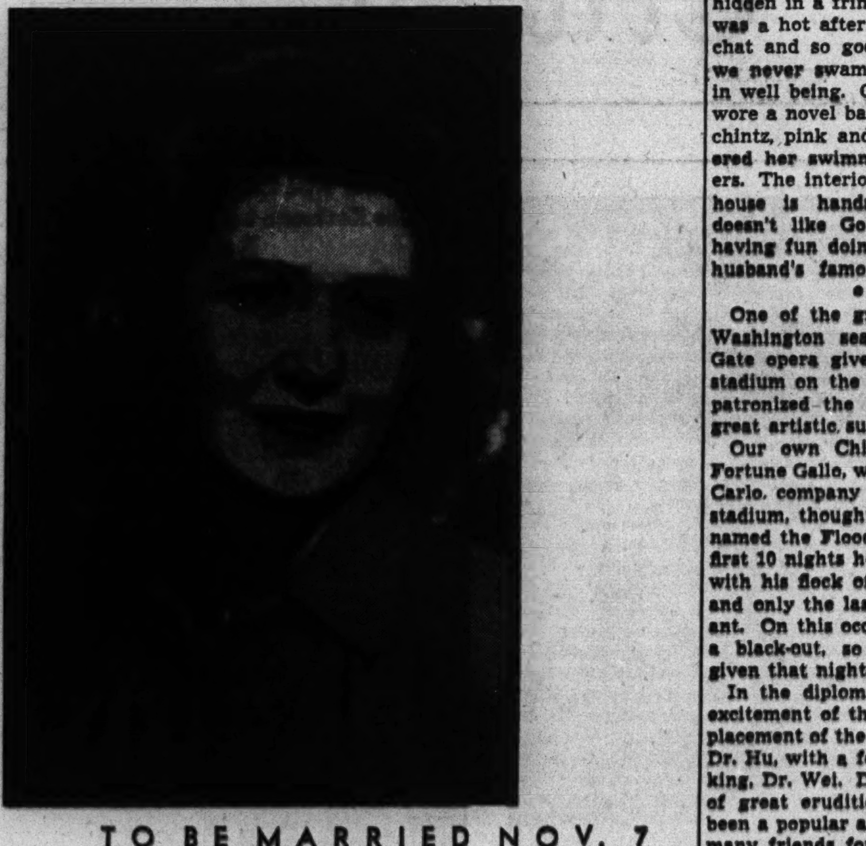
Among the erstwhile Chicagoans seen in Washington were Mrs. Norton Goodwin, whose two sons are in the air service, while she has at least one finger in every war charity in the national capital. Mrs. Goodwin is a tall, slender woman with a mass of flaming red hair, and a flair for becoming clothes. She rides with the best, competently drives a car, and flies nowadays as head of a society called Youth in the Air. Judge and Mrs. Goodwin live at the Shoreham and near them is the Edward Stettinius family.

Opposite the handsome Egyptian legation in Massachusetts avenue lives Clarence Bussey Hewes in bachelor splendor. The best housekeeper in Washington rose from an illness to lunch with me on the back veranda, or terrace dining room of his delightful house.

As we sat eating we could look far down thru the leafy green at people riding in Rock Creek park, and the air was soft with the earliest whiffs of autumn. There's nothing like lunching in the open, and I'd rather eat dry bread in an arbor than lobster in a stuffy room, no matter how gorgeous. But needless to say we had a beautifully thought out repast, and then inspected some of his Chinese treasures.



TO BE MARRIED NOV. 7

Miss Margaret Audell Snyder's engagement to Pvt. Roy Charles Skibbe is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Harry Snyder of Evanston. Miss Snyder was graduated from St. Mary's hall and attended Northwestern university. Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin R. Skibbe of Scarsdale, Ill., was graduated from Shattuck Military academy and also attended Northwestern. At present he is stationed at the Mer-Ced army air base in California. The wedding is planned for Nov. 7 in Evanston.

Russian Fair Will Aid War Relief Society

By Judith Cass.

An extra pair of hands and feet would be appreciated right now by the many women who are combining their war work activities undertaken during the spring and summer with their duties in connection with favorite charities. Benefit plans come to the fore at this time of the year, and the usual number of committee meetings and other gatherings add up to an unusually busy schedule for all.

The woman's division of the Russian War Relief society has been plunged into work for a two day Russian fair at the Sherman hotel next Wednesday and Thursday. The fair will open Wednesday night, with all of the atmosphere of Russia present. Its setting will be a Russian village, complete with shops, bars and restaurants. On Thursday night the event will be climaxed by a cabaret with Russian entertainment and food. Forty or more artists have donated paintings to be hung in a special gallery and sold for the benefit of the society. The woman's division is in charge of the selling of an abstract, Victory, by Alexander Archipenko. Mrs. Laird Bell, Mrs. William McCormick Blair, Mrs. John Root, Mrs. Philip W. Moore, Mrs. William G. Hibbard, and Mrs. Byron S. Harvey Jr. are some of the members of the committee, of which Mrs. Moore is co-chairman. Mr. Harvey is treasurer of the fair. The committee is inviting Lieut. Lyudmila Pavlichenko, the Russian girl sniper who is in Chicago to stay over for the fair.

Dr. Dudley Crafts Watson will conduct groups of art lovers thru the fair and make comments on the paintings in the gallery. Some of those who have reserved tables for the cabaret on Thursday night are Mr. and Mrs. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Dallas B. Phemister, Mr. and Mrs. Moore, Herman Waldeck, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey, and the David L. Shillinglaws.

Members of the Service club are busy, too, selling tickets for its benefit, the opening of the "Ice Follies of 1943" on Oct. 13 at the Arena.

Every year friends of the club send in samples for the program cover. The contest was won last year by William Owens, an art student and friend of a Service club member. Miss Catherine Baird won first prize the year before. Miss Mary Lou Laird, chairman of advertising; Mrs. Robert Cavanaugh, president of the club, and Mrs. Leslie B. Olmsted, general manager of the benefit, will act as judges in the cover contest.

Mrs. Olmsted is among those planning dinner parties at the Arena's glassed-in second floor balcony, from which she and her guests may watch the first part of the show. The Jere Pattersons, Mrs. John Q. Adams Jr., and the Edwin R. Moores are others with reservations for dinner at the Arena.

The St. Luke's Fashion show committee is giving its annual mannequin tea tomorrow at the Fortnightly club. There the young women who hope to act as models in the fashion show on Oct. 28 at the Civic Opera house will gather to meet some of the board members. During the afternoon the dress, hat and shoe size, height and weight of each young guest will be tabulated. Armed with these records, other committee members will "sell" the mannequins to the shops exhibiting in the show. Later on, shortly before the show, there will be another tea for the models, this one to teach them how to walk gracefully, and how to turn on the runway. Mrs. Richard K. Juergens heads the mannequin committee.

On Tuesday night there will be an amusing swap party held by the Society for Contemporary Art at 8:30 o'clock in the offices of its president, Earle Ludgin, at 121 West Wacker drive. Members will not be admitted unless they have sent a work of art of any period or school, perhaps valuable, perhaps amusing, but in any case interesting. Stage money will be provided and members may bid on each other's gifts.

The Francis W. Parker school's new building for the kindergarten and first three grades will be dedicated informally next Friday afternoon between 4 and 7 o'clock. The trustees and parents' association of the school will serve tea. Clay Judson heads the trustees and Arnold Gingrich is president of the association.

Ruth Carole Friedman's Engagement Announced

At a reception of Sept. 13 to celebrate their silver wedding anniversary Mr. and Mrs. Irving Friedman of Manistee, Mich., announced the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Carole, to Carl Lurie Steiner, son of Mrs. Frances Lurie Steiner of 321 North Central avenue. Miss Friedman attended the University of Wisconsin and was graduated from the University of Southern California. Her fiancé was graduated from Northwestern university and from the John Marshall law school.

Women in War Work

Probably thousands of Chicago area Red Cross production workers already have heard reports of the messages given their leaders at a business meeting in Orchestra hall last week. However, much of the instruction was so important and far-reaching in the ultimate success of the war effort on the home front that we repeat some of the reports here.

Two men workers from Red Cross headquarters at 529 South Wabash avenue were models for the valuable sweaters, helmets, socks, and mufflers which women knit for men in service as well as for the shirts and robes they make for patients in veterans' hospitals. After perfect products had been shown, Mrs. Grace B. Pettengill, director of the production corps, asked the models whom she called Dave and George to don items that couldn't be sent to men in service. There was a well knit navy sweater with its turtle neck bound off so tightly the threads would soon break with use. A long muffler was so executed that it made a great serpentine roll around "Dave's" neck, and a helmet, supposedly made for warmth and protection, had such a big face opening that ears, chin, and mouth were exposed. Of course these garments will be raveled and the wool made into good items—but the time has been lost. A slogan for the meeting might have been "Slow, Careful Work Saves Time."

Mrs. Joseph Driscoll, chairman of surgical dressings institutes, reminded volunteers that the Red Cross has been selected by the army to make surgical dressings because of the organization's high standard. She also emphasized that the 11 dressings made were selected in a conference with army doctors and that instructions were to be followed—even tho occasional workers might think of seemingly better methods. The same is true for knitting a frill or two on the end of a scarf.

Tribute to the volunteer production workers was the appearance of variety in the women's and children's dresses. The patterns are all simple and somewhat standard, of course. But bright buttons, a tricky bow or yarn embroidery made each dress a different frock, and we are sure that every little yarn flower will be a hyacinth for some soul—a bright spot in disaster.

Two hundred Girl Scout volunteers and executives from Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Indiana will attend an all-day War Training institute Tuesday at the Palmer House. The meeting is being held with the coöperation of the government's Office of Defense, Health, and Welfare services, and the key volunteers and executive members will carry the training received here back to 25,000 persons in their home councils.

Miss Catherine M. Dunn, assistant director of the community organization section of the government office, will make the introduction and state the purpose of the institute; Mrs. Jabez H. Pratt, chairman of the Great Lakes region, will preside, and Robert E. Garrigan, assistant regional director of ODHWS, will speak.

A symposium covering questions of what is already being done for children by government wartime agencies and by public and private agencies is scheduled for the morning. Speakers will be Eric Hulbert, director of project services of the FHA; Mrs. Janet Burgoon, director of region 6 of the social protection section of ODHWS; Miss Mary Murphy, director of the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial fund; Miss Mary Labaree, field consultant for child welfare of the Children's bureau, Washington, D. C., and E. C. Jones, field representative of the recreational section, ODHWS.

The afternoon session will be devoted to wartime community planning, coöperation with other agencies to expand the service of Girl Scouts to the community, and the means of making Girl Scouting available to an increasing number of girls of other races. Mrs. Ruth Osborn, national Girl Scout war liaison staff member, will sum up this part of the program. The exact aim of the entire session is to make Girl Scout leaders, even in the smallest communities, fully informed on what measures are available to help children in wartime. The ultimate result should be the marshaling of thousands of girls to greater achievements in children's activities on the home front. In other words—little women in war work.

Among announcements of civil service opportunities coming to this desk recently are openings for junior observers in meteorology at $1,440 a year and under inspectors of engineering materials [trainee] at the same salary. Both places are open to men and women.

Junior observer candidates must have completed at least 14 units of high school study, including courses in physics and mathematics. Appointees will be given instruction in weather observing with the opportunity of rapid advancement to $1,620 a year after preliminary training. Duties will include taking, recording, charting, and computing meteorological and radiosonde observations, etc. Employment may be in the third region of the United States weather bureau, which includes Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, Ohio, and Wisconsin. Applicants must have reached their 17th birthday. There is no maximum age limit.

Engineering material under inspectors will be trained at the Naval Material Inspector school, Chicago. Applicants must have reached their 18th birthdays, must pass tests in spatial relations, arithmetic, and simple mechanics. Full information about both opportunities is available at the civil service information office, room 1105, New Postoffice building.

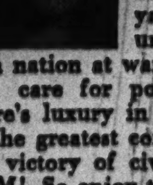
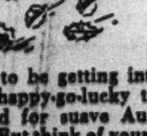
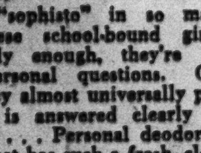
A Weekly Sponsored Column of Things Advertised and Interesting



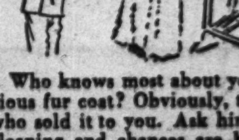
New York, N. Y., Sept. 26th. L-U-X-U-R-Y is a beautiful word, — lush syllables making music in women's hearts! And it's NOT out for the duration, — we need only to re-interpret its meaning by forgetting that once it conjured shining dreams of motor cars, yachts, suites on deck A. Today there's luxury in the humblest BUY-LINE manufactured in a nation at war! There's luxury in the services that help you care for possessions already owned. And above all, there's luxury in buying War Bonds! They give you stock in the greatest corporation ever formed, a share in the coming victory of civilization's most magnificent idea,—FREEDOM! So enjoy the BUY-LINES you make this week,—they bring you luxury because they bring you service . . .



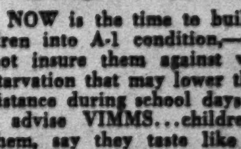
What fun to be getting into Fall clothes—happy-go-lucky togs of summer shed for suave Autumn's loveliness! But think of your hands—don't spoil your chic because they tell a rough, red dishwashing tattle-tale! Make SWAN, the sudsin' whiz, go to work for you,—pure white floating soap that's pure as imported castiles, baby-gentle on hands whether they're washing dishes, babies, fine laundry or woodwork! Ask your Grocer for SWAN soap!



Ver-eee "sophisto" in so many ways, these school-bound girls! But oddly enough, they're shy about personal questions. One which they almost universally puzzle over is answered clearly by AMOLIN . . . Personal deodorant powder that has such a fresh, clean odor, such fine-texture . . . always instant-ready for sanitary deodorizing even on days it becomes most necessary to sensitive "teensters." You'll solve this problem for your daughter if you'll ask your Druggist or Department Store for AMOLIN Powder and give the shaker-top box to her . . . a soothing, cooling powder that neither clogs fine sanitary mesh nor feels greasy and sticky. AMOLIN is every woman's BUY-LINE for poised assurance!



Who knows most about your precious fur coat? Obviously, the man who sold it to you. Ask him about cleaning and chances are he'll advise HOLLANDERIZING . . . pelt-deep cleansing and rejuvenation by HOLLANDER, world's largest blender and dyer of furs. After you ask him about HOLLANDERIZING, ask him for a copy of my book on fur care . . . free with personal compliments from "me to thee"! Before the week is out, be sure to visit your favorite fur man. Now's the time to get ready for the cold winter that lies just ahead.



NOW is the time to build children into A-1 condition,—so why not insure them against vitamin-starvation that may lower their resistance during school days ahead. I advise VIMMS . . . children love them, say they taste like candy. And VIMMS contain all six vitamins U. S. experts say are needed, plus Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron. REMEMBER—you'll save money if you buy VIMMS now! The regular 50c package of VIMMS is yours FREE when you buy the large, $1.69 size! Get that VIMMS feeling!

Groups Plan Many Benefits to Aid Children

There'll be no "forgotten children" as a result of wartime emergencies, if Chicago service organizations have anything to say about it. Altho the demands of World War II. have taken their toll in energy from local agencies, members of Chicago groups which have aided dependent children for a number of years have resolved that there shall be no slack in their support of the home front.

Nearly 50,000 underprivileged children will benefit from one project alone—the 35th annual tag day of the Chicago Children's Benefit league, set this year for Monday, Oct. 5. Since 1908 the league, which links 50 children's agencies, has been raising funds for children's hospitals, day nurseries, child placing agencies, neighborhood centers, and homes for handicapped youngsters.

• • •

Heading various tag day committees this year are Mrs. Royal D. Dwight, membership; Mrs. Henry R. Bafetti, room and finance; Mrs. J. M. Coen, publicity; Mrs. Frank Wohlleber, supplies; Mrs. Henry W. Bernhardt, locations; Mrs. Peter J. Doretti, revision; Mrs. Edward J. Hayes, auditing, and Mrs. Sidney A. Goreham, investigating.

Mrs. Walter C. Gielow of Evanston heads the league. Other officers under her are Mrs. Harry L. Starkey, Mrs. Dwight, Mrs. Doretti, Mrs. William Hazlett, Mrs. Henry Christiansen, and Mrs. A. F. Montezon.

The tag day will fall within Illinois Parent-Teacher week, which will open next Sunday with religious observances in churches thruout the state. Gov. Dwight H. Green has issued a proclamation designating "On Guard for America's Children" as the theme for the state-wide observance. Mrs. Theodore Gleichman of Moline, Ill., president of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, has sent messages to local associations urging an intensive enrollment drive, in line with a proclamation issued by Mrs. William H. Kletzer of Portland, Ore., president of the National Congress.

The Dorothy Kahn Club for Crippled Children, affiliated with the Michael Reese hospital, will open its season tomorrow with a noon breakfast party at the Yar restaurant in the Lake Shore Drive hotel. Miss Charles Offenberg will give a piano recital. The club, now in its 20th year, is headed this season by Mrs. B. J. Cohn. In addition to its work at the hospital, the club supplies equipment for crippled children to various Chicago schools.

The Protestant Woman's Protectorate, which brings relief, loans, clothing, legal assistance, and spiritual counsel to older women, will meet for the first time this season at 10 o'clock tomorrow in the Top of the Town restaurant, 185 North Wabash avenue. After Mrs. Fred W. Waterman has conducted a meeting, luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock.

Mrs. G. W. Phelps, tag day chairman, and women who assisted with the recent "Have a Heart" tag day, will be entertained at luncheon tomorrow by the Service Council for Girls, meeting at 12:30 o'clock in the conference rooms at 343 South Dearborn street. Arrangements for the luncheon are being made by Mrs. T. A. Cooke, assisted by Mrs. Fred Law and Mrs. Alex J. Brough. Mrs. Albert Held heads the organization.

Association for Family Living to Hold Institute

The Association for Family Living, recognizing that the war has raised new problems in family relationships, will conduct a one day institute for leaders, both professional and nonprofessional, in the field of family education from 10 to 4 o'clock Tuesday in its rooms at 220 South State street.

"There is need for more leaders and for a high quality of leadership for families today, Mrs. Aletha B. Coffman, staff member in charge of the institute, emphasizes in her announcement of the conference. Open to all who are interested in the subject, the institute is pointed especially toward parent-teacher associations, the YWCA and YMCA, churches, and community agencies.

Some of the topics to be covered will be methods for planning timely programs, the stimulation of lively discussion in a group, the use of up to date books, charts, and periodicals in study groups of young parents, and the adapting of material to the special needs of special groups, and develop group confidence in the leader.

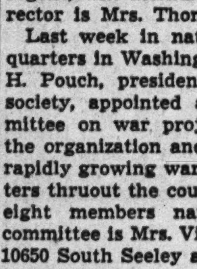
Illinois DAR Division Meets Here Tomorrow

Service to country, ever the watchword of the Daughters of the American Revolution, assumes a new and broader significance now that it must be interpreted in war terms.

In time of peace the phrase meant to the women of the patriotic society educational programs at Ellis Island and in the naturalization courts for newcomers to this land to instruct them in the history of American institutions, in the privileges and responsibilities of American citizenship; it meant schools for the mountain children of the south, and junior citizen projects for girls and boys in the urban centers.

Today it means all this, but besides, and more immediately, fund raising for blood bank units; equipment, food and entertainment for the service men's centers; knitting and bandage making for the Red Cross; long hours of stamp and bond selling.

• • •



Mrs. Otto H. Crist.

It is to gear for vital war service that the Fourth Illinois division of he DAR is assembling here tomorrow morning for its annual meeting. Officers and chairmen of 30 chapters in Cook, DuPage, Grundy, Kankakee, Kendall, and Kane counties will gather at 10 o'clock in the tearoom of the Carson, Pirie, Scott department store and organize the fall and winter work program. Mrs. Otto H. Crist of Danville, the state regent, will attend. The division director is Mrs. Thomas R. Hommens.

Last week in national DAR headquarters in Washington Mrs. William H. Pouch, president general of the society, appointed an advisory committee on war projects to assist in the organization and direction of the rapidly growing war services of chapters thruout the country. One of the eight members named to the new committee is Mrs. Vinton Earl Sisson, 10650 South Seeley avenue. Mrs. Sisson has held the office of librarian general and she served as chairman of the DAR national defense committee. She was one of the prewar champions of the cause of military preparedness, urging action from patriotic organizations in lectures from the east to the west coast. Mrs. Sisson also is recognized as one of the leading authorities of the DAR on the activities of subversive elements in this country.

For their first luncheon meeting of the season, which is set for Tuesday, Oct. 6, the Illinois members of the United States Daughters of 1812 are preparing a program, "1812 in Poetry, History and Song," in compliment to Mrs. Franklin M. Miller, author of "The War of 1812 in Song and Story." Mrs. Miller will read excerpts from her book and members, responding to an ancestral roll call, will name the 1812 war veteran of her family and recount an anecdote of the period.

Mrs. Charles E. Shearman, newly elected president, will conduct the meeting, and Mrs. Frederick J. Dickson and Miss Zaidee Mitchell will direct the program. Mrs. Herbert T. Windsor is opening her home, Mid-Oaks, in Batavia, to the group for this occasion.

Playground in Peril; Council Would Save It

By Ernest C. Oberholtzer

[President, Quetico-Superior Council.]

RANIER, MINN. Situated in midcontinent, a little more than 500 miles from Chicago and within easy reach of 35 million persons, lies the last great accessible wilderness on this continent. It is the Quetico-Superior region, thru which runs the boundary between Canada and the United States. It is the famous Rainy lake-Pigeon river watershed. The area is huge—some 10 million acres. That means that you could toss New Jersey, Connecticut, and Delaware into the region and have plenty of space left over for the city of New York.

The entire area is nonagricultural and virtually uninhabited. It has almost no towns, no farms, no industrial plants, and no people except a few Indians and vacationists. It has more than 15,000 connected lakes. Thru most of it there is almost no travel except by canoe. It is the great canoe highway of the north country. More than 200 years ago the voyagers for the fur trading companies used the connected lakes for their route to the west.

Part of this wilderness lies in the Superior National forest in Minnesota, and part in the Quetico Provincial park in Ontario. Most of it is already publicly owned either by the United States government, the state of Minnesota, or the province of Ontario.

• • •

Lake Superior

Here is by far the most superb combination of forests, lakes, and streams for an outdoor playground in North America. As yet it is largely free from highways, billboards, hot dog stands, or tin cans. Its distinctive quality is that it is still wilderness, and from an economic and esthetic point of view ought always to remain so. Fish and game are abundant. In it are lakes and streams which are rarely fished; shores which have seldom, if ever, seen a camper; forests—a few at least—which have never heard the ring of the woodman's ax. It is the adventurous camper's paradise. With care it can always remain a reservoir of wild life.

In order to preserve this beautiful and worth while wilderness in its original character from reckless private exploitation, the Quetico-Superior council has been formed. This council is an international organization, associated with the Izaak Walton League of America, and its sole purpose is to preserve this region for the public for all time. It has no commercial interests, no political or industrial affiliations. It seeks to make and keep this wild region and its immense natural resources available to all the people.

The council's program would allow ready access by roads and railroads to the outer lakes of this vast area—those closest to civilization. Here resorts and hotels would be permitted to cater to vacationists, and home owners to build their cabins. But in the innermost area there would be nothing built. That would be kept a perpetual sanctuary. It would remain a place where the canoeist could paddle for untold miles in primitive scenery. On the shores of beautiful lakes he could pitch his tent and be completely away from the cares of the outside world.

The last great stand of white and red pine timber in the United States was in this region. It is being constantly logged. Sponsors of the council have not attempted to prohibit all logging, but rather to regulate it under scientific principles in order to protect shore lines and islands and to insure a perpetual stand. All they seek is to make sure it is done with proper attention to the principles of reforestation and that the loggers are not allowed to spoil the natural beauties.

• • •

Until the whole area can be permanently protected by treaty it is under constant menace of destruction. Certain logging operations now in progress threaten the existence of the forest. Likewise, private power interests constantly seek to put dams on the rivers and lakes. These dams would make an impassable swamp of hundreds of thousands of acres of what is now lake, river, and timber land. Other interests would build roads and highways into wilderness where nobody lives or will ever live—thus sacrificing the natural beauty and endangering wild life.

Our council advocates a treaty between the United States and Canada, whereby the entire region would be administered under a common set of principles. Each country would maintain its complete and undisturbed sovereignty over the portion of the area within its borders; neither would infringe upon the rights of the other in any degree.

Under the proposed treaty the same rules of conservation and use would apply on both sides of the international boundary. It then would be possible, and even easy, to set up certain standards for logging, roads, occupancy, and other uses. The whole area would be zoned with a view to safeguarding, above all, the wilderness quality. Such a treaty would cement the already cordial relations between the two countries and be an example to the rest of the world of how to conduct international relations.

• • •

On the Canadian side, fortunately, most of the land is already publicly owned by the province of Ontario. A large portion of the American side is also publicly owned. A treaty with a joint agreement on the methods of preservation would be a lasting instrument—much more lasting than mere acts of legislatures in both countries.

Our council asks only one thing: "Should this last great wilderness be turned over to private interests to exploit as they see fit, or should it be administered under an intelligent plan for the whole area, utilizing the great timber and power and wild life resources in conformity with sound conservation principles and the highest recreational advantage?"

If the public good is the first consideration, in the long run the private industries themselves will benefit, because there will be a source of timber for thousands of years. But if the forest continues to be recklessly cut without proper supervision and if the power companies continue to alter natural water levels, this now beautiful region may be turned into a desolate wasteland.

Danger now threatens the wilderness. The Quetico-Superior council urges that further reckless exploitation be stopped once and for all—by treaty—before it is too late!

A River Craft That Runs Like Shifty Halfback

[This is the 54th article in a series on South America. The next will appear in an early issue.]

By Mason Warner.

ON THE RIO PARANA, BRAZIL. Nobody loves the Amazon, but Brazilians and Argentineans unite on the affectionate term of "O Parana marvilhoso" for the Parana river—divided into the Upper Parana and the Lower Parana by "Sete Quedas," the Seven Cataracts.

A short and narrow railroad runs around the waterfalls from Guayra to Porto Mendez, 38 miles thru typical South American jungle that shelters jaguars, pythons, monkeys, and many tropical birds of brilliant plumage — parrots, macaws, parakeets. Pink and white herons stalk gracefully thru the marshes, and alligators can be seen basking in the sun at the river's edge.

We were delayed two days at Guayra because fogs on the river made navigation impossible and the boat could not get up to Porto Mendez. But at last a telegram intimated the España had arrived, and our accommodating train was announced as ready to depart to make the connection.

• • •

The railroad and its equipment were less than half regular size—just about midway between a miniature train at an amusement park and the ordinary locomotive and cars. The track was only 24 inch gauge.

The engine was a trig and shapely midget, so small in size and puny in power that it wheezed when it puffed and could only squeak when it valiantly tried to whistle.

It burned wood, cut into stove length sticks. The tender, no larger than an old fashioned kitchen woodbox, carried about a barrel of water. We stopped twice at woodpiles on the way, and all passengers, including two women, joined the train crew in tossing sticks up on the tender.

The train consisted of an abbreviated but comfortable passenger coach and three undersize boxcars loaded with bales of maté. There were four passengers in addition to Mason Robert and myself: A physical instructor from Coronado, Cal., and his wife, on vacation, and a friendly Argentine couple on their honeymoon.

We made the 38 miles in four hours, arriving at Porto Mendez, on the crest of a cliff, at 6 p. m. Then we scooted down an almost perpendicular funicular railway 400 feet to board the España, which was scheduled to sail at 11 p. m. Because of a heavy fog, the boat did not get under way until 10 o'clock the next morning.

The España was a strange looking contraption after our experience with the diminutive but symmetrical midget engine. The craft was more like a malformed dwarf, short and stocky, almost as broad as it was long. Enormous paddle wheels on both sides were sunk thru the far projecting lower deck, and each wheel was equipped with its own engine to permit independent operation.

Our boat on the Upper Parana, the Tibirica, was long and comparatively narrow. With a stern paddle wheel, she was slow in answering the rudder. When she was to be moored, the pilot would start steering to port or starboard a mile above the landing.

• • •

The short España could turn completely around within her own length by pushing forward on one wheel and pulling back on the other. Making a sharp right angle turn was no task at all. When under way down the river, it was easy to see why such construction was necessary, for the "Marvelous Parana" at times flows thru rocky gorges, with abrupt curves in the pinched channel between the banks, and is dotted with countless rock islets.

The España dodged the rocks and squirmed her course between the islets like a shifty half back running with the ball thru a broken field.

Fog compelled us to lay up another 24 hours on the short voyage. Young Mason proved a good traveling companion. He never became impatient. There was nothing to do or to see while anchored in midstream, but the boy was always smiling—and always hungry. Our cabin was almost comfortable; the food was just a bit above reproach.

We passed the precipitous banks the second day. Gradual slopes replaced the sheer cliffs. At long intervals we would sight a funicular used for sending down bales of maté from the high land. The river had spread into a wide and placid stream. Few habitations were to be seen.

• • •

We stopped and unloaded miscellaneous cargo on the sandy shore at the town of Iguassu, at the juncture of the Parana and the Iguassu river, which flows from the east. Then the España proceeded up the Iguassu to Porto Aguirre, and we disembarked in Argentina after three months of travel in Brazil.

The boat was met at the landing by an automobile from the Hotel das Cataractas, situated close to Iguassu falls — 12 miles away in the heart of the jungle — reputed to surpass both Niagara and Victoria falls in wild grandeur and majestic beauty.

VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Please keep them brief. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

THE LAND WE'RE FIGHTING FOR.

Marquette, Mich., Sept. 8.—To the Travel Editor: The stern necessities of war have rather circumscribed travel, haven't they? But we always have our memories on which to call for contemplation and study.

Who could ever forget the Grand canyon, the Rockies, the climate and scenery of California? Or New England, with its quaint villages and its beautiful lakes? Or the middle Atlantic states and the southland? Only those who have seen a large part of the United States can appreciate fully what—aside from liberty—we really are fighting for.

Even those who have not done a great deal of traveling will find enough right around them to see and think about and be thankful for.

Many years ago I climbed up the dark stairway in the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor. I felt my way, much as the men of old felt their way to some land they might call their own, free from a tyrant's rule. At last I reached the top—the inside of the statue's head, and was able to look for miles. The mighty city of New York lay all around me. And, farther away, there was a vast expanse of blue, restless water. My climbing was much like the efforts of the Pilgrims. Both of us reached the light—they, the sought-for land of their dreams; I, a wonderful view of that part of America.

If we cannot travel, let's make the most of our own home and surroundings. It may be that we shall find a wealth of material for intense study and infinite pleasure. ARTHUR J. RICHARDSON.

BLIND MAN'S bluff

ONCE, TWICE, THREE TIMES . . .

Three victims crashed to death, each one from many stories up. It was murder. But the murderer was never present at the crime. This latest adventure of Capt. Duncan Maclain is the most baffling mystery in the career of the amazing detective. A ball of twine, a paperweight, and a highball glass are the only clews. With the help of his two trained dogs, Maclain solves the crime and runs into romance.

BLIND MAN'S bluff by Baynard Kendrick

Author of "The Odor of Violets" and other brilliant crime novels

Read this gripping mystery starting TOMORROW in the CHICAGO TRIBUNE

HERE'S HOW THE STORY BEGINS:

JULIA HADFIELD cleared the dishes away from the drop-leaf table laid for three and stacked her own in the sink against the coming of her part-time maid in the morning. With the two unused sets returned to the china closet, she realized with a qualm that a grown son and his fiancee were independable company.

Her reactions were not new. Seth had been slipping away into a mannish world of his own since he reached the age of 14. Julia being unselfish and loving him very much, had made no move to stop him. When the army had engulfed him six months ago, she had accepted the inevitable calmly and sent him off with a smile and a word of cheer. The inward turmoil was her own, a private heartache which never dimmed the glint of humor in her wide-set hazel eyes unless she knew that no one could see.

Of late, the opportunities for indulging in such introspection had become increasingly plentiful. Friends were leaving New York for Washington and points west, moved about like puppets on the strings of national emergency. With Seth in camp, Julia had ample time to reflect that a woman of 40, separated from her husband, might still be most attractive and still live very much alone.

Tonight, apprehension had been added to disappointment and loneliness.

Julia went to a window and for a time looked down at the frost hazed lights of Sheridan square far below. A few pedestrians hurried along, bent against the bitter cold, but none of them resembled the couple she so anxiously wanted to see. She was still at the window when the buzzer rang.

Philip Courtney, looming in a rough cloth overcoat, was standing in the hall. "I dropped in to say hello to Seth and Elise," he said. "If you'd rather see some one else, say the word and I'll go."

"Don't be an idiot, Phil," Julia told him with the warmth of real affection, and ushered him in with a touch on his arm. "My precious pair were due here for dinner at 7. It's 9 now. I finally ate alone. They haven't even telephoned."

His casualness helped, but Philip Courtney was always helpful. The lucrative law practice of Courtney, Garfield and Steele had been built largely on his common sense and calm.

Julia watched with contentment as he settled his wiry figure into an armchair. The eight long years since her separation from Blake Hadfield had not been easy. They would have been unendurable without the counsel and support of Phil. For an instant, resentment burned deeply inside her against her husband. Blake had fought a divorce, and won, fought it not because he wanted to hold her, but because he was Blake Hadfield, and deep in his brilliant brain he knew that some day she would desperately want to marry Phil.

"Highball?" Julia suggested.

Phil nodded and took out his cigar case. When she returned from the kitchenette with glasses and soda, he was sitting with his long legs crossed, staring at an unlit cigar.

"I'm not the only one who's upset." Julia put the glasses down and poured the scotch. "What's bothering you, Phil?"

"Blake." Courtney drank deeply, as tho the scotch might wash the unpleasant word away. "He phoned me half an hour ago."

"What's strange about that?" Julia asked unconvincingly. Thirteen years of living with Blake Hadfield before their separation had never revealed to her what was going on in Blake's mind.

Phil dropped a bombshell by saying quietly, "There's something up, Jule. He wants me to meet him in his old office on the eighth floor of the Miner's Title and Trust building at 10 o'clock."

"But he hasn't been back there—" Julia touched a hand to her breast and paused.

"Not in six years," said Courtney. "Not since the night Sprague shot him and committed suicide."

"What can he want down there?"

Why does Julia's estranged husband want to revisit the scene of such violent memories? Are Julia's son and his fiancee to be dragged into unsuspected trouble? You'll enjoy this exciting new mystery—so don't miss it—starting tomorrow in the Chicago Tribune.

Hadassah Will Pay Tribute to Pearl Franklin

In Palestine where, thru the Zionist movement, Jews from all parts of the world have returned to rebuild their ancient homeland, a forest has been planted in the name of Eleanor Roosevelt. In that forest there is a beauteous grove of 1,000 trees that henceforth will be known as the Pearl Franklin grove.

Miss Pearl Franklin.

On Tuesday, Chicago chapter of Hadassah is assembling at the Covenant club to give formal confirmation to the tribute to its honorary president. Miss Franklin will receive a scroll inscribed to her as the understanding friend of the Zionists and the untiring worker for the realization of their dream of repatriation.

• • •

Her ardent interest in the Zionist movement took Miss Franklin, who is a Chicago teacher, to Palestine to study conditions there during two of her sabbatical leaves in the pre-war years. She returned to tell moving stories of the modern miracles being worked there in agriculture, social and infant welfare, medicine, and education, imparting her enthusiasm to hundreds of others and drawing scores of new workers to Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization to aid the Palestinian project.

Miss Franklin was active president of Chicago Hadassah for nine years, has been national vice president for 17 years and now is on the national committee for war activities.

At the Tuesday meeting, Miss Franklin will receive the certificate of dedication of the Pearl Franklin grove from Mrs. Max Shulman, chairman of the Jewish National Fund.

• • •

Judge Julius Miner, guest speaker for the occasion, will deliver an address on the theme, "Freedom thru Education."

A play pageant reviewing Miss Franklin's achievements has been written especially for the day by Helen Glossman Weiss, with Evelyn Hattis Fox and Rudolf Beck collaborating on musical arrangements. Mrs. Weiss' play will be presented by a cast composed of Mrs. Meyer DeMar, Mrs. Rebecca Soboroff, Mrs. H. J. Reich, Mrs. Shulman, Mrs. Bernice Lettush, Mrs. I. E. Weiss, Mrs. Kate Zeleznick, Mrs. Rosetta Zimmerman, Mrs. Edward Glick, Mrs. Beck, Mrs. Marcus Hanzel, and Miss Hadassah Lindeman.

Miss Jane H. Olsham will preside.

Dr. Luther Adams, writer and educator, will address the opening meeting of the public affairs department of Chicago section of the National Council of Jewish Women at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday on "The Axis Is Longer Than You Think." Dr. Adams was associated with the underground movement against the Nazi régime for two years, and his talk will be based on personal experiences. The meeting will be conducted by Mrs. Meyer C. Edelman.

An institute for chairmen and members will be held at 1 o'clock Tuesday at which Miss Gertrude Pinsky, field secretary of the national council, will speak. Miss Pinsky is a member of the American Association of Social Workers and of the Ohio Bar association. She has done notable work for the council thru its department of service to the foreign born. The Tuesday meeting will be presided over by Mrs. William H. Sahud.

• • •

The opening fall meeting of the Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations is scheduled for 1:15 o'clock tomorrow at 116 South Michigan avenue. The guest speaker will be Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde, civic leader, who will talk on the "First Step in Home Defense," referring to the voter's responsibility. A sound film on the same theme, "The Fight for Honest Ballots," will be shown. Program arrangements are under the direction of Mrs. I. H. Braun.

Chicago women's division of the American Jewish congress will hold a reception and tea at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday in the Covenant club in compliment to its new president, Mrs. Robert L. Aronson. Ben Aronin, youth adviser with the Board of Jewish Education and faculty member of the College of Jewish Studies, will speak. There will be musical numbers by Miss Helen Golden, contralto. The tea committee for the afternoon includes Mrs. Robert J. Samuels, Mrs. Milton Resnick, Mrs. Sam Johnson, Mrs. Lydia Rose, Mrs. Sam Banks, and Mrs. Benjamin Leavitt.

The Chicago Business and Professional Women's auxiliary of B'nai B'rith lodge is resuming regular meetings at 3 o'clock today in the Hamilton hotel, when Mrs. Lunde will speak.

• • •

Three o'clock this afternoon will find Chicago Junior American ORT assembled in the Embassy room of the Morrison hotel for its opening assembly and installation of officers. The program will feature a talk on the work of ORT under war conditions by Morris Polin, chairman of the Chicago council of the American ORT federation. A 60 year old organization, ORT was founded to support vocational and trade schools for needy Jews in Europe.

An open meeting for members and their friends at 2:30 o'clock today in the Standard club will open the year for Chicago section of the National Council of Jewish Juniors. The young women will have Miss Gertrude Pinsky as guest speaker. This will be Miss Frances Lawrence's first meeting as newly elected president.

• • •

Succoth, Hebrew festival in observance of the gathering of the autumn harvest, will be observed by the BMZ Woman's club at 2 o'clock today in the Jewish Old People's home at 1648 South Albany avenue. Officiating at the ceremonies will be Rabbi Morton Berman of Isaiah temple, and Miss Olga Kargau, lyric soprano, will sing.

Mrs. S. E. Hokin will preside at a reception after the program.

The club already has launched its 1942 earning fund drive, with Mrs. Harry S. Aberman as chairman and Mrs. Jack A. Ablin as co-chairman.

Newly elected officers will be installed by the Hadassah Debs at a candle lighting ceremony at 7:30 o'clock this evening at 8 South Dearborn street, with Miss Muriel Morris presiding as mistress of ceremonies.

OFFICER WED TO TENNESSEE GIRL

Lieut. Thomas Wilson Trevor Jr. and his bride, the former Mary Hill, spent his leave in Chicago following their marriage. He is a son of Mrs. Johnston Trevor of Astor street, who manages the smart little Arts club in the south Wrigley building. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Pat Hill of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Field Museum Free Lectures Open Saturday

Persons who wish to be better informed about vital regions in the war scene and those seeking an occasional hour of respite from war worries will find a balance of interests in the new course of free Saturday afternoon lectures for adults opening this week at the Field museum. The fall program is so planned that half the series will be on places upon which the news of the day is focused, and the other half on the wonderlands of America and the beauties of the phenomena of nature.

Simultaneously with the lectures for adults a free series of nine Saturday morning motion picture programs for children will begin. Each of the shows for the children will be given twice, the first performance at 10 and the second at 11 o'clock. The series will include several sound films, and an animated cartoon will be part of each program. Both the adult lectures and the children's movies will be presented in the museum's James Simpson theater.

• • •

Next Saturday's opening program for the grown folk will be "American Birds in Color," a lecture with motion pictures by Cleveland P. Grant. Mr. Grant is known to naturalists and ornithologists thruout the country for his natural color films of birds in flight and at rest.

Succeeding Saturdays in October will bring Ben East, explorer and writer, to lecture on "Alaska and the Aleutians"; Charles R. Knight, artist, specializing in the restoration of prehistoric animals and man, who will talk on "Life's Pageant Thru the Ages"; Fred Hardenbrook, who will tell of "Jungle Men of Dutch Guiana," and John Claire Monteith, who will speak on "Western Desert Wonderlands."

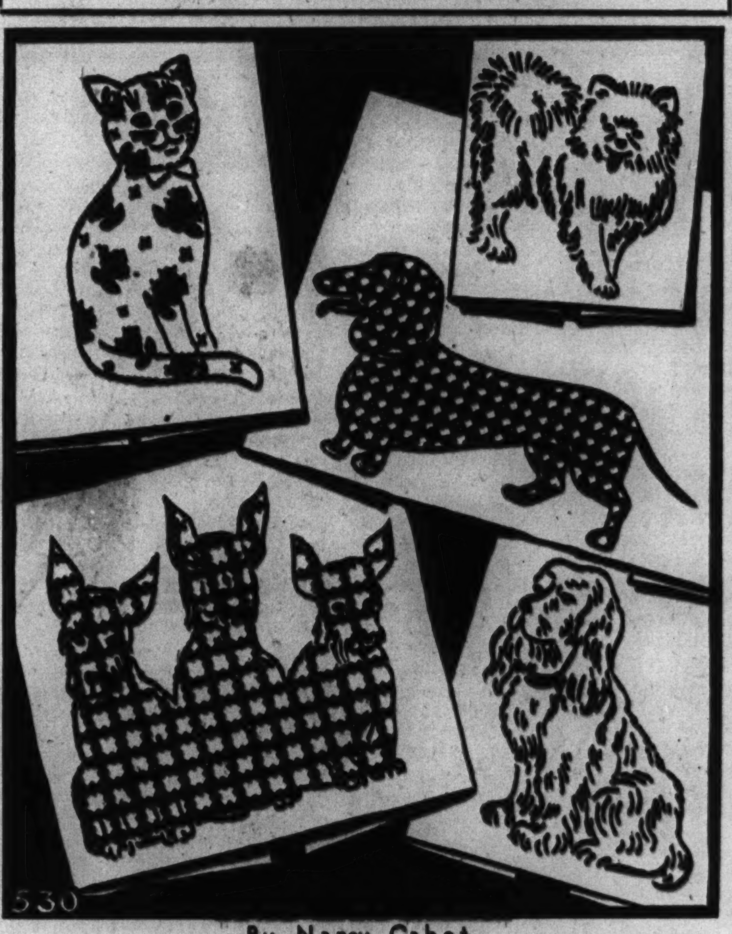
Appearing successively on the November programs, Charles Brooke Elliott will speak on "Ceylon"; Sullivan C. Richardson, on a automobile journey "South to Cape Horn"; Dr. John C. Walter, on "Astounding Australia," and John H. Storer, on "Wings, Fins and Antlers." All of the series, with the exception of one program, will be illustrated with color motion pictures.

• • •

The children's movies will run on the following schedule: "Animal Life," Oct. 3; "Fall of the Year," Oct. 10; "Australia," Oct. 17; "Indians of the Southwest," Oct. 24; "Holland and the Netherlands East Indies," Oct. 31; "Florida," Nov. 7; "South America," Nov. 14; "Smile with the Children of China," Nov. 21, and an all-cartoon show, Nov. 28.

Next Sunday the weekly layman lecture tours for adults will be resumed at the museum for the seventh season, with Paul G. Dallwig as lecturer. Reviving one of the most popular programs of previous years, Mr. Dallwig will give his "Parade of the Races" lecture at 2 o'clock on the Sunday afternoons of October. This talk is presented in the Hall of Man, which houses Malvina Hoffman's noted "Races of Mankind" sculptures.

Five Animal Motifs



By Nancy Cabot.

Here is a gay and cheerful group of every one's "best friend." All these dogs and the calico cat are attractive embroidery motifs which may be created in either cross-stitch or outline. The five designs illustrated range in size from 4 by 4 to 6 by 6 inches, and the embroidery chart contains illustrations of stitches and a color guide.

For the hot iron transfer of the five animal motifs, No. 530, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 20 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Illinois Voters' League to Hold Meeting Friday

Mrs. William H. Spencer, government and foreign policy chairman of the Illinois League of Women Voters, will present a new kit of study material which she and the vice chairman, Mrs. Roger Goetz, have prepared on "Winning the Peace" at a department meeting at 10:30 o'clock Friday in the league rooms at 225 North Michigan. A report also will be presented on the United States state department. The session will be open to the entire league membership.

Home Owners' Queries

Chicago. [To the Home Owners' Editor].—One board rubs against another in our hall floor and causes an annoying squeak. Is there any simple remedy for this?—K. L.

Answer: Try sifting talcum powder into the joints. If this doesn't do away with squeak, send to this department for methods for removing squeaks from floors and stairs.

* *

La Salle, Ill. [To the Home Owners' Editor].—Have heard that there are ceiling boards one can use in a kitchen to make it less noisy. Where can we get this type board?—Edward S.

Answer: Consult with expert at lumber firm or with dealer in building materials. There are such composition boards manufactured to help to deaden sound.

Club Presidents to Hear Music Festival Stars

When it is promising young talent that knocks, the lightly swinging door of opportunity of which the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairman is custodian seems to open with an almost magic celerity. Next Thursday morning the conference is reassembling in Fullerton hall in the Art institute after the summer vacation, and for this, the first audition of its 26th season, will welcome to its stage four ambitious young musicians, who, fresh from triumphs at the Tribune sponsored 1942 Chicago Music festival, are looking for new musical worlds to conquer.

The four are Miss Marriet O'Rourke, slim and pretty 19 year old coloratura soprano, who took top festival honors in the vocal contest for women; velvet voiced Robert McFerrin, the Negro youth whose baritone voice won him the title of "best man singer"; Doris Stockton, marimba star of the festival, and Richard Reichert, lyric tenor, who was second in the men's vocal contest. All four were heard at the festival in Soldiers Field.

Philip Maxwell, festival director, will appear to introduce them.

• • •

James Bradley-Griffin, dramatic recitalist, will bring another echo of the festival to the conference hall, for he is to read the narrative to the Nathaniel Shilkret's "Victory March Overture," which was performed for the first time at the great musical spectacle in Soldiers field.

Also on the conference program Thursday will be a style show, "Fashions for Victory," which will be presented by Mrs. Harvey A. Bush. Conference members will appear as models.

• • •

There will be a greeting by Dr. Louis L. Mann. Mrs. Charles S. Clark, who headed the organization since it was founded 25 years ago, will preside.

Thursday will be a significant day for the conference on another score, for on that day the publishers are releasing "Thursday at Ten," a chronicle of Mrs. Clark's unique talent clearing house, written for the silver anniversary year by Margueritte Harmon Bro. Mrs. Bro's book will be reviewed in a later Sunday edition of THE TRIBUNE.

3 Outstanding Art Exhibits Now on View

By Eleanor Jewett.

There are three outstanding exhibitions in local galleries this month. A magnificent group of Currier and Ives prints, three hundred in all, from the collections of Stuyvesant Peabody of Chicago and Henry T. Peters of New York is on view at the Lakeside Press galleries, 350 East 22d street. It is an exhibit that no one should miss. There is something here for every one and never was history more amusingly nor colorfully exploited. These prints take us back over the days when the United States was young and show us in charming and exciting fashion the styles, trends, and tribulations—and the holidays, sports, and fun—that accompanied America in her growing up. What Dickens and Cruikshank did for England, Currier and Ives did for us. The story of America is in these thrilling prints.

An exhibition of portraits in oil by J. W. de R-Quistgaard is to be seen at the Roullier galleries, Fine Arts building, tho only, unfortunately, for another few days. Mr. Quistgaard is an artist of Danish birth who came to New York as a young man and exhibited his first portrait at the St. Louis world' fair in 1904. Later, in Europe, he made the splendid reputation which is his. He maintained a studio in Paris for many years and has painted many of the great personalities of his time.

Mr. Quistgaard was knighted by the king of Denmark in 1919 and was made a chevalier of the French legion of honor after his first exhibition at Messrs. Durand-Ruel in Paris in 1925.

His portraits are stunning, distinguished by their craftsmanship and amazing beauty of color. They are strikingly lifelike. Even tho one does not know the sitters, so fine is the exhibit it is impossible not to go thru it purring felicitations under one's breath. Good! Good! and again good, beautiful, fine, splendid. Canvas after canvas brings a flood of appreciative comment. Carl Akeley, Mrs. Arthur H. Compton, and Dr. Arthur H. Compton are Chicagoans whom one may recognize. Mr. Roosevelt has yielded an unmistakable likeness.

"Mr. Lawrence C. Phipps Jr. on Mulligan" is one of the captivating portraits and "Members of the Arapahoe Hunt club" make a distinguished group. "Pat and Pet," "Jo-Ann," "Jeanne," "Monsieur Andre Sinet" and "Hon. Ralph L. Carr" are among the paintings difficult to forget. Portrait painting such as this is almost a lost art and to find as virile and strong a technique coupled with as sensitive a feeling for color and as unfailing an interpretation of character, is to think that the gods have been kind and painters to match the old masters are again walking the earth. There is a dignity and substantial quality about this work which, with its craftsmanship and color, brings the conviction that Mr. Quistgaard is one of THE painters of our generation.

The South Side Art association has rarely hung so satisfactory a show as that which now is on view at the club woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers. It is a professional show with many attractive and good pictures to its credit. Dirk Smith offers a charming and decorative "Still Life," well balanced and intriguing in contrasts. Florence White Williams has a broad, vigorous, atmospheric sweep of lakeside in "Grass in the Dunes," splendidly done. Emil Armin offers an entrancing scrap of vivid, autumn color in "Sumac and Beech"; his characteristic widepathed brush work in "Sunburnt Dunes" supplements the sparkle of blue and yellow in that vivid sun filled canvas.

Edith Jane Cassady has an amusing scene, "In Quest of Beauty"; a beauty parlor with permanent machines, driers, and various instruments of torture [all designed to "do something for you"] in frantic use by customers, as funny as the instruments into whose keeping they have given their hair, their hands, or their faces. It is a clever and violent scramble.

In more serious vein is the discreet portrait of a lady, "Dolores," by Winnifred Pleimling. This is nice in feeling and composition, with still that Victorian appeal which is invariably part of Mrs. Pleimling's art, and charmingly developed as a decorative painting. Tunis Ponsen has two characteristic and very well handled canvases, "Farm Yard" and "Fish Wharf." Helen Johnson has a telling portrait in her presentation of "Wellington Reynolds." Theodore Saunders offers an interesting study of trees in "El Quentelejo." A stunning tree in blossom is found in "Tree in Tennessee" by Walter Parke. Mary Palmer shows a decorative study of "Garden Flowers" and Florence Ezzell Stevenson has contributed "June Lilies," a colorful sketch. Nan Rice offers a sweet portrait of a young girl, "Francella Bryant."

Dorothy Helmuth gives us a number of little wood carvings of animals. In sculpture Nancy Edwards carries off the honors with three extremely attractive pieces, "Child and Rabbit," "Greedy Imp," and "Torso of a Young Girl."

The Chicago Galleries association, 215 North Michigan avenue, is opening the fall season with an exhibit of work by three artists on Saturday, Oct. 10. The exhibit will continue to Oct. 31. Mahrea Cramer Lehman of Chicago will show water colors as will Esther R. Richardson of Joliet. William Kennedy of Urbana will show landscapes, flower, and figure paintings in oil.

A regular weekly art class for service men interested in sketching is open Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock on the eighth floor of the Chicago Service Men's center, 176 West Washington street. Mrs. Francis Tobias, head of the arts and crafts department of the center, says: "Any man may participate in these classes. Materials are free. Instruction is available if the men request it. Otherwise the men may feel free to sketch the models we provide, or draw whatever he wishes."

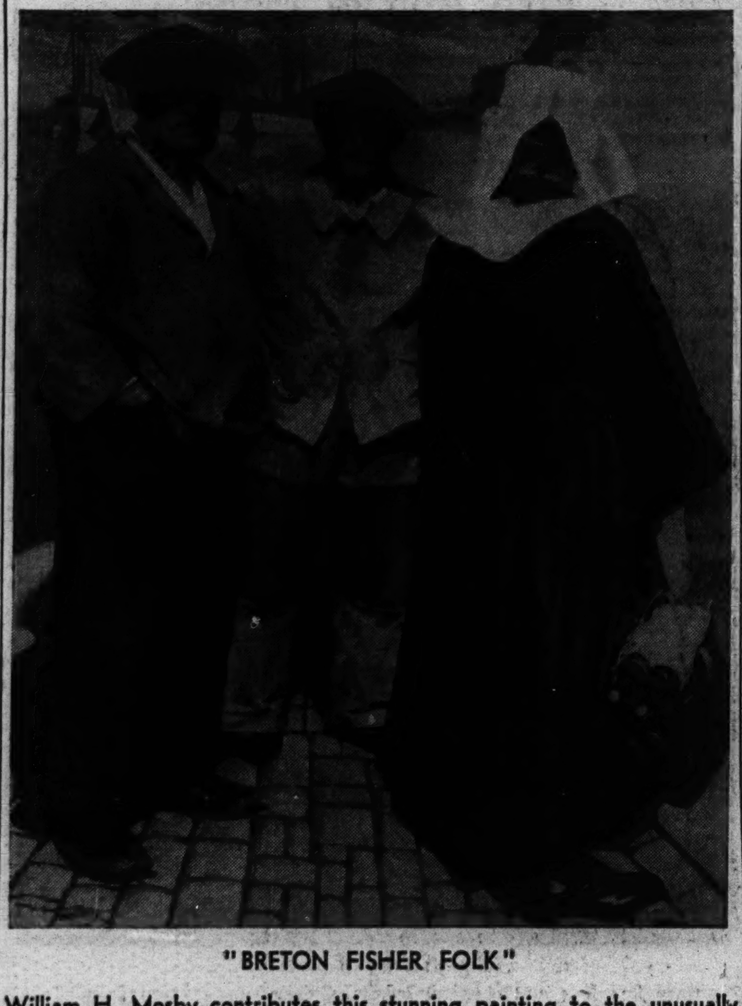
The school of the Art institute opened its fall term last Monday. This year the school is providing special courses in military training in its evening classes; the classes are directed toward entrance into specialized departments of the United States military forces.

A course in scientific drawing is given Monday and Wednesday evenings, from 6:30 to 9 o'clock. Accurate form and color analysis for medical and scientific drawing is taught, with particular attention to observation of structure, texture, and shape. A splendid artist has been chosen for instructor in these classes, Ivan Le Lorraine Albright, who, in the first World war, was stationed in France engaged in a similar service for the AEF.



"BRETON FISHER FOLK"

William H. Mosby contributes this stunning painting to the unusually brilliant exhibit of works by members of the South Side Art association, on view at the Club Woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers, thru Oct. 10.

Protestant Church Women to Meet Here

Women from Protestant churches thruout the Chicago area will gather Tuesday and Wednesday at the Harriet Hammond McCormick Memorial YWCA, 1001 North Dearborn street, to study the place of the Christian church in relation to a wartime world. The two day meeting will be the sixth annual interdenominational missionary institute held under the auspices of the woman's department of the Chicago Church federation.

Mrs. Catharine Waugh McCulloch. [Chambers photo.]

Presiding over the sessions will be Mrs. Albert W. Palmer, who heads the department; Mrs. C. E. Paulus, chairman of the institute, and Mrs. George R. Wilson, program director.

Leading clergymen and other church leaders will participate as speakers and instructors.

• • •

Dr. Mark A. Dawber of the Home Missions Council of North America, and Dr. Paul G. Macy, executive secretary of the Friends of the World Council of Churches, will address a public forum session Tuesday evening. Mrs. Ruth W. M. Worrell, executive secretary of the United Council of Church Women, also will be heard Tuesday night. The forum will be convened by Mrs. Charles W. Gilkey.

Mrs. Catharine Waugh McCullouch, Chicago attorney and veteran feminist, is to address one of the luncheon sessions on "Service Camp Conditions and Women's Responsibility." Mrs. McCulloch will appear under the auspices of the service men's committee of the Chicago Church federation and the Illinois Temperance council.

• • •

Other speakers scheduled for the luncheon sessions are Mrs. George Watson, director of the Chicago Volunteer Work camp of the American Friends Service committee, who will talk on the camp program; Mrs. Elsa Englander, case worker for Christian refugees in Chicago, who will discuss "The Responsibility of Church Women in the Refugee Problem," and Francisco X. Paz, chairman of the Institute of Social Investigation of the Mexican embassy, whose theme will be "Latin America in Chicago."

The institute plan includes several study courses for the training of the delegates for missionary educational programs in their church societies. Instructors will be Ruth Seabury, secretary of the American Board of the Congregational and Christian churches; Dr. Dawber; Virginia M. Mackenzie, secretary of the central area board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church; Mrs. Andrew Fenn, Hinsdale Union church; Mildred C. Widber, and Mrs. J. L. Hill, secretaries of children's work, respectively, with the Congregational and Christian churches and the Methodist Women's Society of Christian Service.

Alma-Jane Simpkinson Wed to Lieut. F. B. Wirt

Miss Almá-Jane Simpkinson, daughter of Mrs. Alma Jenkins Simpkinson of 4607 Magnolia avenue, and Lieut. Frederic B. Wirt were married on Sept. 19 in the Howes Memorial chapel in Evanston. A reception followed in the home of the bride's mother. Lieut. Wirt and his bride, who attended Northwestern and DePauw universities, have gone to his post at Fort Lewis, Ore., to live. He is the son of Mrs. Frederic B. Wirt of Aurora and attended Wabash college.

Music Clubs to Discuss Wider War Services

By Irene Stoyskal.

Plans to broaden war service work and arrangements for the annual "federation day" concert next month will occupy the First district of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs at its first fall meeting at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Woman's City clubrooms in the Fine Arts building. The board of managers is to assemble at 2:30 o'clock for a conference with Mrs. James Allen Young, executive chairman.

At the meeting today the district will hear an account from Mrs. Royden J. Keith, state president, on the national board and council of state and district presidents meeting in Providence, R. I., from which Mrs. Keith has just returned. Inez Hubbard Hicks will discuss district plans for promoting community singing, which the federation is emphasizing as a morale project.

For her first presentation as program chairman, Lulu Raben has engaged the Fine Art Opera group, directed by Zerline Muhlman Metzger, to give scenes from "La Travita." This year the monthly district meetings are to be opened to all club members and their friends.

Nicoli Malko, director of the Woman's Symphony orchestra, and Mrs. James G. Shakman, president of the woman's symphony board, are to be the special guests of the Chicago Woman's Musical club on its fall opening day Thursday. An open meeting, the assembly will be held at 2 o'clock in the literary club rooms of the Fine Arts building, with Mrs. Hicks presiding.

The group has as its major project the sponsoring of young American musicians and for a period of 25 years has been conducting scholarship contests in voice, piano and violin. Each fall the winners are presented in public recital in downtown Chicago in the series known as the Young Artists concerts. The list of famous musicians who were launched as protégés of the club has attained an impressive length. The 1942 Young Artists concert is scheduled for Wednesday night, Oct. 28, in Kimball hall.

• • •

The club members and guests are to have a "preview" at the Thursday meeting. Young musicians appearing on the club program will be Daniel Braude, violinist; Gerald Perman, pianist; Irene Reynolds, soprano, and Doris Mann, reader.

A member of the state and national federations of music clubs, the Chicago group is coöperating on a statewide ambulance fund project for musicians in the service. Monday night, Oct. 12, the club will present Mrs. Hicks and Margaret Jacobson, who also is a member, in a benefit concert at the Mission Covenant church, Mayfield and Iowa streets.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Sept. 26, 1894.

Dear Julia: We are looking forward to your visit and hope we shall have a number of interesting entertainments for you. One, at least, I am sure you'll enjoy, Otis Skinner in "His Grace, De Grammont." We are waiting for your arrival to see him at the Grand Opera house in the new Clyde Fitch play about which the critics rave. I always enjoy Mr. Skinner and am sure I shall like him in this romantic drama, for he is an ideal figure for a duke. Finely proportioned and handsome, his dark, expressive eyes seem to belong to a member of the Latin race, altho he is pure American, I believe. I always love plays in which the hero is clad in satin and velvet, with a plumed hat. Mr. Skinner seems to be successfully launched as a star. One critic says of him: "He comes with zest and easy bantering grave into the gayeties and follies of the first scene and reveals with artistic skill and poetic truth the emotion of suddenly awakened love."

Otis Skinner.

Last evening, if you had been here, we should have taken you to the Union League club, where a large reception was held in honor of Mr. John P. Wilson, president of the club, and Mrs. Wilson, on their return from a trip abroad. In addition to welcoming them home, it served as a reunion for members who have been away during the summer. Flowers were everywhere and the rooms looked lovely.

Receiving with Mrs. Wilson were ladies whose husbands have been prominent in the club, presidents, all of them, I believe. They were Mrs. L. L. Coburn, Mrs. C. C. Kohlsaat, Mrs. A. H. Revell, Mrs. John Barton Payne, Mrs. Ferdinand W. Peck, Mrs. Elbridge G. Keith, Mrs. George A. Follansbee, and Mrs. William A. Bond. Mrs. Wilson looked very elegant in a cream colored satin, trimmed with pearls.

There were two orchestras, Johnny Hand's playing for the dancing which was held in the billiard room, and Tomaso's mandolin band in the Tower room, where supper was served. The menu was quite in the Union League's best manner: Oyster patties, several different kinds of sandwiches, ice cream, coffee and chocolate, champagne and claret, lemonade frappé.

Guests came early and stayed late, enjoying the company of those they hadn't seen for a long time.

The outstanding wedding of the week was that of Katherine Isham, daughter of our old friends, Dr. and Mrs. R. N. Isham of 321 Dearborn avenue, and Arthur Farwell, son of our equally dear friends, Mr. and Mrs. John V. Farwell. We had every reason for wishing to attend the wedding, but it was celebrated at the Isham summer place at Lake Geneva and Will couldn't get away, so I remained at home getting news of it from Martha Jr., who did go.

She said it was a lovely wedding, with every attention paid to the guests, even to taking them around the lake in a yacht and offering them, of course, most delicious food. The catering was done by Biggs, Martha said. I mention this because I have engaged him for the reception which I'm to give for you next week. Mrs. Potter Palmer, I know, employed Biggs for many of her World's Fair parties, and I thought I'd try him. I am wondering if Kinsley's will suffer any decline, because of Mr. Kinsley's death. He passed away only a few days ago at the Holland House in New York, which he owned.

The Adams street restaurant will undoubtedly be just as well managed as ever, since his son-in-law, Mr. Robert G. Clark, has been in charge for some time, but there was a certain sentiment in having Mr. Kinsley cater for you, and so long as he was living we felt that he knew of our order and was interested in it. I think he had spent a good deal of time in New York lately. He had been at his summer home in Stamford, Conn., but had returned to New York for an operation, from which he did not recover. His daughters, Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson, Mrs. Clark, and Mrs. Baumann, were with him at the last, as was his wife. Mr. Baumann manages the Holland House. We shall miss him very much. Ever with love,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

The Kinsley restaurant functioned until 1902, when the business was sold to a brewing company. Biggs, mentioned by Martha in her letter, is still a going concern at 50 East Huron street, Mrs. Biggs continuing the catering business established by her husband. Apropos of the closing of the Kinsley restaurant, Mrs. James Rardon Montgomery of Dundee, Ill., writes that she has in her possession pieces of china and tableware given her father, Edward A. Bern, 4730 Greenwood avenue, Chicago, when Kinsley's was dismantled. Mr. Bern having been a constant patron of the place for many years, he was presented with these mementos.

Mrs. Montgomery writes: "The four plates which I have are fascinating. They must have been used in connection with the catering end of the business, as they are too fine for ordinary restaurant use. On the back, beside the Haviland mark, is printed 'Kinsley's, 1889.'"

Mr. Bern recalls the Chicago fire, and, as he lived near the O'Leary house, heard the story of the cow that very evening from a Mrs. McLaughlin, who lived with the O'Learys.

Labor Day, 1894.

Mrs. Harry Ely Sr., 1029 West 103d street writes: "You ask for recollections of the Labor day parade of 1894. It is very vivid in my mind because I had watched the blacksmiths' union decorate that special truck for a number of years previously. The wagon belonged to my father, John Shannon, who was in the teaming business. When the men drove back on that special Labor day my father was so elated we had hard work calming him. The men had tried so many times to win the prize and had failed, that the joy of success was almost overwhelming."

Carolyn Mims and Lieut. Mark Keane Wed at Camp Shelby

Miss Carolyn Mims, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Mims of Daytona Beach, Fla., and Lieut. Mark E. Keane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Keane of 1314 Winnemac avenue, were married on Sept. 12 in the chapel at Camp Shelby, Miss. The bride, a graduate of Florida State college, has been employed as a junior executive in the foreign funds control office of the treasury department at Washington, D. C. Lieut. Keane, who received his degree from Purdue university, was connected with the administration office of the Federal Works agency in Washington until he entered the army. He and his bride are at home in Hattiesburg, Miss., near his post, Camp Shelby.

Vivian Stange and Her Twin Brother Wed Day Apart

Miss Vivian Stange, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stange of Winnetka, and William Adam Bryan, son of Prof. and Mrs. William F. Bryan of Evanston, were married yesterday in St. John's Lutheran church, Wilmette. On the preceding evening Miss Margaret Helen Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Cox of Fort Wayne, Ind., became the bride of Miss Stange's twin brother, Hugo Stange, in the Howes Memorial chapel in Evanston. Mr. Stange, the former Miss Stange, and the former Miss Cox were graduated from Northwestern university. Mr. Cox received his A. B. degree from Princeton university and his master's degree from Northwestern.

War Gardens Flourishing in New Hampshire

WHITE MOUNTAINS, N. H.

Flaming torches of maple and sumach brighten the wayside thru the White mountains, and resorts remaining open for the autumn season are filled, some to overflowing. Many who have summer homes or farms within the territory, proudly display their Victory gardens, and, now that early frosts threaten, the joy of producing rows of jewel-like canned fruits, berries, and vegetables has enthralled women who never have before turned their attention to providing for the future. Indeed, it has become a hobby with many of the summer and autumn colonies, to salvage by canning whatever is not required for the table. Pickles and relishes, too, are popular, and many Chicago tables, come winter, will serve with pride these luscious fruits of their own labor.

The Ernest Pooles, Mrs. J. G. M. Glessner, Mrs. Glessner Lee, in the Littleton-Franconia section, are no strangers to canning. They all live many months of each year in their homes here, which have become their permanent residences.

Mr. and Mrs. James Healy of Chicago, who for so many years had resided in Switzerland, are enjoying the autumn season at the Crawford House, Crawford Notch, where they have spent the entire summer. Mrs. R. T. Nelson of Chicago, also a late arrival at Crawford Notch, has been enjoying the superb concerts given there twice daily by members of the Boston Symphony orchestra.

The Mountain View at Whitefield, long since inaugurated the custom of morning musicals, between noon and luncheon, that afternoons might be left free for walking, driving or sports.

Mrs. F. A. Ingalls of Chicago, who is at the Mountain View with Mrs. James B. Curtis of New York, has been noted lately at several of the matinée musicals.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Van Cleef and family of Chicago arrived recently at Spalding inn, Whitefield. Mrs. Robert McDougal of Chicago, who is there, has been a frequent prize winner at bridge and at putting.

Many celebrities are enjoying life in the hills. Just concluding an all-summer sojourn at Peckett's on Sugar Hill, were chief justice of the United States, the Hon. Harlan Fiske Stone, and Mrs. Stone, who occupied the same quaint cottage, furnished with priceless early American antiques and rugs, that for several years was summer home of former Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes.
